SPLENDID ANDERSON RALLY AT HAVELOCK

Rousing Liberal Meeting Held There Last Night in Mr. Anderson's Interests was Well Attended.

Mr. D. O'Connell Gave a Splendid Address, Replete With Sound Reasoning and Unansurable Logic.

Why the Ontario Government Should be Returned—Dr. Macdonald Ex-Deputy Speaker Delivers an Address.

Last night a most successful meeting in the interests of Mr. Wm. Anderson in East Peterborough was held in the Town Hall Havelock, which was well filled with the electors of the town, and surrounding district, and the speakers were exceedingly well received, and Mr. Anderson should feel elated, as a result of this meeting. The speakers in addition to the candidate, Mr. Anderson, were Mr. D. O'Connell, of Peterborough and Dr. Macdonald, late Deputy Speaker in the Dominion Parliament, and both gentlemen delivered very effective addresses, the former in particular.

There were a large number of Conservatives in the audience, and the calm and logical addresses of the two speakers could not help having their effect.

Mr. W. T. Curtis, late member of the County Council, was chairman of the meeting, and in a short address endorsed the candidature of Mr. Anderson, who he felt sure would be elected on January 25th. During the last two years Mr. Anderson has proved that he was a proper representative of the people, and his record had been such as merited the approval of the electors and one which made him worthy of re-election.

THE CANDIDATE'S ADDRESS.

Mr. Anderson was exceedingly well recieved by the audience when he arose to address them, and in a short, but forcible and effective speech, thanked the electors for the support that they had given him in the past and asked for their votes on the present occasion. He had tried to serve them faithfully during the two years that he had represented East Peterborough in the Legislature, and he felt that he was deserving of their support in this campaign.

MR. D. O'CONNELL SPEAKS.

Mr. D. O'Connell gave the next address, and remarked that nothing need be said with reference to Mr. Anderson. He was well known by all, and in the position which he had occupied in the Township and County Councils he had proven his worth.

Two years ago he had been honoured by being elected to the Legislative Assembly by the electors of East Peterborough, and during these two years he had again demonstrated his worth as a representative. He was again appealing to the people for their support on this occasion, and he had justly earned the confidence of the people. According to all the reports available, and according to the testimony of colleagues, and the Ministers, he had been a faithful member. He was a very consistent member of the House and was always in his place in the Committee, and the House, and particularly in the former, his advice was often sought.

If only the question of the two candidates were to be considered he had no doubt that the old and tried servant would again be selected. But a much more important question than that of merely choosing between two men was before the people. It was that of deciding which of the two political parties in Ontario shall be chosen to administer the affairs for the next four years.

The speaker was of the opinion that the great majority of the electors in the province did not pay sufficient attention to the important duties to be performed in the Legislative Assembly, and are too often influenced by party ties. Important as the duties of the Dominion Parliament are, he thought that those of the province were much more important, because they had to do directly with the local affairs, and have to do with the assets of the province in such a manner that the best interests of the people will be well protected. Then they have to do with the enforcement of the law. They have to grant the franchises of the province, and they have to establish and maintain the public charities as well as the educational facilities. He asked the electors to cast aside all unworthy consideration and do that which is best in the interests of the province as well as their own interests. The only question which they were called upon to answer was, whether the present Government of Ontario had faithfully discharged its duties, or whether by a change of Government would the province's affairs be more carefully guarded.

At Confederation the two provinces of Ontario and Quebec had started equal and Ontario has a cash surplus in the bank of $3,700,000 owing to an absolutely honest administration. But in Quebec things are not as favourable, for in that province $1,500,000 as interest on the public debt of the province is being paid out annually.

Dealing with the sources of revenue of Ontario he explained the operation of the Succession Duty Act, which was not one which was burdensome to the poor people, but came entirely out of the estates of the wealthy. This act was opposed strenuously by Mr. Whitney, but from its operation $2,000,000 had been paid into the revenue of the province.

The most important source of revenue of the province was that of the Crown Lands Department, and it is one which requires not only a careful, but also a good business administration. During the last thirty-two years the Crown Lands Department has been conducted in a thoroughly business-like manner. From the time of the Sandfield Macdonald Government to the present time, the timber limits show that a splendid business ability has been exercised in their management. It is only a short time ago, since the Ross Government came into power, and during that time the timber limits sold for $3,245 per square mile, as compared with $117 per square mile under the Sandfield Macdonald Government. Since the Liberal Government came into power, there has been received from this source alone, $42,000,000. Since 1867 the total revenue to the province has been $123,000,000, of which $113,000,000 have been spent for the benefit of the people of the province. He asked if the administration of the province had been under the charge of the Conservative Government during these 32 years, would the people have been given the splendid public institutions that they now have. He questioned it, and quoted as proof of this position, the action of the Conservatives in regard to the disputed territory, which the Conservatives wanted to give to Manitoba, and it was only by the strenuous efforts of the late Mr. Mowat that this land was secured to the province. During the period in which this territory was in doubt, the timber limits were sold to the friends of the Conservatives by that Government for $5 per square mile.

Then the money raised has been well expended, $5,000,000 going towards the encouragement of the farming industry, the most important in the province. For public charities, and the maintenance of hospitals, asylums, etc., $24,000,000 has been spent, thus saving the people from being taxed directly for this purpose. About the same amount has been spent for educational purposes, $20,000,000 being the figures for this department. The Government has also spent large sums for the opening up of the newer portions of the province, and encouraging the young men of Ontario to remain in their own province instead of going outside its borders to earn a livelihood.

For thirty-two years the Ontario Liberal Government has had the disposition of this immense public estate, valued at $500,000,000, and the Conservatives, watching the affairs of the province for thirty-two years, have been unable to point to one dollar of this money that has been dishonourably or improperly spent. (Applause.)

The development of New Ontario has also claimed the attention of the Government, which has offered every facility for the settling of that part of the province, and have assisted a number of railway enterprises.

Mr. O'Connell referred to the aid aid given to the "Soo" industries, and showed how the encouragement given to the industries by the guarantee was amply justified by the results.

It seems that when any question arises requiring the possession of business acumen, the Conservatives fail utterly to appreciate the importance of the issue, and fail to show any policy which has yet won the confidence of the people. He had no hesitation in saying that the Conservatives were as far from getting into power in the coming provincial elections, as they were in the last eight election contests in Ontario, because they have never yet been able to present a policy. Mr. O'Connell referred to the "menagerie policy" of the Conservatives, upon which they had appealed to the people in the past.

If the Conservatives had never done worse than bring up petty issues, then it might be possible to consider them as being honest. But they had done worse than this. They had appealed to sectional feeling, and had tried to stir up sectarian strife among the people of the province, and instanced the production of the "Facts for Irish Electors," and 'The Eye-Opener," both of which, however, happily had reacted upon them, and had utterly failed to produce the effects desired. On the other hand the Liberals had sought to unite the different sections of the people and build up a united Canada. In view of these facts he asked which of the two parties they would prefer to have preside over the province for the next four years.

DR. MACDONALD'S ADDRESS.

Dr. Macdonald, the late Deputy Speaker of the Dominion Parliament, was the next speaker, and made a splendid speech in support of Mr. Anderson's candidature, which he said he was glad to do at the request of Hon. G. W. Ross. He counselled the supporters of Mr. Anderson to exert themselves to secure his election. Be minded the electors that the Conservatives were on the alert, and were always anxious to misrepresent the facts.

Dr. MacDonald dealt with the charge of corruption, and admitted that there had been some things done in the Liberal party that had not been right, but none of the Opposition speakers had been able to fasten any of the blame upon the leaders of the party, but the Conservatives were unwilling to admit that they had ever done anything wrong themselves. It is true that they had not had the opportunity of doing much wrong in Ontario, because the people had been wise enough to keep them out of power.

The speaker referred to the South Ontario election, in which Mr. Smith admitted that he had spent $1,200 to help defeat Mr. Dryden.

The brilliant career of Hon. G. W. Ross was outlined by the speaker, and he said that through the whole life of the province he had shown that he possessed not only ability, but integrity, which has never been successfully questioned. Mr. Whitney on the other hand, is a mere pigmy compared with the premier.

Dr. MacDonald referred to the question of the disputed boundary, and quoted some instances of Sir John Macdonald selling the timber limits to his friends during the time that the question was in dispute, for almost nothing. The speaker then referred to the record of the Liberal Government in Ontario for the last thirty-two years, showing that the administration of the affairs of the province, had been wise, careful and business - like, and the heritage of the people had been saved for the people. He closed his address with an appeal to the electors present to consult their own interests by electing Mr. Anderson as a supporter of Mr. Ross.

The meeting then closed with hearty cheers for the King, the candidate and the premier.

ANOTHER GREAT LIBERAL RALLY

To be Held in Opera House Next Monday Night.

Addresses by Managing Editor of the Globe and Mr. R. C. Clute.

The Liberals will hold another big meeting in the Opera House, in the interests of Mr. McWilliams, on Monday night next, and nobody should miss the opportunity to be present. It is seldom that Peterborough has the chance to hear addresses from such able and thoughtful men as Mr. J. A. Macdonald, the editor-in-chief of the Globe, and Mr. R. C. Clute, K.C.

Mr. Macdonald first made a great reputation as the founder of the Westminster, and when the Globe persuaded him to take the management of the paper, it was recognized on all sides that it had secured a man of most exceptional qualifications. He has spoken twice before in Peterborough, and everybody who heard him then was impressed with the immense strength of character and mind and the sincerity and the earnestness which characterized him.

Mr. Clute is not so well known by name outside of the legal profession, but all who have studied the labour questions of this country know of his work in that field, and no workingman in the town should miss the opportunity of hearing him. As the chief commissioner in the investigation into the labour troubles at the time of the construction of the Crow's Nest Railway, in a similar position upon the commission to investigate the question of Chinese immigration, and in other similar work, he has shown an understanding of labour conditions and an ability to deal with them, which has won the highest praise on all sides.

It is the duty of every elector to exercise his best judgment in deciding how he will vote, and to avail himself of every opportunity of hearing the public questions ably discussed, and this meeting will afford a rare chance of hearing such discussion.

Severe Cold in the Chest

"My fourteen-year-old boy had a very severe cold in the chest last winter and I really thought he was going to die. He coughed nearly all the time and sometimes would spit up blood. I can positively say that he was completely cured by two bottles of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, and he has not been troubled since."—Mrs. J. Provost, Renfrew, Ont.

T.A.S. WON IN A GREAT FINISH

Defeated Keene Last Night by Score of 6—5.

Only a small crowd saw the opening Trent Valley League game between T.A.S. and Keene at the Brock street rink last evening, but those who were there were rewarded by being given an excellent exhibition of Canada's National winter pastime. The T.A.S. won by 6—5 after a desperately fought contest with a heart-breaking finish, the winning goal being scored with only 30 seconds left to play. It was a well played game, not extraordinarily fast but characterized by close checking and hard playing from start to finish. It was anybody's game until the last minute, with only four and a half minutes to play Keene led by 5—4, but the Abstainers made a garrison finish and scored twice, winning out by 6—5.

Neither team displayed much combination work, the goals being nearly all due to individual rushes. Both forward lines were a little off colour in their shooting and many opportunities to score were lost because of the bad marksmanship.

The T.A.S. team put up a great game. The bunch that wore the red and black last night were nearly all juniors, but they delivered the goods in great shape. The team is well balanced, the defence being almost impregnable and the forwards fast and reliable. DeForge at rover was the star of the firing line. He had speed to burn and his stick handling was a la Harold Armstrong. He scored the majority of the Abstainers' goals. McGrath at centre worked hard all the way through and was always on the puck. Kelly and Rose, the wings played fine games and their shots were generally on the nets. Quigley proved to be a star at coverpoint. It was a new position for the ex-Lakefield man but he certainly made good. He checked well and his lifts were always dangerous. His occasional rushes were very hard to stop. Capt. Meagher at point was a veritable stone wall and very few men got past him. His dashes down the ice always relieved the pressure. Chaney turned aside some bad-looking ones.

For Keene Vince McCarthy at right wing was easily the star. He was perhaps the fastest man on the ice and when he got going it was very hard to stop him. His shooting from the wing was deadly and most of the visitors' goals were due to his great marksmanship. McIntyre also put up a good game and was generally in his place when needed. M. Weir at point was the star of the defence, breaking up many rushes and relieving well. He probably stopped more shots than the goal-keeper. Burnham figured in goal for the first time and demonstrated that he was a worthy successor of the veteran McIntyre, who has so often guarded Keene's nets. The Keene bunch wished to play Donegan of the Warkworth team, but as he hadn't a permit the T.A.S. couldn't see it that way and Lundy was substituted.

Mr. Harry Morgan referred to the the satisfaction of both teams.

The teams faced each other like this:

T. A. S. (6)	Keene (5)
Goal.
Chaney	Burnham
Point.
Meagher	M. Weir
Cover Point.
Quigley	J. McCarthy
Rover.
DeForge	Lundy
Centre.
McGrath	McIntyre
Right Wing.
Rose	V. McCarthy
Left Wing.
Kelley	J. Weir

Referee, Harry Morgan, Peterborough.

Timekeepers, J. McIntyre, Keene; Fred Decocher, Peterborough.

Penalty timekeeper, W. Crowley, Peterborough.

Goal Umpire, W. Wiggins, Keene; Fred McGrath, Peterborough.

Play was even at first, and several end to end rushes failed to produce a score. The players were a little inclined to be rough, but Referee Morgan soon let them know that he wouldn't stand for any of it. J. McCarthy went to the boards two minutes for slashing. LaForge rushed, but Burnham was in the way. Lundy went off for bodying. McCarthy was hurt and retired, the T. A. S. dropping Kelly. Rose went off for slashing. Finally after fifteen minutes hard play V. McCarthy uncorked a nice one and scored the first goal. Score, 1—0.

It only took the T.A.S. one minute to even up. Meagher broke up a rush, dashed down the ice and passed to DeForge, the speedy little rover, beating Burnham with a nice shot. Score 1—1.

McCarthy and Kelly came on again. The T.A.S. were pressing, but could not score for some time. At last McGrath got an opening at quarter way, and scored with an easy shot in 3 minutes. Score 2—1.

Quigley was hurt and the game delayed for a minute. Play was very close. Keene forwards got right through the defence, but McIntyre's shot was wild. Meagher rushed but his shot was blocked. DeForge, however, was Tommy-on-the-spot, and slammed it in in nine minutes. Score 3—1.

It looked easy for T.A.S. Kelly went off for a minute for slashing. V. McCarthy made a nice shot which Chaney stopped but the Keene right wing batted it through on the rebound in two minutes. Score, 3—2, half time.

Keene looked like winners at the beginning of the second half. Several dangerous rushes were repelled by the T.A.S. defence. At last McCarthy and McIntyre broke away from near centre and fooled the Abstainers' defence, McCarthy scoring on a nice shot in four minutes. Score, 3—3.

J. McCarthy made another visit to the timekeepers for bodying. T.A.S. rushed but Burnham made a nice stop. DeForge, however, brought brought the puck around from behind and scored in 3 1-2 minutes. Score, 4—3.

Kelly again went off for slashing. Quigley lifted to Weir, and the Keene point returned the compliment, V. McCarthy following up fast and scoring in 2 minutes. Score, 4—4.

It took ten minutes of the hardest kind of playing to break the tie. Rose and J. Weir went off for scrapping, Lundy and V. McCarthy combined for a beautiful rush, the latter scoring.

There was only 4 1-2 minutes to play and things looked bad for the T. A. S. The Abstainers, however, were not all in, and played desperately. Meagher made a nice rush, and passed to DeForge, who found the nets in 2 1-2 minutes. Score 5—5.

With only two minutes left Keene worked hard to stave off defeat, but it was not to be. DeForge got the rubber near centre, and dodging the visitors' defence scored the winning goal, in 1 1-2 minutes, with only one-half minute left to play. It was a great finish. Final score, T. A. S., 6; Keene, 5.

Summary.

1—Keene, V. McCarthy, 15 minutes.
2—T. A. S., DeForge, 1 minute.
3—T.A.S., McGrath, 3 minutes.
4—T.A.S, DeForge, 2 minutes.
5—Keene, V. McCarthy, 2 minutes.

Half Time.

CONDUCTOR HAMMIL KILLED BY TRAIN

Struck by Peterborough "Flyr" while Making up his Train.

Last night about nine o'clock, a deplorable accident occurred at Little York, near Toronto, by which Conductor Hammel, well known in Peterborough, was instantly killed. The full details of the accident have not reached here, but from information that has been gathered, it is learned that the deceased was engaged in his duties as conductor on one of the Grand Trunk freight trains which was waiting for orders at Little York, when the Peterborough "flyer" from Toronto, came along unexpectedly, and struck him, killing him instantly, the body being badly cut up. It is understood that the accident was first observed by the engineer of the "flyer" who noticed the light of a conductor's coloured lantern going up in the air after passing Little York station. Suspecting something had gone wrong, he stopped the train, and on going back found the remains of Conductor Hammel, as stated.

Deceased was for some time in charge of the shunting engine in the Grand Trunk yard here, and was well known among railway men as a steady, industrious and competent employee of the company. He had relatives in town, who will have the sympathy of the public.

A COMING METROPOLIS

VANCOUVER CITY IS ALREADY THE MONTREAL OF THE WEST.

Millions of Dollars Worth of Eastern Fabrics Pass Through That Port on Their Way to Eastern Canada and the United States—Sumptuous Floating Palaces Are the C.P.R. Steamers—A Clean, Progressive Town.

What Montreal is to the shipping of the East, Vancouver will yet be, in fact is, to the West, writes John F. McConnell in Toronto Star. When those vast markets of the teeming countries of the Far East, Japan and China, have been opened and developed for Canadian products, Vancouver will be a metropolis of the first magnitude. To-day millions of dollars worth of Eastern fabrics pass through this port on their way to the Eastern markets of Canada and the United States. The other day I had the privilege of boarding the newly-arrived Empress of China, laden with Oriental treasures, and one could not but be impressed as the myriad bales and sacks and cases of Oriental wares were unloaded into the huge receiving warehouses.

And what sumptuous floating palaces these C.P.R. Pacific steamers are. They excel in commodiousness and luxury any ocean-going steamers I have ever seen. To go through one is to conceive a desire to take the thirteen days voyage to Yokohama. A passenger from Hong Kong with whom I conversed told me these boats were a splendid advertisement to Canada in the Orient. They have spread the name and fame of Canada throughout the ports of Japan and China, for their modernness and beauty.

There is so much of interest in Vancouver that it is difficult to comprehend all its points in one short letter. Its situation, with its beautiful placid sound and the snow-capped distant mountains, its climate, its fisheries, lumbering and mining interests, its business houses and its beautiful homes, and last, but not least, its hospitable people, who meet you with a hearty "glad-to-meet-you" and "hope-you're-going-to-stay," all demand attention.

I like the Vancouver business man. He simply bubbles over with enthusiasm and optimism. Get him going on his country or his town, and he knows no stopping place. But he doesn't talk shop.

Vancouver is a well-built, well-paved, clean, progressive town. Its stores are as fine as will be found anywhere.

As the train pulls into the city it passes rows of huge sawmills on the banks of the Fraser River. Along the river one sees scores of salmon traps, with huge canneries in the distance.

From the handsome station you drive up gently sloping Granville street to the hotel. On the way you pass fine business blocks, substantial bank buildings, and prosperous warehouses. You are in a city of 40,000 inhabitants.

Vancouver's residental district is beautifully built. What is known as the English Bay district will yet be what Back Bay is to Boston. The view across the sound to the mountains is almost uninterrupted in every part of this district, and a more beautiful location for a home could hardly be imagined.

Nature has been kind to Vancouver. Last Sunday I walked in Stanley Park. The air was balmy as down east May, the sunshine flooded the forest aisles with golden light. Stanley Park is on the British Columbia scale of nature. It is immense. It is just nine miles around it, and nine-tenths of it is primeval forest. It is circled by a beautiful drive road paved with broken sea shells, smooth as asphalt.

FFotpaths pierce the forest in all directions. In this forest are placed the sun never penetrates. The hottest day in summer is chilly in those places. This forest is typical of the 200,000 square miles of other British Columbia forest. Here rise the giant firs, 250 feet high, one so big and hollow one may drive a team of horses into it, others about whose roots I stepped off thirty paces, ninety feet; trees whose age goes back a thousand years; straight as an arrow they rear their towering trunks into the soft Pacific air. The trailing vine, the hanging moss, the ferns, and the leaves of many trees are green as June in this fairy park this warm December day, for there is no winter here. Roses on the lawns are yet in bud and flower, the grassy slopes are green as any May day lawn down east.

A volume might be written about this huge fairyland, and not a few have been, but I must pass on to other topics.

British Columbia is just recovering from the effects of a mining boom. Or all the pernicious influences which can injure a town, a country, or an industry for effectiveness and general cussedness, commend me to a boom. Hundreds of people down East have cause to remember the last British Columbia mining boom. The memory of that boom has been a heavy blow to the mining interests, I mean the real, not the paper, interests of this magnificent country. British Columbia has the mines—all that is needed to make its mining interests greater than any other in the world are enterprise, capital, and honest promotion. My own impression is that the laws governing the capitalization of mining companies must first be amended so as to make it difficult, if not impossible, to secure the public's savings for wildcat schemes. Ninety per cent. of the general public who have invested in British Columbia mining stocks down East have been stuck. Yet there are any number of splendid mines in actual operation, and hundreds of genuinely good prospects in British Columbia awaiting the magic touch of capital to become good earners. But a child once burned monkeys no more with the fire, so that if Eastern capital is again to be largely interested in British Columbia mining, our mining laws will have to be framed with a view to choking off the wildcatter, and to giving to a legitimate enterprise that degree of confidence to which it may be entitled.

Every fourth year is the big one in the fishing industry of British Columbia. So far no scientist has yet run of salmon which occurs every fourth year, nor why the year before the big run is almost invariably the lightest one of the four. Next year is to be the big year, and this one has been one of the lean ones, consequently the canning industry is living in anticipation, rather than in a realization of good times.

The lumber industry is suffering some depression also.

LIFE IN AFGHANISTAN.

Rendered Intolerable by An Elaborate System of Espionage.

Mrs. K. Daly, who for eight years was the only European woman in Afghanistan, and who held the post of medical officer to the Afghan Government, has been speaking of life in the Ameer's realms and says: "What told on one's nerves most was the knowledge that one's every movement was watched. Every day a report was sent in of our doings. Another time of great anxiety was when an attack was made on Mr. Martin in the workshops. It was a miracle that he escaped death, for his assailant hurled at him a heavy shell, which, fortunately, just missed the spine. I was well guarded and never went out without a mounted escort. During the late Ameer's life his guard consisted of seven soldiers, but since the present reign this has been increased to 14, seven of whom were with me in the streets, while seven guarded my house. It is not difficult, therefore, to see that we could do nothing unobserved. The system of espionage is truly marvelous. Take the case of the British agent in Cabul. There have been three since I have lived in the city. They must be Mohammedans and are mostly officers in the Indian army; but to all intents and purposes they are prisoners. I believe they are received in durbar, but they dare not visit anyone and all the years I have been in Cabul I never saw our agent in the street. I have occasionally met some of his staff, but to be seen speaking to them would certainly entail being packed off to the frontier next day. No Afghan is allowed to visit the British agency and no Englishman has visited the British agent since Sir Saltar Pyne was in Cabul. It is well known that if you wish to keep out of trouble you must avoid the agency; even to be seen near the building causes suspicion, as many Afghans have found to their cost; in many cases punishment has not ended merely with imprisonment.

"As regards Russian influence, there is no doubt that the common people are against Russia and in favor of closer connection with the British, and even in court circles it may be said that the feeling is distinctly not in favor of Russia. One heard a good deal in Cabul of Russian intrigue, but there was certainly not much visible evidence of such. Last year two so-called Russian orderlies—supposed to be spies—were taken prisoners at Herat and brought into Cabul. One died of fever in prison, the other disappeared, no one knows where. Last year, too, it was generally believed that there was a Russian emissary in Cabul, although the utmost secrecy was observed on the point. There can be no question that Russian agents have made determined efforts to get into closer touch with the Ameer, and soon after the present Ameer came to the throne presents of Russian guns and ammunition were refused by the Afghan Government. From my own knowledge and observation I should say that Russian advances meet with no favorable response on the part of the Ameer or his advisers."

Asked to give some details of the Afghan harem and of the court life, Mrs. Daly said: "I may begin by assuring you that the ordinary idea of life in the harem as portrayed in popular novels or in the pictures of the day is absolutely erroneous. What will be said of the statement that sewing machines have taken the place of Turkish delight, and English costumes that of the diaphanous attire usually attributed to ladies of the harem. Next to the Ameer himself, the chief political factor in the country is the Queen, by which title the royal wife of the late Ameer and the mother of Prince Umar is known. Although she is practically a prisoner in her palace her influence is still great. She is a woman of considerable beauty, about 40 years of age, and particularly intelligent and well informed. Her sympathies are distinctly British, so much so that her palace is regarded with almost as much suspicion as the British agency. The chief or favorite wife of the present Ameer lives in the harem Serai of the palace at Arak, where a number of royal concubines are also housed, but they do not live in the voluptuous and idle state usually associated with the harem. They are all busy, and take great interest in knitting, embroidery and other feminine pursuits. The chief wife has a sewing machine and with it makes clothes for her children. The Ameer has one wife who is of royal birth, and who lives in a separate house. She is an ambitious woman and wears English dresses, although it should be said that they are copies of the style of 30 years ago. Each of the Ameer's married wives—as distinct from his slave concubines—has a separate house where she lives with her children."

JEWISH DIVORCES IN TORONTO.

How the Registrar-General's Department became aware that the practice of divorces and illegal marriages prevailed in Toronto was learned the other day. By law the clerk of the municipality is called upon to furnish ministers with registers in which to record the marriages they solemnize. Recently City Clerk Littlejohn noticed that parties who did not seem to have authority to solemnize marriages called upon him for registers. He refused to issue the books, and at once called the attention of the Registrar-General to this matter. Almost simultaneously some of the more prominent Jews called at the office of the Registrar-General and stated that in connection with these so-called marriages there was a plan of granting alleged divorces. They urged that means be taken to stop the practice, and promised their assistance. These notifications from two different standpoints caused the Government to start the investigation which is now proceeding.

It is of course known that the regular synagogues do all in their power to stop any such practice, and that the ignorant or guilty parties would naturally do all in their power to keep the matter away from those in authority, and the more prominent people of the community. Those who have been presuming to perform such marriages and to grant the alleged divorces are said to be "readers," men whom the newer arrivals and the ignorant and the poor hire to read them the law on the great festivals. The evil is not found amongst those connected with any regular synagogue.

Manitoba Deals With It.

Manitoba had a like difficulty some years ago, and the following clause was added to the Marriage Act with the concurrence of leading Hebrew citizens who wanted the evil stamped out:

"Sec. 29.—No person who professes the Jewish faith or religion shall be considered as duly ordained or appointed within the meaning of the third section of this Act, unless such person shall have been so ordained or appointed by a Jewish synagogue or congregation, which is incorporated under the provisions of some statute passed by the Legislature of the Province of Manitoba, or under the provisions of some statute passed by the Parliament of Canada, or which holds lands under the Church Lands Act, such ordination or appointment to be in writing, signed by at least twenty members of such synagogue or congregation (being householders); or unless in the case of a synagogue or congregation not so incorporated or holding lands as aforesaid, such person shall have been ordained or appointed in writing by thirty bona fide members thereof (being householders), but such last-named synagogue or congregation shall not have more than one person ordained or appointed during the time when such appointment is in force. In all cases coming under this section the appointment shall be filed with the Department of Agriculture and Immigration, and no marriage shall be solemnised by any such person so appointed until after the filing of his appointment, which appointment, when accepted and filed in the Department, shall be conclusive evidence of the authority of the person so appointed."

No such provision appears in the Ontario Act. Provision is made for the case of the Quakers, Disciples and the Salvation Army, but the Jewish churches or synagogues have not been specially dealt with as in Manitoba.

John Bull and His Teachers.

Professor Edgar of St. Andrew's University, in a recent address to secondary teachers, made some suggestive remarks (says a writer in The People's Friend). He said that the salary paid to a thoroughly-educated female teacher was less than that paid to a second-class cook. In fact (if you take into account board and compulsory cost of suitable apparel), an ordinary female teacher is far worse paid than a capable domestic servant. Moreover, the profession is held in scant public esteem. And yet, the professor wisely urged, is there any man on whom rest such transcendent responsibilities? The teacher has the opportunity of moulding for time and eternity the young lives upon whom the future destinies of the race must hang. In Germany the "Herr Professor" is the most honored and revered man in the community. It is, perhaps, natural for "a nation of shopkeepers" to under-estimate the importance of the higher things of life.

Literature's Noblest Service.

A few were authorized to dwell continuously with nature, but most of us had to prove truth where we stood. The green pastures and still waters for those must be of the spirit. And so as art was not the real, yet it was one of its symbols and its mission was to the unlearned, the poor and the blind in spiritual things. The noblest service of literature was to keep in aware of God and of ourselves.—Mrs. Cutter at Toronto.

SCOTLAND AND PITTSBURG.

In Last Twelve Months Carnegie Has Given Them Close on $20,000,000.

Each year it is becoming more and more evident that, despite his most strenuous exertions to the contrary, Andrew Carnegie will, to use his own now famous expression, ultimately die disgraced. The cause of this is found in the fact that, though he distributes his fortune as no one has ever distributed a fortune before, his banking account increases so rapidly that it is practically impossible, at least by his present donations, to even get abreast of his income. During the last ten years Carnegie has given in a manner which has astonished the world, and yet he has succeeded in parting with less than half his income for that period of time, while the principal remains still untouched.

It has been proved that the exact amount of the millionaire's donations up to the end of May reached the colossal sum of $90,969,200, distributed through the different countries as follows:

United States.....	$68,517,450
Scotland.....	17,763,750
Holland.....	1,750,000
England and Wales..... ...	1,354,500
Dominion of Canada.....	1,016,500
Ireland.....	315,000
Cuba.....	252,000
	$90,969,200

This, of course, is an enormous sum, yet the amount is less than four years of the steel magnate's income. Do all he can, Mr. Carnegie acknowledges that he has found it impossible, so far, to make his donations overtake the millions which are added yearly to his fortune, and unless he can hit on some quicker method of getting rid of his dollars it is very evident that what he has so sternly denounced will happen—he will die a rich man.

Mr. Carnegie's donations during the last twelve months have been in excess of those of any single year since the time when he first began the work of getting rid of his fortune; but though he should keep this up to the end of his life he cannot possibly hope to materially lessen the amount of the principal. To Scotland and Pittsburg alone during the last twelve months Carnegie has given close upon $20,000,000, and it is, perhaps, only natural that the bulk of his fortune should go to the land of his birth and the city where all his money was made.

It has been estimated that Carnegie's wealth grows at the rate of a dollar for every tick of the clock, and as interesting table has lately been prepared showing his income derived from his holdings in steel and other industries. This remarkable schedule works out as follows:

Other investments...	20,000,000
Total.....	$166,250,000
His income, estimated by Frick, on profits of Steel Company for 1900.....	$24,500,000
Income from other investments.....	1,500,000
Total income.....	$26,000,000

For the benefit of the statistical lover it might be mentioned that this income works out to something like $2,166,665 a month, $500,000 a week, or $71,430 a day. It will, therefore, be seen that for every hour, day and night, Carnegie can count upon having placed to his credit $3,000, or, reduced down still further, $50 each minute.

The possession of so much wealth might have turned a steadier brain than even Mr. Carnegie's, but the only thing that worries the millionaire is the difficulty he experiences in getting rid of it.—London Tit-Bits.

SIR W. C. MACDONALD.

Bids Fair to Become the Greatest Educational Philanthropist Canada Has Ever Seen—His Gifts.

Sir W. C. Macdonald, of Montreal, bids fair to become the greatest educational philanthropist Canada has ever seen. The millionaire tobacco manufacturer has given liberally of his great wealth in the past for the cause of technical education, as the Macdonald Institutes bear witness, but his recent benefices throw previous gifts into the background, and set a new standard for future Canadian Carnegies to equal or surpass. Sir William is taking the wiser course in disposing of his fortune while he is alive and able to enjoy the good he is doing, and as to the direction in which his philanthropy turns there can be no two opinions.

Ontario's Big Whistle.

Speaking before the Canadian Club in Ottawa the other evening, Prof. Robertson said, in reply to an opinion that Ontario's system was peerless: "That reminds me of the story of Abraham Lincoln, who had remarked on one occasion, 'Why, I know of a steamboat that has a one-horse engine and a fifty-horse whistle.' That steamboat drifted a good deal.

"There have been in our schools many additions and hardly any reforms. The schools reflect the people, and here we may ask, What do we want the schools to produce? We want them to produce the highest type of citizen, with occasionally the highest type of scholar. People send their children to school with the object of making them able to earn a genteel living in the easiest way. That is a deplorable ideal for a great people. But there is so little public enthusiasm for education that the most valuable servants of the community, the teachers, are rated lowest in regard to remuneration, while they are doing the most important work. We are slack and careless in regard to large expenditures for trivial and transient things and utterly penurious in matters that are of the greatest importance."

Gifts for Manual Training.

Both additions and reforms were made possible when Sir William Macdonald made his first gifts to manual training. He believed that the system which then reigned absolutely and which still holds diminished sway magnified the value of the knowledge of books, of names, dates, rules and forms. He did not question their value, but he held that it was distorted, and that another world of knowledge was permitted to remain ignored and unknown. The great argument in favor of manual training is that it stimulates constructive ability, and develops the student's mental capacity by giving him to handle and use tools which are real to him. That it has a tendency to inculcate self-reliance is beyond dispute. Against this theory many old-time educationists and trades unionists arrayed themselves, and for a time the dispute raged fiercely, and even yet has not quite died away. But the Macdonald fund won the day.

School Consolidation.

For the consolidation of rural schools the philanthropy of Sir William Macdonald has done much. There are in Canada no fewer than 750,000 children attending school in the rural districts, compared with 450,000 in cities, towns and incorporated villages, and the general feeling is that the rural school children acquire their education under unfavorable circumstances. Specialization is impossible in the matter of instruction. The same teacher, usually a young girl, who teaches the children the alphabet, is expected to teach boys 16 and 18 years old the inner meaning of geometrical problems. The task is too great; only a genius could do it well, and genius is offered less than a day laborer's pay in most cases. Under this old system the results were generally unsatisfactory, and the waste of the children's time has been termed appalling. Under the Macdonald fund consolidation was actively promoted. At Middleton, N.S., seven little schools have been closed, and one large graded school, thoroughly organized and well equipped in every way, has been established to do the work of the seven. Large school vans were used to bring distant pupils to and from school; with hardly any inconvenience the transformation has been wrought, and one of the most important results is reflected in the attendance, which now exceeds by 70 per cent. the combined attendance at the seven little red school-houses. At Guelph, and at Kingston, N. B., a similar successful experiment has been made.

An Agricultural University.

The latest phase of the Macdonald educational scheme takes the shape of an institution which is expected to become the headquarters of advanced rural education in Canada. It will be established at Ste. Anne de Bellevue, twenty miles west of Montreal, and is thus described by Prof. Robertson:

"The general plan provides for a department of research, with special laboratories and equipment for work in bacteriology of soils and products, biology in plants and the animals dealt with in agriculture, physics as applicable to rural life, and agricultural chemistry. The institution will also comprise a department of farms. These will be used for illustrating the most economical and best known profit-making methods of agriculture. There will be at least three special farms, the dairy farm, the meat-producing farm, and the small cultures farm. Provision will be made for receiving apprentices on those farms, and within each farm will be a series of small apprentice farms. That is merely an enlargement of the idea of the school garden at the consolidated schools. On these smaller farms of from one to five acres groups of apprentices will have full charge, and learn by doing and managing for themselves.

"There will also be a department of instruction, and a farm school, and what will practically be a college of agriculture, on lines somewhat similar to those followed at the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph."

ARCHIVES OF CANADA.

An Ottawa correspondent writes: Last session the Government voted the sum of fifty thousand dollars towards the construction of a fireproof building for the preservation of our archives. During the coming session it is to be hoped that substantial provision will be made for a work equally important, namely, the collection and arrangement of the papers for which the new building is being erected. Canada has a history of which we have reason to be proud; but judging from a report on the condition of the public records made in 1898, a copy of which is before us, we have no reason to be particularly thankful for the care which has been bestowed upon the greater part of our archives in the past. The late Dr. Douglas Brymner, Dominion archivist, labored incessantly for nearly thirty years to form a collection of papers of national importance, and he succeeded by patient endeavor in amassing thousands of volumes of valuable records. Most of these volumes, however, were gathered outside of Ottawa, while according to page 7 of the report, papers of high value stored in the departments "were relegated to the basement apparently rather as lumber to be got rid of than as records to be preserved. Thus records which united would form a collection of rare interest are dispersed throughout the departments where they lie in every stage of insecurity, often unarranged and undescribed, suffering more or less from damp, their value sometimes unrecognized, and their very existence, it may be, unknown."

From other pages of the report it is evident that tons of records which already possess, or will possess great historical value in the future, have not only been inaccessible to the public, but have run the risk of being permanently lost. No doubt all these papers will be deposited in the building now in progress, and when once there, they will be removed from the dangers cited in the report. The Departmental buildings, although they contain a mine of information which the historical investigator has been debarred, do not contain anything like the sum total of the information which should be within the reach of students of our history. In each province of the Dominion there are records which are probably not in a much more satisfactory condition than those in Ottawa. The time has surely arrived when all persons interested in the intellectual development of Canada, irrespective of creed or politics, should unite in an endeavor to secure for present service, and to hand down to posterity, priceless records of the past. Money will be required for this purpose, but it will be money well expended, and under judicious administration it will meet with universal approval. But the limit of investigation into the sources which are open to us should not be confined to Canada. In the United States there are countless records that should form a part of our national collections; and during a frequent opportunities of seeing what a large amount of work there is to be done there before our archives in the Dominion can be placed upon a satisfactory basis. Every year the interest in Canadian history increases, not only amongst Canadians, but also amongst students in the United States. It should therefore become the pride of Canadians to make their Archives Department a place where they can study, and from which they can derive all the information necessary concerning the history of their country. The Department is yet in its infancy, but under energetic management it may be developed into an institution of national importance. Two things are necessary to bring about this desirable end—a capable administrator under the direction of the Government, and sufficient means to carry on the work.

The Government has appointed a man to this office who has shown aptitude for research in the past, and he may be capable of doing good work for the country. It is too soon to judge of his merits; but if he is not the right man, the work is too important to be intrusted to incompetent hands. Of the expenditure necessary to carry on the work to a successful issue, it is unnecessary to speak—the Government has ample means at its disposal for the purpose. At present the Department is very active. Within the last three weeks the archives have been enriched by a priceless collection of original despatches to the Governors of Canada from the Home Government consisting of hundreds of volumes and a series of correspondence between the provinces, records relating to Prince Edward Island, British Columbia and Vancouver Island. For these the country is indebted to the late Governor-General, who for a few years has taken a deep interest in all that pertains to the history of Canada. It therefore remains with the representatives in the House to see that this important national work receives the support to which it has a just claim.

THE WATER FINDERS.

Those who regard water finding by means of the divining rod as the practice of a foolish superstition will be shocked to hear that in recent times it has been employed by Cabinet Ministers such as the Marquis of Londonderry, by belted earls like Lord Strathmore, by grave judges and sheriffs, by railway companies such as the Midland, by urban district councils and by land-owners without number, writes Fitzgerald Molloy in T. P.'s London Weekly.

The art of finding water, minerals and even criminals by means of the divining rod has been known and practiced for centuries in every country in Europe. The rod itself, a symbol of magical power, is mentioned in the ancient mythologies, in the Christian Scriptures as the means by which Moses obtained water and is used in all ceremonial magic.

The water finder's rod is merely a forked twig, usually cut from a hazel, a whitethorn or an apple tree below the bifurcation, and is generally a foot long and about the thickness of a pencil. Its twigs are held at the extreme ends between the fingers and thumb of each hand by the water finder, or dowser, as he is commonly called, who slowly walks over the land where it is desired to find a spring, until on coming to the spot where water is, the twigs begins to move and its fork to bend downward.

It frequently happens that on reaching this site the rod, which has previously remained passive in the dowser's hands, twists itself round with such violence as to break. The statement that water will be found beneath (the depth is occasionally specified) has seldom been falsified. The experiment has been tried of blindfolding the water finder and leading him by a different route to the spot he has already indicated, only to show that the rod repeated its movements on his regaining it. A second dowser, kept in ignorance of the spot or of the land over which his predecessor has gone, will almost invariably name the same site as a place where water will be found.

Water finding is a special gift, requiring special physical and psychical qualifications, but is not limited to any class of society, to the educated or the ignorant, to age or youth, to men or women. Mr. J. D. Enys, F. G. S., became an excellent dowser, while a woman of title in the mid-

The Song of the Cradle.

Bye, bye! Hope rises high;
There's a sweet Birdie cradle hung up in the sky;
A dear Birdie life that is coming to bless:
Two soft, chubby hands that will pat and caress;
A pure little soul winging down from above;
A darling to clasp to, a baby to love.

One of the grandest agencies which enlightened Science has discovered to relieve motherhood from excessive suffering is the "Favorite Prescription" devised by Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y.

This wonderful "Prescription" imbues the entire nervous system with natural, healthy vitality; gives elastic vigor to the delicate organism specially concerned in motherhood, and makes the coming of baby entirely free from danger and almost free from pain.

"I wish to say that I have used Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription with unequaled results," writes Mrs. Kate M. Annis, of Hanson, Troy Manufactory. "And now, a poor woman in the world, I will say that I have twice in the hospital, and I attribute some of your 'Favorite Prescription,' and it now carries me through with my last two confinements. We are now blessed with two healthy children, and I am sure your medicine has done me more good than all the other treatment I have ever received."

BAD HEADACHES generally arise from bad stomachs. Have a dose of Carter's Little Liver Pills and you will be cured. One or two a laxative, three or

An Easy Way to Cure Splitting Headaches.

If headache sufferers would do a little hard thinking, they would surely learn that headaches of all kinds are simply reports—warning signals—of far more serious trouble. Usually headache means that the blood and nerves are poisoned by an inactive and sluggish liver. Don't become one of the habitual headache sufferers, who explain their condition by saying, "Oh, I am subject to headaches. I always get headache if I get excited, or it is too noisy." There is no need of it, either. Stop taking headache powders and powerful drugs that may relieve, but leave you in worse condition in the end. Put your liver in good shape, so that it will carry off foul accretions and remove promptly the bile elements from the blood. Use Smith's Pineapple and Butternut Pills and you won't have headache. Why? Just because these little pills are Nature's true laxative, and a positive cure for a torpid liver. They assist digestion, unload the bile ducts and cure headache by first removing the cause. Smith's Pineapple and Butternut Pills cure headache, constipation and biliousness in one night. Price 25 cents at dealers.

But, though a special gift, experience has shown that it can be transmitted—that is, when the rod is held by a person who has not this power, but whose wrists are grasped by a dowser, it will point to a spot where water may be found. No matter how diverse in rank or intellect or constitution water finders may be, they all to a greater or less degree betray the same symptoms in exercising the gift—an electric shock seems communicated to them; they turn pale, tremble or have convulsive movements similar to those that disturb the nervous system of a medium who obtains psychic manifestations.

Sir Lauder Brunton in writing on "Truths and Delusions" in the Universal Review says: "When we hear that a man is able to discover water at a considerable distance below the ground on which he stands we are at first apt to scout the idea as ridiculous, while if we were told that a caravan was crossing the desert and that all at once the thirsty camels started off quickly and at a distance of a mile or more water was found we would look upon the occurrence as natural."

Regarding the divining rod as a subject for investigation, the Council of the Society For Psychical Research earnestly requested Mr. W. F. Barrett, professor of experimental physics in the Royal College of Science For Ireland, to inquire into it. With "great reluctance and even repugnance," as he stated, he yielded to their wishes and began his examination, "hoping, however, in my ignorance that a few weeks' work would enable me to relegate it 'into the limbo large and broad, since called the paradise of fools.'".

A report of his long and patient research concerning the divining rod was contributed by Professor Barrett in a paper called "The So Called Divining Rod, or Virgula Divina." The outcome of his personal investigations, of reliable evidence and scientific knowledge, may be summed up in his own words: "The movement of the rod is not due to trickery nor any conscious voluntary effort, but is a more or less violent automatic action that occurs under certain conditions in certain individuals."

Having said so much, science still leaves us in ignorance regarding a human faculty which is the inheritance of some individuals and is undoubtedly the same power that, through a common piece of wood called the planchette, under the hands of certain persons writes coherent and sometimes important messages outside the range of their conscious intelligence and is the same force that has been found to rap out communications on tables.

It is interesting, but not surprising, to learn that the exercise of the dowser's gift, which has been of immense service and which has been employed by those who frame and administer our laws, is illegal and therefore that those who receive money for its exercise are presumably as liable to fine and punishment as any gypsy fortune teller.

The One Thing Lacking.

Emperor William II. wrote a poem once which he submitted to a great literary man who dined at the castle for that purpose particularly. The critic read it and found his final duties in conflict. He had to advise an amateur poet with an exceptional power for resenting a hostile comment. He yielded only a very little to the exigencies of the situation. "This verse, your majesty," he began, "seems to require alteration in certain respects." The author took the manuscript and conned it thoughtfully; then his brow cleared. "Why," he cried, as one seeing a sudden light, "I have actually not signed the poem! Give me a pen!" And the only fault he saw in the work was forthwith remedied.

Diplomatic Corps Costumes.

An interesting fact not generally known in regard to the diplomatic corps is that a member of that august body cannot, under the penalty of official reprimand and danger of recall, appear at a fancy ball in the national costume. This fact was developed one evening when a large fancy ball was given at one of the private houses on the same evening of a presidential reception to the diplomatic corps. Those of the diplomats who attended the ball later in the evening were obliged to first change the court costumes worn at the White House. Inquiry on the part of curious friends developed the reason just stated.

Colic in Horses.

For home treatment of spasmodic colic in horses two ounces sweet spirits of niter and two ounces laudanum in a pint of raw linseed oil water is a good remedy. Oil may be given after. Often when a horse shows the first symptoms a tablespoonful of soda in a pint of sweet

BOOKS FOR THE YOUNG.

Keep Yourself In Touch With What Your Children Read.

Ask yourselves a few pertinent questions, such as, "Do I know what my child is reading?" "Is what he is reading worth while, or, better, is it of most worth?" "Is it varied enough to make him an all round man?" "Has my child a library card?" "Yes," you say, "he has one and gets what he pleases on it." May your guardian angel preserve you from your just dues if such be the case.

Mothers, are you letting teachers take your place in guiding your children's reading? If so you are simply letting slip out of your hands one of the most potent means of governing your flock. Go to the teacher and ask her to make out a list of books that she thinks best suited to your child. Make out a list of your own, compare them, weigh them and call in a third list to help decide which is of most worth. "Much ado about nothing," some one will say. Not at all.

Pray do not misunderstand me when I speak of books of most worth and think that I mean those that give most information. Far from it. Let the child revel in good fiction, dream in fairyland, wander among the fables and myths and dance and sing with the poets. But let it not stop there. See that he lives over again the lives of our great and good men and women, fights again the world's battles, knows intimately the "creepin', crawlin' things," the birds of the air and the plants of field and highway. But, whatever he reads, guide it yourself. Know exactly where your child is in the great realm of literature.—Exchange.

ECONOMY IN COOKING.

Don't Waste Leftovers, but Serve Them Up In Dainty Form.

We've got so used to looking upon French cookery as extravagant that it comes as something of a shock to discover that the Frenchwoman is far more careful in striving against waste than we Americans.

Absolutely nothing is wasted either by her or the Englishwoman across the water. "Leftovers" are coaxed and heartened up into a delicate, delicious, appetising dish. All sorts of things that we throw away as not good French and English women have discovered a use for.

Englishwomen especially are economical to a fault, but their economy often takes a squalid form. The endless appearance of leftovers, not disguised, but the same thing served over and over again until it is entirely eaten, becomes unpalatable.

It's a great art, the art of always having enough, always having a variety, and of using every bit in an attractive, interesting way.

No woman with a husband and a family has a right to disregard the question of providing the greatest possible amount of nutrition in proportion to bulk nor that of having things tempting, so that the feeling upon leaving the table is not that you've eaten because you had to and still feel unsatisfied.—Exchange.

JUNIORS LOST A CLOSE GAME

The local junior team went to Cobourg last night to play the first game with the team of that town in the junior O.H.A. series and although they did not come back victorious they made an excellent showing, only one goal being scored against them. The score at the end of an hour's hard play being 1-0 in favour of the home team.

At half time neither team had scored and it was not until about the middle of the second half that the first and only goal of the game was put in. The visitors worked hard to tie the score but failed to do so and the game concluded as stated.

Both teams put up a good article of hockey, and the game was characterized by close checking throughout, and there was very little shooting on either goal, the play being confined almost entirely to centre ice.

The locals should have little difficulty in defeating this team when the return game is played here.

The team lined up as follows:—
Goal—Fitzpatrick,
Point—Moore.
Cover point—Long.
Rover—McWilliams.
Centre—McFarlane.
Wings—Smith and Hall.

SNOW-SHOEING

The first tramp of the Peterborough Snow-shoe Club will take place to-night. For the benefit of the members of the club it is announced that the Jackson Park car will leave Central Park at 8 p. m. sharp, going by Charlotte street. Members may meet at the Bank of Commerce or connect with this car en route.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A smoker will be pulled off to-night at Bradburn's Opera House. Mr. M. H. Wilkes, who has managed the last two shows pulled off at the Opera House, will manage this affair to-night and claims that he will give the boys a good show for their money. There will be three wrestling bouts and two boxing bouts with singing and dancing from local artists. Dick Decastel singing and dancing. T. Crow in his latest song success. Sam Hoolihan, who is considered one of the best step dancers in Peterborough. H. Williams in the latest coon songs. Mr. Peters will be the pianist. The main bout of the evening will be between Pete Barry, the Canadian champion and W. Green, the little English champion, who recently made a good showing at the Amateur Tournament at Toronto, and was lately knocked out by Barry in three rounds, which he claims was an accident. He has been training very hard for this bout. All the boys have arrived in good condition and will give the public a good fight for their money. The main bout of the evening will be between Bob Long and Dick Farris, the Peterborough unknown. This will be a good wrestling bout as both boys are in the pink of condition and are evenly matched. This being race week it is very likely that there will be a good attendance. Doors will open at 7.15, commencing at 8.15 sharp.

SPRINGVILLE TEA AND CONCERT

A Most Successful Event at Springville Last Night

St. Andrew's Choir Assisted in the Programme—Second Annual Anniversary Tea.

Last night a delightful anniversary tea and concert, under the auspices of the Springville Presbyterian church, was held, and it was attended by not only large numbers of the residents of that district, and members of the congregation, but also by many from town, four large sleigh loads going out from here, in addition to many single rigs.

The occasion was the second annual tea in connection with the Springville church, and was an unqualified success in every way. Tea was served in the town hall from 5 to 8 o'clock, and following this a splendid entertainment was given in the church, contributed largely to by the members of the choir of St. Andrew's church. The chairman was Rev. Mr. Yule, of the Springville church, and on the platform were Rev. Messrs. W. Beatty, of Cobourg, who preached the anniversary sermons on Sunday; A. Robeson of Fraserville, and J. G. Potter of St. Andrew's. Miss McDonald of Toronto, a talented reader, gave several numbers, all of which were highly appreciated by the audience, and heartily applauded. Musical numbers were contributed by Miss Leah McCutcheon of Toronto, who rendered a number of vocal solos, and also assisted in duets. Both of these ladies' work was of the highest order, and the audience showed its unmistakeable approval of it.

The programme as rendered was:

Time Saved.

"This," began the agent, "is a great time saving device"—

"You've come to the wrong house," interrupted the snappy woman at the door. "Try that woman next door."

"Ah! You think it would interest her?"

"Wouldn't be surprised. She's a crank on saving time. To my certain knowledge she was twenty-five years old ten years ago, but she's been so saving of her time that she claims to be only twenty-seven now."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Finds It So.

Gorliff—Our misfortunes are really for our good, however much we may think to the contrary.

Tidson—Perhaps you're right. It might account for Swinton's being always in trouble. If there is any good in a thing you can count upon Swinton's hogging all he can get of it.—Boston Transcript.

A Kettle of Fish.

The phrase "a kettle of fish," meaning an awkward entanglement, most probably has no connection with our word kettle, a vessel in which water is boiled. It has been with much reason derived from the word "riddle," French "quidel," a stake fence set in a stream for catching fish. Inspector Walpole reminds us that this riddellus net, or kiddle, was mentioned in Magna Charta and in other early statutes. —London Standard.

The Joy of Life.

The true joy of life is the being used for a purpose recognized by yourself as a mighty one, the being thoroughly worn out before you are thrown on the scrap heap, the being a force of nature instead of a feverish, selfish little clod of ailments and grievances, complaining that the world will not devote itself to making you happy.

Confidence.

All confidence is dangerous if it is not entire. We ought on most occasions to speak all or conceal all. We have already too much disclosed our secrets to a man from whom we think any one single circumstance is to be concealed.—Bruyere.

Degenerating Luxury.

The luxury which is now regarded as a necessity is one of the evils which are undoubtedly tending toward the degeneration of all classes of English society.—Hospital.

ANECDOTES OF AUTHORS.

The late Baron Tauchnitz, the German publisher, used to print the novels of famous English authors, and they had a great circulation on the Continent. For permission to do so he usually made some pecuniary acknowledgment.

"Don't be afraid of your English," Thackeray wrote to him once, in answer to the apologetic postscript of one of the baron's letters. "A letter containing £ s. d. is always in pretty style!"

Striking Incident.

Ralph Waldo Emerson, having risen one night, unintentionally aroused his wife, who inquired, "Are you ill, Waldo?"

"Oh, no, my dear," was his reply, "but I've got an idea. What's the matter with these matches? I can't make them ignite. Let it go now," sighed the philosopher, "my idea is gone."

The next morning, upon arising, Mrs. Emerson found all the teeth in her comb broken out!

Hard to Please.

Justin McCarthy paid a visit to a second-hand store at Cork some time ago. After offering him several works of fiction, the bookseller finally produced a copy of one of Mr. McCarthy's own books, but still the customer was not satisfied. At last the dealer, in desperation, exclaimed:

"Well, sir, if I was a man so hard to please as you, I'd take to writing books myself!"

Lines That Pay.

Alexandre Dumas, the great French author, was much addicted to boasting of the high price which he received for his work.

"That is pretty good, no doubt," once said a stranger to him at a party. "How much was the highest fee you ever got?"

"Ten francs a line," replied Dumas.

"Bah! that is nothing," exclaimed the other gentleman. "I get about half a million francs a line!"

"A railway contractor," was the reply.

Unexpected Success.

One day Charles Darwin went to Mr. John Murray, the famous publisher, taking with him a manuscript. As he laid it on the table he said:

"Mr. Murray, here is a book which has cost me many years of hard labor. The preparation of it has afforded me the greatest interest, but I can hardly hope that it will prove of any interest to the general public. Will you bring it out for me, as you have done my other books?"

The book was his famous one on "Earthworms," which in the course of three months reached a fifth edition (1881).

The Fallen Great.

Mrs. Yorke, wife of the late Dean of Worcester, happened to be sitting one evening between Thackeray and "Jacob Omnium," whose build was even more gigantic than Thackeray's own.

Conversation was languishing, when Thackeray turned to her and said, "Mrs. Yorke, why are you so silent?"

"I am overwhelmed by the greatness of you two," she replied, glancing right and left at their massive frames.

Thereupon, moved by a common impulse, Thackeray and "Jacob" slid from their chairs and sat on the ground at her feet, "as a slight token of homage to one whose wit equalled her beauty."

What Is Humor?

James Russell Lowell determined to play a joke upon a popular monthly to which he contributed. He accordingly wrote a clever article, which he called "The Essence of American Humor," and read it to a number of his friends, who said it was some of the best work he had ever done.

He employed someone to copy it, signed it "W. Perry Paine," and sent it to The Atlantic, with the request that, as it was a maiden effort, the editor would give an opinion in writing to said Paine.

He waited a fortnight, but heard nothing of his paper, when, being in Boston, he dropped into the office of The Atlantic, and meeting Mr. James T. Fields adroitly turned the conversation upon humor, and remarked that it was singular so little was written on the subject.

"We get a great deal of manuscript on humor," replied Mr. Fields, "but it is so poor we cannot use it. I threw into the waste-basket the other day a long article entitled 'The Essence of American Humor,' which should have been styled 'Essence of Nonsense,' for a more absurd farrago of stuff I have never seen."

Mr. Lowell, much to the surprise of the editor, burst into a roar of laughter, and informed Mr. Fields of the authorship of the article. The editor turned all colors, and declared it was one of Mr. Lowell's jokes.

"Indeed it is," responded Mr. Lowell, "and the best one I ever played! I never thought highly of my scribbling; but I didn't believe it was the most ridiculous farrago you had ever seen!"

Of the Good.

John Ruskin, in counting up the blessings of his childhood, reckoned these three for first good: Peace—He had been taught the meaning of peace in thought, act and word; had never heard father's or mother's voice once raised in any dispute, nor seen an angry glance in the eyes of either, nor had ever seen a moment's trouble or disorder in any household matter. Next to this he estimated Obedience; he obeyed a word or lifted finger of father or mother as a ship her helm, without an idea of resistance. And, lastly, Faith; nothing was ever promised him that was not given; nothing ever threatened him that was not inflicted, and nothing ever told him that was not true.

Japanese Morning Glories.

The morning glory is one of the eight plants whose flowers the Japanese chiefly value, the others being the apricot (mume), the cherry, the wistaria, the peony, the iris, the lotus and the chrysanthemum. The species most generally cultivated is Ipomoea triloba, a native of China, which blooms in Tokyo at midsummer.

If You Don't Buy Here We Both Lose Money

Another year has gone. It's pleasant to tell of sales far beyond all previous years, for they indicate general prosperity as well as the progress of this store. But to you such growth means more still; it tells unmistakably of the increasing attractiveness of our Fur Goods and also the drawing power of our Fur Prices. The bigger the manufacturing business the lower the cost of production, consequently "If you don't buy here we both lose money." Just now we call attention to our extra fine showing of—

The bride was attired in a blue travelling suit with mink hat and furs. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Marjorie Cleary, while Mr. J. O'Hara supported the groom. RUSSIA OCCUPIES CITY OF KASHGAR

A Significent Despatch Which Implies China's Invasion.

A DISTINCT THREAT IS MADE.

Japanese Charge Tricky Game Upon Russia—So That Russia May Take Her Defeat with Greater Grace, She is Endeavouring to Involve Other Neutral Powers in the War.

London, Jan. 18.—The Morning Post's Shanghai correspondent says that the Chinese Government complains that Russians have occupied Kashgar, the Governor of which has appealed to the Chinese Foreign Board to open negotiations for the withdrawal of the Russians.

Kashgar is the most western city in Eastern Turkestan, and has a population of 50,000.

Russia's Threat.

Paris, Jan. 18.—The Tientsin correspondent of the Paris edition of The New York Herald, says that Russia has threatened to invade north China and Chinese Turkestan if China continues to discriminate against Russia contraband in favor of Japan.

RUSSIA'S TRICKY GAME.

Endeavors, Says Japan, to Involve Other Neutral Powers in the War.

Tokio, Jan. 18.—The note of the Russian Government to the powers, calling attention to the alleged violation by China of her declared neutrality, which Russia charges has been at the instance of Japan, has created the impression in official quarters here that the Russians are trying to involve France, China and other powers in the war, so that Russia may take her defeat with greater grace.

Russian Side.

Washington, Jan. 18.—Count Cassini said last night that Russia's note to the powers was prompted by the fact that she had absolute proof that Chinese neutrality was being frequently violated, and that unless China mended her ways and maintained, with the assistance of the other neutrals, as well as Russia, an attitude of strict neutrality, the Imperial Government would be forced to look first to Russia's interests. "It is a reflection on a sane man's intelligence," the Ambassador said, "to go into explanations as to why Russia wishes China's neutrality maintained. It is self-evident, and her energetic communication to the powers is but another evidence of the faithful effort she is making in this direction."

Japs in Disgrace.

London, Jan. 18.—(La Press Special.)—The Daily Mail's Port Arthur special correspondent relates in a letter how two Japanese regiment, when ordered to make assaults, were first driven back with terrible losses. On a reserve regiment being ordered to assault, it refused to obey and thus go to inevitable destruction. The major of the regiment then went forward alone and was shot dead. After a while, moved apparently by remorse, the regiment went to the assault, but utterly failed. Afterward they were sent back to Marshal Oyama. Such conduct, without parallel in the Japanese army, recalls an incident at Cold Harbor when General Grant ordered the second attack.

Where the Ships Are.

Perim, Jan. 18.—The Russian squadron passed Perim (Straits of Bab-El-Mandeb), at 6 o'clock this morning going towards Jibutil, in the Gulf of Aden. This is the division of Vice-Admiral Rojestvensky's squadron commanded by Vice-Admiral Botrovsky which was last reported passing Suez, on Jan. 2.

Goes to the Russians.

Pekin, Jan. 18.—It is reported that the Dalai Lama (who fled from Thibet when the Younghusband expedition entered the sacred city), who is now at Urga, intends going to Kiakhta for the purpose of negotiating with the Russian Government. It is also reported that the Taotaitangshaoki of Tientsin is going to Thibet by way of Szechuin.

CANADIAN EMBARGO

Is Liberal Party a Broken Reed For Its Removal?

CANADA AND ITS RESOURCES

Australian Government May Give Canada a Mail Contract—Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman and the Colonial Conference—Lord Minto Says Canada Cannot Wait Forever for Britain to Think Imperially.

London, Jan. 18.—(C.A.P.)—Referring to the emphasis Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman laid on the fact that he was speaking only for himself and not as representing the Liberal party, when he told the recant deputation that the Canadian cattle embargo ought to be removed, The Glasgow Herald thinks that those who are looking to the next Liberal administration to remove the cattle embargo rely on a broken reed.

Walker Talks For Canada.

London, Jan. 18.—(C.A.P.)—J. Bruce Walker, Canadian Government representative, delivered a comprehensive lecture on Canada and its resources in the city hall of Glasgow yesterday, and specially emphasized the suitability for British emigrants rather than for foreigners. British emigrants should be urged to go to Canada instead of allowing them to go, as many do at present, to the United States, which is a foreign country.

With Canada Now.

London, Jan. 18.—(C.A.P.)—The Australian Government has rejected the Orient Steamship Company's offer to accept £140,000 a year for the conveyance of the mails to Great Britain. It is now probable that Australia will enter into negotiations with the Dominion Government for their conveyance via Vancouver.

His Only Objection.

London, Jan 18.—(C.A.P.)—Speaking to his constituents at Stirling, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, M. P., Liberal leader, said he only objected to the colonial conference if it sought to fasten on the Mother Country either injury by accepting or the odium of refusing proposals which our people, if left to themselves, would not accept. He described the conference as a mere plank for bridging over the gap between the nerveless and illusory policy of retaliation and the solid, intelligible but wholly inadmissable idea of food taxation.

To Steal Canada Away.

London, Jan. 18.—(C.A.P.)—Lord Minto, addressing a political gathering at Minto, said he was entirely in favor of the colonial conference. Whatever might be thought of Mr. Chamberlain's plans he had at least [illegible] Canada could not wait for ever. If she received nothing but a bucket of cold water she would be justified in taking advantage of the opportunities before her. The United States were seeking reciprocity in the hope of stealing her away from the British Empire.

South African Coolie Question.

London, Jan. 18.—(C.A.P.)—Coincident with rumors that the Government intends to dissolve Parliament early in the coming session comes another report that it is intended to stop further importation of coolies into South Africa. Lord Twynham, presiding at a meeting of a big Rand Company, publicly announced his fear that such was the case, and the rumor caused depression in Kaffirs on the Stock Exchange.

Being interviewed afterwards, Lord Teynham said he had good reasons to believe the rumor was well founded. He supposes that if it is so it is in anticipation of a general election, the coolie question having greatly embarrassed the Government candidates at recent bye-elections.

78 Ministerial M.P.'s Retire.

In connection with the dissolution rumors, it is a curious fact that as many as seventy-eight Ministerial members of Parliament already have announced their intention to retire at the next general election.

Their names, published yesterday, include many prominent men, like Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, the Right Hon. C. T. Ritchie, Sir W. H. Walrond and Sir John C. R. Colomb. Most of these will quit Parliament.

Others, like Winston Churchill, are leaving the Unionist for the Liberal ranks on the fiscal controversy.

KILLED 59 PEOPLE.

Avalanche of Rock Causes Tidal Wave Which Sweeps Shore.

Christinia, Norway, Jan. 18.—Fifty-nine persons perished as the result of an avalanche of rocks at Hesdal, north of Bergen, Sunday. A mass of rock was suddenly precipitated into Loslivend Lake from the neighboring hills, causing an immense wave 30 feet high, which swept the neighboring shores. Houses, people and cattle were swept away by the rush of water. Thus far only four bodies have been recovered. A great storm yesterday stopped the relief work, as the surrounding district is unable to send help.

Hundreds Buried in Ruins.

London, Jan. 18.—A despatch from St. Petersburg to a news agency reports that an earthquake at Shemakha (76 miles north northwest of Baku), buried hundreds of persons in the ruins of buildings in the lower part of the town, which was densely populated, despite the decision after the earthquake of three years ago that no more houses should be built there.

Ball Fixed At $20,000.

Cleveland, Jan. 18.—At the request of J. P. Dawley, counsel for Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick, Judge Wing yesterday fixed bail of $20,000 [illegible] five federal indictments against

TOOK ARSENIC AND IS DEAD

Edwin W. Hollingsidge Died at Chemong This Morning

Says That he Took it by Mistake—All Efforts to Save His Life Proved Futile

A fatality is reported to-day from Chemong. It appears, according to the information sent to Dr. Gray, coroner, that some months ago a man named Hollingsidge, came to that village, and accepted employment with Mr. Heard, blacksmith. He was a man who had travelled extensively, and had served in the late war in South Africa, and had also spent some years in Australia. Last night he took a dose of about one and a half ounces of arsenic, according to his statement, by accident, and died this morning. Dr. Scott was sent for as soon as it was known that he had taken the poison, and he went out at once, but the dose had been too large, and it was impossible to save his life. Before he died, Hollingsidge stated that he had taken the arsenic, but said it was in mistake.

Dr. Gray was notified of the occurrence, but decided, after learning the facts, that an inquest was unnecessary, and, consequently, none will be held.

The deceased was about 26 years of age, and it was stated that he was about to purchase the business of Mr. Heard, if he liked the place.

Further particulars with reference to the above have been received. It seems that Hollingsidge, whose Christian name was Edwin Walter, went to bed early last night, without having taken any supper, and when he went up-stairs he took with him a glass of hot water. About midnight the other occupants of the house heard him moaning, and went in to find him very sick, but they did not know the cause. Dr. Scott was sent for this morning, and reached there at seven o'clock, and the man died at eleven o'clock.

The deceased had been living in Chemong since October 3rd, 1904, and leaves two sisters and one brother, all of whom live in Manitoba. His parents are dead.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 18, 1905.

THE QUESTION AT ISSUE.

Within a very few days, the battle for the good government of Ontario will be won, or lost. It will be won, if the electors exercise their franchise, under the influence of the vital question at issue—the record of the Ross Government, which has splendidly governed the province in all departments of public service; which has shown itself progressive and fruitful in the origination and adoption of means to develop the resources of our province, to people our vacant lands, and to give the settlers in the new districts the advantages of railway connection, which will not only facilitate access to market, but bring the pioneers of the new country into touch with the comforts of civilization, and at the same time stimulate trade and commerce in the interests of both new and older Ontario.

The Opposition, which is asking the confidence of the electors at this time, does not attempt to seriously criticise the record of the Liberal Government, or to say that it has not administered our affairs wisely, and in accordance with the principles of honest and sound business. The Opposition claims, like the Pharisee in the temple, that it is better than other men. But we leave it to the judgment of every elector who knows the record of the two parties in the matter of political methods, whether he can seriously accept the reasoning that if Mr. Whitney, and his party, come into power, political corruption will vanish. Each elector knows that when voters refuse to place their franchise upon the market, that the trade of the professional political crook will be gone. The Ross Government has shown its desire to put down corruption by prosecuting and punishing persons found guilty of breaking the election laws—whether political friends or political foes. Mr. Whitney and his party deny—or, at least, they do not admit—that the Conservative party is guilty of any political corruption. Every elector knows how far that position is right, and every elector also knows that from a party which takes that attitude, no thorough action in the direction of purifying politics, can be expected. The Opposition can fairly claim public support, when it produces a policy large enough for Ontario — a policy which promises as much as the Liberal policy, which promises, and, what is far better, has performed, as the records, which no one pretends to assail, abundantly prove.

A province of the advanced standing, tremendous resources and immense possibilities that distinguish Ontario, needs the services of a government which has faith in its resources, and offers a policy which is one of progress and advancement along every line.

Such a government is represented by the Ross Government. The Ross Government is represented in this contest by Mr. R. F. McWilliams, the Liberal candidate, and West Peterborough should, through his election January twenty-fifth, make itself the ally of the other ridings of Ontario, in a campaign of progressive good government and aggressive administration, which will maintain the banner province of the Dominion in the place it occupies—the forefront of the sisterhood of provinces of the Dominion.

THE REAL ISSUE.

As election day grows nearer the Conservative press grows more and more desperate in its efforts to divert the attention of the electors from the splendid administrative record of the Ross Government. Since they cannot assail that, they put forth their most frantic efforts to bury it under the corruption cry. The false charges which were made in the beginning of the campaign are repeated daily in even stronger terms. Proofs of their falsity are for the most part absolutely disregarded. Never were there abroad in the land more examples of the truth of the old saying—"There are none so blind as those who will not see."

But after all it is what the Government does for the individual elector that counts when it comes to casting the ballots; and the people of the province knowing that their affairs have been wisely and energetically managed, are not at all likely to be led away by the Opposition's cry of "Wolf." Try as they may the Conservatives can not get away from the business fact that the present Government has secured for the province a revenue of $1,000 a day. Nor can they deny that the province has no debt, nor that there are no taxes paid by her people. Each one of these facts means so many dollars and cents saved to every elector and practically none of this saving would have been made had Mr. Whitney had his say for he opposed almost every measure which has made this unrivalled condition possible.

It is facts such as these which appeal to the business-like electors of West Peterborough. They will vote for McWilliams and a continuance of this splendid administration.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Six more days to work for McWilliams.

The Ross Government has given the province a revenue of $1,000 a day. Vote for McWilliams, and keep that money to the credit of the province.

It's almost a wonder that the righteous indignation of the Toronto News against the Ross Government permits it to advertise that Government's fine record for a sordid consideration of dollars and cents.

The Review wants proofs for statements concerning corruption in the Conservative party. Mr. Burnham, Mr. Bradourn's chosen champion, at Lakefield the other evening found Mr. McWilliams' proofs unanswerable. The Review might apply to him.

"The people will judge the proved aims of Hon. G. W. Ross rather than the speculative aims of Mr. Whitney."—Toronto World. Does the World mean to suggest that the charges proved against Andrew Mescampbell (to quote one instance only) Mr. Whitney's trusted organizer, were "speculative."

Mr. Ross touched the weak spot of Mr. Whitney's appeal to the "independent Liberals" when he said at Guelph that "all Liberals are independent. They could not be Liberals unless they exercised their freedom of choice. It was the party of free judgment and free criticism."

The Conservative press doesn't give as much prominence to Rev. Dr. Chown as it did a few weeks ago. It prefers certain others of the clergy with less temperate and well balanced views. Dr. Chown speaking in Toronto on Monday evening on "Good Citizenship," said: "In order to catch political support, one party says the Government should be turned out of office on the score of corruption, but there is absolutely nothing in that in the way of a cure. A change of Government doesn't mean anything unless the new government has in view such measures as will better the political conditions and those measures have not yet been brought to the surface."

Mr. F. W. J. Fletcher, a druggist in Victoria, Australia, says: "A customer of mine, was so pleased with Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which she had used for her children when suffering from colds and croup, that during a fortnight's time she obtained at my shop, nine bottles, which she sent to her friends in different parts of the state, telling how much good it had done and advising them to give it a trial." CANADA'S TIMBER

Dr. Clark Describes the Conservation of the Forests as a Great National Problem.

Dr. Clarke, of the Ontario Department of Forestry, in addressing the Canadian Institute on Saturday night, said one of the greatest national problems was the maintenance of a forest cover on its non-agricultural lands for the production of timber and the conservation of water, in fact, nothing would contribute more to the development of the Dominion than an abundant timber supply. The forest's other sphere of usefulness was in the conservation of water by checking the surface run-off, owing to the spongy character of the forest floor, by giving the water which does not at once enter the soil time to penetrate by presenting obstructions in the shape of leaves, twigs, moss, etc., and by distributing the flow from melting snow in an evergreen forest over weeks instead of days, thus preventing disastrous floods.

Referring to the income which the different Provinces of the Dominion might hope to receive from their forest lands, Dr. Clarke pointed out that Ontario alone had at least 50,000,000 acres of land which could be retained for timber production. If practical forest methods were adopted in the removal of the present crop and every care taken to avoid injury by fire the value of the annual growth on this area should an two decades be equal to $20,000,000.

Canada's forest lands fared badly in a fire owing to their usual rocky floor. If these fires, which are of frequent occurrence on the eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains, were not checked the amount of water available for irrigation in southern Alberta and western Assiniboia would be proportionately decreased.

JAMES McLEAN

CONVEYANCER,

[illegible]

BLAIR'S SUCCESSOR

To Be Chosen From the Supreme Court Bench.

MR. MACLEAN'S CURIOSITY

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Is Unable to Satisfy It —Mr. Maclean Invited to Tell All That He Knows About the Hon. A. G. Blair's Resignation—Bills and Reports Before the House.

Ottawa, Jan. 18.—Thirty-five minutes were sufficient to enable the House to transact the business yesterday, but the session was not devoid of interest. In accordance with his promise, Sir Wilfrid Laurier made a statement in reference to the filling of the vacancy caused by the retirement of Hon. Mr. Blair from the Railway Commission, which he felt sure would satisfy Mr. Maclean that the Government were not in any way to blame. The Premier said he was aware that some serious inconvenience has resulted from the fact that the Commission was now composed of only two members. A good deal of business of the Commission had been discharged by the present members, Messrs. Bernier and Mills, but unfortunately, in Toronto especially, on some important questions the Commissioners did not agree, and some delays had been occasioned to certain citizens of Toronto owing to the fact that no decision of the question on which there is a difference of opinion between the members of the Commission could be reached. The Government were aware that such an important position should be filled at the earliest moment. After the resignation of Mr. Blair, as soon as the Government could be assembled in Ottawa, the resignation having taken place during the election, the Government sought to find some person who would be suitable for the position. They came to the conclusion that it would be well to offer the Chairmanship of the Commission to an eminent member of the Supreme Court, a gentleman who, he believed, was qualified in every respect to discharge the important duties which would devolve upon him. However, the Government were told by the gentleman in question that it was not possible for him to contemplate the acceptance of this position at that moment, or for some weeks, as he believed it would not be in accordance with the duties he is now performing to leave his present position at this time. He had been engaged, and at this moment was engaged, in the consideration of several cases heard by him and by the court in the previous term, and if he accepted the offer at the moment the cases which he had heard could not be disposed of, and great inconvenience would result to suitors. But as he informed the Government he could not properly consider their application till after the first week of February, it was thought only fair and right to wait until that date before approaching him again, when, Sir Wilfrid said, he hoped the offer would be accepted.

Mr. Maclean's View.

Mr. W. F. Maclean had expected that the Premier would in this connection have given some explanation to the House and country of the resignation of Hon. Mr. Blair. He suggested that the Premier, in seeking in another court for a man to fill the vacancy on the Commission, was only robbing Peter to pay Paul, and that it was not good policy to shift the highest judical officers from one court to another. The result might be that the Supreme Court would remain unmanned for a long time after the transfer.

Hon. Geo. E. Foster called attention to the inconvenience arising from the failure of the act to provide a method whereby a decision in the Northwest cases, heard by the full Commission, could be rendered after Mr. Blair resigned.

Urged to Speak Out.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier was afraid the cases referred to by Mr. Foster would have to be heard again. The same rule applied to all courts, and the Government preferred to wait until the gentleman who was offered the Chairmanship of the Commission should dispose of all the cases he had heard, so that the inconvenience arising might be minimized. He thought when the appointment was made it would meet the approval of his hypercritical friends (Mr. Maclean), whose fastidious curiosity in reference to Mr. Blair's resignation he regretted his inability to gratify. As they were in the way of making confessions he had rather expected Mr. Maclean would have been in a position to enlighten the House, because a good deal of what was apparently information on the matter had appeared in the newspaper with which the member for South York was connected. If Mr. Maclean had any information he could give it, but for his part he had none.

Mr. Maclean retorted that The Globe, Montreal Herald and Senator Dandurand had offered explanations of the resignation, and very serious charges had been made against members of the Cabinet in connection with the matter. It was therefore up to the Premier to make a statement.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier replied that he had never heard any charges made against any member or any Minister.

A member—This is the time and place to make them.

Hon. Mr. Fitzpatrick—Come on, now, come right on.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier—Nobody has come forward.

Mr. Alex. Johnston (Cape Breton)—Oh, put the knife away.

The motion to adjourn was then declared carried.

Bills and Reports.

When the House met Mr. Fisher introduced his bill respecting the census and statistics, and a resolution was passed in committee affirming the expediency of legislation respecting the inspection and sale of seeds of cereals, grasses, clover or forage plants.

Sir Wilfrid laid on the table the King's regulations for the militia of Canada, the reports of the Department of Labor and the Postmaster-General, and the Yukon ordinances, [illegible] Mr. Paterson [illegible]

Liberal Whips Elected.

Ottawa, Jan. 18.—(Globe Special.)—The first Liberal caucus for the session was held yesterday morning, Senator Gibson of Beamsville, presiding. It was a most enthusiastic gathering, and the Prime Minister was given a very cordial reception. Sir Wilfrid delivered an address on the lines of his speech Monday. He urged the co-operation of all to secure a short session. W. S. Calvert was elected Chief Whip, and H. J. Logan as assistant chief, the latter being a new office. George D. Grant was appointed to succeed Lieut.-Col. Thompson as Ontario Whip. Alexander Johnston will succeed H. J. Logan as Whip for the Maritime Provinces, and J. G. Turriff to succeed T. O. Davis as Whip for Manitoba and the Territories. British Columbia was given a Whip in the person of R. G. Macpherson. D. Gallery and Louis Lavergne were re-elected Whips for Quebec.

Edward Kidd to Resign.

Ottawa, Jan. 18.—Edward Kidd, M.P. for Carleton County will tender his resignation to-day at a mass meeting of electors, to be held at Stittsville. Every effort will be made after the resignation is accepted by the electors to have the writ issued, and in about three weeks the leader of the Opposition will be in his seat in the House.

NEW ZEALAND AND CANADA,

Both Countries Prepared to Pay $50,000 For Steamer Service.

Ottawa, Jan. 18.—(Globe Special.)—It is quite possible that an arrangement may be made whereby the Union Steamship Company, which at present operates a service between Vancouver and Australia, may introduce an improved service and also call at a New Zealand port. The present contract, which is for two years, expires on May 1. Some three years ago complaint was made of the Union Company's service, and it was improved and brought up to date. Since preferential arrangements between Canada and New Zealand were adopted a desire has been manifested by the two Governments to have a steamship service to New Zealand. The Canadian Government is prepared to vote $50,000 for this purpose, and New Zealand is probably willing to give a like sum. Instead of having two separate services to Australia and New Zealand, it would be better to have one, and the Union Steamship Company may get the contract, Canada, Australia and New Zealand contributing jointly towards the subsidy.

SOLID SERVICE.

Why Hon. John Dryden Expects Re-Election in South Ontario.

Whitby, Jan. 18.—A quarter of a century as a representative is not too long nor long enough, when the service rendered is good. That is the opinion of South Ontario respecting Hon. John Dryden, judging by the character of a splendid meeting in his interest in the Town Hall here last night. The hall was crowded, the interest manifested throughout was intense and the applause frequent. Mr. Dryden gave an hour's address, in which he rapidly sketched some of the features of the Government's record. Mayor Fowke of Oshawa spoke briefly, and Mr. J. A. Macdonald dealt with many of the points at issue in a speech of force and convincing power. There seems no reason whatever to doubt Mr Dryden's election by a large majority.

Alfred Wood Runs.

Ottawa, Jan. 18.—M. J. Campbell Smith, Liberal candidate in Carleton County, withdrew from the contest yesterday, and Mr. Alfred Wood, proprietor of The Free Press, will be placed in nomination at Richmond to-day.

Martin Quinn Acquitted.

London, Jan. 18.—The trial of Martin Quinn, on a charge of impersonation and perjury, was concluded here yesterday with a verdict of acquittal.

The verdict created the greatest surprise in the court-room, where the evidence for the prosecution was regarded as conclusive.

French Cabinet Resigns.

Paris, Jan. 18.—At a meeting of the Council Ministers yesterday, held under the presidency of Premier Combes, pending the absence of President Loubet, who was attending the funeral of his mother, at Marsanne, M. Combes communicated to the council the text of a letter announcing the resignation of himself and his colleagues

DANGEROUS COLDS

Influenza, Bronchitis, Pneumonia or Consumption Often Follow a Neglected Cold—Avert the Danger by Keeping the Blood Pure and Warm

Heavy colds strain the lungs, weaken the chest, banish the appetite, cause melancholy. Pale weak people, whose hands and feet are chilled for want of rich, red blood, always catch cold. Their lungs are soft—the heart cannot send out blood enough to make them sound and strong. Then comes the cold and cough, racking the frame and tearing the tender lungs. The cold may turn into pneumonia, influenza, consumption or bronchities—a lingering illness or a swifter death. All weak people should use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The rich, red blood they make strengthens the heart, and it sends this warm, healing blood to the lungs, and once again the patient is a strong-lunged, warm-blooded man or woman. Mrs. Jane A. Kennedy, Douglastown, Que., bears the strongest testimony to the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in cases of this kind. She says: "My sister, a delicate girl, took a severe cold when about seventeen years old. We tried many medicines for her, but she appeared to be constantly growing worse, and we feared she was going into consumption. Often after she had a bad night with a racking cough, I would get up to see if she had spit any blood. At this stage a friend strongly urged me to give her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Within a month from the time she began to take the pills she had almost recovered her usual health. Under a further use of the pills she is now well and strong, and I can recommend the pills with confidence to every weak person."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a certain cure for all blood and nerve troubles such as anaemia, debility, lung complaints, rheumatism, neuralgia, St. Vitus dance, partial paralysis, and the troubles that make the lives of so many women miserable. Be sure you get the genuine pills with the full name "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People" on the wrapper around each box. Sold by all medicine dealers or sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MRS. ROACH'S DEATH.

Hamilton, Jan. 18.—Coroner McNichol has decided to hold an inquest on the death of Mrs. Roach, wife of David Roach, proprietor of the Palace Hotel, who died very suddenly Monday evening. One of the doctors who was called stated that he believed death was caused by poison. The jury met yesterday afternoon and ordered a post-mortem examination of the body. Some time ago, it is said, Roach and his wife quarrelled over one of their sons, and she entered a suit against her husband. The trouble was patched up, apparently, and Mrs. Roach returned to the hotel. It is alleged that her husband had not spoken to her for a month previous to her death, and there is a suspicion that she ended her life. The jury will meet again Friday night.

Died After Day's Work.

Niagara Falls, Jan. 18.—Patrick McCarthy dropped dead in Queen Victoria Park Monday night from heart disease. He had finished his day's work as a bricklayer on the Canadian Power Company's works and was waiting for a car when he collapsed. He leaves a wife and family.

Stricken with Paralysis

Mrs. W. R. Sutherland, St. Andrews, Man., writes:—"I was stricken with paralysis and lost power of the tongue and left leg. For six months I obtained no relief either by doctors' prescriptions or other medicines. My husband got me Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which has revitalized my nerves and given me full power of the paralysed parts. I am strong and well now, thanks to this good medicine."

Severe Cold in the Chest

"My fourteen-year-old boy had a very severe cold in the chest last winter and I really thought he was going to die. He coughed nearly all the time and sometimes would spit up blood. I can positively say that he was completely cured by two bottles of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, and he has not been troubled since."—Mrs. J. Provost, Renfrew, Ont.

THE GYMNASIUM CLASS SOCIAL

Most Enjoyable Evening at the Y.M.C.A. Last Night

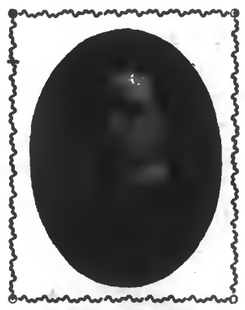
An Impetus to the Physical Work—Refreshments and Speeches.

The Senior Gymnasium Men's New Year's Re-union last evening was a decided success. The object of it was to gather as many of the men together as possible upon the floor for regular class work, so that new enthusiasm might be created and also that afterwards they might meet together in the parlour and listen to addresses in relation to the work of the physical department, and to partake of light refreshments.

It was a source of gratification and pleasure to the physical director and the men themselves to have a class of 31 men on the floor at once. The work started at 8 o'clock with a maize run around the floor. This is a run with many variations, and one which all of the men enjoy. After the run they lined up in respective places for free calisthenics and dumb-bell drill. Both the maize run and the drill were made very enjoyable and pretty to look at by piano accompaniments rendered by Miss Dobbin.

After the dumb-bells were put away the men were divided into squads for work upon the gymnastic apparatus, each squad in charge of a special leader. The apparatus work is greatly enjoyed by all of the men. As one becomes proficient in the use of each piece he finds it very fascinating, and at the same time there is nothing that will give one better muscular control and all-round development than this.

The class was through at 9 o'clock, after which the men quickly dressed and repaired to the parlour which was made cheery by a bright fire in the grate. Here the men were served with coffee, cake and sandwiches by the Physical Committee which is composed of J. H. Connal, chairman;



MR. P. K. HOLMES,
Physical Director of the Y. M. C. A.

E. M. Best, E. E. Lord, R. S. Merrell, J. J. Howden, A. O. Sawyers, G. M. Robertson and W. D. Campbell.

Lunch being over Col. Edwards, President of the Association, was called upon for an address. He spoke very feelingly upon the splendid gift of Mrs. Nicholls in the nature of our splendid building. Also of the great opportunities which such an institution affords to the young men of Peterborough, and he urged them to make the greatest use of such privileges. He laid strong emphasis upon the value of the physical work, and the importance of a strong and vigorous body in the battle for success.

Mr. Jas. Browne was called upon to render a vocal selection which he did in his usual delightful way. Mr. Browne responded to a very hearty encore. Mr. Geo. Schneider very kindly acted as accompanist. He also rendered some enjoyable piano selections during lunch time.

Secretary Williamson on behalf of the Association extended to Mr. Browne and Mr. Schneider a hearty vote of thanks for their kindness in responding to the many requests to please others with their musical talent.

Mr. Kenner, of the Collegiate Institute was next called upon for an address. He expressed his pleasure in being able to address the young men. He spoke of the undoubted benefits to be derived from systematic physical training, and the necessity of the equal sided development. He said that if a man develops only the physical he becomes a brute; if he develops only the spiritual he will be a fanatic, and if only the intellectual side is cultivated he turns into a book worm.

Mr. Kenner gave a beautiful and true portrait of the true and whole man. He concluded by very kindly offering to give the men a talk at some future time.

General Secretary G. H. Williamson was called upon, he responded with an urgent appeal for the men to make the most of the opportunities afforded by the Association.

Physical Director P. K. Holmes, also made a few remarks.

J. H. Connal, Chairman of the Physical Committee, spoke on behalf of that committee. He said that he thought the committee might have done more in stimulating the work of the department in the past, but that now it was determined to do more and greater work than ever before.

The affair passed off very delightfully, there being 50 men present in the parlour. The gathering was concluded by singing "Blest Be the Ties that Bind."

Electors if you hear Mr. Whitney, the Liberal Conservative Leader, at the Market Hall, on Thursday evening, you will get a better grip of affairs than you can by reading the papers. Come and hear what a man who knows says about what he knows.

Passepartout Binding.

The long winter evenings offer splendid opportunities for using passepartout binding. The Peterborough Bookshop has a well assorted stock of all the different shades—white, black, red, gray, green gold. Also mounting board in all the popular shades — gray, green, brown, red and blue. Pebbled white bristol board, plain and figured patent hangers, tube paste and glue, for passepartouting. A. H. Stratton & Co.

LATE CONDUCTOR HIGHLY RESPECTED

Mr. Wm. J. Hammil was a Member of Brotherhood of Trainmen

Further Particulars as to his Untimely Death on Monday Night.

A despatch to the Toronto News from East Toronto gives some further particulars with reference to the sad fatality reported in last night's Examiner by which Conductor Hammil lost his life. It appears that Hammil was checking the special freight train, in charge of which he was about to leave, and he stepped on to the main line just as the Peterborough flyer dashed through. He was thrown some distance, and when reached by his comrades life was extinct. Both legs were broken and the skull was fractured. The body was conveyed to Hunter's undertaking establishment, and Mr. J. Bryan, Master of the Local Lodge of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, at once took steps to have the sad news broken to the friends of the deceased at Lindsay. Definite particulars regarding the funeral could not be obtained this morning, as the arrival of the coroner was being awaited. It is understood, however, that the funeral will take place at Lindsay, and will be under the charge of the Brotherhood. The deceased, who was about thirty-five years of age, leaves a widow and one child.

McWILLIAMS IN THE NORTH

Highly Successful Meetings in Galway and Cavendish

Electors Addressed by Hon. J. R. Stratton and Mr. McWilliams

A series of highly successful political meetings in the interests of the Liberal candidate, were addressed this week in Galway and Cavendish, by Hon. J. R. Stratton and Mr. McWilliams. Three well-attended meetings were held—at Union Creek, Swamp Lake, and one in Cavendish, and able addresses on provincial topics were given by Mr. Stratton and Mr. McWilliams. From the hearty manner in which the electors of the north received Mr. McWilliams personally, and from the cordial reception of the arguments presented by the two speakers, it is easy to foresee that the north country will give Mr. McWilliams a very handsome majority of the votes on Jan. 25th.

THE PROGRAMME WAS REPEATED

Park Street Mission Band's Successful Concert

The programme of the Mission Band concert was given for the second time last night in the Park street Baptist church, with marked success. Rev. A. H. Brace presided. The ten year old elocutionist, Edna Boys, was repeatedly encored. The church and school room was crowded, and standing room was at a premium.

Rev. W. J. Jolliffe, of the Charlotte street church, gave the address of the evening on "I have put off my coat; how shall I put it on?" His speech was logical, practical and interesting, and was much enjoyed.

The success of the evening is largely due to Miss Mann the president of the Band, and the Misses Edith and Mabel Gillespie, Gertie Bantin and Nelly Hudson.

A letter was read from Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, M.A., expressing his regret at being unavoidably absent through a mistake in the day, and promising his lecture at an early date.

FIRE DESTROYED BOOTS AND SHOES

$400 to $500 Damage Done by Fire and Water.

The fire started just inside the show window, and it is supposed that it was caused by electric wires becoming crossed, thus causing a short circuit.

The firemen responded promptly to the call and after a short, but hard fight the flames were extinguished, not, however, until damage to the extent of $400 or $500 had been done by fire and water. Luckily the fire occurred at a time when it was noticed almost immediately. Loss is fully covered by insurance.

LOCAL STOCK MARKETS

Following advices were received from N. B. Darrell, 337 Water street to-day:—Jan. 18th.—London market higher. We strongly favour the purchase on this reaction of steel pfd when soft. St. Paul is bulled by good people. We would not buy RDC except on recessions. M.O.P. and R. I. are still good —Financial Bureau.

Indications point to continued irregularity in the market to-day and sentiment is bearish. Interest centres around Copper meeting and yesterday's selling was due to fears that div. might not be increased. There was good buying on the decline. Strong bull talk continues on R. G and par is talked for it. PP is a buy for a pull and it is expected this stocks will start up again) We see no reason to change our views as to the ultimate drift of values and believe stocks should be bought on soft spots.—Read and Co.

ENDORSED HIGH SHOOL EDUCATION

Debate Conducted by Pupils of Local Collegiate Institute

Meeting of the Philomathean Debating Society—The Speakers and Thier Points.

The third regular meeting of the Philomathean Debating Society of the Collegiate Institute, was held on Monday of this week, shortly after four o'clock, in the Y. M. C. A. hall. The meeting was well attended, and was the largest yet recorded, owing to the presence of the pupils of the second form, who were received into the society.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted. The business matters of the society were discussed and handled by the pupils, with their usual expedition. The third number, an instrumental selection by Miss Marie Hall, was well received, Miss G. Yenney was heard in a reading which she clearly expressed, and enunciated. A well rendered violin solo with piano accompaniment, by the Misses Burnette, concluded the musical portion of the programme.

The principal event of the evening was a debate. "Resolved, that, a boy intending to enter any commercial or industrial pursuit, should have a High School education." The affirmative was taken by Mr. Frank Austin (leader) Miss Nesbitt and Mr. John Davidson, while on the negative side there were Mr. Harold Hall (leader) Miss Waddell and Mr. Garnet Greer. The majority of the speakers made their first appearance on a platform, and should not be discouraged by their first endeavours. The society is accomplishing good work among the pupils, and only their hearty co-operation is required to make it a permanent part of the school.

On the affirmative side, Mr. Austin, who spoke without the assistance of notes said that accuracy, neatness and clear reasoning powers, all of which were needful for a successful business career, were acquired by a High School Education. He said that facts are crowded into the mind by business, but at school each thing was thoroughly taught before a new subject was undertaken.

Miss Nesbitt for the same side, mentioned that in the High School the pupils became possessed of a deep love for nature and for the English language, which is not gained outside the school. She also pointed out that the friendships that are formed among the scholars, are beneficia. to them; as many meet those whose minds are brighter than their own.

Mr. John Davidson spoke on the relations between High School pupils and business. He said that all business men prefer them to others. The punctuality, attention, and thoroughness which they acquire during their school life make good business men of them.

In behalf of the negative side Mr. Hall said that a public school education was sufficient for those who intended entering a bank. He named many prominent men of the United States who have become wealthy, without being well educated. He also stated that the pupils of the High School become lazy, and that neatness should be learned at the Public School. Miss Waddell began by saying that the practical knowledge gained by experience during an apprenticeship is of more benefit than the theoretical knowledge acquired at school. She said that if boys became farmers, for instance, after they had passed the entrance examinations they would become good, steady men, and in a short time would be very rich. Mr. Greer made the statement that time and money were lost by boys going to High School. The boy who enters a machine shop needs to know, only how to read, write and spell and to be able to work questions in elementary arithmetic. He can perfect himself by studying in his spare hours. He should take a course of study which bears upon his life work, and which does not contain subjects which he will not need.

Mr. Kenner, who was both judge and critic, first pointed out that the negative side had confused education and information, and thus had made a bad mistake. After pointing out the difference, he said that notes counted against the speaker. In giving the decision to the affirmative side he said that Mr. Austin's speech carried weight, because he spoke from memory. In the course of his discourse he gave two good expositions on music and on critics and criticism.

In conclusion he said he missed the presence of the Glee Club of the society, but he hoped they would be heard at the next meeting. The assembly on being adjourned sang the National Anthem, Mr. K. Shook presiding at the piano.

WHAT CHRISTIAN SCIENCE TEACHES

Interview With Mr. R. J. Todd, Local Practitioner, Who Tells of the Church and its Work—Does not Forbid the Services of Doctors or the use of Medicine if the Patient Desires it—The Foundation for the Belief of Divine Healing—Distance is no Barrier to the Work of Healing—Mr. Todd's Exposition of the Belief of the Church of Which he is the Local Head—Special Reference to the Wallis Goodfellow Case.

The circumstances attending the death of the late Wallis Goodfellow, of Toronto, said to be a Christian Scientist, and the fact that numerous relatives of the deceased reside in and around Peterborough, has invested the case with considerable local interest. Another fact which adds to the increased attention given to the case here, is the special interest taken in it by the members of the First Church of Christ Scientists, of Peterborough, whose place of worship is situated on Aylmer street, between Hunter and Simcoe streets. The distressing details in connection with deceased's death, as given before the Magistrate in Toronto, have doubtless been the subject of much discussion by the general public. The principals in the case — the alleged Christian Science healers, who attended Goodfellow during his illness — and against whom the deceased's wife and mother have instituted legal proceedings, are well-known in Peterborough, having been residents here for many years before taking up their home in Toronto.

In view of these circumstances a reporter of the Examiner sought an interview with Mr. R. J. Todd, Christian Science practitioner. The gentleman was found at his home on Aylmer street, and gave a courteous reception to the Examiner's representative. It is perhaps worthy of mention that this interview was given before the results of the legal proceedings in Toronto, recorded in yesterday's issue, were known. The article was crowded out yesterday.

Reporter—I called, Mr. Todd, to have an interview with you regarding the investigation now being held in Toronto, into the death of Wallis Goodfellow, who is said to have been a Christian Scientist.

Mr. Todd—Well, I am quite willing to answer any proper questions you may have to ask.

Reporter—Were you healed by Christian Science?

Mr. Todd — Yes, sir, I thank God that both Mrs. Todd and myself are living witnesses of the healing power of Divine Truth, after medical doctors had failed.

Reporter—How long have you been engaged as a Christian Science practitioner?

Mr. Todd—Fourteen years.

Reporter—Do you think this method a safe way of healing the sick?

Mr. Todd—I believe the Principle and Rule, as taught by Mary Baker G. Eddy, author of "Science and Health," a most perfect healer, when properly applied.

Reporter—Have you seen many cases healed?

Mr. Todd—Yes, scores of cases, when given up by materia medica have been restored to perfect health. I have seen many cases of chronic diseases healed or helped, as well as the sinner reformed and the sorrowing comforted.

Reporter—What is the mode of treatment?

Mr. Todd—This is a question which I prefer not to particularize about, seeing that the nature of your enquiry is prompted more by human curiosity than a personal desire for good. I may say, however, that absent or present treatments are equally potent.

Reporter—Do you mean that sick people can be cured who are absent from you—who live out of town?

Mr. Todd—Yes, that is precisely what I mean. There is no limit to Mind, God. Disease is an experience of mortal life, and who shall dare to doubt the power and willingness of Divine Mind to heal the sick to-day, just as He did in Christ's day?

Reporter—Does Christian science, or metaphysical healing include doings, or is there any mesmerism, hypnotism or spiritualism about it?

Mr. Todd—No, emphatically no. All these oppose the supremacy of the Divine Mind.

Reporter—Does Christian Science forbid you having a doctor, or medicine?

Mr. Todd—In no way does it forbid; it only shows a higher and more perfect way of living and leaves the individual free to live to his highest sense of what is right.

Reporter—In your opinion who is to be blamed for the trouble in Wallis Goodfellow's case?

Mr. Todd—That is not for me to say, but as to who could be instrumental in causing trouble, my opinion is this:—From what I have read from the newspapers, if Mr. Goodfellow wished medical treatment, and his people refused him that treatment, or used any undue influence over him, they would be to blame. As I have already said this is contrary to the teaching of Christian Science wherein all are free to choose for themselves. On the other hand if he desired Christian Science treatment and the mother-in-law, or wife objected or in any way obstructed that treatment which he wished to trust himself to, then they would be to blame, and should be held responsible for hindering the efforts of anyone doing another good. Even Jesus was hindered in his work by unbelief and opposition. When He visited the synagogue ruler's daughter, He found it necessary to put those out who were not in harmony with Him, well knowing that love, peace and harmony are the healer of the sick.

Reporter—But were those engaged in ministering to Wallis Goodfellow in his last sickness, competent?

Mr. Todd—There is a great deal of gross ignorance of the methods of the Christ-cure. "The All-wise does not bestow His highest trusts upon the unworthy. When He commissions a messenger it is one who is spiritually near to Himself. Teaching or practicing in the name of Truth, but contrary to its spirit or rules, is most dangerous quackery," so says Mrs. Eddy, the author of "Science and Health." Since Christian Science has its thousands of living witnesses as to its healing powers, is it not time that the people of this country should awaken to the golden rule, of allowing others the same privileges that they ask for themselves. If my son or my daughter wish Christian Science treatment, I don't think they should have to have the consent of some one who may not see the same meaning in the Bible that they do.

Reporter — Thank you, Mr. Todd, for your very friendly statement. There is no doubt that healing is an integral part of Christian Science belief?

Mr. Todd—Just as it was with Christ's work—it was the distinguishing characteristic of His work. Many good Christian people in the churches and out of them may not yet have awakened to all that Christianity includes — for health is a concomitant of spirituality. I may also say that you will find a copy of "Science and Health" in your Public Library which I recommend for your earnest perusal. Also you and all strangers will be made welcome any Sunday morning or evening at our services, as well as on Wednesday evenings at our testimony meetings.

OYSTER SUPPER IN EAST WARD

Event Under Auspices of Mark Street Ladies Aid, a Success

The Ladies' Aid of the Mark street Methodist church held a very successful oyster supper last evening, at the residence of Mr. Henry Cox, fifth ward.

A number of sleighs called during the evening at the parsonage, and also at the post office, to convey the guests, and the house was filled to overflowing. Needless to say, everyone enjoyed themselves thoroughly, and could not speak in too high terms of the kindness and hospitality of the host and hostess, and their family.

Tables were set in the dining room, and oysters served until all were satisfied. The oysters were pronounced delicious, being cooked and served by Mr. C. Cheverll in his usual well-known style.

The ladies feel very grateful to Mr McWilliams, Mr. Bert Byers, Mr. W. Gamble and Mr. Henry Cox, who so kindly furnished teams and sleighs for the conveyance of the guests; and also to Mr. Gaddy, who brought his phonograph and furnished music during the evening.

Master Seymour delighted all listeners with his sweet voice, and sang several songs.

Instrumental music was furnished by several guests and all left feeling they had spent a most enjoyable evening.

Quite a nice sum was realized to add to the piano fund of the society, under whose auspices the supper was held.

Vocal solos were excellently rendered by Miss Ruth Dawson and Mr. S. Broad. Refreshments were served and a happy and successful evening's entertainment came to a close. At the next meeting, Jan. 30th, an address — "Jean Valjean"—by Mr. R. M. Dennistoun will be a feature.

D. W. DUNBAR,

CANADA'S IDEALS.

Dr. Wm. Osler's Practical and Instructive Address on Difficult Problems Before the Toronto Canadian Club.

Dr. Wm. Osler, recently appointed to the position of regius professor at Oxford, lectured the other day on "Difficult Problems" before the Toronto Canadian Club. After some preliminary remarks, Dr. Osler said the United States had for Canadians a serious and important influence. One influence was the incessant dribbling over the border of young men. If it were only a matter of draining the young men Dr. Osler would not mind it so much, but the most serious loss to Canada was that of the young women. Dr. Osler had the figures from six of the large hospitals in American cities, and of 651 women in the nursing department, 196 were Canadians, which he thought was an enormous proportion, nearly one-third. He felt that something should be done to stop this incessant loss of the future mothers of this country.

Tax the Bachelors.

As a remedy Dr. Osler could only see two ways, and one which found evident favor with the audience was to get the Dominion Parliament to put a tax on bachelors. Every man who had not at the age of 25 a family to support should, he thought, be helping the other fellow who had a family by paying a good big tax, which would only be a reasonable and rational political measure. And now, as to the delicate question of the girls. To keep them in the country the Doctor would have an export tax of $100 on every Canadian girl who left Canada for the United States, and here again he found a sympathetic audience. The Canadian girl was, of course, he observed, worth a good deal more, and it would even be worth the while of the country to pay the family of the girl $1,000 to keep her here. "There," said Dr. Osler, "are the suggestions I throw out to the politicians amongst you."

Canada's Ideals.

"And now," said Dr. Osler, "a few words about our own country." What were the ideals which they should cherish with reference to Canada? They should first see that they had a strong race, and fortunately they were situated in a most satisfactory position for proper development. It was often spoken of as being a disadvantage to this country being so far north, but he pointed out that there had rarely been in the history of the world a very strong nation not situated in the north, and it was very much to their advantage in Canada to have a rigorous climate with the winter biting hard at times, as it was more likely to be conducive to the production of a race stronger than any other on the continent. They had already a heterogeneous co-mingling of English, Irish and Scotch, which was the best mixture the world had ever seen, and if, said the Doctor with a merry twinkle, an Act of Parliament could be passed compelling some Canadians to marry French-Canadian girls, the future of the race would be assured.

Keep the Teachers.

"There is no one problem of greater moment in this country than getting well equipped schoolmasters," urged Dr. Osler. They could get plenty of girls to teach, but he did not believe in boys being brought up under a school mistress. The difficulty was in getting young men to teach in the high schools, and those would never be obtained unless they were paid better salaries, and made to feel that their profession was one which was not only honorable and useful and doing the best and highest work for the country, but one in which there was some prospect of looking forward to a pension whereby he would have something to provide against old age.

"There is no doubt that there has been a great mental awakening in this country," proceeded Dr. Osler, and he found it reflected in the literature as represented by the magazines and scientific journals, whilst poetry, usually not thought much of by business men, was on a much higher level here than in the United States. Whilst poetry was regarded so disparagingly it was none the less an important factor in the history of a nation. Poetry tended to a higher vision, and where there was no vision people would perish, and Dr. Osler humorously suggested that if any of the business men present came across a young fellow scribbling poetry in the office they should at once raise his salary.

Good Morals Wanted.

"The third and most important thing," said Dr. Osler, "is after all to grow a strong race morally, and that is the hardest of the lot." He did not think that Canadians as a whole were a highly immoral people, and homicides in this country were not nearly so numerous as in the United States. Neither was drunkenness so prevalent as it used to be in the days of our forefathers, and after a few pleasantries at the expense of the Scotchmen, the Doctor laughingly remarked that the great change only showed what environments would do. Illegitimacy was also exceedingly rare, and that of itself was an excellent indication of the morals of the people, whilst with another jocular shot of the Doctor's "divorces are not so prevalent as some would like them." The latter feature he attributed to the fact that the law was enacted in the Dominion Parliament.

Political Slanders.

Dr. Osler's last point was to the effect that there was far too much evil-speaking, lying and slandering in connection with Canadian political life. Political opponents should be dealt with in an ordinary every day Christian spirit. It was said that Christianity could not be brought into politics. It was true as regards a certain type, "but," said Dr. Osler, "don't call it Christianity, but every-day behavior, which, if not strictly St. Paul's teaching, was Aristotle's true gentleman."

Cured Kidney Disease

Mrs. Fred Hills, Walton street, Port Hope, Ont., states: "I was troubled for some time with kidney disease, and though I tried a great many different remedies I never succeeded in obtaining relief until I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. By the regular use of this preparation for a time I was completely cured of kidney disease."

THE HOME DOCTOR.

If an artery is severed tie a small cord or handkerchief tightly above it.

For cold in the head nothing is better than powdered borax snuffed up into the nostrils.

Broken limbs should be placed in natural position and the patient kept quiet until the surgeon arrives.

Hemorrhages of the lungs or stomach may be promptly checked by taking small doses of salt, the patient being kept as quiet as possible.

Nose bleeding may be stopped by snuffing lemon juice into the nostril from which the blood issues. It has long been known to physicians that lemon juice is a most powerful styptic.

Powdered rosin is the best thing to stop excessive bleeding from cuts. After the powder is sprinkled on wrap the wound with a soft cotton cloth. As soon as the wound begins to feel feverish keep the cloth wet with cold water.

Table Mats.

Asbestus is so much used now for the protection of different things that many dainty covers are designed for the concealing of the material itself. Doilies are made double, and the table mats are to be slipped inside when used on a handsome polished table as the only covering.

These can be made at home at less expense and much prettier than the machine made ones to be bought. If a woman is clever with her needle she can embroider such flowers as will go with her decorative ideas for a luncheon, a Sunday evening collation or any simple meal, for which an uncovered table is suitable—a set embroidered in strawberries for a strawberry luncheon, one in violets, another in nasturtiums and so on through the list. All sizes should be provided, as even the heat from the teacup spoils the beauty of a finely polished table top, and it is very difficult to restore this polish once it is dimmed.

To Sterilize Drinking Water.

The latest recipe for sterilizing drinking water and killing off the typhoid germ: Put four drops of tincture of iodine in half a gallon of water and permit to stand at least half an hour. By the end of that time it will be as harmless as distilled water. Many persons have not the facilities for making distilled water. Boiling it also entails a certain amount of trouble. In either case the water is flat and unpleasant to the taste. The few drops of iodine impart practically no taste to the amount of water they sterilize and the same time they answer every medicinal purpose.—American Queen.

Remake Body and Brain.

BY ADDING NEW FIRM FLESH AND TISSUE AND INCREASING NERVE FORCE WITH

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

The restorative, upbuilding and invigorating influence of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, are the features which make it of incalculable worth to the person who is weak, run-down and nervous.

It has not a deadening, narcotic effect.

If you find yourself restless, irritable and nervous, unable to sleep, and easily fatigued, lacking in energy and enthusiasm, subject to headaches, indigestion and bodily weakness you need just such help as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will give you.

This great food cure has become famous because of its power to reconstruct wasted tissues and to put new vitality into wasted nerves.

You need not expect miracles, because nervous diseases are never cured except by patient and persistent treatment. One thing you can be certain of is that each box of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will be of some benefit to you. This is because it is food cure and restorative.

Note our increase in weight while this medicine is being used. Note how the form is rounded out and the healthful glow is restored to the complexion.

Mr. J. Law, 247 Hunter street, Peterborough, and who is employed with the Peter Hamilton Company, states:

"For a long time I was troubled with severe splitting headaches, and suffered a great deal with pains in the region of my heart, caused no doubt by indigestion. I procured a box of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and began using this treatment. Since using this preparation for some time I can say that I feel quite different and my health is very much improved. My digestion is good and the headaches and pains about the heart have not troubled me at all of late. I can sincerely recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food as a thorough cure for nervous dyspepsia and its accompanying symptoms."

Child Torture.

The British National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children has a remarkable museum where, within a glass case, is a collection of implements of torture. Straps of every description are there, sticks, clubs and ropes, with the knots still in them, that once held childish wrists fast. There are also twisted hooks, bamboo canes and a chain with a padlock by which an imbecile child was for years fastened to a post. Hanging by itself is a straw basket two feet long and a foot deep in which twins were found on a baby farm.

Fruit is Nature's Laxative.

Fruit contains certain principles which act like a charm on the liver—and keep the whole system well and strong. But these principles in the fruit juices are too weak to have any marked effect on the internal organs. The value of lies in the secret process by which they are made. The fruit juices are so combined that they have an entirely different effect from fresh fruit. Their action is the action of fruit greatly intensified. They have a marked effect on the liver—toning it up—making it active. "Fruit-a-tives" are, without doubt, the only complete cure for all Stomach, Liver and Kidney Troubles.

or Fruit Liver Tablets

OURSELVES AND OUR MONEY.

Grimy and Greasy Dollars That Spread Disease Among Us.

On the western side of the Atlantic, writes John Foster Fraser, the Englishman learns the real meaning of "filthy lucre." In both Canada and the United States the paper money is usually grimy, greasy, evil-odored, and, I imagine, the transmitter of much disease. You get hold of dollar notes that are worn to a tissue, are frayed, and give off a smell that is repulsive. When, between finger and thumb, you hold up the dirty things and ask the Canadian why his dollars are so filthy you get a smiling prevaricating reply, "Wish I had more of them." And a curious thing is that the Dominion Government employs a United States firm to print the Canadian notes.

The circulation of money is accepted as a criterion of prosperity. Fourteen years ago (1890) there was in circulation Dominion notes to the value of 180 million dollars; last year (1903) the value was 456 million dollars. There are many chartered banks throughout the land, and their returns show continuous progress. Last year they had in deposit 424 million dollars; and while they had total liabilities of 507 millions, they had assets of 641 millions. Tremendous loans are being made to municipalities, trading corporations and the public. In 1899 282 millions were lent; last year 469 millions were lent. Banks are obliged to publish the amount of their reserve funds. Between 1884 and 1903 the total fund increased 29 millions, or 163 per cent. The total reserve last year was 573 million dollars. The transaction in the various clearing houses last year represent 2,689 millions of dollars. All of which goes to show that Canada, with its little population of six million people, has plenty of money jingling in its pockets.

But everybody in Canada does not prosper. Last year 227 manufacturing concerns went smash, 725 trading concerns put up the shutters, 26 other businesses failed, and six banks could not meet their creditors. The liabilities (excluding the banks) were seven-and-a-half million dollars, while the assets were nearly five million dollars, which in bankruptcy is not a bad proportion The failures were mostly in grocery and general stores, which means that many people went into trading who did not know anything about it. Still, Canada has only a little over 5 per cent. of liabilities in failures compared with the United States. Allowing for the fact that the States has twelve times the population of the Dominion, it is clear business is more stable in Canada than in America.

The Canadian is more disposed than the average Englishman to throw all the money he makes back into his business, or, if he is not in business for himself, to invest his savings in land. So there cannot be expected the hoarding of money in savings banks such as is the practice at home. Still, in the Canadian post-office, Government, and other savings banks there were deposited last year 82 million dollars, which works out at nearly £3 per head of the population.

The Canadian Rancher.

A special correspondent of The Birmingham Daily Post thus sums up his impressions of the ranching country of the foothills: To the young Englishman, with knowledge of cattle, some money, fond of a bracing open life, willing to rough it, there is no more inviting life than ranching on the foothills of the Rockies. I saw lots of Englishmen; there is room for plenty more. There are not the pleasures of the city; but there are deeper, more abiding pleasures. The last day I spent in the ranching district will long linger in memory. At times we met in-coming settlers, with white-hooded "prairie schooners," and driving their fifty or sixty head of cattle before them. All over the heaves of the hills were herds. As evening closed there was the ping of winter in the air. A russet haziness was on the illimitable land—the result of Indian prairie fires somewhere—and when the moon rose it was an orange ball. The galloping riders, laughing, joking, setting their horses against one another in race, seemed shadowy and mysterious on those great silent lands, with not even the hoot of a night bird to be heard. It was a true western picture. But there was no western crudeness—such as you read of in story books. There was a dashing young horsewoman, who gave the pace across the prairie—and it was only a few months before I had met her in an English drawing-room.

"Impossible! One can't be both."

Apt to Be Elusive.

"Pa, who are the 'authorities?'"

"They are the fellows who at critical times claim that they have no authority."

"Oh, no. She is too well bred for that."—Life.

ROYAL CANADIAN MINT.

New Institution Which Will Coin Canadian Gold Output.

Nearly two years have passed since it was decided that Canada should have a Mint, and recently the contract was awarded for the erection of a $200,000 building. The site is in the capital, near the Government Printing Bureau, and before another twelve months have rolled around the Mint will be finished, equipped, manned and in operation. There will be no patronage in it for the Dominion Government. The Ottawa institution will be a branch of the Royal Mint in London, and as such the staff will be exclusively officials sent out by the English Director. Canada bears the expense of erecting the building, and will contribute yearly a sum not exceeding $75,000 for its operation. But this country will not be able to appoint a solitary official. The Ottawa Mint in this respect will be in a like position to the three Mints in Australia and the two in India. Great Britain jealously guards the right to mint, and choose her own officials to exercise supervision.

The establishment of a Mint marks another step in the development of a nation. It will be a great thing to be able to say that we have our own Mint, at which we coin our own metal currency. The Mint is a concession to national sentiment. Most of the Canadian bankers and many of our leading business men also opposed the idea, but the public grew enamored of it. One prominent banker, however, has always stood out for a Canadian Mint. He is Mr. D. R. Wilkie of the Imperial Bank, Toronto. While some of his fellow-bankers have constantly derided the proposition, Mr. Wilkie has been its staunchest advocate. And now that the Mint is about to become an actual fact, Mr. Wilkie should get the credit for his powerful and successful advocacy.

Although Canada has been a gold producer for a great many years we have no distinctively Canadian gold coinage. The United Kingdom has obligingly minted sovereigns for us and also silver and copper coins. When the Royal Mint was too busy with its own currency to mint our silver and copper pieces, the job was handed over to Ralph Heaton of Birmingham. This firm has been in existence since the period of the early Georges. A silver piece that comes from the Heaton Mint can be detected by the letter "H" under the effigy of the Sovereign. In addition to sovereigns from Britain we get eagles from the United States. Our Dominion notes are made at Ottawa by a private firm under contract with the Government. When the Ottawa Mint is running it will coin our copper and silver, and two and a half, five and ten dollar gold pieces. There will hardly be enough of business in the minting of this currency to keep the institution busy. In its spare moments therefore the Mint will produce British sovereigns. The establishment of the Mint means that the fifteen or twenty millions of gold produced in the Yukon each year will be coined in Ottawa instead of going to Seattle and San Francisco. Under the present system the minting in England yields Canada an annual profit of several thousand dollars a year. This will of course be swallowed up in the expense of operating the Ottawa Mint. Nevertheless, be the cost what it may, it will not detract from the feeling of pride at the thought that we have our own Mint, and that we have reached another stage in the evolution of a nation.

The Deer Which Fell.

The returns filed by the Canadian Express Company of the deer handled by them during the recent season show that 2,582 deer were shipped from different points, aggregating 280,847 pounds. Last year there were 2,950 deer carried in the same time, which was an increase of 164 over the number shipped in 1902. The greatest number of deer came from Burk's Falls, 499 carcasses, aggregating 71,300 pounds, being shipped. About 200 were shipped from Trout Creek, north of North Bay. The charges amounted to something over $3,000.

UNITED STATES EXILES

HOW GAYNOR AND GREENE LIVE IN EXILE IN CANADA.

Both Fugitives From Their Own Country, They Are Constantly Under the Eyes of United States Secret Service Agents While in the Dominion—Families of the Pair Are Not On Speaking Terms.

The Quebec correspondent of The New York Herald writes as follows of the famous fugitives from the United States, Messrs. Gaynor and Greene, who live in the Ancient Capital:

In a narrow little street two blocks away from the Chateau Frontenac lives a famous American exile for whom two great nations have been conducting a legal tug of war for nearly three years—a man whose movements are closely watched by American Secret Service men—and should this man cross the mere ribbon of water that separates him from friends, home and country, the mysterious strangers who always are on his heels would tap him on the shoulder and inform him that he was their prisoner. This man is Colonel John F. Gaynor, of Syracuse, wanted by the United States Government for alleged frauds committed while he and Benjamin D. Greene, who is his partner in exile, had charge of contract work in Savannah Harbor. Gaynor is the more picturesque figure of the two and nearly every American visitor to Quebec inquires for him during a visit here.

How Colonel Gaynor spends his time is an inquiry made by many persons who refer to him. Edward McDermott, an observing cabman, when asked the familiar question, replied:

"Satisfying his appetite."

"Who is his most intimate friend here?"

"His dog, Derry."

McDermott's answers to the two questions state clearly Gaynor's mode of living, and the fact that Derry, a very intelligent Irish setter, is the Colonel's inseparable companion bears out the statement that the dog is his best friend. To a friend Gaynor said:

"My dog is my best friend. He is a remarkable animal. I am never without his company. He is human. He can scent trouble the moment it thrusts its dark face in my home. Derry knows when a man comes on an errand that is unpleasant. He will have a sad look in his eyes and he will appear downcast and troubled. Everywhere I go Derry is with me—my boon companion."

Exiles Do Not Speak.

Colonel Gaynor lives at No. 21 Mont Carmel street with his wife and mother-in-law. They have two servants. Greene lives with his wife at No. 31 Mont Carmel street, five doors from the Gaynors. The families are not on speaking terms. Gaynor and Greene have been at odds for about two years and they speak only when some matter in reference to their case comes up.

Colonel Gaynor's home is splendidly furnished. Many of the articles of furniture came from his home in Syracuse. He has all of the comforts of a good home, but most of his time is spent in the cafe of the Chateau Frontenac with a company of convivial friends who always assemble in the hotel evenings and spend their time assisting the "Little American Colonel" in perpetuating some practical joke or joshing the "town guy." Greene visits the Chateau only a few times a week and then it is to go to the barber shop.

Colonel Gaynor furnishes much amusement for the Canadians, for he loves to have fun at the expense of some one else. His overindulgence in practical joking was the cause of the row with Greene.

One afternoon Gaynor was in the cafe of the Chateau with friends. During the course of the conversation Greene's name came up for discussion. Gaynor made some uncomplimentary reference to Greene, intending it as a joke. Gaynor had hardly finished referring to his partner when in came Greene. He had overheard the remark, and those who were present say that Greene was in a rage. Since then Greene and Gaynor have spoken to each other only when business matters required them to.

Are Social Outcasts.

The Gaynors have been living in Quebec for nearly three years, and in that time they have been introduced to hundreds of persons, but they are never the recipient of any social honors. No invitations come to them to attend any of the big balls that form such a pleasant feature of the gay season in Quebec. A man who knows the Gaynors well said, in speaking of them:

"Colonel Gaynor and his wife have never entered the social set in this city. They never will. The Colonel has met a large number of the best known men in Quebec and Mrs. Gaynor has been presented to some of the social leaders here, but there never has been any thought of receiving them into society."

Colonel Gaynor has grown stouter in exile. He says that he is twenty-five pounds heavier than when he was in Syracuse. He looks it. His face is fuller and his chin has reached the double stage.

Speaking of his exile, Gaynor said: "I cannot get justice in the United States. There is no justice there and I have found it out. That is why I am here. I will get justice in Canada; I cannot get it from my native land. If there was justice in the United States I would not be here. As there is none I am compelled to live in Canada."

Eye Strangers Suspiciously.

Gaynor when at the bar at the Frontenac always stands near the door. Strangers are eyed suspiciously by both the Colonel and Derry. Should the Colonel have his back to the door he turns around nervously the moment a person enters. If it is a friend he greets him with a smile and a "How are you?" and Derry wags his tail, but if it is a stranger in the city the Colonel gives him a searching glance and asks a friend in a low tone who the stranger is. Not until he learns his name and his business is the Colonel satisfied.

Greene, too, manifests a deep concern in every stranger who comes to Quebec. He is not as nervous a man as Gaynor, but when he meets a stranger in the city he takes pains to learn who he is.

Referring to the possibility of the exiles being sent back to the United States, one of the firm of lawyers representing Gaynor and Greene, said: "There is not any too friendly feeling existing between this country and America. This was caused by the Alaskan boundary decision. Other matters since then have added to the bitter feeling. We know that England wants to be on very friendly terms with America and will do many things to cement that feeling, even though she has to hit Canada to show America that the two countries should be bound by close ties of friendship. England has given Canada the worst of it two or three times in order to do a favor for America. We know this, and here is where politics may figure in the Gaynor-Greene case.

"The two exiles are residents of Canada and have been for nearly three years. The United States Government is pursuing them unrelentingly. Gaynor and Greene are closely watched and will be as long as they are in this country. The Canadian Government refuses to turn over the fugitives to the American Government officers and now counsel for the United States takes the case to the Privy Council of England for the purpose of getting a reversal of judgment of the writ of habeas corpus issued in behalf of the two men.

"We may get a decision against us in England. If we do that will not mean the end of the case by any means. England knows that President Roosevelt and the Government are anxious to get Gaynor and Greene. Canada may be struck at by the English courts in order to please President Roosevelt, but there is almost an endless chain of court procedure that we can fall back on in Canada in the event of the Privy Council reversing the decision of our courts."

GREAT DOCKYARD LOST.

British Admiralty Announces the Permanent Closing of Dockyard at Halifax.

Without warning has come the announcement that the Halifax dockyard is to be closed by the British Admiralty, and also without intimation that it will be ever re-opened. Rumor is busy with explanations of this surprising step, and with predictions for the future. It is extremely probable that the present relations between Great Britain and the United States, which render war in that quarter almost inconceivable, have urged Sir John Fisher along the line he has taken.

Construction Began in 1758.

"It was in 1758," says a contemporary, "that the construction of the dockyard was begun, and it was not completed till 1770. The area extends north for nearly half a mile from the deep water terminals of the Intercolonial Railway, and it is enclosed by a massive stone wall, some 10 feet high, in which are two gates, a northern and southern, guarded night and day by uniformed watchmen, while within armed sentries are constantly on duty. The place is equipped with up-to-date machine shops. It has extensive warehouses, coal sheds, and magazines, and at its piers the greatest battleships and cruisors can find moorings. The departments which are operated within the dockyard, besides the machine shops, include the boatswain's, whose men see to buoys and moorings in the harbor and at the wharves; the works, with a staff of men devoting their whole time to the maintenance of the various buildings and wharves therein, or the construction of new; the riggers, kept employed at appropriate work, and the stores. There are large corps of clerks and writers in the various offices, some of whom are "on the establishment" and many of whom are not."

Largest Dock on the Continent.

The graving dock is the largest on this continent, being capable of receiving the biggest man-o'-war. More than once American ships have been received and overhauled there. It is 585 feet in length, 87½ feet wide at the entrance, and there is 30 feet of water in the sills. Some of the property, it is reported, will be secured for the Intercolonial Railway, should the dockyard be formally abandoned, for the road has been seriously hampered for want of space; but though this aspect of the case is the silver lining in the cloud, it is a cloud, indeed, that has settled over the Canadian Gibraltar.

Father Is Not to Blame.

Judge Taschereau, of Montreal, has decided that although a father's consent is necessary for his daughter's marriage, he is not legally responsible for the vagaries of her affections, and cannot be mulcted in damages should she jilt her affianced.

This delicate point of law was settled in the case of Jerome Internoscia, a Montreal lawyer, against Mr. Bonnelle, for five thousand damages because his daughter Annie decided not to wed the advocate after plighting her troth.

Mr. Internoscia entered suit, and then married another lady. He in his action charged so much per hour for time he lost in courtship, and put in a detailed bill for presents, fruits, candies furnished his financee during the courtship.

Mr. Justice Taschereau did not enter into the merits of this bill of expense, but merely found that under the civil code even a minor daughter's matrimonial affections and changes of mind on that score are quite beyond a father's control, and so dismissed the action with costs.

The Stinging Tree.

The stinging tree of faraway Queensland is a luxurious shrub, pleasing to the eye, but dangerous to the touch. It grows from two or three inches to ten or fifteen feet in height and emits a disagreeable odor. A traveler says: "Sometimes while shooting turkeys in the shrubs I entirely forgot the stinging tree till I was warned of its close proximity by its smell and have often found myself in a little forest of them. I was only once stung, and that very lightly. Its effects are curious. It leaves no marks, but the pain is maddening, and for months afterward the part when touched is tender in rainy weather or when it gets wet in washing, etc. I have seen a man who treats ordinary pain lightly roll on the ground in agony after being stung, and I have known a horse so completely mad after getting into a grove of the trees that he rushed open mouthed at every one who approached him and had to be shot. Dogs when stung will rush about, whining piteously, biting pieces from the affected part."

Terribly Worse.

"But, auntie, I think there are worse things than being kissed by a young man."

"What, for instance?"

An Insinuation.

"Miss Flashy wears such very large diamonds. I don't see how she can afford them."

"Perhaps she bought them before the recent advance in glass."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A SUDDEN TWINGE
Of pain is generally the first warning of the attack of rheumatism. It feels as if the disease were in the bones or muscles, but the real cause of rheumatism is found in impure blood. In order to cure rheumatism the blood must be cleansed of the poisonous impurities which are the cause of the disease.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has been very successful in the cure of rheumatism, because it entirely cleanses the blood from the poisonous uric acid which is the cause of the disease.
"Your Golden Medical Discovery cured me of rheumatism after I had tried a dozen remedies without relief and also gone West in search of health," writes Harry Kitter, of No. 1065 9th Street, Denver, Colo. "Only those who have suffered from this dread malady know the pain and misery I endured for over five years. Whenever the weather was damp or cold my troubles were increased and my joints would be so stiff and sore that I was hardly able to move about, and often unable to dress myself. I used a number of highly recommended medicines, but they had no effect whatever on me, and came to Colorado hoping to regain my health, but failed to obtain the relief I had hoped for. A gentleman in the house where I lived advised me to use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and in four months and a half after I began using it I was a well man, and have had no touch of it for the past seven months."
The sole motive for substitution is to permit the dealer to make the little more profit paid by the sale of less meritorious medicines. He gains; you lose. Therefore accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery."
Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets These tiny, sugar-coated anti-bilious granules regulate and invigorate Stomach, Liver and Bowels. Do not imitate the "pill habit," but cure constipation. One or two pellets is a laxative and regulator, three or four is an active cathartic. Ones tried always in favor. Put up in vials; always fresh and reliable.

Keep Your Bowels Regular In Nature's Way.
Suppose your bowels fail to move for a week or ten days. Don't you know you would be quickly prostrated? Of course you do. It is just the same, differing in degree, when your bowels don't move once every day. You know you soon become languid and tired, and your blood gets bad and you feel out of sorts—sick all over—if you don't have a full, healthy passage daily. Don't let such serious conditions develop. Use Smith's Pineapple and Butternut Pills. They will drive bowel poison out of your system and establish regularity. These little pills are purely vegetable and cure in one night.
Remember that bowel poison is the direct cause of slow, wasting fevers, loss of memory, female weakness, nervous prostration and general debility. Bowel poison leads on to misery and death as surely as constipation or heart disease; the well-advised use of Smith's Pineapple and Butternut Pills will cure and establish bowel, stomach and liver health. Sick at night, well in the morning. Smith's Pineapple and Butternut Pills cure constipation, biliousness, headache in one night. At dealers, 25 cents.

TRACKS IN THE SNOW.

Weeds in Winter Present Opportunities Unparalleled for Observing the Denizens of the Fields and Forests.

To some the woods in winter present no other picture than a stretch of bleak landscape covered with the gaunt forms of the trees, erect and naked, and where no sound is heard save the melancholy moaning of the wind as it moves through the deserted branches. 'Tis true the redbreast has taken his flight southward, but his absence is atoned for by the white-winged snowbird, who rejoices in mantled field and frosty air. Others of our summer friends have forsaken us, but a number remain faithful, and, rejecting the temptation of an excursion to the balmy south, brave the inclemencies of a winter in the icebound north. In the trees there may be found the bluejay, the grosbeak, the phesant, the owl, the crow, the woodpecker; and on a lower level, the field-mouse, the red squirrel, the weasel, the Yankee rabbit and the fox.

To the lover of nature the woods in winter present an opportunity unparalleled for observing the habits of these denizens of the fields and forests, especially of the animals, when every morning there are revealed in the snow the excursions and depredations of the past night.

A heavy snowfall may cause these little creatures to remain indoors for a day or two, especially if the snow is moist and clings to the branches. Not until the wind has removed it to the ground do they delight to make marks upon it by skipping hither and thither. The field-mouse is usually the first to venture forth. A brave little fellow is he, and a severe storm it is that keeps him in the second day. He is eager to write his name on the new white coverlet. If the snow is dry and moderately deep the jumps will be united by the dragging of his wee feet, the whole track presenting the appearance of a chain with each link interclasped. When the snow has become hard and crusted his track becomes a beaten path with curves and tunnels like a miniature railroad, now on the level, then disappearing beneath the crust, then out into the daylight again, and bending around a root or a stone.

One morning, after a light fall of snow, I came upon a track less distinct than that usually made by this animal. Slight as this exception was, it aroused my curiosity. The way led to the open, and, after going in a straight line for a few yards, suddenly stopped. On either side of the last mark was the impress of a wing. The snow had been soft enough to receive and retain the imprint of each feather. The details were perfect and the whole beautiful. This was unusual and demanded further scrutiny. Bending carefully down I discovered that the last track of the mouse was not a track at all, but a mark, as of a small body having been forced into the snow. This, with three small red spots on either side, told a mournful tale. The field-mouse had been pursued by an owl, and these wing-marks in the snow were circumstantial evidence as to the identity of the midnight murderer.

Another interesting habitant of field and forest is the weasel. His summer coat of brown sometimes causes him to be mistaken by the unknowing ones for a red squirrel. But his body is long and lithe, lacking the plumpness of the squirrel, while the tail is not so bushy and has a dark tip. In the winter all is changed, or nearly all, for the weasel puts off the brown for a white coat. Nearly all, we say, for at the point of the tail is a brand unchangeable, like the anchor tattooed upon a sailor's arm. The weasel is very fleet of foot, being even more rapid in movement than the red squirrel. When the snow is light and dry its progress across a field resembles that of a small snow-plow, and presents rather a pretty sight as the snow is driven from the furrow by its scarcely distinguishable white body.

Many of the animals delight in sport, but the Yankee rabbit or cottontail is easily first in love of a contest. With his brownish-grey coat, long ears, large eyes, and tuft-of-cotton apology for a tail, he is in a class by himself. He is not built for beauty, but for speed, and is always ready to try the mettle of the hounds. The spirit of the woods is in him. He will leave the mouth of his burrow, where is perfect safety, just to show in what contempt he holds the best hound in the pack. The course of the rabbit is in the nature of a wide detour. He is almost sure to come back to his starting point, and the size of the circuit depends on the depth of the snow. The still-hunt for a rabbit consists in one person remaining perfectly still where the footprints are first discovered, and the other, "taking the track, runs the rabbit," the little fellow in the meantime making sure that his pursuer is introduced to the thickest brambles and the sharpest thorns.

Perhaps the most wonderful characteristic displayed by this animal is his sense of distance and direction. He generally knows his location. He rarely makes a mistake, and if he is rudely awakened from his snooze by a ferret, any error of direction in the race for cover will be instantly corrected and manifested by a lightning-like swerve to either right or left as the case may be.

The track of the rabbit is a study in itself. If the prints of his feet are joined by lines, the result bears a strong resemblance to the outline of the letter Y. The peculiar motion of a rabbit, and in particular the humping of his back in the middle of every bound, is due to the greater length of his hind legs. In fact the rabbit over-reaches, and the last prints are those of the forefeet, while the two in advance are made by the hind feet.

But when the birds in the trees join with the chattering squirrel in a chorus of welcome to the returning spring, the rabbit mutely looks his gladness, and in the leafy grove and grass-covered meadow forgets the clinging cerements of snow and the days of his many privations.—Volney A. Ray, in McMaster University Monthly.

Admiral Domvile.

Admiral Sir Compton Edward Domville, who was Commander-in-Chief of the Mediterranean Station from 1902 until the recent changes, is the senior of the three Admirals whose fleets have been ordered to concentrate "as a measure of precaution." He was born rather more than sixty-two years ago in Worcestershire, and entered the navy in 1856. While lieutenant-commanding the Algerine in 1866-68 he was promoted for his skill and gallantry in services against pirates in China. He was captain of the Dido from 1879 to 1883, and on the Temeraire from 1884 to 1886. Then for three years he was captain of H.M.S. Excellent—Gunnery School, Portsmouth—and from 1891 to 1894 was Director of Naval Ordnance. In 1891, too, Sir Compton Domville was made Rear-Admiral, promoted Vice-Admiral six years later, and became full Admiral in January, 1902—four months before taking over the command of the Mediterranean fleet. In 1900 Sir Compton was appointed president of the committee to inquire into the different types of boilers in use on board His Majesty's ships. He was created K.C.B. on Queen Victoria's birthday in 1898, and received the G.C.V.O. in April last year on the occasion of the visit of King Edward to Malta.

A Voice From the Pews.

An old lady was toiling up the steps of an Edinburgh church the other Sunday night, when a kindly, elderly gentleman came after her, and saying, "Allow me, madame," took her arm and helped her up. When she had got to the top, she paused for a little to recover her breath, and then asked: "Do you know who's to preach to-night?" "Yes," said the gentleman, "it's Dr. ——," the speaker being no other than Dr. —— himself. "My goodness gracious!" exclaimed the old lady. "Help me down again, please, I'd rather listen to a man sharpening a saw."

GOOD SPORT AT WINTER RACES

Opening day of Peterborough Turf Club's Winter Meet

o Glass and Jim X Were Yesterday's Winners.

The winter meet of the Peterborough Turf Club opened yesterday at the Driving Park under most favourable conditions, and the meet promises to be most successful. There is a good string of fast horses and those who visited the tracks yesterday saw some good finishes in the two events which were concluded, the 2.35 and 2.19 classes.

Looking Glass, Mr. L. G. Bennett's pacer entered the fast class and won it in three straight heats. In the slower event there was a big field, eight starting and some very pretty finishes were seen. It was Jim X's races, but Lady Gothard, Martin Connor's new importation from Syracuse, gave him a hard run, finishing second in the first two heats.

The track was in good condition for a winter track, and some fairly good time was made. The weather was almost perfect race weather, and the crowds of spectators experienced little discomfort waiting for the different heats, which were run off with but little delay, Mr. P. Cluman being starting judge.

The summary of the races follows:—

2.35 Class, Trot or Pace.

Jim X, Fife, Villiers, ...	1	1	1
Lady Gothard, Connors, Peterborough	2	2	4
Donna Belle, Dr. Johnston, Peterborough	3	5	2
Pearl Wilks, Upper, Niagara	4	3	3
Frank C, Covery, ...	6	6	6
Billie Tarantum, Barnes, ...	5	x	x
Wisner, Campbell	7	x	x

Time 2,27 1-4, 2.28, 2.31 1-2.

In the second heat of this race Wisner fell, throwing his driver over his head and casting a shoe, thus preventing him from entering the remaining heats.

In the first heat Lady Gothard, who had the pole, trod the first quarter with Wisner a good second and Billie Tarantum following closely. At the end of the first heat Jim X had the field and maintained the lead although the finish was close, Lady Gothard being second by only a head, with Donna Belle third.

The second heat finished in the same order as far as first and second places were concerned. Jim X took the lead early in the heat and was never distanced, though as in the first heat, Lady Gothard gave him a hard run for first place. Pearl Wilks made a nice run and finished third in this heat, with Donna Belle in fifth place.

The last heat was an exciting one, Jim X, as usual, led, and Donna Belle, by a splendid burst of speed finished in second place, with Pearl Wilks third and Lady Gothard fourth.

THE SECOND RACE.

There were only four starters in the 2.19 class, which Looking Glass won easily, the summary being:—

Looking Glass, Bennett, Port Hope	1	1	1
Billie A, Paul	2	2	3
Black Mack, Timlin, Villiers ...	3	3	2
Miss Paisley, H. Cook, Peterborough	4	4	4

Time 2.26, 2.25, 2.25,

The first heat of the race furnished some good sport, Black Mack getting a good lead in the start, and maintaining it until the end of the first half. On the third quarter Belle and Miss Paisley passed the black stallion and on the last quarter Looking Glass pulled ahead and finished first by a length with Billie A second.

The second half was easy for Looking Glass and was run without any exciting periods. The Port Hope horse got a good lead early in the heat and gradually pulled away from the field, leaving the race for second place between Billie A and Black Mack, the former taking it.

The third heat was characterized by a most exciting race for second place, Looking Glass won the heat, and Black Mack and Billie A were running neck and neck with the latter slightly in the lead until the horses were within a short distance of the wire, when the stallion pulled out and won by a head.

The track officials were:—

Starter—P. Cluman, Peterborough; Judges—J. Clancy, H. Nail, Peterborough; W. Leahy, Lakefield. Timers.—A. Elliott, W. Callaghan, Clerk of course—J. O'Shea.

BOXING AND WRESTLING.

Boxing and Wrestling.

A small crowd attended the boxing and wrestling bouts in the Opera House last evening and those who attended were somewhat disappointed owing to the failure to carry out the programme as advertised. None of the events could be carried out as either one or both of the principals in each failed to appear. A few events were substituted and provided good sport. Wallace, of Peterborough, wrestled with another local man and got the decision. Pete Barry was to have boxed the bout of the evening with Green, but the latter failed to appear and Barry went four tame rounds with D. Christie, of Toronto. Christie also boxed four rounds with King, a local man.

E. Desautel and J. Currie sang a number of songs during the evening.

Unwritten Books.

Goldsmith often raised money on some projected work, then put it aside and started another. He once drew up a prospectus for a "Dictionary of Arts and Sciences" and obtained promises of help from his friends, Johnson, Reynolds and Burke, but the booksellers were too wary for once, and the scheme fell through. One of his last proposals was the "Survey of Experimental Philosophy," which met with the same fate.

The more practical Dr. Johnson could himself devise and not undertake. He once thought of writing a life of Oliver Cromwell, but it is as well perhaps that he changed his mind. His constitutional indolence was too great to admit of his undertaking many great literary enterprises, and, unlike Coleridge, he was well aware of the fact. He dawdled over his edition of Shakespeare for nine years, although he had promised it in a year, and only finished it in consequence of the attack of Churchill, who accused him of cheating his subscribers:

He for subscribers baits his hook
And takes your cash, but where's your book?
No matter where; wise fear, you know,
Forbids the robbing of a foe.
But what to serve our private ends
Forbids the cheating of our friends?

—Chambers' Journal.

An Orator's Voice.

"In the church," says Emerson in his essay on eloquence, "I call him only a good reader who can read sense and poetry into any hymn in the hymn book." The test is a severe one, for there are hymns which are wanting both in sense and poetry. The essayist doubtless intended to call attention to that charm of a good voice which enchains attention and indicates a rare sensibility in the reader. "The voice, like the face, betrays the nature and disposition and soon indicates what is the range of the speaker's mind. Many people have no ear for music, but every one has an ear for skillful reading."

John Quincy Adams was said to be so good a reader that no man in his time could read the Bible with such powerful effect. Mr. Emerson, who heard the ex-president speak when his fine voice was broken by age, records that "the wonders he could achieve with that cracked and disobedient organ showed what power might have belonged to it in early manhood."

Cause to Be Thankful.

Mr. Choate, Ambassador of the United States at London, tells of the address made by an Irish officer to his men who had just returned from a fruitless expedition.

Rising to his feet with the utmost solemnity and seriousness, the officer said:

"My men, I am fully aware of the fact that many of you brave fellows are disappointed because in this campaign you were afforded little opportunity to fight, but, my brave boys, reflect upon this, that had there been any fighting there would

BREEDERS OF SHORTHORN CATTLE.

Toronto, Jan. 18.—Over three hundred prominent shorthorn breeders were present yesterday at St. George's Hall, on the occasion of the nineteenth annual meeting of the Dominion Association. Subjects relating to this branch of the cattle business were discussed pro and con with all the enthusiasm of a band of patriots, the meeting, according to those present, being the largest and best ever held. All parts of the Dominion were represented among the delegates.

The annual report showed the registration of 4,873 bulls and 5,478 cows during the year, the total being now 109,579 pedigrees in the herd books. During 1904 the membership of the association was 2,005, as compared with 1,986 in 1903. The financial statement showed a balance of $3,834.78 on hand. The directors recommended that the head offices be removed to Ottawa.

A resolution was passed appealing to the Dominion Government to make it necessary, in order to import cattle for breeding purposes free of duty, that such animals be first registered in Canadian records.

FINANCES OF MANITOBA.

Winnipeg, Jan. 18.—In introducing the provincial budget last evening, Hon. J. H. Agnew, Provincial Treasurer, dwelt on the prosperous state of Manitoba finances as evidenced by surplus for the year of nearly a quarter of a million. After reviewing the work of last year, Mr. Agnew presented the estimates for the coming year in a lucid and masterly address. Following is the statement of last year's finances:

Railway aid bonuses, $856.69.
Survey fees, $19,612.69.
Drainage district No. 5, $1,299.69.
Drainage district No. 8, $887.44.
Drainage district No. 14, $1,198-60. Total, $34,424.14.

Total ordinary expenditure, $1,237,308.14.

Total ordinary revenue, $1,486,667.12.

Five years surplus—1900, $11,056.31; 1901, $49,494.73; 1902, $289,686.44; 1903, $148,777.88; 1904, $249,868.44; gross surplus amounting to $748,323.75.

Bridge of the Evil Man.

Near Aberystwith, on the west coast of Wales, where the Monk river flows through a black, yawning abyss, there is a single arch bridge of unknown antiquity. The popular legend says that it was built by the devil, and far and near it is known as "the Bridge of Devils" or "the Bridge of the Evil Man." British antiquarians are united in the belief that it was built by the early monks, but that fact does not affect the popular legend in the least, "Old Harry's" part in its erection being never questioned by the inhabitants of Cardinganshire. Gross says that "the bridge is an honor to the hand that built it, whether that hand be Satan's or that of some monk."

Life's Changes.

The great novel, the great book of any sort, is no longer being written for exactly the same reason that the Gothic cathedral is no longer being built, not because men have become incapable of it nor because its possibilities are exhausted, but because unforeseen changes in social and economic conditions have rendered it impossible.—H. G. Wells.

Satisfied Him.

She—Stop! You shan't kiss me tonight—at least, not before I have had an explanation. I heard today that you had been engaged to sixteen different girls. He—But that was before I had seen your angel face, my love. She—So it was, to be sure. I never thought of that.

Samples Didn't Suit.

Neighbor—Did that artist who stayed with you last month paint your doors and windows? Farmer—He did not. At first he refused to do such common work, and after I had seen one of his pictures I refused to let him do it.

The Compromise.

She—How sweet of you to own that you were in the wrong! He (absentmindedly)—Yes; mother always taught me that it was easier to give in to a woman than to argue with her.—Detroit Free Press.

A Hint For Health.

Physicians say that those who sleep with their mouths closed have the best health. If you awake in the night and find your mouth open get up and close

MISS WILLIAMS' TRAGIC DEATH.

Canadian Girl Who Had Just Completed Her Nurse's Course.

Brampton, Jan. 18.—George Williams received information yesterday about the accidental burning to death of his sister, Miss Hattie J. Williams, in St. Louis, Mo. It appears from the meagre information received that Miss Williams' clothing took fire from an open grate. She was burned so severely that she died several hours later from the shock. She was unconscious to the last. Miss Williams went to St. Louis three years ago to qualify as a nurse and had just recently completed her course and was professionally engaged when the sad fatality occurred. She had been expected to visit her brother here for some weeks.

Something New in----- SARDINES.

The best sardines in the world have been caught recently off the shores of Norway. These have immediately been pronounced by French and other Europeans countries as Par Excellence. The best brand is put up by Stavanger Preserving Co., Norway, under the name of "Crossed Fish" brand. The fish are very small and very tender; they have been slightly smoked before being preserved, which not only adds to their delicacy of flavour, but prevents the indigestive "rising" after eating, so customary with ordinary sardines. The genuine sardine is far above the common herrings sold as sardines, as all connoisseurs well know. To be sure you are getting the best order

PROVINCIAL NOMINATIONS

Not a Single Candidate was Returned by Acclamation Wednesday—No Walk-over This Time—The Fight Will be the Keenest in a Generation—Bribery Plot and Boundary Award Elections Match the Present Conditions—Campaign of Abuse ---Why the Premier is Assailed so Wantonly

Toronto, Jan. 19.—Nomination day passed without a single election by acclamation in the Province, although as everybody knows, there are many "sure" seats on both sides of the House. The determination to fight all along the line is but another indication of the tense state of public feeling. Not since the P. P. A. battle of 1894 has there been a contest so provocative of general interest and bad feeling as this, and not even then were there so many personal differences as the present election has given rise to. We would have to go back to the days of the Bribery Plot and the Boundary Award to match the conditions of the moment.

A Campaign of Abuse.

Perhaps the chief reason for the public excitement is the abuse showered upon Premier Ross from the platform and by the Opposition press. In every conceivable way, save by direct statement, which would be dangerous, the effort has been made to leave the impression that the trusted leader of Ontario Liberalism is corrupt, or in some way responsible for corruption. Naturally this has roused the indignation of Liberals all over the Province, who know that the men now denouncing Liberals as corrupt have been in many cases the leaders in electoral improprieties in their own districts for a generation. It is bad enough to be treated with an I-am-holier-than-thou air by some one who has at least pretensions along that line, but to be so treated by hoary-headed political sinners is not calculated to make for peace.

No Alliance With Corruption.

What there have been crooked men in the Liberal ranks we all know. One has only to mention the names of Lott and Shibley to establish that. But Lott and Shibley are fugitives from justice, paying in exile for their crimes against good Government. A Liberal Administration drove them out, just as the Government of Mr. Ross secured the fining and imprisonment of men, Liberal and Conservative alike, guilty of electoral corruption in the Provincial arena. Mr. McDougall, one of the Liberal candidates for Ottawa, said yesterday that there is no more reason for holding Mr. Ross responsible for corruption in Ontario than there would be for holding Sir Wilfrid Laurier responsible for the bogus ballot-box frauds in West Hastings and Frontenac, conceived, we may be sure, not only without his knowledge and consent, but to his great sorrow and humiliation.

The candidates nominated on both sides yesterday are in most cases strong and personally clean men.

In a business as high class as Semi-ready it is absolutely necessary to keep faith with the public—and we know it.

We want the people to know that when a suit is bought from us the customer receives not only perfection in fit—but perfection in style.

It would never do to carry over stock from one year to another year—so we adopted the plan of holding a "Lonely" sale—when all goods are disposed of, irrespective of original prices, at one price, namely $10.00.

That sale is on now—you will do well to call.

Something New In----- SARDINES.

The best sardines in the world have been caught recently off the shores of Norway. These have immediately been pronounced by French and other European countries as Par Excellence. The best brand is put up by Stavanger Preserving Co., Norway, under the name of "Crossed Fish" brand. The fish are very small and very tender; they have been slightly smoked before being preserved, which not only adds to their delicacy of flavour, but prevents the indigestive "rising" after eating, so customary with ordinary sardines. The genuine sardine is far above the common herrings sold as sardines, as all connoisseurs well know. To be sure you are getting the best order

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Five days more to work for McWilliams.

The young men of Peterborough want a young representative — in other words, they are going to vote for McWilliams.

Now isn't the Review captious? Some days it says the Liberals are doing no work at all; other days it slurs them for being too strenuous.

Perhaps it's the word "big" that our contemporary objects to in "The Story of a Big Political Barrel." Possibly there weren't enough rake-offs in the $28,000 it contained.

Mr. Whitney lauds independence, and asks the "independent Liberals" to follow him. But the Review scolds the Liberal candidate for independence. Surely here is a serious clashing of counsels.

Whitney stock will be listed on the "market" to-night. It shows a "bullish" tendnecy in the advertising department, but on "Simcoe street" there is a very distinct "bear" movement.

The Toronto News cartoonist doesn't regard Mr. Whitney as anything big. It puts him in the "pony" class. This pony can figure very fairly in pea-nut politics, but when it comes to adult politics, the war horse has the call.

Our back-door contemporary made merry over the alleged lack of noise at the Graham meeting in the opera house. It is determined, if booming by printers' ink will do the trick, that there shall be no lack of noise at the Whitney meeting to-night.

We had almost thought from reading the Conservative press that it was only the Liberals who criticised those who didn't agree with them. But the Review hasn't left Sam Clarke a shattered shred of character because he challenged to wordy combat Rev. D. C. Hossack.

It is "up to" Mr. Whitney to give a slashing address to-night, to recoup the local Conservatives for the large expense they have been put to for advertising — posters, newspaper notices, personal invitations, etc — to create a boom. When enthusiasm bubbles over so spontaneously, let the poor "Grits" beware.

Reports of Conservative meetings as published in the Review are all fine examples of that "knocking" method of campaigning adopted by the Opposition. This method failed under Alton B. Parker of the American Democrats; it failed under R. W. Borden of the Dominion Conservatives. What chance then for its success under J. P. Whitney, who is not comparable to the other two either as a member of the legal profession or as the leader of a political party?

Mr. Whitney in his campaign speeches is promising half a dozen Agricultural Schools scattered through the province. Where is he going to get the money for them? He strongly opposed most of the measures by which Ontario has been brought to its present prosperous condition. He'll surely cut off some of these sources of revenue of which he disapproved. Between decreased revenue and increased expenditure Job's famous turkey wont be in it with the province after Mr. Whitney, et al, have a thurn at managing the finances. Vote for McWilliams and the continuance of the present happy state of plenty.

LAKEFIELD HAS WINTER ROBIN.

Mr. Wm. Madill Injured at Marl Lake.

Latest News From Lakefield—Curling Notes—Personal Items.

From our Own Correspondent.

Lakefield, Jan. 18th. — Dr. Baker is confined to the house with an attack of lumbago.

Owing to the illness of Rev. C. A. Campbell, the pulpit of the Presbyterian church was occupied by Rev. Mr. Ross on Sunday last.

On Monday morning one of our citizens when coming down street, saw a robin flying across the road. He had difficulty however in making his friends believe his story. Since then other citizens have seen the bird and have verified the report that a live robin, apparently in good health, and full of vigour, is here in the middle of January.

The Kawartha club held its first meeting at the home of Mrs. W. M. Graham on Friday evening last, when a most enjoyable time was spent with cards and dancing.

The Lakefield curling club are sending two rinks to play in the district cup competition which will take place in Peterborough on Thursday.

A number of Chosen Friends from Peterborough attended the meeting of the local court of the Order, on Monday evening, Jan. 16th.

The Misses Spence, who have been visiting friends in Dummer for the past couple of weeks, have returned to the village.

Mr. F. A. Kilbourne, who spent a couple of weeks in Owen Sound, Toronto and Montreal, is home.

A most interesting game of curling was played in the rink on Friday last, when Mr. F. M. Dela Fosse challeged Mr. S. C. Tanner to a game, the loser to buy flour for the poor. At the end of the game the score was tied, and the skips decided to play two more ends, after which time it was again tied. After another hard fought end Tanner won by one shot. The following rinks played:

F. X. Fortier,	R. P. Davidson
L. Payne,	W. Reynolds,
J. Ridpath,	R. C. Strickland,
F. M. Dela Fosse, 11	C. S. Tanner, 12

A couple of loads of young people from Peterborough drove to the village on Tuesday evening, and after enjoying a skate at the rink they partook of supper at the Lakefield House.

Miss Quinn was in Peterborough on Tuesday.

The many friends of Mrs. A. S. Butchart, in the village, will learn will learn with regret that she is confined to her bed through illness.

A very enthusiastic meeting of the electors of the village was held in the town hall on Thursday last, when both candidates for the Provincial Parliament presented their platforms.

Mr. John Madill, while in the employ of the Lakefield Cement Co., was engaged in laying timber for a new track at the Marl Lake. The men were placing timber by means of a derrick, and Mr. Madill was struck by the swinging timber and had a rib broken. He is now doing nicely.

Mr. John Gilroy, who has been in the woods in the employ of the Tate, Lillicrap Company, has been summoned home owing to the illness of his mother.

debted, and realise the unselfishness such work entails.

We have to report during the year the resignation of Miss Lough, our efficient General Secretary, who has devotedly attended to her duties, giving great help to the Board of Management, and we believe in every way in her power furthering the work of the Society, and we pray that God may bless her abundantly in her new sphere of life. Miss Fisher who has at all times been ready to lend a helping hand, has again consented to take charge of the Secretary's work until further arrangements are made.

The thanks of the Board are due to the press, to those who have contributed papers and magazines to our reading room, and to all who have in anyway helped on the work.

In looking over the past year we cannot fail to see the wonderful Providence which has blessed us, and we pray that God may guide us in all our doings, and further us with His continual help, that in all our works begun, continued and ended in Him we may glorify His name.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

GEENERAL SECRETARY'S REPORT.

In a Young Women's Christian Association the following departments are to be found:—Religious, Business, Educational and Social. The reports of these various departments have given, so far as statistics can give, some idea of the work carried on during the year.

The past year has been rather an unique one in the history of this Association. The necessity of changing headquarters twice, and the lack of proper accommodation, has greatly hampered our work, but through the clouds the vision of larger opportunities and future possibilities appeared, and for these we would give thanks to our Heavenly Father, who is an ever-present guide.

Through the kindness of Senator Cox and others of our friends, the project of erecting a new building, adequate for the needs of the work, was set on foot. This building is now practically an accomplished fact. Early in March Miss Macdonald, Travelling Secretary for the Dominion Council, visited the Association and began a thorough canvass of the business section of the town. The encouragement received was such that a systematic canvass of the town was made and the lot shortly purchased.

The thanks of the Association are due the Advisory Board who have been most generous in their help; to the press, through which much information was given, to the Building Committee, who have been untiring in their efforts to fulfil their duty and to the citizens of Peterborough, who have responded so liberally on their behalf.

During Miss Macdonald's visit, two public meetings were held; one in Charlotte Street Church, with a view to arousing greater interest in missions among the Association members, and the second in St. Paul's Church which bore particularly on the aims of Association work. This latter meeting was addressed by Miss Macdonald and Mr. Colville, formerly Y. M. C. A. secretary of this place.

A large At Home was also given at the residence of Mrs. A. L. Davis, where a plan for the raising of money among the young women members was proposed by Miss Macdonald. The enthusiasm with which the young women undertook this work has plainly shown that a long-felt need has been met. About $300 has been handed in through the selling of 25 cent shares by the young women, while more has been promised. This year an effort has been made to extend our interests, consequently $10.00 has been contributed to the Dominion Council, in addition to the affiliation fee, and $18.00 which has been collected towards the support of Miss Macdonald who is now our secretary in Japan.

During the 100 young women have applied for employment, while 123 applications for help have been received. However, the problem of satisfactorily conducting an employment bureau, has not yet been solved, in this, or indeed, in any other Association.

Thanks are also due those who have kindly contributed reading matter to the Association. Following is a list of papers to be found on the reading table: Record of Christian Work, Service, (formerly Baptist Young People's Union) The Presbyterian, Homo Works (St. Luke's Parish paper), Dominion Tc, Montreal Weekly Witness, Ladies' Home Journal, McClure's, Delineator, Examiner, Morning Times, also a number of miscellaneous magazines.

Although we have been able to offer few advantages in our work this fall, and are able to offer few advantages, it is grateful to find that the young women are remaining loyal to the Association, and we feel that the interest shown by them is a vital one, which will mean much in the building up of our work in the future.

There are great opportunities in Association work wherever one goes. But the outlook and opportunities in Peterborough are particularly bright, a fact which, however, greatly increases our responsibilities. It is the duty of those of the Association to live up to those opportunities, working not in man's power, but in the power of Him who is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think.

Respectfully submitted,

MARY C. LOUGH,
General Secretary until December 1904.

NEW BOARD.

The following New Board was elected:—

Mesdames Wood, J. F. Dennistoun, A. L. Davis, Boucher, Waddell, Walsh, R. M. Dennistoun, Hunter, Scott, Geo. Burnham, Kennedy, Nugent, Morrison, J. Best, D. J. Lundy, Cressman, Roger, McPherson, Kilgour, Roberts, T. Gillespie, W. Thompson, F. Dixon, Crothers, R. Hall, Morrow, Messrs. Dickson, Morrow, Nicholls.

BUSINESS DEPARTMENT.

Miss M. Dickson presented reports of the Finance, House and Membership Departments.

FINANCE.

The report of the Treasurer shows the exact condition on which the finances stand. A good deal of difficulty has been experienced during the past year in raising money for the general funds of the Association on account of the special appeal for subscriptions to the Building Fund. However, we are glad to report that we have been able to meet our expense with a small balance on hand.

HOUSE.

On account of the variety of circumstances, it was considered advisable to close the boarding home on Brock street until the new building was ready for occupation. The home was closed in March, all accounts being paid and a temporary arrangement has been made to accommodate a limited number of young women in the public department on George street. This arrangement has, however, discontinued, when it was found necessary to move into our present premises.

It was with regret that the members of the Board accepted the resignation of Miss J. Dixon, in February, who had so faithfully performed the duties of Superintendent of the Home. The thanks of the Committee are also due Mrs. W. M. Roger, who kindly acted as Superintendent during the last month.

MEMBERSHIP.

Our membership is in the neighborhood of 160, which is so far as are known the largest paid up membership we have had. This includes the young women admitted to full membership privileges upon the payment of $1.00 towards the Building Fund, but does not include the juniors who were members only during the first half of the year, the junior work having been dropped this fall. It has been found more difficult to keep the membership in up-to-date condition this fall because there is a very natural tendency to postpone renewing until the building is completed. However, we have reason to feel encouraged with the measure of success with which we have met in this respect.

Respectfully submitted,

M. DIXON,
Convener.

EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT.

During the month of January and June 1904, the following classes were held in connection with the Educational Department of the Y. W. C. A.:—Subjects.—French, teacher, Madame Allo, enrollment, 11; English Literature, Sheriff Hall, enrollment, 11; bookkeeping and reading, (night school) Miss Finley and Miss Jolliffe, enrollment, 8; cooking, Miss Hills, plain, 27; household, 19; fancy, 17; total, 63; junior gymnasium, Miss Fisher, 13.

The cooking classes were, of course, more largely patronized than any other class. Miss Hills certainly spared no pain in her work and it was much appreciated by her pupils. The following financial statement of the class may be of interest to the public, as it is often almost impossible to make a cooking class a financial success in Association work:—

RECEIPTS.

Fees for lessons	$38 95
Sale of materials	3 50
Sale of typewritten receipes	5 10

RELIGIOUS DEPARTMENT.

SOCIAL DEPARTMENT.

The Social Committee is in a position to report of good work in their department during the first six months of 1904.

In January a very successful member's banquet was held with an attendance of 90. This was a new feature in the social department and it has established a precedent which we think it would be well to follow up.

In March, a large At Home was given through the kindness of Mrs. A. L. Davis, at which about 400 young women were present. This At Home was a decided success, as it brought the young women of the town together in a social way, and at the same time made them enthusiastic over the new building.

In May the Social and Educational Committees combined and held a social evening at which a Health Talk was given by Dr. Jessie Birnie, the attendance being 90, making the average attendance at these evenings 183.

Since September the accommodation has been limited and circumstances have been such that it has not deemed advisable to the Social Committee to undertake any definite work.

The King's Daughters have very kindly consented to give musical evenings from time to time during the winter which will, no doubt, be very much appreciated.

The Social Committee have in mind the opening of the new building and are planning to do their utmost to make that occasion a great success as well as the work which they will regularly undertake for the year.

Respectfully submitted,

B. E. NUGENT,
Convener Social Com.

A RESOLUTION.

It was moved by Mrs. J. F. Dennistoun, seconded by Mrs. Jas. Wood, "That the Petrborough Young Women's Christian Association, do borrow from the Central Canadian Loan and Savings Co., on mortgage of the Association property, the South 1½ feet of lot No. 7, North Simcoe street, west of George street, Peterborough, the sum of $10,000 for such period or periods as may be arranged with interest at 5 per cent. to be further secured by assignment of the fire policy of the buildings thereon and that the President and the Secretary of this Association be and are hereby authorized to execute said mortgage on behalf of the Association, and to fix the Association seal thereto."—Carried.

Mrs. Wm. Roger gave an account of Association work in the new building.

A vote of thanks was tendered to the Y. W. C. A. for the use of their building for meetings.

The first meeting of the New Board will be held at 2.30 o'clock on Monday for the purpose of electing officers.

RUSSIAN STRIKERS

Cause Suspension of Shipbuilding at St. Petersburg.

HAS BEARING ON THE WAR

Situation Is Grave, and the Socialistic Democrats Are Sparring On the Strikers—St Petersburg Presents the Appearance of An Armed Camp With Police and Infantry Marching.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 19.—Early yesterday morning the employes of the Neva shipbuilding works decided to support the strikers of the Putiloff and Franco-Russian (formerly the Baird) works. Subsequently 12,000 of the men of the Neva works informed their managers that they had gone out on a general strike.

The strike at the Neva works involves the suspension of the construction of submarine boats of the projector type, which was being carried out under the supervision of an American engineer, and also the work on two ocean-going vessels, similar to those of the volunteer fleet, and several gunboats and torpedo boats, besides the preparation of war material urgently required for naval and military purposes. The completion of the gunboats and torpedo boats had been ordered within two months.

Large forces of military and police have been sent to the works.

The strike situation is grave. Last night there were 58,000 men out and the movement is spreading to the big cotton mills, which employ over 50,000 operatives. Meetings have been called for to-day, at which the Socialistic Democratic leaders will endeavor to convert the strike into a vast political demonstration, which at the present crisis, might have serious developments.

The authorities are adopting every precaution to avoid an outbreak, but the Socialistic Democrats are spurring on the strikers, and there is danger of a collision with the troops, which would be almost sure to be followed by red flag demonstrations accompanied by bloodshed. The city is full of sensational rumors, and rioting generally is expected. The great industrial quarters of St. Petersburg presents the appearance of an armed camp.

The idle factories are surrounded by cordons of police and patrols of infantry march about the snow covered plains.

The strike has an important bearing on the war in the Far East, as every day's delay in completing Government contracts at the iron works means the loss of precious time in the starting of the third Pacific squadron.

Japs Capture British Steamer.

Tokio, Jan. 19.—The Japanese captured the British steamer Bawtrey in Tsus Straits at 11 Tuesday morning. The vessel which is of 1,542 tons, was carrying provisions, shipbuilding materials, etc., from Kiao Chon (the German port on the Shantung Peninsula) to Vladivostock. She was taken to Sasebo. The capture of another steamer is reported, but no details have yet been received.

TRAINMEN VOTE TO STRIKE.

Demand a Repeal of Order Making Firing By Brakemen Compulsory.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 19.—W. G. Lee, vice-grand master of the Brotherhood of Trainmen, stated yesterday that 95 per cent. of 12,000 members of the union had voted to give the grievance committe authority to call a strike of the trainmen employed by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company if necessary to secure the repeal of the company's order making firing by brakemen compulsory.

A WEDDING TRAGEDY

MR. WM. LASH OF MONTREAL

Had Replied to the Toast of His Bride, Miss Jean Anderson of Galt, When He Suddenly Fell Down and Expired in a Few Moments—His Heart Was Affected—Joy to Sorrow.

Guelph, Jan. 19.—Sudden and under profoundly pathetic circumstances was the death of William Lash of Montreal, which occurred in this city yesterday afternoon. By it a groom of but an hour was hastened into eternity and a season of happiness and jubilation was turned into one of deep sorrow.

Mr. Lash was married at high noon to Miss Jean Anderson, the ceremony being performed by Rev. R. E. Knowles of Galt. The wedding breakfast had been served and the happy couple were preparing to take the train on their honeymoon when the groom suddenly fell to the floor and expired in a short time. Heart failure was the cause of his death.

The late Mr. Lash was a cousin of Z. Lash of Blake, Lash & Cassels, Toronto, and was secretary-treasurer of the Canada Tag and Label Printing Company of Montreal.

Sorrow At Galt.

Galt Jan. 19.—News was received here yesterday afternoon from Guelph of the death at that city of Will H. Lash of Montreal, well known in this town, from which he had chosen his wife. Mr. Lash originally came from Newfoundland, but has lately resided in Montreal. His death on his wedding day is one of the saddest incidents ever recorded locally and has produced a feeling of profound grief throughout the community in which the bereaved bride, nee Jean Anderson, has lived for ten years. R. M. Jaffray of Montreal, with whom the deceased was associated in a printing establishment, was a guest at the wedding, and with Mr. Lash when he expired. He will accompany the remains to Montreal.

Bought Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and Sent it to Friends.

Mr. F. W. J. Fletcher, a druggist in Victoria, Australia, says: "A customer of mine, was so pleased with Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which she had used for her children when suffering from colds and croup, that during a fortnight's time she obtained at my shop, nine bottles, which she sent to her friends in different parts of the state, telling how much good it had done and advising them to give it a trial." For sale by all druggists.

Governor Who Does Things.

Boston, Jan. 19.—The strike of the cotton mill operatives at Fall River, which effected about 25,000 persons and which has been in progress for six months, to the great hardship and suffering of Fall River people, was settled yesterday through the mediation of Governor Wm. L. Douglas. Under the terms of an agreement accepted by both manufacturers and operatives, at a conference held at the State House yesterday, the strikers will return to work at once under the 12½ per cent. reduction, against which they struck last July, and with no discrimination because of strike. No rate of wages was established.

Thousands of operatives have found employment in other mill towns during the past five months, while many others, chiefly French-Canadians, returned to their former homes in Quebec Province. It is expected that many Canadians will return.

SIX MILLIONS DECREASE.

The Estimates Before the Commons—Government Is Asking For Sixty-Eight Million Dollars.

Ottawa, Jan. 19.—No business was done in the House yesterday, in a sitting which lasted barely ten minutes.

Routine was disposed of and the House adjourned.

Mr. Kemp was informed that the I.C.R. carried hay free for certain municipalities under certain conditions for a limited time. To-day the estimates will be taken up.

The Estimates.

The estimates for the year ending 30th June, 1906, were transmitted by His Excellency and Sir Wilfrid, in reply to Mr. Foster, intimated that if the private members had no business to occupy the attention of the House to-day the Government would be prepared to take up in Committee of Supply the consideration of the votes for civil service. The total vote asked by the Government for the coming year is $68,664,397.70, a decrease of $6,805,631.85, as compared with the estimates of last year. Of this amount $19,676,840.08 is expended under the authority of statute, and the remainder, $48,-988,057.62 is to be voted by the House. The amounts chargeable to consolidated fund is $58,495,187.70, and the expenditure charged to capital is: Militia, $1,800,000; railways and canals, $6,402,210, of which $2,-026.25 are re-votes (a decrease of $2,490,290); public works, $1,967,-000 (an increase of $141,895.59), and Dominion lands, $500,000 (a decrease of $264,100). The principal reductions in the amounts chargeable to the consolidated fund are: Public works, $1,833,030.42; ocean and river service, $356,666.66; fisheries, $210,300; railways and canals, $244,730; lighthouse and coast service, $250,000, owing to the work of constructing lighthouses and aids to navigation being well advanced toward completion. Government of Yukon Territory, $195,120.

Found Not Guilty.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 19.—Richard Livingston, son of a Canadian clergyman, was yesterday found "not guilty" on the charge of assaulting and robbing Sam Bittle, saloonkeeper and ex-pugilist, two months ago. Stratford, Jan. 19.—Yesterday was a butter and cheese makers' day at the Western Dairymen's Convention, and addresses were given along this line by a number of the instructors. The annual report of instruction was read. The feature of last evening's session was the presentation of the challenge cup to O. Schweitzer of North Easthope, whose cheese scored 100 points.

Chased Over Ice to Canada.

Algonac, Mich., Jan. 19.—Elisha Moore, a constable of this town, was shot and instantly killed by Bill Sauer, seven miles down the middle channel yesterday morning. Sauer is supposed to have reached the Canadian shore over the ice and is being chased by a posse of officers.

Scientists Under Arrest.

Toronto, Jan. 19.—Warrants issued yesterday in connection with the death of Wallace Goodfellow were executed during the evening by Detective Newton of No. 3 Division, and as a result the four persons named in the indictment of the coroner's jury as being guilty of manslaughter spent last night in police cells, and will appear in court this morning.

His Skull Fractured.

Walkerville, Jan. 19.—Frank Douglas, aged 40 years, an employ of the Pere Marquette, was probably fatally injured by a heavy timber falling upon his head at the roundhouse Tuesday evening. Douglas sustained a fractured skull and a broken right leg. Little hope is held out for his recovery.

Passing It On.

Herbert Spencer in "An Autobiography" tells of a gentleman who, having adopted a boy with a view of educating him after a system of his own, found that he had underestimated the magnitude of the undertaking. He therefore cast about for a wife, whom he gave clearly to understand that his principal reason for marriage was to secure a fit person to rear the boy.

The wonderfully rapid effect of Dr. Pitcher's Backache-Kidney Tablets in curing the severest kidney, bladder and urinary troubles, makes those affected rejoice. Such diseases and disorders as lame or weak back, swelling of the feet, puffiness under the eyes, gravel, brick deposits in the urine, scalding, frequent calls during the day or night, pain in the joints, uric acid in the blood, drowsiness, headache, rapid loss of flesh, habitual constipation, liver torpor, weakness of the urinary organs in children and the aged—are all quickly relieved and permanently cured.

Mr. E. Dawson, Main St., Kincardine, Ont., says: "Hard work and constant stooping, together with exposure to cold, brought on severe backache and Kidney trouble. The secretions were thick and scanty. Nothing relieved me until I got a bottle of Dr. Pitcher's Backache-Kidney Tablets. They soon stopped the pain and soreness. The Kidney action became normal and healthy. I am exceedingly grateful, and glad to add this testimony to the expressions of goodwill I have heard others give utterance to."

It is no wonder Dr. Pitcher's Tablets cure so well. They are the prescription of a Kidney specialist and contain ingredients not found in common kidney pills. 50 Tablets in a bottle. Price 50c. or 3 for $1.25, at druggists or by mail. The Dr. Zina Pitcher Co., Toronto, Ont.

COLLINGRIDGE HAD GOOD QUALITIES

Man who Suicided in Bridgenorth was Well Liked

Had Travelled 40,000 Miles and was Very Intelligent—Loneliness possibly Caused him to Take his Life.

Mr. R. C. Heard of Bridgenorth, the gentleman in whose employ the late Edwin Walter Collingridge was for the last three months, was in town this morning, and gave some additional information with reference to the death of Collingridge, to that reported yesterday.

The deceased man was a steady, hard-working man, and Mr. Heard, as well as all those who had any dealings with him in Bridgenorth, was very favourably impressed with him. He was a man of more than ordinary intelligence, and had travelled very extensively; it is said that he had covered 40,000 miles in the last few years, and had gained considerable valuable information in his travels.

The dose of poison which he took was two thirds of an ounce of arsenic, of which he had a quantity in his possession, having brought it from South Africa, where he served as a veterinary surgeon in the constabulary, and prior to going to that country he filled a similar position in the Royal Canadian Dragoons.

Mr. Heard was greatly pleased not only with his work but also with his other relations with him, and the deceased had thought of leasing the blacksmith business from his employer.

He was not only a good steady, reliable man, but there are evidences that he possessed a kindly disposition. It appears that a friend of his came to Canada with him, and, taking sick, was placed in an hospital in Toronto, and Mr. Collingridge took such an interest in him that out of his wages he sent him money to help him until he should recover.

The deceased was evidently lonesome, for he would frequently work in the shop at night, and when asked why he did it, he said it was to forget his lonesome condition, and it was evidently this feeling that caused him to take his life.

The first intimation that Mr. Heard had that deceased was ill was when he was called in the morning for breakfast. He told them that he wanted a doctor, and when the latter came he told him that he had taken poison, but asked the doctor not to tell Mr. Heard.

When Collingridge went to bed he took with him a cup of sweetened water, but the family with whom he lived thought he was going to take some ginger tea, as he had frequently done for a cold in the head.

Deceased had a brother in Manitoba, who has been communicated with.

MRS. REV. J. P. WILSON'S LAMENTED DEATH

Died at Belleville Last Evening After Lingering Illness.

The very sad intelligence was received in town last night of the death of Mrs. (Rev.) J. P. Wilson, of Belleville, who died at 6.15 o'clock. Her demise was not unexpected, as she had been very ill for the past few weeks, following a lingering illness of about a year. She leaves to mourn the loss of a loving wife and mother, a husband, one son, Dr. Cameron Wilson, of Toronto, and two daughters, Janet and Mary.

Rev. J. P. Wilson was for four years pastor of the George street church, and during this time both Mr. and Mrs. Wilson endeared themselves to very many in town. Mrs. Wilson was greatly beloved by a large circle of friends, and her death will be deeply lamented here, as in other places.

The remains will be taken from Belleville to Napanee to-morrow morning and will be interred at the latter place.

SHOTS FIRED AT EMPEROR NICHOLAS

Bullets Entered the Imperial Palace This Morning

Special to the Examiner

St. Petersburg, Jan. 19. — The annual ceremony of Blessing the Waters in front of the winter palace was performed by Emperor Nicholas this morning. In the course of the ceremony several shots were fired from across the Neva. No one was hurt.

POLICE COURT NOTES.

At the Police Court yesterday morning Philip Moloney was fined $100.00 and costs, or $104.00 altogether for selling liquor to an Indian.

A drunk and disorderly was discharged at the Police Court this morning.

Electors if you hear Mr. Whitney, the Liberal Conservative Leader, at the Market Hall, on Thursday evening, you will get a better grip of affairs than you can by reading the papers. Come and hear what a man who knows says about what he knows.

THIRTY THOUSAND FOR ARMOURIES

That Amount is Included in the Estimates

$300,000 for Trent Valley Canal and $6,000 for Dredging Otonabee River.

In the estimates as submitted at Ottawa yesterday for the year, there are three items which are of considerable local interest.

Thirty thousand dollars is being voted for the Peterborough Armories, and $300,000 for the Trent Canal. It will be seen from the above that there is no doubt of the Government's intention to erect the armouries here, and it would also seem that the Government has also determined to carry to an early completion the Trent Valley Canal.

Another item of local interest is $6,000 for dredging the Otonabee River at Peterborough.

MEETING AT YOUNG'S POINT

Hon. J. R. Stratton and Liberal Candidate Addressed the Electors.

A Splendid Meeting in Spite of Disagreeable Weather Conditions.

Last night in spite of the very disagreeable weather conditions, a large number of the electors of Smith gathered at Young's Point to attend the meeting being held there in the interests of Mr. R. F. McWilliams, the Liberal candidate, in West Peterborough, who discussed the political questions of the day.

Mr. P. A. Kearney acted as chairman of the meeting, which was opened by Mr. McWilliams, who gave a strong address, showing the successful condition of the province financially, educationally and agriculturally, and how the, as yet, unproductive parts of the country were being opened up by colonization roads and railways, thus increasing the wealth of the province. Mr. McWilliams referred to the large sums that had been spent in the northern part of the County of Peterborough enabling the farmers to more easily reach the markets. He made a strong appeal to the electors to give the boy candidate a chance. They had made an experiment with a very young candidate nearly 20 years ago, and they had not regretted the action they had taken at that time. He hoped, if he were given the opportunity, to show his fitness for the position, and would protect the riding's interests. The speaker referred to the arguments of the Conservatives, which he said were unsound; and they had no policy.

Mr. McWilliams was well received.

Hon. Mr. Stratton, who was present, gave an address, and gave his reasons for not being a candidate in this election, which were of a purely personal character. He was conversant with the affairs of the province, and knew that the Premier was a man who had the best interests of the province at heart. His colleagues were all men who were well fitted to fill their respective offices, and the management of the different departments had given general satisfaction, as was evidenced by the lack of successful criticism on the part of the Opposition.

The members of the Cabinet were all capable men. Hon. Mr. Latchford, Attorney-General, was thoroughly competent; Mr. Dryden is a successful farmer; Mr. Charlton a successful business man; Mr. McKay had brought his legal skill to bear upon the Crown Lands Department, and Mr. Graham was a man who he believed was capable of administering the important department of which he had charge.

The new department of Mines and Colonization would be added to the list and would prove beneficial.

The Opposition had made charges and insinuations of wrong doing, but nothing had produced to show that the Government had been identified with the improprieties of warmly contested elections.

The Soo guarantee, pulpwood concessions, and other questions, were dealt with by the speaker, and the successful meeting closed with cheers for the King, Mr. McWilliams, Mr. Stratton and the chairman.

LOCAL STOCK MARKETS

The following has been received from, N. B. Darrell, 337 Water street:—

The market to-day promises to be irregular, but with a strong undertone and continued activity on the buying side. The market is purely professional and yesterday's rumor of a corner in Reading made traders uneasy and they are ready to change their position at any moment. We do not know anything to justify any selling movement in the market; while occasional reactions will take place we believe the trend of the market is upward and advise the purchase of the better class of stocks.—Town Topics.

It is stated on unquestioned authority that the directors of Boston and Montana Copper Co., declared a quarterly dividend of ten dollars per share, equivalent to 4 per cent. This is said to be equivalent to the payment of one and one quarter million into the A. C. P. treasury. This means six millions a year to the Copper Co.

Monkey Brand Soap cleans kitchen utensils, steel, iron and tinware, knives and forks, and all kinds of cutlery.

Hear Mr. J. P. Whitney, the Liberal Conservative Leader, in the Market Hall, THURSDAY evening, January 19. Don't fail to come. Ample accommodation.

Do not Delay

When through debilitated digestive organs, poison finds its way into the blood, the prime condition is to get the poison out as rapidly and as thoroughly as possible. Delay may mean disaster. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will be found a most valuable and effective remedy to assail the intruder with. They never fail. They go at once to the seat of the trouble and work a permanent cure.

SECOND DAY'S GOOD RACING

Some Interesting Finishes at Driving Park Yesterday

Looking Glass an Easy Winner—2.23 Class Race was Unfinished

The second day's races at the Driving Park provided good sport for the lovers of ice-racing. The crowd was larger than on the previous day and the finishes as a rule were quite interesting, especially in the 2.23 class, which was unfinished yesterday and was concluded this morning. This race was quite exciting and the fourth heat provided as good a race as has been seen here for some time. Jim X took the lead and looked like a winner for the third time, but in rounding the last turn, Conduct and Hal Galvin, neither of which had secured a better place than third before, made a speedy spurt, and both flew by Jim X, Conduct leading. It was a pretty race with Hal Galvin only a nose behind Conduct at the wire. The finishes in the first three heats were closer than the ordinary, the fight for second and third place being especially exciting.

The 2.19 class was easy for Looking Glass which won each heat in a walk and never had to exert itself. Velma and Black Mack had a hot fight for second place which the former won, Billie Tarantum dropped out after the first heat.

The track was in good shape, but the stiff wind blowing down the stretch affected the time of the heats somewhat. The officials were the same as on the opening day.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT.

Mr. Dumble presented the president's report as follows:

The year just closed has been one of the most successful in the history of the society. It is realized that the growing love for flowers, and their more extensive cultivation year by year, and the greater care bestowed upon both private and public grounds,, are in large measure the direct result of the society's efforts.

"In the year just closed the Victoria and Central Parks have shown better results than ever before, the beds were better planted, and showed better and more artistic effects. The season was wet and there was an abundant supply of water, and the colours were massed, so that Victoria Park especially was a credit to the town, and a surprise to all visitors.

"The spring display of tulips in the park will be fine.

"The Horticultural Show was good, and was better patronized than for many years past.

"The society realizes that for much of their success they are indebted to the zeal, energy and faithful services of Mr. Cooney, and to the hearty co-operation of the directors.

"The directors have resolved to conduct the future operations of the society on a new basis. It is proposed to buy bulbs in Holland and to give every member a gift of splendid bulbs, the retail price of which here is greater than the membership fee; they will also give the members a subscription to a useful publication containing directions for growing flowers, etc. This will widen the membership, extend the love of flowers and add much to the beauty of the gardens.

"It is hoped that there will be such widespread desire to share in the distribution of bulbs, that people will solicit the privilege of membership, which will not in the future cost more than the dollar heretofore charged.

"It is hoped that the town authorities will assist in making the town attractive by depositing every available load of good earth on the Central Park, and in making up boulevards, instead of taking away good soil from in front of citizens' property to dump it into holes that could as well be filled with material unfit to grow grass.

"In progressive towns and cities the authorities build the boulevards; here a very different course has been followed, and consequently we are sometimes told the ungrateful fact that our streets are 'rough.'

"We should constantly aim to make our city a beautiful residence place.

"Before closing we would suggest a continuation of the action pursued last year in trimming and thinning out the street trees."

A RESOLUTION.

To the President, Directors and Members of the Peterborough Horticultural Society:

We, your Committee appointed to look into the matter of bulb and plant distribution among the members of the society, beg to submit the following report:—

We have examined the correspondence from Col. Bog, secretary of the Preston Horticultural Society, obtained by your President, Mr. Dumble, and desire to state that we see no reason why we should not make a very handsome distribution of bulbs to the members of this society in the spring and also another in the fall. We would also suggest that a periodical relating to the growing and care of plants and bulbs be subscribed for and distributed to the members.

We would recommend that a committee be appointed to look into our finances and find our what we can really afford to give each member and also that they be empowered to act in the purchasing of such bulbs and plants decided upon.

We would also suggest that a general meeting be called in the spring for the distribution of the same and a general talk upon the management of such bulbs or plants it is seen fit to provide.

We are also of the opinion that owing to the general distribution scheme, this Society should become very popular as each and every member will receive greater value than they are asked to contribute.

Respectfully submitted.

FRANK WISE,
PERCY HAMILTON.

The report was received and adopted after a short discussion.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President—D. W. Dumble.
1st Vice-President—W. H. Hall.
2nd Vice-President—T.A.S. Hay.
Secretary-Treasurer—H. Beal.
Auditors—T.A.S. Hay and A. Stevenson.

Directors — Hon. J. R. Stratton, Jas. English, H. Nesbitt, R. Saunders, F. Wise, T.A.S. Hay, P. Campbell, Adam Hall, Dr. Geo. Burnham, Jos. Giles, Jas. Stevenson, W. J. Francis.

Mr. B. Cooney, caretaker of Victoria and Central Parks, reported as follows:—

In Victoria Park.—Harrowed the park, put on 24 loads of manure for top dressing, planted 3,600 bulbs, planted 19 shrubs; got fourteen loads of manure from T. Cunningham, four loads from Dr. Eastwood, two loads from Adam Hall. Mr. Hall also supplied some bulbs. Got four loads of sod and a quantity of street scrapings.

In Central Park.—All trees dug around and manured. Elm trees and four shrubs were planted and the trees top dressed.

It was moved by Mr. Jordan, seconded by Mr. Hamilton, that people who take trouble to cut and water the grass on the boulevards should not be charged by the town for the water used in watering same, and that a copy of this resolution be sent to the Water Commissioners.—Carried.

It was moved by B. Cooney, seconded by F. Wise, that the Council be asked to place a number of incandescent lights in the Victoria Park.

GOLDEN WEDDING WAS CELEBRATED

Mr. and Mrs. S. Wood Have Been Married for 50 Years

The golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. S. Wood, was celebrated yesterday, at their residence, Reid street, and the occasion was in every way a most enjoyable one. Seven sons, with their wives and families, and daughter, were present at the family reunion, which was a most happy one. Eleven grand children were among those present. Mr. and Mrs. Wood were married at Ameliasburg, by Rev. Dr. Cyrus Ellison, Jan. 18, 1855, and their fifty years of married life have been years of happiness and prosperity.

During the evening, which was spent in music and games, an address was given by Rev. W. J. Jolliffe who warmly congratulated Mr. and Mrs. Wood, upon the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding. Short speeches were also made by Mr. Wm. Galbraith, and Mr. Giles. Two elegant family chairs were presented by the family, and Mr. Wood made a fitting reply to the kind sentiments expressed.

The following are the children:—Messrs. John W., of Peterborough; E. W. of Otonabee; J. A. of Manvers; D. F., of St. Catharines, D. H., of Smith; W. E., of Otonabee, and Miss O. E., who is living at home.

Mr. and Mrs. Wood are enjoying good health, and their friends will wish them many more years of happy life.

OLD RESIDENT OF OTONABEE DEAD

Late Mrs. Nicholas Swan, of Swan's Corners Highly Respected.

After a very short illness from heart failure Mrs. Ann Jane Swan, widow of the late Nicholas Swan, of Swan's Corners, of Zion, Otonabee, died at her home on Wednesday. The deceased, while she had not been well, was in comparatively good health until one day before her death.

Deceased, whose maiden name was Dowdell, was born in County Down, Ireland, 78 years ago, and came to this country when she was very young, the family settling in North Monaghan, and the deceased later went to Otonabee to live. She was married twice, her first husband being Robt. Read. She was later married to her late husband, Nicholas Swan, who died about 30 years She leaves two children, a son, Nicholas, and a daughter, Mrs. Robt. Robinson, Otonabee. Three brothers, John and William Dowdell, of Otonabee, and Henry Parker, of Brantford, also survive her.

The funeral will take place on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, from the family residence, lot 16, concession 12, Otonabee, to St. Mark's cemetery.

Y. W. C. A. HELD ANNUAL MEETING

Encouraging Reports Presented Tuesday Evening

Election of Board of Directors—The President's Remarks.

The annual meeting of the Young Women's Christian Association was held in the Association rooms last Tuesday evening with a large attendance of members. The President, Mrs. (Dr.) Scott, was in the chair.

A number of reports were presented, showing the affairs of the Association generally to be in a sound condition.

PRESIDENT'S REMARKS.

We are permitted to meet at another annual meeting, and it is not mere form to say our hearts are full of thankfulness to our Heavenly Father by Whose kind care and guidance we are in a position to-night of so much encouragement. Since the birth of this Association, it has had its difficulties and struggles ,its ineffectual efforts to make itself understood and appreciated, its disappointments and its discouragements. But who can say but that by these very things, we may have made advancement; we have often been in the shade until we scarcely knew which step we should take. But we were always brought into the sunshine, and to-night we feel that the people of Peterborough recognize the necessity of a Y.W.C.A., and we have been gratified at the kind and generous response to our appeal for a suitable building. As you well know, this Association stands for the spiritual, physical, intellectual and social development and influence of young women. It is helpful to the Christian young women at home, to those away from home, and in so many ways to the non-Christian young women, whether at home or not. Many are prejudiced against the religious meetings, but are interested in the evening classes. The gymnasium appeals to them, and they are attracted by some of the social gatherings, and so the indirect means employed interpret Christianity to them as perhaps they have never understood it before, and and as they cannot fail to see. It is all built on the great foundation, Jesus Christ. But the Young Women's Christian Association is not going to run itself. I think it is Dr. Torrance who has said, the only time when a thing will run itself, is when it is running down hill. There will still be difficulties to surmount and obstacles to overcome and it requires women of courage to look beyond the difficulties, knowing that it is not by might nor by power, but by My Spirit, saith the Lord of Hosts.

REPORT OF RECORDING SECRETARY.

The Board of the Y.W.C.A. has during the year 1904 held nine regular meetings and five special meetings. Satisfactory reports from the different departments have been duly presented at each meeting. The work of the committees has during the last six months been somewhat hampered, owing to the small accommodation afforded for the carrying on of the work,, consequent upon the giving up of the house on Brock street, and the rooms on George street, thereby curtailing expenses, and devoting all our energy and support to the erection of the new building.

In February, at a special meeting, Mrs. Jas. Dixon sent in her resignation as matron of the boarding home, which was received with regret, Mrs. Dixon having had charge of this department for nearly a year and a half, and had managed it with a degree of success far exceeding the highest expectation of the Board. When the Home was closed it was not only free from debt, but had to its credit a balance of about $25.

At the meeting held on Feb. 15th, 1904, it was moved by Miss Roberts, seconded by Mrs. Walsh, and unanimously carried, "that a Y.M.C.A. building be erected."

To further this resolution, the town was divided into districts and collectors appointed to each. Mrs. Kennedy resigned her position as recording secretary, which she had held for five years. Few have served so faithfully and so long, and it was with regret the Board was obliged to accept it. Miss Roberts was appointed to her place, assisted by Mrs. Jory.

In February, Miss McDonald, the Dominion Secretary, paid us a visit. She addressed several meetings, and exhorted the members to heartily cooperate in the work about to be undertaken. Mrs. Davis kindly gave her house for a social evening, which proved a great pleasure and help to the members.

A building committee was appointed, with Mrs. Jas. Wood as convenor. Cooking classes were formed, under the management of Miss Hills, and proved very successful, even in a financial way.

In April, the Building Committee selected the lot for the building, and purchased the same, on the corner of Simcoe and Aylmer streets, from Mr. Jas. Stevenson, for the sum of $3500.

In May, Hon. George A. Cox most kindly provided the Association with a large and comfortable room in the Bank of Commerce Building, to be used by the members until the new building is opened.

Mr. Cox has at all times been a staunch friend of the Association, and, indeed, it is due, to a very large extent, to his liberality that the Association is able to undertake the present work.

On Sept. 7th the corner stone was "well and truly laid" by Mrs. Cox, and already a fund towards the furnishing of the building has been started by Dr. Davies. Mrs. Walter Roger has volunteered to take charge of the boarding house for six months.

Miss Roberts in Sept. resigned her position as Recording Secretary, having decided to spend the winter in Toronto, taking up work. And as Mrs. Jory also left Peterborough about the same time, Mrs. R. M. Dennistoun undertook the work of the Recording Secretary till the end of the year.

Never before in the history of the Association has there been such a large membership, evincing the deep interest and appreciation of the young women.

The Board wishes especially to thank those who have devoted much time and energy to conducting the evening classes; they feel greatly in-

THE NOBLE PRIZES.

Lord Raleigh and Sir William Ramsay, English Scientists, Win Two Out of Three of Them.

The patriot may well be pleased at this year's awards of the Nobel prizes, two of which come to Great Britain. Lord Raleigh succeeds Professor Arrhenius, the great physicist of Copenhagen, as the prize-man in physics; and Sir William Ramsay—co-discoverer with Lord Raleigh of the rare gas argon—succeeds M. and Mme. Curie as the prize-man in chemistry.

Lord Raleigh is the only hereditary peer who is also a man of science. His work in acoustics and optics is known wherever sound and light are studied; and true to his promise as Senior Wrangler, Lord Raleigh has long been amongst the foremost in the ever-increasing application of mathematics to physics. His genius for experiment and mixed mathematics has descended to his son and heir, the Hon. R. J. Strutt, who has lately been very successful in his work at some of the problems of radium.

Sir William Ramsay is the discoverer not only of argon, but of a number of other atmospheric gases which have subsequently been detected by the same methods. These he has called neon, xenon, krypton, and psammon; so that the discovery of five "elements" at least stands to his credit. Far more interesting and remarkable, however, is the truly epoch-making discovery by Sir William of the evolution of the "element" helium from the "element" radium. The significance of this discovery cannot be over-estimated. It means the conquest of evolution in the most promising stronghold of the opposing theory. Whatever else might have been evolved, at least it was thought that the atoms of the elements had upon them the stamp of the "manufactured article." They were "the foundations stones of the material universe," which had existed "since the Creation, unbroken and unworn." The alchemists, often deluded but yet patient and worthy founders of the science which Sir William Ramsay adorns, sought for the "philosopher's stone" that should transmute lead into gold. Spencer, of course, rejected the current theory of the origin of atoms, as he had to do if evolution was to be proved universal, as he asserted; but it has been left to Sir William Ramsay to supply the first objective proof that Clerk-Maxwell's words, quoted above, can no longer be accepted as in any sense expressive of the facts. Sir William's discovery of the evolution of the atoms of one element by the breaking down of those of another has lately been confirmed, one may note, in St. Petersburg.

The Nobel prize for physiology and medicine goes to M. Pavloff (as Pawlow one used to read of him), of St. Petersburg. M. Pavloff is one of the most indefatigable of continental vivisectors, and has made the most important additions to our knowledge of digestion, and notably to the manner in which various stimuli—such as looking at a steaming joint when hungry—cause the secretion of the gastric juice. Presumably his £8,000 will go towards a new laboratory. Never yet was physiologist, in my experience, that did not want a new laboratory. Last year's recipient of this prize was poor Professor Finsen, chosen out of his turn, so he said himself, since it had to be then or never. The year before that the prize came to England, or rather Scotland, in the person of Major Ronald Ross, who proved that the mosquito conveys the parasite of malaria from the sick to the healthy. Sir William Ramsay, by the way, like Sir James Dewar, is a Scot.

Editor of Lux Mundi.

Dr. Gore, Bishop of Worcester, who has elected to take the new Bishopric of Birmingham, which has been carved out of his old see, is the famous editor of Lux Mundi, and has been Bishop of Worcester only just over two years, says The London Star. In his younger days he wielded great influence at Oxford, and, indeed, still does so, frequently visiting the university as a "missionary," and securing some of the brightest undergraduates for service in the Church of England. He is only 51 years of age, and has had a remarkable career since he left Balliol College. After acting successively as Vice-Principal of Cuddesdon College, librarian of the Pusey Library, and Vicar of Radley, he became in 1904 Canon of Westminster. He continued to reside and work in the metropolis until he was appointed to Worcester.

Married His Grandmother.

There lived in the village of Arreton, Isle of Wight, many years ago a young man who was betrothed to a young woman. Both were poor and in humble life, but the grandfather of the young man had money, and he fell in love with the young woman and proposed marriage to her. The girl told her lover. He was displeased, but, having pondered over the dilemma, saw a way to extricate himself and his sweetheart from the same. "Marry him," said he to the girl. "He is rich. He cannot live long. When he dies you'll have his money, and I'll have you." She took the advice. By the marriage she became the young man's grandmother. Not long after the old man died, and then she wedded her first betrothed.

Had Experience.

"How would you feel if you were to meet a holdup man?"

"Natural. I have met so many coal dealers."

If you think that money cannot buy happiness, just try giving your wife a few extra dollars a day and see.

What He Thought.

HOCKEY IN CANADA.

Only Possible in a Climate Like That of Our Own Good Dominion.

Those who have the ear of imagination can hear from all parts of Canada these days the ring of cold steel on crisp ice. It is the sound of the lightning hockeyist chasing the puck. There are games that call for speed, skill, endurance, coolness, quickness of judgment, and such like qualities, but for meteoric swiftness, and all that it implies, the best of them must yield to hockey. Lacrosse has been called the national game, and it has many claims to that title, for it was played in these latitudes long before Columbus happened on San Salvador. Whether it is so distinctively a national game as hockey is, however, open to argument. A team of lacrosse players might come from New Orleans, or Havana, or Rio Janeiro, and conquer Canada from Montreal to Vancouver. It never has been done, but it is not unthinkable. In the domain of hockey, on the other hand, it is outside the bounds of possibility that a team could be reared south of Mason and Dixon's line which would have a ghost of a show even against a parcel of boys taken at random from any Canadian public school.

Zeal may do much, but it cannot make skates without ice—unless it be of the roller variety. The mere thought of such a deprivation causes a feeling of deep pity in any sympathetic breast for those whose misfortune it is to be born in an iceless land. Just reflect on the wretched condition of the man who not only has never figured in a hockey match, but who has not even seen one played. No description can be a substitute, for how can a game be calmly described when nothing on the earth could serve as a comparison or a standard without being considered lumbering and slow. It is necessary to go to the heavens, with its lightning bolts, its shooting stars, and its northern lights, for images to truly set forth the flashing celerity and inconceivably swift changes of the game of hockey-on-the-ice.

Talk about the strenuous life! What does anybody in Washington, D.C., know about the strenuous life? asks The Globe. He alone knows what the strenuous life is who plays lacrosse all summer, football all fall, and the mercurial game of hockey all winter. Rowing and canoeing must be thrown in as side dishes. What a population must result from this Spartan life! If all the rules and regulations of the soldier's vade mecum were universally enforced they would not produce the unsubduable race that these sports of ours, which our youth pursue gladly, are rearing all over this keen and hearty land. Is there any other climate in the world to compare with this Canadian climate of ours? There may be spineless and nerveless persons who sigh for lands where it is always afternoon. But for the production of a race that will be heard of in the world and make other people listen to them, give us that land whose summer makes the blood generous and warm, and whose winter makes it sharp, tingling, and compelling—and that land is our own good Dominion.

ELECTRIC SMELTING.

May Possibly Revolutionize the Iron Industry in Canada.— Report of the Canadian Commission.

Rarely has a report of greater public interest or importance been issued by any department of the Federal Government than that which was sent out recently by the mines branch of the Department of the Interior. The report in question contains the results of the investigation made by the Haanel Commission into the different electrothermic processes for the smelting of iron ores and the making of steel in operation in Europe. The conclusions of the commissioners are the result of careful, exhaustive inquiries.

In addition to the report on the smelting of iron ores and the making of steel in Europe, there is a special report on the Marcus Ruthenburg process of electric smelting of magnetite, in which demonstrations were given at Lockport, N.Y.; likewise a series of important papers on the electro-metallurgy of steel and iron by Henri Harmet, Gustave Gui and Capt. Ernest Stassano, and of copper by M. Ch. Vattier. The whole volume, consisting of 233 pages, is enriched and illustrated by many handsome plates and drawings.

The commission sent from Canada consisted of Dr. Haanel, Superintendent of Mines for Canada; Mr. Brown of Peterboro, electrician; Mr. Eric Nystrom, M. E., Ottawa, draftsman, and Mr. Thomas Cote, Montreal, secretary. In England the services of Mr. F. W. Harbord,, consulting metallurgist and analytical chemist to the Indian Government and the Royal Engineering College, were engaged as metallurgist of the Commission. Electric smelting plants were then visited in the order named at the following places: Gysinge and Kortfors, Sweden; La Praz, France; Turin, Italy, and Livet, France.

Lower Cost of Steel.

The conclusions arrived at by the metallurgist, Mr. Harbord, as a result of his investigation into the metallurgy of the electric production of steel and the electric production of iron ore, are as follows:

(1) Steel equal in all respects to the best Sheffield crucible steel can be produced, either by the Kjellin, Heroult or Keller processes, at a cost considerably less than the cost of producing a high-class crucible steel.

(2) At present structural steel, to compete with Siemens or Bessemer steel, cannot be economically produced in the electric furnaces, and such furnaces can be used commercially for the production of only very high-class steel for special purposes.

(3) Speaking generally, the reactions in the electric smelting furnaces, as regards the reduction and combination of iron with silicon, sulphur, phosphorus and manganese, are similar to those taking place in the blast furnace. By altering the burden and regulating the temperature, by varying the electric current, any grade of iron, grey or white, can be obtained, and the change from one grade to another is effective more rapidly than in a blast furnace.

Pig Iron Possibilities.

(4) Grey pig iron, suitable in all respects for acid steel manufacture, either by Bessemer or Siemens processes, can be produced in the electric furnace.

(5) Grey pig iron, suitable for foundry purposes, can be readily produced.

(6) Pig iron, low in silicon and sulphur, suitable either for the basic Bessemer or the basic Siemens process, can be produced, provided that the ore mixture contains oxide of manganese, and that a basic slag is maintained by suitable additions of lime.

(7) It has been experimentally demonstrated, but from general considerations there is every reason to believe that pig iron low in silicon and sulphur can be produced, even in the absence of manganese oxide in the iron mixture, provided a fluid and basic slag be maintained.

(8) Pig iron can be produced on a commercial scale to compete with the blast furnace only when electric energy is very cheap and fuel very dear. On the basis taken in this report with electric energy at $10 per electrical horse-power year, and coke at $7 per ton, the cost of production is approximately the same as the cost of producing pig iron in a modern blast furnace.

Conditions of Success.

(9) Under ordinary conditions, where blast furnaces are an established industry, electric smelting cannot compete, but in special cases where ample water-power is available and blast furnace coke is not readily obtainable, electric smelting may be commercially successful.

It is impossible to define the exact conditions under which electric smelting can be successfully carried on. Each case must be considered independently after a most careful investigation into local conditions, and it is only when these are fully known that a definite opinion as to the commercial possibilities of any project can be given.

Dr. Haanel adds some observations, in which he points out the gratifying nature of the experiments made offhand, in furnaces not designed for the production of pig, as to the future of electric smelting.

Power on the Ottawa.

"I am credibly informed," he remarks, "that the water-power at Chats Falls, on the Ottawa, River, can be developed at a cost to produce an electrical horse-power year at the rate of $4.50. There are probably many water-powers favorably situated as regards good bodies of ore in the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec, which can be developed as cheaply. When such power is owned by the company intending to use it for electric smelting, and peat, coke or briquetted charcoal, made from mill refuse, which would probably not cost more than $4 per ton, is employed for reduction, the cost of two of the heaviest items entering into the cost of producing pig by the electric process is reduced to one-half."

The enamel of the teeth contains over 95 per cent. calcareous matter.

Big Bridge Nearing Completion.

The bridge over the east branch of the Winnipeg at Rat Portage will probably be completed, if the weather permits, by March 1. It is 400 feet long and has tow piers, besides the abutments, and is constructed of steel. It is close above the falls, which are expected to supply the power for the possession of which the Hudson Bay and Koewatin Companies and the town are disputing. The bridge is eight feet above the water level.

THE SCOT.

Oh, my ain folk—my ain Scots folk,
Hoo can the strangers ken
The mind o' ye, the heart o' ye,
The hame o' but an' ben?
The strivin' sair to spend nae mair
Than what ye honest earn,
The couthie life o' hame an' wife,
An mony a bonnie bairn.

Sirse! Wha can understand a folk
Wha hain to hae't to gie;
Wha merrily dance, wha reverent pray,
In battle hear the gree,
Whase laugh rings wi' Olympian mirth,
Their tears—sae het—sae few,
At hame scarce kenuin' ither's names,
Abroad a' brithers true?

At hame—weel kent—in every clime,
Each on his dream intent,
But deep in every heart the name
O' a dear laud left ahint.
Oh, my ain folk, let blaw the fule,
Hoo can the like e'er ken,
The mystery o' the mastery
That's aye wi' Scottish men?

"HIGHER HAYFORKISM"

WISDOM UNDER HUMOROUS GUISE BY CAPTAIN A. T. HUNTER.

Two Weary Jackasses Dragging a Wagon of Costs Heavier Than the Hay They Were Fighting About—A Reform of Our Judicial System Accomplished by a Bargain—Soliloquy of the Hayforked Public When It Gets Sense.

Capt. A. T. Hunter added considerably to his reputation for giving wisdom humorous expression by his recent address before the Canadian Club of Toronto, on the "Higher Hayforkism." There was a large attendance. The faces of his audience were continually in smiles, which deepened into explosive laughter with every second of third sentence. Capt. Hunter said:

"In a moment of weakness on Saturday morning I was surprised by the head of your formidable association into consenting to give a short talk to-day on some subject of interest to myself. The shortness of the time and my own lack of familiarity with some branches of the matter have prevented my putting together one of these consistent and systematic essays which are necessary before the public can decide whether the matter is of present importance.

His Solemn Word.

"I solemnly assure you that the disconnection pertains rather to the form than to the substance. I was never more sure of an idea and never more in doubt of my ability to express it. I also admit an apprehension that you will regard my talk as simply humorous, and despise it as mere academic truth.

"The subject of to-day, 'The Higher Pitchforkism,' is a branch of the great American science of applied altruism. One well known variety of it has for its object the legislating for others to improve their morals without inconvenience to ourselves. An early form of it was noted by Hudibras when he spoke of those who 'Compound for sins they are inclined to,

By damning those they had no mind to.'

Brute Stupidity.

"The persistence of this practice has led the Mayor of Chicago to term the work four-flushing—a word of very obscure derivation and probably having something to do with the science of hydraulics. Four-flushing is not my subject to-day, because it is not prevalent in Canada.

"When we make a law in Canada we have brute stupidity to try and enforce it. But there is some trace of it here when a whole solemn Parliament passes an anti-cigarette resolution and then laughs. A suggestion of it appeared also in some recent high-sounding and truculent clauses in certain temperance resolutions.

"Hudibrastic brotherliness, legislating for one's neighbors, is based on the desire to do unto others as we would have them believe they can do unto some one else.

Essence of Hayforkism.

"There is another branch of this science of applied altruism which we can conveniently term 'hayforkism.' You will remember that the essence of all those hayfork transactions of low repute was that the farmer was induced to sign a contract, not so much by the argument of the agent as by an artful implication that he could skin somebody else. If only he could nail his neighbor's hide to the barn door! And the neighbor was brought in through his desire to do a little taxidermy on his own account, and all the other neighbors to the third and fourth concession line. All an application of the principle which leads us to do unto others as we would have them believe they can do unto some one else.

"A low, vulgar application of it is the green-goods game, by which some Napoleon of finance parts with his substance for a package of paper appearances. That familiar object lesson of the beater beaten will disappear only with the long course of the ages. The authorities could stamp out this particular form of it by printing paper money in red ink on blue paper. The genuine hayforkism is on promises to be eternal.

The Higher Hayforkism.

"Anything that brings a man into contact with the police and juries is apt to be low and elementary, and just as there is a higher finance that gives protection to the Standard Oil magnate, so there is a higher hayforkism that gives protection to its votaries. The clergy as long as they stick to their profession generally suffer by it, and when they break out into the business worl they sometimes get even.

"The profession that is in the most unsettled state is that of the stock brokers. It is hovering on the verge between high and low hayforkism. Stock speculation is intrinsically hayforkism, but as the intended victims are impersonal, the shares imaginary, and the profits, where there are any, are not accompanied by letters of protest, the wickedness of the scheme is not brought home to us until we are wiped out.

"A losing bet becomes a mortal sin and we become repentant and regenerated.

"There are men who would like to do something to the brokers but they would not like to get into the witness box. In the meantime the brokers are entitled to write H. H. (higher hayforkism) after their names.

Plumbers Are Immune.

"The only profession entirely free from forkism is that of the plumbers. They neither give you mercy nor do they hold out hope. If you do not like their little ways you can go back to the farm. They own the city.

"Having dealt with the others, I come to my own profession, than which during all the ages there has not been a more indefensible or more formidable body of men. On every charter issued, every foot of land deeded, every contract made, the lawyer collected fees. Would it be possible to even suggest that a body of men so learned, so respected, so eloquent, should be suspected of the higher hayforkism.

"Let us look at the facts. We derive the great body of our law, the externals of the profession, from Old England. In England they have their barristers and solicitors, very distinct vessels of righteousness. In Upper Canada they are generally one inside the other. Dealing with them, there is what is known as the clients. The word is of immense antiquity. It was old when M. T. Cicero practiced law. And in Rome in his day, as in England and Canada until a very recent date, the fees of counsel were supposed to be voluntary. The result was that Cicero became very well to do.

"Another branch of the higher hayforkism was solicitors' costs, apparently a purely Britannic growth. They were encouraged by wise statesmen, with a view to preventing the accumulation of great estates.

"You will observe that I am approaching the subject gradually. I now approach that branch of the law of costs, which entitles the lawyer to be elected dean of the higher hayforkism. I refer to party and party costs.

Is Justice Free?

"There is no more beautiful doctrine than that justice is free and the courts are open to the poorest in the land. While the honest citizen, contemplating the beauty of this abstract principle, feels the need of an appeal to the courts to get a declaration of his rights, the higher hayforkism nudges his elbow and whispers in his ears. 'You have a good case. Your opponent is wrong and will have to pay your costs.' Thus it is that litigant who is in the right is led to put the stamp of his approval on the system. Gentlemen, that is all hayforkism.

"Just as every lord used to have his own mint and his own gallows every legislative body must have their own courts. We have the Privy Council in England, and the Supreme Court at Ottawa, where the decisions of English judges on French law are neatly balanced by the decisions of French judges on English laws. It is true there has been some legislative curtailment of our appeals, but there are still courts and appeals enough to satisfy the most foolish.

Volume of the Law.

"It is a physical and mechanical impossibility for a lawyer to know all the law. Lord Mansfield said, 'God forbid I should know all the law, but I know where to find the law.' That was over a century ago. Lord Mansfield died in 1793. The Ontario lawyer would have to keep track of English decisions, United States decisions and decisions in Australia, in addition to those in the Dominion. Is it strange, that, through lack of physical endurance, he sometimes fails to err in his opinion?

"In the midst of all this let us consider the result of party and party costs. Two people in a Canadian town have a difference they are unable to arrange. Each has a local lawyer, a man of gravity when in his own town, who prepares his case thoroughly. About two days before trial one of the litigants gets what is technically termed 'cold feet.' He breaks into his lawyer's office and imparts a piece of news to him. He has been told that if he is beaten he will have to pay the other fellow's costs. The lawyer names over two or three leading counsel, and he selects one of them. A few days later the other fellow hears about it and does likewise. The case comes to trial, and, as you shrewdly suspect, one side loses.

Weary Jackasses.

"If the original amount were all that was in dispute, the chances are it would stay there. But the man who loses will be blowed if he will give the other fellow the satisfaction of paying his costs. It goes right up to the Privy Council. With each court the counsel become heavier and higher-priced. At length the two weary jackasses of litigants are dragging a wagon of costs heavier than the hay they were fighting about.

"If some competent statistician, not a lawyer, were to make out a list of the cases that have gone to appeal, showing the amounts recovered as damages and the amounts recovered as costs, this ancient institution of party and party costs would not survive a month. There is no danger that the Legislature will disturb an institution of such respectability and long standing. Whenever there is any talk of reforming the judicial system, the sapient legislators will always take the opinion of the leading men at the bar. You might as well get the opinion of a distiller on prohibition.

Why Not a Bargain?

"Why should not a client make a definite bargain with his lawyer regarding costs? You can go to an architect and he will tell you his fee, and the only way he has of getting even with you is to build a house for $15,000 that you thought would cost $5,000. If you attempted to legislate in that direction you would hear of the dangers of champerty and maintenance, and while you were out in the library looking up the meaning of those words the lawyers in the House would defeat the motion.

"Some day, gentlemen, this hayforked public will get sense. It will take itself aside and talk to itself something like this: 'Marriages are made in heaven, but I pay the parson for splicing. I am entitled to perfect health, but I expect to pay my doctor. I am entitled to justice free, but I had better pay my own lawyer. I never did get any good thing for nothing, and, when I do, I don't expect to get it in a law office.'"

What Did He Mean?

He—I believe congratulations are in order. Pray accept mine.

She—What for?

He—I heard you were engaged.

She—You're late. I've been married for two months to Mr. Roller.

He—Oh, I beg pardon. How stupid! I'm so sorry.—Philadelphia Ledger.

His Argument.

The Fool—'Tis more credit to be the greatest fool in the kingdom than the wisest sage.

The Sage—'Tis a fool that thinks so.

The Fool—Yet it is true, for there are few wise men and many fools. And is not his the greatest credit who triumphs over the most competitors?—New York Press.

One Weakness.

"I am wholly without superstition."

"Go 'long! I saw you buying a bottle of hair restorer a few minutes ago."

Muddy.

Little drops of water,
Little grains of dust,
Make the careful housewife
Mad enough to bust.

When life's autumn comes, women, worn out by the burdens of motherhood, yet should find that second "change of life" does not banish these burdens forever. They have a change in form, in feature, in personal attractiveness. Such fears are largely warranted by the effects which this change produces in many women. But no woman need let these fears fret her.

Those who have used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription do not suffer from the change of life either in face, form or feelings as do other women. This fact is due to the intimate connection of the general health with the health of the organs peculiarly feminine. By preserving the health of these organs and relieving the system from the debilitating drains, aches and inflammations which sap its health, "Favorite Prescription" paves the way for this natural change to come in Nature's way, without the loss of capacity to please others or personal inability to enjoy life.

"Year 'Favorite Prescription' brought me safely through that dangerous period, called change of life," writes Mrs. Mary Kussmiller, of 286 E. Alabama St., Portland, Oregon. "This change made a very unpleasant disturbance through my entire system. I had hot and cold flashes, sick headaches, became excited, frustrated, nervous and irritable. My appetite was fitful and for days I was unable to eat a fair meal. My aunt recommended me to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it made a great change for the better. Within two weeks the unpleasant feelings had disappeared. I have a husband and eight children so have the care of a large family but was able to attend to my household duties without any difficulty and passed the period without any more trouble. I can recommend your 'Favorite Prescription' as a great blessing for women."

You may be willing that somebody else shall say that their baby is "just as good" as yours, but you don't want that baby acknowledged for yours. Let dealers say what they like about other medicines being "just as good" but don't let them substitute anything for "Favorite Prescription." It is absolutely unequaled.

IMPORTANCE OF THE FIRST STEP

Dyspeptics Should Begin Right by Using Smith's Triple Cure.

The first point in the treatment of dyspepsia is to remove the cause—to cure the catarrh which causes the dyspeptic condition. When your stomach is strained from overwork, when you eat too much and too often, you must provide relief by removing the burden. Chronic dyspepsia or indigestion in the majority of cases is due to catarrh of the stomach. Smith's Triple Cure cures dyspepsia because it cures catarrh wherever located. Its use is the first step toward a cure. Begin right by first removing the cause. Smith's Triple Cure will always do this because it takes off the strain; it puts the stomach and digestive organs in a healthy condition. It cleans the mucous membranes and keeps them healthy, so that catarrh cannot exist or find lodgment. The mucous membranes protect the interior of the body just as the skin protects the outside. As long as the mucous membranes are healthy and clean everything works right—digestion and assimilation are normal. Now, suppose the mucous membranes become congested, ulcerated, cankered and covered with foul secretions. You know the gastric glands and functions would soon become diseased. Catarrh and dyspepsia would soon rob your system of vigor and your nerves of strength. Now use Smith's Triple Cure and note the change. The mucous membranes soon lose their congested, angry and thickened appearance and the ulcers and canker heal. That's the first step toward curing dyspepsia and catarrh. Smith's Triple Cure will do this for a dyspeptic or catarrhal stomach, will remove the cause, make the digestion natural and healthy, enrich the blood and establish harmonious action of the digestive organs. All dealers sell Smith's Triple Cure, price 50 cents, each package a full Two weeks' treatment, containing four separate preparations, the greatest value for the money ever offered. If your druggist won't supply you, send us 25 two-cent stamps and we will send it postpaid and guarantee safe delivery. Address W. F. Smith Co., 185 St. James St., Montreal.

Sailing the great lakes during the season of navigation just closed has probably been the healthiest occupation in which men are engaged in earning a livelihood. The figures compiled up to the close of the season show that a smaller number of people who sailed the lakes were lost than for a quarter of a century past. The total number of dead was 49, compared with 66 in 1896, 88 in 1897, 95 in 1898, 100 in 1899, 110 in 1900, 122 in 1901, 140 in 1902, and 94 in 1903.

But two sailors lost their lives in what might be called shipwrecks. This is in striking contrast with the two preceding seasons, where a number of crews were lost by the sinking of their vessels. One of the two lived until he got ashore, and died from exhaustion in the woods.

The largest item of losses was men falling overboard, eighteen being credited to that cause. All but two of these occurred in harbors. Eleven sailors fell into the hold of ships and were killed, and nine were killed by machinery, either aboard ship or on docks. One was burned, one committed suicide and two dropped dead from heart disease. The largest number lost at one time was four, who were drowned by the capsizing of a small boat in the St. Clair River.

Lake Erie again leads with the largest number of casualties, nineteen losses taking place on that lake. Eleven sailors were lost on Lake Superior, nine on Lake Michigan, seven on the St. Clair and Detroit River, two on Lake Huron and one on Lake Ontario.

The small number of the season's dead is ascribed by vesselmen to two causes; one was that there were no great storms during the entire period of navigation. In fact, the season was remarkably free from dangerous gales; the other reason was the absence of fog to a remarkable degree, which tended to prevent disastrous collisions.

Not a passenger was lost or even reported as being hurt on any of the lakes, although millions were carried.

The Anglo-French Estate.

A long standing dispute between England and France over their interests on this continent has been amicably adjusted in the much talked of Anglo-French treaty. For more than 150 years these nations have been wrangling over their respective rights on what is known as the French shore, a strip of land on the Newfoundland coast. When France acquired her rights there in 1713 cod fishing was a profitable industry and continued to be for a century or more. But of late years the industry has declined. Both countries have been compelled to patrol the waters in order to prevent a conflict between fishermen. England now wishes to develop the hinterland and by the new treaty will have access to the ocean. Newfoundland will be the gainer, and France will gain elsewhere by the same treaty, notably in northern Africa, a substantial offset. A menace to peace is thus peacefully removed.

Australian Introspection.

The present breed of city dwelling Australians are mostly a lot of hideous worms, who crawl on an abject collective stomach to anything or everything foreign, and who have nothing but contempt for any local manufacture or product, no matter how meritorious it may be.—Sydney Bulletin.

Why the Golfer Married.

"In Scotland," said an Englishman, "golf is almost a disease. I heard not long ago of an elderly bachelor in Edinburgh who had played golf from his boyhood up. He had never courted a girl because, he said, golf hadn't allowed him the time.

"Hence everybody was surprised one day to hear that the crusty old gentleman was to be married. A caddie—the caddies are men in Scotland—went to him, wrung him by the hand and said sentimentally:

"'Man, I'm glad yer going to wed. I think ye must love her dearly. I know your life will be all bliss and sweetness now, and I envy ye the golden days o' romance in store.'

"'Pooh, pooh, Robert,' said the other. 'It's nothing of that sort. Macmann, the champion, took a wife last year, and it improved his game. I am just taking one in the hope that it will improve mine.'"

With a Reservation.

"I suppose," said the physician to the sconfer, "that you would throw physic to the dogs?"

"Not good dogs," the other returned gravely.

Baptism at Father's Burial.

The unique circumstance of a baptism service, immediately followed by a burial service, occurred the other day in the Winnipeg suburb of Norwood. A young man named Murton, of that place, died in St. Boniface Hospital on Sunday of typhoid fever. Just previous to his death he expressed a wish to see his newly-born child baptized. The man, however, died suddenly. His widow arose from her sick bed, and, taking her child to the undertaking parlors, it was baptized by Rev. T. J. Shannon, incumbent of St. Philip's, in the presence of the corpse, the coffin standing open. Immediately thereafter the clergyman read the burial service of the father, the interment then taking place.

Britain As a Lobster.

This country follows the procedure of the lobster, says The London Daily Mail. At intervals the lobster casts his shell, and until a new one grows he is absolutely helpless, and has to conceal himself in a hole. That is our case, only we have no sheltering hole. We get an equipment, usually in a hurry, and at abnormal cost. We take no note of what science is doing until some fine day we discover that our equipment is as worthless for defense as Nelson's wooden walls would be against a modern ironclad. Then we appoint a committee, which discovers a number of things previously known to all other nations; we provide ourselves with a new shell, lucky if nobody attacks us in the meantime, and then we go to sleep again.—The Times.

If you ever contracted any Blood or Private Disease, you are never safe until the virus or poison has been eradicated from the system. Don't be satisfied with a "patch up" by some family doctor. Our New Method is Guaranteed to Cure or No Pay. No Names Used without Written consent.

Cured When all Else Failed

"Could I live my early life over, this testimonial would not be necessary, though I was no more sinful than thousands of other young men. Early indiscretions, later excesses, exposure to contagious diseases all helped to break down my system. When I commenced to realize my condition I was almost frantic. Doctor after doctor treated me but only gave me relief—not a cure. Hot Springs helped me, but did not cure me. The symptoms always returned. Mercury and Potash drove the poison into my system instead of driving it out. I bless the day your New Method Treatment was recommended to me. I investigated who you were first, and finding you had over 25 years' experience in responsible financiality, I gave you my case under a guarantee. You cured me permanently, and in six years there has not been a sore, pain, ulcer or any other symptom of the blood disease."

GAME ENDED A TIE

Peterboro' and Port Perry Each Scored 5—5 Goals Last Night

The senior team went to Port Perry last night and played a tie game with the team of that place. The game was a good exhibition the play being fairly even throughout. The poor lighting bothered the locals somewhat in keeping account of the lifts. The visitors had to leave to catch the midnight train and the game was consequently unfinished. The score at half time was 1-1. Peterborough was leading by 5-3 at one time, but went to pieces for a few minutes and the visitors got three goals. The local line-up was:—

ONTARIO TANKARD PLAY AT LINDSAY

Two Peterborough Rinks were Defeated by Lindsay

Lindsay, Jan. 18.—In Ontario Tankard Group 5, which was played here to-day, all the clubs in the group defaulted except four— Peterborough, Port Hope, Bobcaygeon, Lindsay —and the drawing having been done beforehand, it left the winner of Peterborough-Lindsay to play the other clubs in succession. Both games were of the closest and most exciting kind. Peterborough always gives Lindsay a hard game, and to-day's game was close right up to the finish, and was only pulled out of the fire on the last few ends. After a rest of an hour Lindsay went on against Port Hope and again the game was not decided until the last end was played. Mr. Flavelle finished 6 up and Mr. McLennan was 6 down, with two ends to play. In the last two ends Lindsay scored four and won the game by this margin. With the exception of the lead Mr. Flavelle's rink is the rink he intends taking to Winnipeg next month. Full score:—

REPORTS SHOW GOOD PROGRESS

Annual Meeting of St. Paul's Church, Last Night

Plan to Pay off Debt of the Church—All Departments of Church Prosperous

Last night the annual meeting of St. Paul's congregation was held, when reports of the different branches of the church for the year 1904 were presented, and each of them showed the existence of an encouraging state of affairs in connection with the different organizations in affiliation with the church.

The attendance of the members of the congregation was large, evidencing a widespread interest in the different church activities, an interest which was more practically demonstrated by the different reports, all of which spoke of progress.

Rev. Dr. Torrance, the pastor, presided at the meeting, which was opened by music, and prayer by Rev. Mr. Ketchen. The choir of the church was present and rendered some musical selections.

After the opening exercises, Sheriff Hall took the chair, while Rev. Dr. Torrance read the report of the Session, which spoke of the encouragement in the review of the work of the past year, caused by the fact that a number of additions had been made to the membership of the church, twenty-five having come from the Sunday school. The October communion was the largest in the history of the church, and there has been an increase of fifty in the number of families under pastoral care.

The income from ordinary revenue and for missions was quite up to the standard of former years.

Messrs. J. C. Shook, W. J. Stacey, T. L. Anderson, Alex. Stewart and Jas. Ferguson, were inducted into the eldership of the church.

The report referred to the fact that Rev. J. A. Wilson had accepted a call to Hamilton, and stated that he had carried on his work here with great earnestness.

The pastor had assisted in carrying on special meetings in Stewart's settlement, which were successful.

The losses by death during the year were not very large, but among them were Mr. Geo. Stewart and Mrs Jas. A. Hall. The total loss by death was seven, and ten by certificate. The additions were sixty-four. The total membership of the church is now seven hundred and sixty-five.

The report deplored the fact that there were not as many scholars in the Intermediate Department of the Sunday school as there were twelve years ago, while the membership of the Christian Endeavour had also declined.

The report referred to the Mission, with which are now identified forty-eight families. There has been an increase in the attendance of the Sunday School during the year, and about forty persons took part in the two communion services held. Four hundred dollars have been promised towards the support of the finances, a gain of $270.00.

The report was adopted.

THE FINANCIAL STATEMENT.

The Treasurer's report showed that the receipts had been $6,074.57, of which $5,565.98 was from ordinary, and $457.59 special, collections, and $51.00 for the mission shed, which was half the cost.

The expenditure had been $6,035.65, and of this $3,730.63 was for salary account, the balance being used for the ordinary expenses for the maintenance of the church, etc. The amount due the bank on Dec. 31st, 1904, was $1068.30.

A special offering for repairs was taken, the amount realized being $871.50. Of this $573.46 was expended for the roof contract and $125 for an organ motor, leaving a balance of $173.04.

This report also was adopted.

BOARD OF MANAGERS.

Mr. H. S. Macdonald presented the report of the Board of Managers, which congratulated the congregation on the progress made during the past year, and looked forward to still further advance in the future. The contributions by envelope were the largest in the history of the church, being $436.50, over last year, the number of contributors being 412. The open collections show a decrease of $51.47.

The report stated that the terms of Messrs. Hill and Madill on the Hospital Board, and Messrs. Brown, Macdonald, Bennett and Wood as managers had expired, and these gentlemen were subsequently re-elected to their offices.

The report concluded with the statement that Dr. Torrance had suggested a plan to wipe out the church debt of $4,000, which was for each family to contribute a certain sum for three years towards the debt and that already a considerable amount had been promised.

On Mr. Macdonald's motion the report was adopted.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Mr. William Madill, superintendent, presented a lengthy report of the Sunday school during 1904, supplementing it by some remarks on the subject. The report showed that the average attendance at the school was 285, as compared with 289 in 1903. This increase is entirely due to the primary, and to the new department, the Kindergarten. This department was opened in September, and is under the charge of Miss Williamson. The cradle roll in connection with the Kindergarten class is 35. Among the changes in the staff of the school during the year, were the withdrawal of Miss Dennistoun, and Misses Jessie and Georgie Dennistoun, from the teaching staff. Mr. Garvin, who had charge of the singing, has left town, and Mr. A. J. Johnston, who for six years has been superintendent of the school, resigned, and in December Rev. J. A. Wilson left town.

Stanley Madill won the prize offered by Mr. W. Pringle for the pupil who would repeat at one sitting the whole of the Shorter Catechism. The Home Department numbers 169, but the report says it should be double. The missionary collections for the year amounted to $324, a slight advance over last year.

In the ordinary accounts, the receipts for last year were $302.77, and the expenditure $143.48. The receipts of the missionary account are $368.20.

Mr. Madill moved the adoption of the report, which was carried.

MISSION SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Mr. Jas. A. Hall, Superintendent, presented the report of the Mission Sunday School, which stated that the membership of the school at the end of Dec., 1904, was 87, an increase from 26, the number at the start, being almost entirely in the primary department. The attendance has been fairly regular, and the collections for the year amounted to $60.55, of which $4.45 was a special offering for the sanatorium at Gravenhurst. There has never been any difficulty in securing teachers, the staff at present numbering ten. The average attendance of scholars during the year was 56, the largest attendance on any Sunday being 73, which with the teachers and officers made a total of 87. The report was adopted.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Mr. T. A. S. Hay read the report of the Missionary Society for Mr. Robert Innis, secretary-treasurer. It showed that the amount contributed for Missions during 1904 was $1031.70, a slight increase over 1903. The number of monthly and annual contributors is 196, and the amount contributed $1015.15. Of the total amount $10 was especially donated to the Cordova Mission, leaving a balance of $1026.45 to be allocated to the following schemes of the church: Home Missions, Foreign Missions and French Evangelization.

It was later decided to donate $420 to Home Missions, $480 to Foreign Missions, and $126.45 to French Evangelization.

LADIES' AID.

The report of the Ladies- Aid Society showed that the receipts for the year had been $944.09, and the expenditure $320.23, leaving a cash balance of $313.86. The work of the society has been most successful. The social functions of the society have been well carried on, and a number of social evenings have been enjoyed. From the high tea and sale $274.31 was realized, and the annual collections for the charity funds amounted to $86.50. Reference was made to the loss the society had sustained by the death of Mrs. Jas. A. Hall.

The report was adopted.

YOUNG MEN'S GUILD.

Mr. A. P. McLean presented the report of the Young Men's Guild. The report gave the list of officers of the Guild, and stated that the membership numbered sixty. The members of the Guild still attend to the ushering and taking up the collection. On June 16th the second annual excursion to Stony Lake was held. During the year addresses were given by Messrs. J. A. Fife, H. McWilliams and J. Crane. The report was adopted.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOUR SOCIETY.

The report of the above Society was presented and adopted. The report after giving the list of officers, stated that the meetings of the Society had been held weekly during the year, with the exception of July and August. Three helpful union meetings have been held with St. Andrew's. The Society has undertaken the support of an Indian famine Child for a year. Sixteen dollars and ninety cents has been contributed to Home Missions, and the same amount to Foreign Missions. The receipts were $78.52, and the expenditures $75.55.

FAITHFUL WORKERS.

The Faithful Workers' Mission Band report stated that the membership numbered 37 with an average attendance of fourteen. The contributions for the North-west consisted of two quilts and a pair of blankets, valued at $6.50. The Band raised $15 during the year, entirely from monthly collections. The members have shown a deep interest in the work.

FRASER MISSION BAND.

The Fraser Mission Band reported that their contribution this year would be the same as last year, $100. Thirty members are on the roll, and the average attendance is twenty-two. Last spring the Band bought material and made clothing for a nine-year-old Indian girl, and sent this, with three quilts to the North-west. A concert was given in November. Miss Lough gave a talk on "Our Responsibility to Missions." The Thank-offering amounted to $24.80. The list of officers was given.

ST. PAUL'S MISSION SOCIETY.

Mr. J. W. Bennett presented the report of St. Paul's Mission Home Missionary Society, which showed that the membership numbered 57, with an average attendance at the meetings of 29. A bale of clothing valued at $50 had been sent to the Toulon Mission Hospital in the Yukon, of which Miss Bell, daughter of the late Rev. Alex. Bell, is head nurse.

After the reports had been presented and adopted, the choir rendered a selection, and the meeting closed with the benediction.

MORE HELP ASKED FOR COLD STORAGE

Practical Appreciation of Liberal Governmen'ts Assistance.

Request That the Cold Storage Aid be Extended Another Five Years.

The Ontario Fruit-Growers' Association will make representations to the Ontario Government, asking that the act passed five years ago giving a grant to cold storage establishments, be extended for another five years. It will expire in March next. The association is also asking that aid be extended to central shipping stations.

The vegetable growers are moving to form a Provincial organization similar to the Fruit Growers' Association. A general meeting of representatives from the various local societies will be held shortly.

A meeting of the Executive of the Fruit Growers' Association in the Walker House, Toronto, on Saturday endorsed the proposal made by Mr. Cowan of the Ontario Fairs Department, that as smaller number of fall fairs be held, and that the Government grant be apportioned according to the amount expended for agricultural purposes.

CHANDOS

The following is the council elect for the year 1905:—

The first four were elected. All new men but Mr. John Bullied. Mr. Bullied must have proved himself a faithful councillor, being elected on Monday for the eleventh year as councillor.

A NOVEL POWER SCHEME.

Project to Make the Chippewa River Run Backward.

The latest scheme for power development along the Niagara frontier is decidedly unique. It has for its foundation the turning of the waters of the Chippewa River, making the present source the mouth and the outlet Lake Ontario, instead of the Niagara River as nature fixed things. The scheme embodies nothing more or less than the compelling of a river to run backward. The Chippewa River is a stream of considerable size and importance. The proposition is to have it empty into Lake Ontario, a short distance from Jordan Station, in Lincoln County. At the present time it runs the other way and empties into the Niagara River.

Between the present headwaters of the Chippewa River, but which under the contemplated transformation would be its mouth, and the headwaters of the stream which would carry their combined volume to Lake Ontario, is a stretch of several miles. This would have to be excavated, which those pushing the project hold would not be a task either difficult or expensive. They say, in fact, that their whole undertaking will be a comparatively easy one from an engineering standpoint.

With the Chippewa River turned around advantage can be taken for power purposes of the three hundred foot drop between the level of the Niagara River above Niagara Falls and the level of Lake Ontario. The available opportunities above the falls for harnessing the mighty forces of the combined lakes are practically exhausted, while at the same time only a small fraction of the estimated horsepower of the cataract has been taken up. The question of to-day is, How to provide further opportunities for harnessing the power? The present scheme with reference to the Chippewa River is one answer, and the projectors claim that no other suggestion is as feasible and so promising of results.

TROUBLE AHEAD FOR RUSSIA

Four Hundred Thousand Men Plan Demonstration.

All Hope of Immediate Strike Settlement is Abandoned—The Present Situation.

Special to the Examiner

St. Petersburg Jan. 20. — All prospects of an immediate settlement of the Great strike among the shipping workers and other operatives in St. Petersburg and surrounding Districts have practically vanished. It is learned the Ministers of the Interior and Finance have finally declined to receive a deputation of the Operatives to discuss the situation with them. As a result an enormous demonstration before the Palace in which four hundred thousand working men intend to participate has been planned for to-day.

A RESOLUTION OF SYMPATHY.

Passed by the Directors of Central Milling Co.

At a meeting of the Directors of the Central Milling Company, Limited, held on Tuesday, January 17, a resolution was passed, asking the Secretary-Treasurer, Mr. M. W. Matchett, to send letters of sympathy on behalf of the Company, to Mr. J. W. Hall and Mr. Peter Dawson, Directors, both of whom have had very sad bereavements since the Board had previously met. It will be remembered that Mr. Hall's son was drowned while skating on Rice Lake, and Mrs Dawson's death occurred a few days ago. The members of the Board join with the community in general in sincere sympathy to the bereaved families.

MRS. SPILSBURY'S NARROW ESCAPE.

Cutter Upset and the Horse Ran Away Yesterday.

Mrs. Geo. Spilsbury, of North Monaghan, and her mother, Mrs. Martin, had a very narrow escape from serious injury yesterday afternoon. They were driving up Water street near the G.T.R. tracks when the cutter upset and the occupants were thrown out and dragged some distance, being bruised up considerable. The cutter was smashed, but the horse escaped unhurt.

The snow has been thrown up on either side of the street railway track and has not been removed, causing a dangerous condition of things, as it makes rigs very liable to upset since the centre of the street is so much lower than the sides. The town by its agreement with the railway should remove this snow from the streets.

VAGRANTS REMOVED TO CENTRAL PRISON

There is a large population of vagrants in the Central at the present time. The number confined in the prison last week was 409.

T. F. MATTHEWS,
Treasurer.

The report of the church clerk was read by the pastor.

Mr. E. B. Edwards, Superintendant of the Sunday School, presented a report of that department of the church work. An increase in membership was shown. The report was published in full in a recent issue in connection with the annual meeting of the Sunday School.

The report of the Baptist Young People's Union was read by the secretary. It showed that good work was being done in this department. This report was also published recently.

Miss M. Nicholls, the vice-president of the Mission Circle, presented the report of the society. The total membership of the Circle was 76, the number of contributors to Home Missions 56, and to Foreign Missions, 42. During the year two of the officers left town, Mrs. Rev. Bastow, vice-president, and Miss Roberts, president. Mrs. Hunter had been elected president, and Miss Nicholls had been appointed vice-president. The statement of moneys raised throughout the year for Mission Work, was as follows:

For Foreign Missions ...	$155 90
For Home Missions...	71 68
For North-west Indians ...	11 20
Monthly collections...	9 18
	$247 96

The report of the Mission Band was read by Mr. Max Yelland. The total membership was 125. Meetings had been held monthly with the exception of August. The average attendance was 67; the largest attendance at any meeting was 97. On this occasion Miss Nicholls, a returned missionary from India was present and gave an interesting address.

India fund...	$ 9 35
Support Bible woman, India ...	25 00
Home Missions...	43 32
Foreign Missions...	13 92
Scool for Northwest Indians ...	6 70
	$98 29

Colonel E. B. Edwards read a report of the Special Mission, but the report was withdrawn, as it was the opinion of many members present that until the church debt had been entirely wiped out it was not wise to contribute so much to missions.

The meeting adjourned until Wednesday evening, when officers will be elected and other business done.

PARTICULARS IN THE LIBEL CASE

Local Men Give Evidence in Connection with the Stone-Jaffary Suit

Canadian Binder Twine and Cordage Industry—Mr. Stone Wins

A special despatch to the Toronto News from London gives some further particulars on the famous Stone-Jeffary case. It says in part:—

No case tried at a local assize court in many years has treated more interest among the general population of this district than the Stone-Jaffray libel suit, which ended in a verdict of $3,500 for the plaintiff as damages for having stated that Mr. Stone endeavored to force a hotel scheme upon the people, but The Galt Reporter had no been guilty of libel in commenting upon the flotation of the binder twine factory by the Western Cordage Company.

The court was held before Mr. Justice Teetzel. Mr. E. B. Stone, a well-known local barrister, formerly of Peterborough, represented his fellow-shareholders as chief plaintiff in a suit brought by the Western Cordage Company, of this city, against The Galt Daily Reporter. The plaintiffs claimed $10,000 damages for an alleged libelous article, which warned farmers generally against purchasing the stock of the company, and in fact from having any dealings whatever with the concern. The plaintiffs claimed that the instigators of the article were a rival firm of cordage manufacturers, who were alleged to have paid The Reporter a substantial sum for the publication of the statements objected to. The plaintiff was represented by Mr. W. R. Waddell, K. C., and Mr. Alex. Stuart, K.C.; Mr. George C. Gibbons, K.C., represented the defendants.

but The Galt Reporter had not been

The case was first laid before the jury by Mr. Riddell, who stated that The Reporter had sold its columns for about four hundred dollars to those who wished to ruin the projects of the plaintiffs. Over 2,000 copies of the paper had been sent into London, and subsequently a free distribution among the farmers had taken place. He said that the purchase of the columns had been effected by Mr. R. M. Jaffray, whom he designated as a notorious company director. The article, which was headed, "Throwing Out the Net," was read in court. The names of those who had obtained the charter, all prominent men, were referred to as "decoys," who had been roped in by "a smooth promoter."

Two local men were called as witnesses, Mr. E. B. Fowler, of the Canadian Cordage Company, of Peterborough, was called. He said that his company had started in 1902, and had paid a dividend of 5 per cent. He did not think that the margin of profit had been over a half a cent to the pound. He admitted to Mr. Riddell that while only one dividend had been paid an earning of eight per cent. on the capital had been made. He could not see how certain statements, made in the prospectus of his company, could be true, but he believed they were honestly made.

Thomas Connor, foreman of the Peterborough company, stated that the twine industry had not been a success. He believed it would take nearly $300,000 to do what the plaintiff's company proposed to do.

ON THE ESTIMATES.

Business of the House Suffers By Delay in Bringing Down Report of the Auditor-General.

Ottawa, Jan. 10.—After one day spent in consideration of the estimates the House finds itself confronted with the possibility that further progress in voting supply may be indefinitely postponed because the report of the Auditor-General is not yet available, and from present indications will not be for some time. The law requires that the report shall be laid on the table within fourteen days of the assembling of Parliament, but as there are 300 pages of manuscript, which are not yet in the printers' hands, the probability is that it will be some weeks before the volume is issued from the Printing Bureau.

Canada and Mexico.

Before the House went into Committee of Supply, Mr. Foster made enquiries regarding the steamship service between Canada and Mexico. Sir William Mulock replied that tenders from steamship companies were not within the appropriations voted by Canada and Mexico, $50,000 apiece. The service contemplated was to include two lines, one on the Atlantic and one on the Pacific. New efforts are being made to organize the service, and Mexico is ready to vote another $50,000 if Canada will do the same to start a monthly service on the Atlantic. The question of a Pacific service will be allowed to stand for a time the Government of Mexico believing that more reasonable terms can be secured.

Canada Atlantic Purchase.

John Haggart asked if the Government had any part in the purchase of the Canada Atlantic Railway by the Grand Trunk. He wanted to know also if there was any arrangement whereby the Intercolonial Railway would have running rights over the Canada Atlantic. Sir Wilfrid Laurier replied that transaction was between the Grand Trunk and the Canada Atlantic and the Government had no part in it.

In Committee of Supply.

The House in Committee of Supply took up the estimates for civil government, and a large number of items were voted.

Auditor-General's Report.

Before adjournment Mr. Foster inquired when the Auditor-General's report would be brought down, and pointed out that the committee could not proceed farther with the estimates until the members had the report before them.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier replied that on inquiry he had learned there were some three hundred pages of manuscript which had not yet reached the hands of the King's Printers, therefore he could hold out no hopes of an early publication of the report.

Mr. Foster was inclined to attribute the blame for the delay to the departments, but Sir Wilfrid replied it apparently rested, not with the departments, but with the Auditor-General.

The Senate.

Ottawa, Jan. 20.—Senator Wood yesterday moved for a return of reports of surveyors employed on the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway between Quebec and Moncton. Senator Wood said that Toronto newspapers had printed reports of surveys, giving particulars as to grades.

Senator Scott replied that the Government had no information whatever, and any reports were purely exploratory. The Government's assertion ought to be taken in place of that given by Opposition newspapers. The Senate adjourned to reconvene on Feb. 13.

Acclamation in First Bye-Election.

Quebec, Jan. 20.—Mr. Arthur Lachance, advocate, was nominated at noon in the Government interest for the House of Commons to fill the vacancy in Quebec Centre caused by the recent appointment of the old member, Mr. Albert Malouin, to the judiciary. Mr. Lachance's nomination papers were signed by over twelve hundred electors, and as no Opposition was offered he was declared elected by acclamation.

A Bye-Election in Labelle.

Ottawa, Jan. 20.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier, having decided to sit for Quebec East in the House of Commons has resigned the seat for Labelle, to which he was also elected. A writ has been issued for a new election in Labelle, and nomination has been set for January 27, with voting on February 3.

OFFICALS IN THE YUKON.

Acting Governor Wood Making a Wholesale Reduction.

Seattle, Jan. 20.—A despatch from Dawson says that a wholesale reduction in the Government force is being made in the Yukon territory through acting Governor Major Wood. The preventive officer's department, mining inspector's department and territorial secretary's office have been abolished and have been consolidated under other offices. The police will do all recording and inspecting in outlying districts and will receive applications and forward them to Dawson. Thirty employes are being dismissed, among them all the mining inspectors and recorders.

Fifteen Children Drown.

Vienna, Jan. 20.—Fifteen children were drowned at Zlafbings, in Northern Hungary, yesterday, while watching their fathers cut up and cart away ice from the river. They were standing in a group upon a large piece of ice which had been cut round, when it broke, and they all disappeared. The men made the most frantic efforts at rescue, but without success.

London Journals Believe Russian Revolution Impends.

TO KILL THE RUSSIAN CZAR

Emperor Had Narrow Escape—Grape Shot Fired Instead of Blank Cartridge in a Salute—Bullets Entered Room Where His Majesty Was Standing—Startling Interruption of Picturesque Ceremony.

London, Jan. 20.—The London papers to-day, and their St. Petersburg correspondents take the gravest view of the internal conditions in Russia.

The majority express the belief that yesterday's incident was a premeditated attempt on the life of the Emperor Nicholas and maintains that the strike is much more a political than an industrial movement.

In short, they consider that every sign makes it apparent that the Empire is on the verge of a revolution.

It is alleged that the St. Petersburg manufacturers have decided to reject the strikers demands, and that the Orthodox priest, Father Gopon, the picturesque figure who has constituted himself the leader of the strike movement, and possesses the men's complete sympathy, threatens to march on Sunday at the head of 100,000 strikers to the Winter Palace, with a petition for political rights, and that he will refuse to depart until the document is presented to the Emperor.

TO KILL THE CZAR.

Came From Battery.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 20.—The festival of the Epiphany, the blessing of the waters, had just concluded at one o'clock yesterday afternoon when simultaneously with the salute fired from the St. Peter and St. Paul fortress either a rain of bullets or a grape shell swept over the little chapel built out over the frozen Neva in front of the Winter Palace, where Emperor Nicholas and every member of the Romanoff family were participating in the service. The missiles went high, entering windows of the splendid row of salons along the waterfront from which the Empress, the ladies of the court and the members of the diplomatic corps and all the high dignitaries of the State, army and navy were witnessing the glittering spectacle below. Fortunately the bullets passed over the heads of all present, striking the opposite wall and clattering down on the parquetted floor of the white salon.

Czar's Splendid Nerve.

Although the actual ceremony was ended the Emperor remained and accompanied the Metropolitan and clergy as they circled the pavilion around the chapel to bless the gorgeous standards of the famous guard regiments assembled there. Then the procession moved back to the palace, and the original program was carried out. The Emperor displayed splendid nerve. He did not show a trace of excitement. His Majesty received the diplomats in his usual cordial, gentle manner, reviewed the guard regiments on the square behind the palace and subsequently had luncheon served in the State dining-room.

Czar Had An Escape.

Additional particulars show that the Emperor had a miraculous escape. There is no longer any doubt that the missiles came from a gun of the Bourse Battery, which was loaded with grape. Some of the bullets actually struck the little open chapel in which His Majesty was standing, cut the staff of one of the standards and fairly riddled the basement windows of the palace, killing a policeman outright, and wounding an officer and three marines. Had the gun been aimed a little lower, the charge of grape might have wiped out the whole Romanoff dynasty.

The Associated Press obtained the following statement from the police at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon:

Came From Battery.

"With the second or third shot from the Bourse Battery on Basil Island a very large number of grape shot struck the chapel of the palace. Two entered the interior where the Emperor was standing. The bullets had a very low velocity. The two which entered the chapel fell harmlessly to the floor. Several policemen about the chapel were struck. With the exception of one man named Romanoff, who was severely wounded, they all escaped with contusions. An inquiry is being conducted by the Grand Duke, Sergius Michaelovitch, inspector general of artillery. It has not yet been established whether it was an accident or was due to premeditation."

The Official Account.

The official account is: "During the ceremony of the blessing of the waters of the Neva yesterday, in the presence of the Emperor, as the usual salute was being fired, an accident happened. A charge of grape, instead of a saluting charge, was fired from a gun belonging to one of the batteries stationed near the Bourse. Some bullets struck the facade of the Winter Palace near the quay gardens, breaking four windows. A policeman belonging to the St. Petersburg force was wounded. According to the information to hand at present, no other accident occurred. Inquiry continues."

It is now stated in official circles that the grape was fired from one of the guns of the 17th Battery of the 1st Horse Artillery of the Guard, the most aristocratic corps in the Russian army. It seems that at gun practice on Tuesday a loaded shell was inadvertently left in the gun.

Officers and Men Confined.

The officers and men of the battery have not been arrested, but are confined to barracks, and by the military regulations are so closely under restraint that it is impossible for the culprit or culprits to escape until the responsibility is determined.

Two investigations are proceeding independently, and both are guarded with the utmost secrecy.

May Become General Strike.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 20.—The strike situation is causing much uneasiness. There are indications of its spreading toward a general sympathetic strike.

Determined efforts are being made to call out all the factory workers in St. Petersburg, numbering several hundreds of thousands, including the employes of the Russian Westinghouse Company.

Severe Cold in the Chest

"My fourteen-year-old boy had a very severe cold in the chest last winter and I really thought he was going to die. He coughed nearly all the time and sometimes would spit up blood. I can positively say that he was completely cured by two bottles of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, and he has not been troubled since."—Mrs. J. Provost, Renfrew, Ont.

TO POSPONE SOO CASES.

Motion to Delay Trial of the Corruption Charges.

Toronto, Jan. 20.—The trial of the fifteen electors who were reported for corrupt practices in the Soo election was fixed weeks ago for Tuesday next, 24th inst., which happens to be the day before the election. Yesterday Mr. Geo. H. Watson, K. C., made application to Chancellor Boyd, one of the trial judges, to have the trial postponed until after the election. In doing so he urged that a great many witnesses had been subpoenaed, and they would be deprived of the privilege of voting if the trial began on the 24th, as they could not return home in time.

Chancellor Boyd said he recognized that the people should have a right to vote. He advised Mr. Watson and Mr. DuVernet to try to come to an agreement, and, failing that, to renew the application before himself and Mr. Justice Teetzel, the other trial judge, on the latter's return from London on Saturday.

A TRIPLE COLLISION.

During a Fog Third Train Crashes Into Wreck of First Two.

London, Jan. 20.—An alarming collision in which three trains were involved, including two Scotch expresses, occurred on the Midland Railway, near Barnsley, early yesterday morning. Four passengers and two railwaymen were killed and a score more injured, of which seven were seriously hurt. The accident occurred in a fog, the third train crashing into the wreckage resulting from the first collision. The cars of one of the Scotch expresses burst into flames and were soon ablaze from end to end. There were not many passengers on the trains or the casualties must have been far heavier, as the impact was so great that the cars were telescoped and splintered into matchwood. Among the injured is Robert Brough, the artist.

FOR MANSLAUGHTER.

Four Accused Christian Scientists to Remain in Custody.

Toronto, Jan. 20.—The four Christian Scientists charged with manslaughter must remain in custody until Monday, when the case will be heard. Yesterday morning they appeared in the police court and were remanded, bail being refused by the magistrate. In the afternoon Judge Anglin refused an application on the ground that he had no power to grant bail as the prisoners were not actually committed for trial. Deputy Attorney-General Cartwright expressed his willingness to agree to a release at any time. The magistrate, according to the judge, has the power to grant bail.

Japan to Submit Proof to England, Germany and United States That Russians and Not Japanese Are Offenders Against Chinese Neutrality—British Steamer Captured and Another Condemned.

Paris, Jan. 20.—The powers have received a communication from the American Government, which, if approved, will exert a far reaching effect on preventing the territorial break-up of China when peace is eventually made between Russia and Japan. This note treats of Chinese territory after the war is concluded.

This step is based upon information reaching the United States Government that some of the powers are apprehensive that the eventual consideration of peace between Russia and Japan will lead to claims on portions of Chinese territory.

The French, British and Italian Governments have approved the American communication.

JAPS WILL SUBMIT PROOF.

Two Russian Cossacks Are in Chinese Territory and Receiving Aid.

Tokio, Jan. 20.—The Japanese Government will submit proof to England, Germany and the United States that the Russian Cossack detail under command of General Mistchenko has since last Thursday not only used Chinese territory, but has had the assistance of Chinese soldiers in the vicinity of Sanchia west of Newchwang. On Tuesday night Japanese cavalry, which had been pursuing the Russian forces, found them west of Laohosho, and several who were captured not only wore Chinese coats and caps, but were entirely clothed in Chinese costumes, including pig tails. Four Chinese in uniforms were among the prisoners made.

Base Raiders Number 2,400.

Major Uchide, telegraphing through General Fushimi, announces that the Russian raiders, numbering at least 2,400, have gone into Chinese territory west of the old town of Newchwang, and that Chinese regular troops received the refugees. He further telegraphed that Chinese regulars accompanied the Russian raiders in their recent expedition, planned to cut the line of Japanese communication. General Fushimi announces that the Cossacks cannot return to their base. More than 800 dead and 200 wounded prisoners have been accounted for. The Japanese losses are inconsiderable.

Housing Prisoners of War.

The Government is now prepared to house 35,000 Port Arthur and other Russian prisoners of war; 5,000 at Tankakhaya, 20,000 at Hama Tora, near Osaka, and the remainder scattered in groups of from 350 to 4,000 at different places.

British Steamer Condemned.

Tokio, Jan. 20.—The British steamer Rosely, which was captured by the Japanese cruiser Tokiwa in the Sea of Japan, on Jan. 11, when bound for Vladivostock with a cargo of coal, has been condemned by the prize court at Sasebo.

Captured British Steamer.

The naval scouts captured the British steamer Bawtry in Tsu Straits at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning. The vessel, which is of 1,542 tons, was carrying provisions and shipbuilding materials from Kiaochou to Vladivostock. She was taken to Sasebo. The capture of another steamer is reported, but no details have yet been received.

Stoessel in China.

Shanghai, Jan. 20.—The French steamer Australian arrived here yesterday from Nagasaki with General and Mme. Stoessel. Generals Gorbatowsky and Reiss, Admirals Gregorievitch and Lochinsky and 560 other Russians from Port Arthur. About half of the Russians will continue the voyage on the Australian, while the other half will wait here for another steamer.

School Dispute Settled.

Toronto, Jan. 20.—The Downeyville School case came before Chief Justice Meredith at Osgoode Hall yesterday and the motion to continue the injunction granted by the county judge was struck off. Mr. DuVernet stated that he had received a telegram to the effect that the matter was being arranged, the separate school board returning the deed to the public school board. County Crown Attorney Drayton, who had the separate school board side of the case, did not appear. He had received a telegram to say that the matter had been settled.

Killed By a Freight Train.

Ingersoll, Jan. 20.—Albert Roy Boxall, son of John Boxall, a farmer, residing between Putnam and Patton's siding, was found dead on the G.T.R., just east of the siding by the night operator, Mr. McGuire, Thursday night. It is supposed that the young man was struck by an eastbound freight train some time between 8 and 8.30 in the evening. He was a member of the section gang.

May Lose a Leg.

London, Jan. 20.—While assisting in unloading a large balance wheel at the old Grand Trunk round house yesterday morning, Wm. Johnson, who comes from Toronto, a Grand Trunk employe, met with an accident by which he will probably lose his right leg. Johnson was unloading the wheel, which became unbalanced and fell across his leg, badly breaking it.

Gen Villoen Horsewhipped.

Chicago, Jan. 20.—An actual clash between Boer and Briton happened last evening, when a young Englishwoman, Miss May Belfort, publicly horsewhipped Gen. Ben. J. Villoen at the entrance of the Coliseum on Wabash avenue. Gen. Villoen was her former lover, and she claims he jilted her in the most brutal fashion.

PREMIER ROSS' TRIUMPHAL TOUR

Glencoe's Great Welcome to Ontario's First Statesmen.

WEST MIDDLESEX'S FAITH

Liberals Have An Abiding Trust in the Man Who Leads the Liberal Party in the Province of Ontario—Passionate Resentment of the Abuse Showered Upon His Devoted Head.

Glencoe, Jan. 20.—Premier Ross closed his triumphal tour of Western Ontario with a meeting here yesterday afternoon that has never been paralleled in the town's long record of political gatherings. The Liberals of Glencoe and vicinity have an abiding faith in the man who leads the Liberal party in the Province of Ontario. Through all the long years he has represented the riding, West Middlesex, in which they vote, that faith has never been shaken. They have followed his career since he first entered the public service with never-failing interest, rejoicing in the victories he has won therein, because they regard them as proof positive of the wisdom they have displayed in aiding to keep him in that service. The vindictive personal abuse of the Premier, which is the major portion of the "platform" the Conservative leaders are presenting to the people, has aroused a feeling of passionate resentment among Liberals here and throughout the riding. That feeling was in part amply expressed yesterday, and it will be vented in a more practical way on January 28. The Premier drove to Glencoe, where he arrived shortly before 1 o'clock, from Strathroy, having rested there Thursday night after scoring a splendid personal victory at the nomination at Mount Brydges in the afternoon. He was heartily welcomed by a number of old friends, and to the pleasure produced by their kindly greetings was added that produced by the receipt of the following telegram, addressed to Premier Ross, Glencoe, and dated Winnipeg, January 17: "Forty Glencoe old boys, now of Winnipeg, wish you every success. (Signed) Archie McRae."

Scenes of Enthusiasm.

The meeting was held in the Town Hall, and long before the proceedings commenced every seat was occupied. Many even sat on the floor of the platform and on the window sills throughout the meeting, and scores stood patiently in the aisles and doorways. The scene when the Premier, who was accompanied by Mr. W. S. Calvert, M. P., entered the hall, was a repetition, on a smaller scale of course, of that which was enacted when Mr. Ross entered Massey Hall during the great Liberal Convention. With one accord the audience rose, and as the Premier walked slowly to the platform they cheered and applauded incessantly. As he sat down the cheering, which had ceased for a second or two, was renewed with increasing vim, and Mr. Ross was obliged to rise and several times bow his acknowledgments. A similar scene followed the close of his address. His speech, which lasted one hour and fifteen minutes, was a decidedly happy effort. Not once did he show a single sign of physical weariness, in spite of the heavy campaigning he has done this week, and his voice rang clear and true to the last word. The issues of the day were set forth with a logical conciseness that was keenly appreciated, as were also the humorous sallies with which the Premier aptly illustrated many points of his address. His characterization of the men who established and controlled the Conservative purity fund as a "joint stock election jobbing company, limited," was hugely enjoyed. Mr. Calvert delivered a short, aggressive address, in which he advanced some reasons for the letters against the Government written by Rev. Dr. Hossack and Mr. S. H. Blake.

Receipts of live stock at the city market were large, 111 carloads, composed of 1240 cattle, 1150 sheep and lambs, 2500 hogs and 90 calves.

There were few shipping cattle offered and few wanted, as shipping space is reported as being scarce for several days to come. There was not a single straight load of exporters offered, and not a single sale reported by any of the commission firms, with the exception of export bulls, which sold at $3 to $3.75 per cwt.

Choice picked lots of butchers' cattle, 1050 to 1200 lbs. each, equal to the best exporters in quality, sold at $4.25 to $4.50 per cwt, but there were few of this kind, not more than eight or nine, on the market. Loads of good heifers and steers, 900 to 1100 lbs. each, sold at $4 to $4.12½ per cwt., and there were few loads sold at these prices. The bulk of the butchers' cattle sold from $3.25 to $3.75 per cwt., and these could be classed as fair to good. Medium butchers' sold at $3 to $3.25, and canners at $1.50 to $2 per cwt.

About 30 milch cows and springers, principally of common to medium quality, sold from $30 to $50 each, but better quality cows would bring more money.

Good to choice quality veal calves were in excellent demand at firm prices. Common calves sold at $3.50 to $4.50 per cwt., while good to choice veals sold from $5 to $6 per cwt.

The demand for sheep and lambs continues to be good, all offerings being readily bought at firmer quotations. Export ewes sold at $4.00 to $4.75; bucks at $3.50 to $3.75; lambs at $5.00 to $6.25 per cwt.

The run of hogs was large, with prices firm at $5.10 for selects and $4.85 for lights and fats. These prices were paid on Tuesday last in many instances.

NORTH SEA ENQUIRY.

British Makes Charges and Russia Makes Answer in the Dogger Bank Outrage By Russian War Vessels.

Paris, Jan. 20.—The international commission to investigate the North Sea incident held its first meeting yesterday.

Hugh O'Bierne of the British Embassy, agent of Great Britain, read the charges, which consist of seventeen specifications minutely setting forth the attack on the Hull fishing fleet. He declared that no Japanese torpedo boats and no Japanese what ever were among the fishing fleet, and that no Japanese warships were anywhere in the North Sea.

Baron Taube read the Russian reply, which declared that two strange boats approached the Russian squadron, which the searchlights disclosed to be torpedo boats. Thereupon fire was opened, the torpedo boats moving off and later disappearing. The Russian statement further asserted that Admiral Rojestvensky was absolutely obliged to act as he did in order to destroy the torpedo boats which had attacked his squadron.

The principal charges of the British statement follow:

"On the night in question there were not any warships whatever in the neighborhood of the fishing fleet, except those of the Russian navy.

"No warships had been seen by the fishing boats since a long time previous.

"None of the boats making up the fishing fleet carried any kind of material of war.

"No Japanese warship of any kind whatever was at that moment in the North Sea.

"There were not any Japanese upon the fishing boats.

"The Russian fire continued after their searchlights clearly showed the the vessels were peaceful fishing boats.

"None of the Russian ships gave any assistance.

"The fire killed two men, wounded six, sank one boat and damaged five others."

The statement concludes that the attack was without any provocation upon the Pacific fishing boats pursuing their usual and rightful avocation.

Something New In----- # SARDINES.

The best sardines in the world have been caught recently off the shores of Norway. These have immediately been pronounced by French and other European countries as Par Excellence. The best brand is put up by Stavanger Preserving Co., Norway, under the name of "Crossed Fish" brand. The fish are very small and very tender; they have been slightly smoked before being preserved, which not only adds to their delicacy of flavour, but prevents the indigestive "rising" after eating, so customary with ordinary sardines. The genuine sardine is far above the common herrings sold as sardines, as all connoisseurs well know. To be sure you are getting the best order

CONSERVATIVES WELCOME CONSERVATIVE LEADER

Mr. J. P. Whitney Addressed a Large Audience in the Market Hall Last Night—Conservative Rally in the Interests of Mr. T. E. Bradburn—Mr. R. M. Dennistoun Delivers an Address in Which He Sandpapers the Only Plank in the Conservative Platform—Mr. Whitney Follows in the Same Strain—The Famous Coalition Proposals Explained by the Conservative Leader---Says They Did Not Come From Mr. Ross.

The Conservative managers in West Peterborough may not have much faith in the capabilities and resources of Ontario, and they and Mr. Whitney may not have much use for the broad and progressive policy which distinguishes the Liberal Government, but they will hereafter have faith in one form of enterprise—advertising—for thanks to liberal use of printer's ink the meeting in the Market Hall was a very large one, and from a party point of view a great success. While a majority of the audience was Conservative, from a party point of view the better elements were well represented by—ladies and Liberals—both doubtless moved by a common feeling, curiosity — the former because that is their nature and the latter because they were anxious to see whether Mr. Whitney and his followers would fulfil the Scripture—"There is nothing new under the sun." And they did so—for there was nothing new presented by any speaker—only the stale, flat and unprofitable dusting of threadbare political topics. Mr. Dennistoun's speech, though it was lightened with several good stories well told, was largely a "Quarterly' instalment of the somewhat word-worn topic of political corruption, while Mr. Whitneys ponderous philippics were in a similar vein.

The meeting failed to be rounded into completeness by the absence of Mr. Bradburn, the candidate, who was attending a meeting in the country and who just reached the hall as the audience was dispersing —about 10.30.

The meeting was held in the Market Hall which was said to be seated for 1,600, and was well filled. While the hour for beginning approached, Butcher's Orchestra furnished excellent music. The hall was furnished with a platform, under a canopy and on the walls were placed the following mottoes:—"32 Years in the Saddle. Is the Nag Worth New Harness?" "Ross Has Been Tried and Will be Sentenced on the 25th." "Don't Let Ross Deliver the Goods." "We Will Smash the Ross Machine." It's Time for a Change," "Whitney and Good Government," "God Save the King."

Upon the platform were the following gentlemen: Messrs. William Langford, Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, Lt.-Colonel Miller, Jas. Kendry, T. H. G. Jennne, H. Winch, J. Carnegie, W. Croft, George Fitzgerald, Harry Fitzgerald, Lakefield; G. Fitzgerald, Lakefield; Jos. Paul, Lakefield; John Cooper, Lakefield; Ald. G. J. Tovey, Rev. Dr. Crothers, Robert Fair, R. M. Dennistoun, R. H. Bradburn, Ald. Adams, Ald. Batten, Harry Phelan, Adam Dawson, Jas. Stevenson, W. H. Hill, J. D. Edger, Dr. Bouchers, H. Morgan, B. F. Ackerman, W. H. Moore, W. S. Robinson.

The Proceedings Begin.

At 8.25 Mr. Jas. Kendry, M. P., who occupied the chair, opened the meeting, and announced that we were on eve of an election, and he hoped to see Mr. Bradburn placed at the head of the poll. In returning Mr. Bradburn they would send to the Legislature one of the most honest men in the country. (Applause.) The Liberal Government had been in power too long, and they should be turned out. Mr. Ross has governed this province by a minority. Mr. Mr. Kendry prophesied that Mr. Whitney would be returned by a large majority. (Applause.)

MR. R. M. DENNISTOUN

He introduced Mr. R. M. Dennistoun, who was received with great cordiality. He said it was an inspiring sight to see such a great audience. He said he was at the late Liberal meeting, and had seen about half an acre of empty seats, but this was different. Mr. Dennistoun went on to refer to the fact of an election being brought on prematurely. Sir Oliver Mowat had governed the country by a majority.

At this point in Mr. Dennistoun's speech he was interrupted by the arrival of Mr. Whitney, whose entrance was greeted with tumultuous applause, and when he reached the platform, at the call of the chairman, he was greeted with three hearty cheers. Before he had a chance to take his seat, pretty little Pauline Hayes, daughter of Mr. L. M. Hayes, was lifted to the platform and presented Mr. Whitney with a beautiful bouquet of flowers, which the "coming (deliberately) Premier" acknowledged with the orthodox osculatory accompaniment.

Order being resored, Mr. Dennistoun continued his speech. He said Sir Oliver was the last Liberal Premier who had made any attempt to govern the Province. Since his resignation of the office the succeeding Liberal Governments had been actuated by one motive only, namely a desire to retain office. Of late the struggle has become desperate. At the last Provincial Election which took place a little more than two years ago, the Conservative party, although in a minority of three in the House, secured a majority of seven thousand votes throughout the Province. The old Liberal slogan of representation by population has been laid upon the shelf with the other rusty weapons of the great Liberal leaders, and the Liberal party of to-day are content to hold the reins of office whether they command the confidence of the country or not. The ordinary voter may well enquire why it was we are engaged in a Provincial election when but half the parliamentary term has expired. Why is it that Mr. Ross has appealed to the country at this time? The answer is a very simple one. Since the dissolution of the House, and the holding of the Dominion elections, Mr. Ross finds himself without sufficient followers to control the House, and he is now making his last desperate throw in the political game.

In the spring of 1902 the Ross Government appealed to the country, and were returned with a bare majority of three. What had that Government done since then to increase public confidence? The new Legislature opened with the Gamey charges, and the investigation which followed. Certainly no one would claim that the Government was strengthened in its position by that episode. Next we had the election petitions, and the world saw the spectacle of a Legislature called together at the very time set for the trial of the protests for the purpose of preventing the exposure which would have followed. Then came the prorogation of the House for the same reason. Could they imagine a more undignified performance than the desperate efforts made by the counsel for the Reform party to delay the opening of the North Grey case until the arrival of the telegram announcing the dissolution. Politicians expected that this would occur and were not disappointed. Since Mr. Ross last appealed to the country we have had in addition the cruise of the "Minnie M," the ballot box scandal and the retirement of Messrs. Stratton, Gibson and Davis from the Cabinet. Surely in view of this record it could not be said that the Ross Government had gained any strength since the last Provincial elections.

Political Corruption

Mr. Dennistoun proceeded to take up the charges of corruption which have been made against the Ross Government. He stated that it was the policy of the Liberals to make counter charges against the Conservative party, with the hope that the ordinary voter might be distracted by the din of opposing factions, each denouncing the other for the same sins, and might thereby be led to the conclusion that one party is equally responsible with the other, and in that way stampede the voters along the usual party lines. "It becomes necessary," said Mr. Dennistoun, "for us to prove our case as we do in a court of law, by producing authorities of recognised fairness and independence." He then referred to the January number of the Queen's Quarterly, a magazine published by the authorities of Queen's University, Kingston. The speaker said that as an old Queen's man, he knew that all the predilections of that university were towards the Liberal side. It was the Scotch Presbyterian college which contained the sons of the best element of the Liberal party throughout Canada, and has never failed until now to express its preference for the leaders of the Liberal party. The Ross Government, however, has proved more than even Queen's University could tolerate. Prof. Cappon, in a scathing article, had placed the responsibility for the present corruptionition where it belonged. He reviews the West Elgin case, where the operations of the machine first became evident, and the deputy returning officers, Duncan Bole and Martin Cahill officiated under assumed names at the booths where ballots were stolen and the voters personated. Then came a Commission of County Judges appointed by the Government to investigate. The lawyers charged with the prosecution were prominent Liberals, and when the production of the ballots was ordered, it was found that they had been burned in the Parliament buildings. Bole and Cahill left the country, and no one was punished in connection with the case. Then came the West Huron election which was managed by the agents of the Provincial machine. In this election 125 more ballots were returned than had been sent out. At Goderich 22 of the ballots counted for the Liberal candidate were bogus. No one was punished in connection with the affair. At the Brockville bye-election, there was a performance under the same conditions. The accused officers were arrested, were allowed to give bail, as usual, and as usual left the country.

North Waterloo

Then there was the case of North Waterloo, which was reviewed by Prof. Cappon, in which, after the certainty of fraud and spoiled ballots had been proved, the Crown Attorney who prosecuted said he would not ask for any conviction. Then there was the incomparable effrontery of the Sault Ste. Marie election, when the tug "Minnie M." was chartered to carry American renegades to impersonate Canadian voters on behalf of the Liberal candidate. Attorney General Gibson was informed of the project by a letter read on the public platform, and was requested to take steps to prevent this being carried out. His reply was that he was not a policeman! He was only a Cabinet Minister whose word was all powerful with every Liberal functionary, and every official in the District; he was only Attorney General with the whole legal machinery of the Province at his command! The Minnie M. sailed with her pluggers on board, and helped win a much needed victory for the Government. It read like a page from the history of a rotten South American Republic. Then, says the Queen's Quarterly there was the attempt to unseat Mr. Sutherland in South Oxford by bribing the witnesses to give evidence, and we have the spectacle of the briber Jackson, the agent for the Liberal party, being appointed Commissioner for the Dominion at Leeds, England, and Sir Richard Cartwright's defence of the appointment in the House, upon the ground that "Election business was not conducted on the principles of a boarding shcool for ladies!" Still more recently, points out this able review, we have had the scandals of West Hastings and Frontenac, with its extraordinary developments in relation to the trick ballot boxes, specially manufactured for the manipulation of ballot papers. Here, too, it has been impossible to get hold of the criminals. One fled at the first rumour of exposure; the other was allowed to give bail, and disappeared in the usual way. The Queen's Quarterly sums up the result by stating —:

"Of all the men reported by the judges in connection with these electioneering frauds, only a few guilty of bribery have been fined. The more serious offenders have managed to elude justice, and," says Prof. Cappon, "one thing at least is clear. If we are to have any decent government in Canada, we must hold the party in power responsible for the fact that political crimes of the kind we have noticed, remain practically uninvestigated and unpunished."

Mr. Dennistoun then briefly referred to Mr. Stratton's Donno speech, which had been published in the Examiner and circulated as campaign literature. He exposed the weakness of the argument, and stated that it was a poor defence for a Cabinet Minister to be driven to make on a public platform, that "he and his Government had been honest, that they had not stolen the money of the people, that they had collected one hundred and twenty-three millions of dollars, and had not misappropriated any of it." "Did you ever," said the speaker, "hear of a town or county councillor asking election upon the ground that he did not steal the taxes which had been collected? Surely any person who appealed for support on that ground would be immediately dismissed from office at the next election. It is expected that the men who represent the province would be above that kind of thing, and it is degrading to the intelligence of the community that they should think it necessary to defend themselves from a charge which had never been made. Mr. Stratton claimed the credit for the Ross Government of having increased the farmers capital by $:81,000,000, and even went so far as to claim the credit for the prizes won at the World's Fair by Mr. Beith's horses and Ontario poultry. "We thought," the speaker humourously remarked, "that the credit for these achievements was due to our own Town Council, and it was for this reason that Mr. Henry Best had been elected Mayor by acclamation."

Mr. Graham in the Opera House

Mr. Dennistoun then referred to the speech made by the Hon. Mr. Graham in the Opera House at Peterborough, in which he made a remarkable defence of the conduct of Attorney General Gibson in declining to interfere with the sailing of the "Minnie M." "Mr. Gibson had no more authority to stop the Minnie M.," said Mr. Graham, "than he had to come to Peterborough and stop the water wheels on the River Otonabee." "What a ridiculous position is this?" said Mr. Dennistoun, "that the Attorney General is powerless when crimes are being committed almost before his eyes, after due notice has been given him that they will be attempted. Did anyone believe that the Hon. Mr. Gibson could not have stopped the Minnie M. by the simple expedient of sending a telegram to those who were engaged in the nefarious work, prohibiting and forbidding the doing of such deeds in the name of the Liberal party, and warning the lawbreakers that they would not receive countenance from the Ross Government if they persisted? But no such telegram was sent by Mr. Gibson. How ridiculous it was for the Hon. Mr. Graham to state that the reason why these lawbreakers had never been punished, was that Mr. Duvernet had taken the case out of his hands as private prosecutor, and had thrust the Attorney-General of the province on one side. The Attorney-General of the province takes precedence at the bar over every lawyer, be he in a silk gown or a stuff gown; the Attorney-General had the right to intervene in any case, civil or criminal, as every other lawyer knows; and for the Attorney general to solemnly state that he was thrust aside, and not permitted to do his duty, by a private member of the bar, was too ridiculous a statement to be heard with seriousness.

Mr. Dennistoun's Humour

Mr. Dennistoun here told the story of the American traveller, who, driving through Ireland in a jaunting car, was told by the driver, that there were forty thousand men in Ireland, armed to the teeth, with guns and pistols, and ready at any moment to rise and free Ireland. "Why don't they do it?" asked the American. "Begorra, the police won't let them!" was the reply. Surely this was the position of the Attorney-General, who is ready for all kinds of malefactors, armed with all the terrors of the law, but he is frightened into masterly inactivity by the appearance of Mr. Duvernet acting for the private prosecutor. Mr. Graham, with dramatic effect, had asked if it were fair to hold the Government and Mr. Ross responsible for the evil deeds done by a few members of the Liberal party, which they all acknowledged and deplored, and he asked was it fair for a Forester to call upon the High Chief Ranger to resign his office because some member of the Court had been guilty of a crime? The answer, said Mr. Dennistoun, is this: "If the crime consisted in stuffing the ballot boxes for the High Chief Ranger, most assuredly the High Chief Ranger should resign as soon as he finds out the facts. Further, said Mr. Graham, would it be fair if a member of a congregation came to a minister, and said, 'Some of the people in this congregation who support you are bad people, and you should resign, and the board of management should resign, too. Would that be fair?" asked Mr. Graham. "The answer," said Mr. Dennistoun, "was this: If the minister and the board of management had sent out people of the type of Cap. Sullivan as missionaries on behalf of that Church, most assuredly, the Minister should be asked for his resignation, and a new Board of Managers should be elected at the next quarterly meeting. Lastly, said Mr. Graham, would it be fair to hold the head of the family responsible for a wrong doing committed by some other member of that family? And the answer to that, said the speaker, is this. If the head of the family lives at home upon the proceeds of the stolen goods brought from time to time to his house by the other members of the family, he most certainly is responsible for the thefts which they commit, and should be condemned as the chief offender. In all these particulars the Ross Government is responsible for the wrong which has been done on its behalf, and for the benefits which it has reaped from the conduct of the wrongdoers. The attempt made by Mr. Graham to whitewash the Reform party and to blacken the Conservative party fell far short of the mark, as everyone who heard his speech or read an account of it well knew. The preposterous claim made by Mr. Graham that Ontario Conservatives were responsible for frauds which he imagined to have been committed in Quebec and Winnipeg, was referred to, and the utter inability of the Reform speakers to show any trace or sign of organised wrong doing in the Conservative party was strongly commented on.

Reference to the Premier

It was interesting Mr. Dennistoun said, to note the pathetic claims put forward by the Hon. G. W. Ross for a renewal of his lease of power. He did not think that there is anything in the Conservative argument that it is time for a change, that a Government in power 32 years had outlived its usefulness. He has asked in a plaintive way what we would think of a man who says to his wife, "My dear, we have lived together for 32 years and it is now time for a change." "What," thunders Mr. Ross, "would we think of a man who made use of such an argument as that for getting rid of a faithful spouse?" There is, however, one fallacy in the little allegory told by Mr. Ross. He imagined that he is married to the Province of Ontario, that the Province of Ontario took him for better or worse. As a matter of fact the Province of Ontario only undertook to keep Mr. Ross so long as he behaved himself. His position may be more justly compared to that of the hired man. Anyone knows that a hired man at the end of 32 years is apt to imagine that he owns the farm and all the chattels thereon and is very apt to hear the intimation made that "it is time for a change." Mr. Ross, imagining that he is married to the Province of Ontario, had considered it the duty of the Province to support him, to do his washing, mending, scrubbing, blacking and all the menial offices which can be heaped upon the most indulgent and patient of wives. He had, moreover, thought that it was the duty of the Province of Ontario when he went off on, what might be called, a political jamboree to forgive him and the boys for the little excesses of which they were guilty and to take him back once more as a penitent husband who promises to do better for the future. The Liberal supporters are loud in their denunciation of all who attach the slightest shade of blame to the Premier. Still it cannot be denied that it is he, and he alone, who called the Legislature together at the very time set for the trial of the election petitions, and that it was the Hon. G. W. Ross, and he alone, who prorogued the Legislature for the same reason. And was it he, the Hon. G. W. Ross, who disfranchised the riding of North Renfrew for eighteen months, because he dared not trust the life of his Government to a bye-election at that time?

Attitude on Temperance

And what has been his record as a temperance man? We all remember the meeting in the Horticultural Gardens in Toronto, when Sir Oliver Mowat made his famous declaration to the temperance people of Ontario, that if he had power to pass a prohibitory law, a prohibitory law would be passed; and if he had not power to pass a prohibitory law, he would pass the most stringent law that his Government had power to introduce. And the Hon. G. W. Ross speaking after him, said that that was the only kind of a government that he would ever belong to. When it was decided that the province of Ontario had power to abolish the bar, did Mr. Ross keep the promise which he had made to the temperance people? No so. Instead of introducing the legislation which he had promised, he informed the temperance people that he felt that his followers would not follow and that he, as leader, could not lead to the passage of any such measure as suggested. And as if it were not a sufficient ground for resigning when he was unable to perform the promises solemnly made, and upon which he obtained office, he deliberately placed in his Cabinet Messrs. McKay and Graham, who are responsible for the defeat of the temperance resolutions in the recent Liberal convention. Could hollow hypocrisy go to greater lengths than this? And yet he lifted up his hands in holy horror, and proclaimed from every platform that "Righteousness exalted the nation." If the Hon. G. W. Ross gave this quotation out of the Bible and not out of the fourth reader, where most of his poetry comes from, he would have noticed that it was a dangerous quotation for him to use, because the verse goes on to say, "but sin is a reproach to any people. If he had quoted the whole verse it might have been regarded as applying to pointedly to his own Government.

The Whitney Policy

It has been said on every Liberal platform that Mr. Whitney has no policy, but as Mr. Whitney was himself to speak this evening, it would be for him to answer that charge. It was sufficient to point out that one plank of the Conservative, which had been there for many years, was alone sufficient upon which to found a claim for victory. The Ross ballot upon the back of which is placed a number which identifies the voter and enables his vote to be traced after the ballot has been deposited in the box, is contrary to the spirit of our constitution. The Conservative party believes that a man should deposit his ballot so as to satisfy his own conscience, and that alone, and that when the ballot has once been deposited in the box it should be impossible for any politician to ascertain how any person has voted, for the giving of such information is one of the foundation stones —perhaps the corner stone—upon which the whole system of corrupt methods has grown up in Ontario politics. There was no doubt that it has taken a long time to arouse the people of Ontario with regard to this question of the ballot. While they looked, with almost unconcern, upon acts of bribery which concern two persons only, the briber and his co-partner, public conscience has been callous so long as an offence was confined to the bargain and sale of a vote, but when the people realized that the ballots of virtuous men, who scorned a bribe, have been diverted from the candidate for whom they were cast, have been switched by deputy returning officers, have been plugged by scoundrels from the United States, and have been burned by officials in the parliament buildings, then public conscience is aroused and the people say we must hold some person responsible for this. There is no person who can be held responsible for this, it is a matter which concerns the Government alone. For 32 years the Liberal Government has been the sole custodians of the ballot box. No Conservative has been in charge of a Provincial ballot box for 32 years, and when we say that the crimes mentioned were done with impunity, or at most a fine of a few dollars is imposed in the hope of silencing popular clamour, we are able to appeal to the generous public with all the vehemence of which we are capable that the time for permitting such iniquities is passed and gone and that the Ross Government should give place to the Whitney Government on the 25th January.

MR. J. P. WHITNEY

The Conservative Candidate

With regard to the claims of the different candidates Mr. Dennistoun pointed out that Mr. Bradburn is a man who has served the town for many years as Alderman. He has served his township as both Councillor and Reeve. He is a successful business man, a man of mature years and good judgment, and in every way fitted to represent the constituency in the Legislature. As for Mr. McWilliams, he is a youth full of ambition and perhaps a little too ready to serve his country in a high office, and it does not seem to make much difference to him what office it is. He is a young man of ability and no doubt he will improve with age. Certainly it does not seem to be a good thing that a member of the legislature should be under the control of one of the chief officials of the Province, as Mr. McWilliams certainly would be; as long as Mr. McWilliams, Senior, occupies his present position, Mr. McWilliams, Junior, should be content with private life. It is an improper thing that a member of the Legislature should be indebted to Government officials for his seat, or that Government officials should have anything but the public interest to serve in carrying out the administrative details of their offices. How can a public official properly perform his duty to the state when his chief aim and object in performing this public duty is to make his son solid in a political office?

MR. J. P. WHITNEY

Mr. Whitney was received with cheers on rising to address the audience, and at the outset paid a tribute to the address of Mr. Dennistoun. He was pleased to see the great interest taken in the public affairs of the country by the ladies, as evidenced by their attendance at the meetings which he had addressed during the last seven years, and characterized it as a hopeful sign.

He was glad to receive an invitation to come to Peterborough, and glad to accept it, and was pleased to find that the people here were of the same opinion as those from Rat Portage to Coteau du Lac, that the time had come when the great public scandals in Ontario must cease.

He stated that he spoke from knowledge when he said that the triumph which was bound to come in the election, would not be one of party, and it were better so. He was very happy to tell them what they already knew, that the policy, of the Conservative party had been endorsed by a popular majority of 7,000 of the province, at the last general provincial elections, and for this reason he considered it unnecessary to again refer to it on this occasion.

At the Parting of the Ways.

The province is now, he said, at the parting of the ways, and they must decide whether they would go on as they had done in the past, or make a change. The disregard of public morality led to a public moral deterioration, to where it has been led by that distinguished gentleman, Mr. Ross.

The assurance of the Premier to compare himself to the husband in the story, which he told, was—well, considerably Ross-like, said Mr. Whitney.

Mr. Ross, to distract attention from his own doings, had said that he would carry the war into Africa, and show up the record of his opponents, and the speaker said he hoped God would help his opponents. But, Mr. Whitney said, Mr. Ross' opponents really had no record, because they had not been in power, and all, or nearly all, the public officials, were appointees of the Liberal Government.

After 1898, a number of men were charged with bribery, which was a very mild offence in the estimation of the people to-day, in this Christian country. No crime will be punished if it is committed to keep a Government in power.

Mr. Whitney's Efforts.

The speaker, in 1888, had succeeded in having three men prosecuted for bribery, and they were fined $200 each, half of which went to the provincial treasury in Toronto to help swell that mythical quantity which the last generation had heard so much about — the Ontario surplus. He had been given no credit, however, for this, and no further prosecutions were made until 1898; and he believed that there was not another country on earth where such a condition would be permitted.

Mr. Whitney remarked that it had been said that he used strong language. He admitted that he did, but he did it because the circumstances called for it, and there was no one language which was strong enough to express one's feelings on such a condition of affairs.

Mr. Whitney referred to the West Elgin election and said that the disappearance of the ballot box removed the evidence of the damnation of the Ross Government.

Discredit on a Party.

The speaker said that Mr. Ross liked to drag the Liberal party into the matter and to bring discredit to one of the great political parties, in this Province. Mr. Ross liked to speak of his record, and he would tell them that he had a good record for the punishment of politcal criminals, and that the Conservative record was a bad one. He would ask Mr. Ross who it was that told Sir Hector Langevin he must go out of public life? Who was it that sent Robert McGreevy to jail, and who was it that told Bykert he must resign, but Sir John A. Macdonald? That was a record the like of which Mr. Ross could not show. No human being had been prosecuted or punished for any of the attacks against the sanctity of the ballot boxes during the past three years.

The Globe asked the people to "remember Ross," and he also asked them to "remember Ross," and not to forget to "remember Ross." When they remembered the Jackson case and the disgraceful acts at Sault Ste. Marie, they found out what Mr. Ross meant when he said he would F-I-G-H-T.

Cap. Sullivan's Opinion.

Turning to the Hon. G. W. Ross' recent denial of any acquaintance with Cap. Sullivan, the speaker would only say that our distinguished naval authority, Cap. Sullivan, on reading his leader's repudiation of him, dropped his paper in astonishment, and ejaculated "Isn't the old man a cocker!" (Laughter.) The speaker thought it strange [illegible]

STUDENTS GAVE GOOD CONCERT

Victoria College Glee and Mandolin Clubs in Opera House Last Evening

Sang and Played to Delight of Large Audience.—Under Auspices of Charlotte St. Choir.

The Victoria University Glee, Mandolin and Guitar Clubs gave a most delightful concert in the Opera House last evening under the auspices of the choir of the Charlotte street Methodist Church. There was a large and very appreciative audience present which gave frequent manifestations of their pleasure by the hearty applause which greeted the students. The programme was a lengthy one but every number was given an excellent rendition and the large audience was thoroughly pleased with the music.

The Glee Club, of 24 members, under the direction of Mr. W. J. McNally, are splendid singers and their numbers while of a popular nature were sung with an artistic finish and delicacy of shading and expression, which is most creditable. The volume of tone was splendid while the parts were well balanced, the blending excellent and the attack firm and well marked.

The students sing with a spirit of heartiness and fervour which was very effective. The glees sung were "Toronto," by Godfrey; "Doan Ye Cry Ma Honey," by Lansing, a plantation lullaby with humming accompaniment. This number was warmly received and as an encore a humourous number "By the Light of the Moon," was given. Molloy's "Davy Jones" was splendidly sung as was Bullard's ever popular "Stein Song." Buck's "In Absence" was one of the finest selections of the evening, while Adams' rollicking chorus, "The Midshipmite" was very enjoyable. By request the Club sang "Nursery Rhymes" which contained a few local hits. The closing number "Mamie" sung in company with the Mandolin Club was very popular and was heartily encored and the College Song "Victoria" was sung, followed by the College "yell" which could almost be heard at the back of the hall. The Glee Club is an excellent organization and will always be well received in Peterborough.

The Mandolin-Guitar Clubs gave a number of well-executed selections which were very popular with the audience. The music was very sweet, and the numbers of a "catchy" nature. The selections were "Darkies' Dream," by Lansing, and Schottische, "Jolly Grasshoppers," by Chase. The Mandolin Quartette also gave two numbers, "66 step," by Chase, and "Darkies' Dream," by Lansing, and were recalled on both occasions.

The Mandolin Club is under the direction of Mr. R. M. Chase, B.A., who is a thorough musician, and his banjo solos were received with great enthusiasm. He appeared twice on the programme and was on both occasions encored, being three times recalled after his second number. He is an excellent player and more than delighted the audience.

The College Octette was heard in three numbers and sang in a most effective manner. The harmony was pure and the expression pleasing. Their numbers were "Nellie Gray," a negro air, with solo by Mr. M. C. Lane, a baritone with a rich voice; a medley of popular songs, and by special request, Luders' "Heidelburg" Stein Song from the "Prince of Pilsen," was sung, with solo by Mr. A. Rankin.

Mr. C. W. Bishop, B.A., baritone, was heard in two splendid numbers. He has a well developed voice of rich tone, and sang with clear enunciation and pleasing expression. He was a suffering from a severe cold last evening, but nevertheless sang most creditably. His numbers were Bevan's "Kings of the Road," and "The Brave Sentinel." In response to an encore he sang, "Sing Me to Sleep."

The hall was decorated with the college colours, red and gold.

The whole affair was a splendid success in every way and considering the number of counter-attractions last evening, the society under whose auspices the concert was held, have every reason to feel gratified with the result.

WORKING BOY'S AT THE Y.M.C.A.

An Enjoyable Evening was Spent by Them Last Night

Not the least of the many things that was doing on Tuesday evening last at the Y.M.C.A. was the "good night's jolly" given to the Junior Working Boys.

From 7.30 until 8.30 Mr. Williamson entertained the boys in a most interesting and profitable way with lantern views, after which they sat down to the table and in no small way gratified the sensitive part of the boy. The table was simply but prettily decorated. After the numerous piles of good things had disappeared with wonderous dispatch, Mr. Galley, who is chairman of the "Boys' Work" Department, was called upon to reply to the toast of "The Association," to which he very ably responded, emphasizing the privileges that the boys had as members of this Association, and the difference between the attention that was paid to the boy now and when he was a member of the Boys' Department.

"Hockey" was responded to by Fred Hall, a hockey enthusiast.

The "Gymnasium" was responded to by John Moss, who spoke of the pleasure and benefits derived from that part of the association.

Art Hall, with no mean flow of eloquence, spoke of the doings in the locker room. Leslie Fife most gallantly responded to the toast of the girls.

After a number of short addresses by others present the evening was brought to a close by singing "For we are jolly good fellows."

EXAMINER LOCKETS ARE HANDSOME

Those to be Presented to the City League Winners Have Arrived.

The players on the different teams in the City Hockey League should play with renewed vigour from now on, and it may well be that some of the inspiration should come from the fact that the gold lockets, with which the winners will be presented have arrived and are now on view at Schneider's jewellery store.

The lockets are of the new square style and are of very handsome design. It will be remembered that early in the season Hon. J. R. Stratton offered to present to each player on the winning team a gold locket to be known as the "Examiner Locket." There is no doubt that this offer had a considerable influence in inducing such a large number of teams to enter the league.

The engraving on one side of the lockets is as follows: — "Examiner locket presented by Hon. J. R. Stratton, City Hockey League, 1904," the reverse side being reserved for the name of the person to whom it is presented.

THE ROSS GOVERNMENT OPENING UP NEW ONTARIO.

RAILWAY CONSTRUCTION IN ONTARIO.

The Ross Government has always been in favor of the development of New Ontario by railway construction. The Opposition has tried in every way to thwart this feature of the Government policy, but happily without avail. Almost every proposition for railway aid and construction brought before the Legislature by the Ross Government has met with either open opposition on the part of Mr. Whitney and his followers, or practical opposition by placing obstacles in the way.

There can be no true development or permanent settlement of our new districts without corresponding railway construction, and this progressive policy on the part of the Government has been amply justified.

The Algoma Central Railway.

The Algoma Central Railway has been constructed for a distance of 87 miles through a rich timber and mining country, with intervening agricultural areas, while 107 miles have been graded. Now that the Sault industries have been re-established on a permanent basis, and the various works are in operation, the Algoma Central Railway will in all probability be pushed to completion to a point on the main line of the C.P.R. as originally planned.

Already settlement has accompanied construction of the railway as far as it has been completed, and the pioneer conditions of settlement are being fulfilled at many points along the line.

When completed, this line is bound to be a most important factor in opening up the undoubtedly rich resources of that part of the Algoma District through which it passes.

When the Ross Government brought down the original Railway Bill of 1900, which included aid to the Algoma Central Line, Mr. Whitney violently opposed the measure as a whole. The Leader of the Opposition used his choicest expletives in denouncing the Bill, calling the proposition to aid the railway in question "The most phenomenal steal, the greatest attempt at public robbery, the most heinous public crime that was ever attempted by men in authority in the Dominion of Canada, and I do not think I would be exaggerating to say, on the Continent of North America." This extraordinary statement was greeted with prolonged Opposition cheers.

The Algoma Central Railway is vitally essential to the great enterprises at the Sault, and the aid given to the former would be warranted on that basis alone, but if it will assist in the development of the unsettled lands of the Crown of that district, then the Government will be doubly justified.

The Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway.

The Ross Government again showed its progressiveness in undertaking the construction of the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway. The Bill passed through the Legislature provided for the construction, equipment and operation of the railway as a Government enterprise. A Commission of five able men, now composed of Robert Jaffray, chairman, and Messrs. Edward Gurney of Toronto, B. W. Folger of Kingston, F. E. Leonard of London, and M. J. O'Brien of Renfrew, was appointed, who were charged with the construction and operation of the railway.

In the relatively short time of two years, the line has been completed for a distance of 137 miles to a point 25 miles north of New Liskeard, and a regular train service is now in operation, the value of which to the settlers in that thriving part of New Ontario can hardly be overestimated.

The Railway Commission has done its work well. The line has been constructed according to modern standards and ranks among railway experts as a first class road in its road bed and structural equipment and the Commission will in a few weeks take over the line from the contractors.

By the Act constituting the Temiskaming Commission, which by the way was well described as one of the most important and progressive Bills ever introduced in the Legislature of Ontario, the Commission is empowered to make reciprocal running arrangements with other companies.

The cost of the railway is being borne by the setting apart of adjacent Crown Lands in tiers of townships, not to exceed twenty thousand acres per mile, on which the debentures shall be a charge.

The railway has been constructed and equipped with Canadian material as far as possible. No person has been employed in contravention of the Alien Labor Act, and the current rate of wages in the district for similar work has been paid to those employed in its construction.

Another new and commendable feature has been introduced by the Ross Government in connection with this road, namely the appointment of an additional Commission charged with the duty of setting aside town sites. This Commission is composed of Mr. Aubrey White, Assistant Commissioner of Crown Lands, chairman; Mr. Thomas W. Gibson, Director of Mines; Mr. Thomas Southworth, Director of Colonization; A. W. Campbell, Assistant Commissioner of Public Works, and Mr. W. B. Russell, Chief Engineer in charge of the construction of the T. & N. O. R. R.

The value and importance of this move will be readily appreciated when comparison is made with the methods heretofore adopted on our Canadian railways, whereby private railway corporations have disregarded public interests in the selection and treatment of their town sites.

The Ontario and Rainy River Railway.

now a part of the Canadian Northern system, was another of the important lines encouraged and aided by the Province. In 1899 the Government subsidized the line, then known as the Ontario and Rainy River Railway. Its speedy completion was regarded as a necessity in view of the needs of the District. Owing to the difficulties of construction, the usual subsidy was deemed insufficient and provision was made therefor, but when the Bill was before the Legislature, Mr. Whitney—true to his policy of placing obstacles in the way of railway construction—moved an amendment to reduce the proposed subsidy from $505,000 to $225,000. If his view had prevailed, in all probability there would be no line built yet from Port Arthur to the Northwest through the Rainy River District.

No one will dispute the advantages of this line to the district touched, or to the entire Province. It not only made accessible large areas of mining lands west of Port Arthur, but brought railway facilities to the large population that had already settled upon the arable lands of the Rainy River Valley, where it is estimated there are a million acres of fertile lands

In addition to these reasons, yet another through competing line to the Northwest was thus given the public.

Already the Rainy River District has felt the impulse of growth afforded by the incoming of the railway, and the towns and centres in the District are expanding on every hand.

All this was brought to pass, however, it should be remembered, in spite of the opposition of Mr. Whitney and his Conservative followers.

Is Man Deteriorating?

Dr. Robert Hutchison in discussing the question whether physical deterioration was taking place or not said it was possible that nature was producing by degrees a race of people who were best fitted to live in large towns. The individuals of that race would not be the kind of man of whom the recruiting sergeant would approve. Dr. Hutchison did not think that the man best suited to stand the wear and strain of life in London was the man of large frame, big muscles and much bone. The reason was that the conditions of town life did not admit of a sufficiency of digestive power to enable a man to nourish a large frame. The small, wiry, tough sort of individual could get along in London with a comparatively small amount of food and so did not overstrain his digestive capacity.—London Telegraph.

A Skyline of Tanks.

Toronto, since the fire, has come to the conclusion that there is nothing so satisfactory for the business part of the city as a general use of sprinklers, says The Canadian Architect. That is agreed. But how about the tanks which crown the buildings thus equipped. The cooper's art is one of our few surviving handicrafts, and it is right we should exalt it—but abstractly. This elevation of a monstrous vat to roost on every building is grotesque; fine in its way, but not in the way in which the town aims at being fine. If we had mill design as well as mill construction the ensemble would be perfect, but we are in the grip of the Renaissance and must be Renaissance all through. Fortunately, though a Renaissance tank would tax the resources of Vignola, a Renaissance tower is easy, and, if clients require precedent for a tower on their buildings, there is one at home in the Canada Life Building. The low tower which is the making of that building has for its raison d'etre the elevation of a water tank to supply pressure to hydraulic elevators. The Canada Life tower was carried out on a scale beyond absolute requirement, but it suggests, on whatever scale, the architectonic solution, for, though, a sky line of tanks is absurd, a sky line of towers would be quite another thing.

To Loosen the Cough

AND BRING ABOUT A THOROUGH CURE OF COLDS, USE

It is sometimes dangerous to stop a cough.

The aim should be to loosen the cough, relieve the tightness and pain in the chest and aid expectoration so that the obstructing and irritating mass may be passed out of the air passages.

This is exactly what is accomplished by the use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.

It is not a mere cough mixture, and not intended to stop the cough, but rather to cure the cold.

If you have tickling in the throat, pains and tightness in the chest, sensations of irritation, of oppression, or suffocation this great family medicine will afford almost instant relief and thoroughly overcome the cold which gives rise to these symptoms.

Not only is Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine a positive cure for croup, bronchitis, whooping cough, asthma and severe chest colds, but is also a preventative of all diseases of the lungs.

It has time and again proven its right to a place in every home, and is the standby in thousands of families.

Mrs. F. Dwyer, Chesterville, Ont., says: "My little girl of three years had an attack of bronchial pneumonia. My husband and I thought she was going to leave this world, as her case resisted the doctor's treatment. I bought a bottle of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine from our popular druggist, W. G. Bolster. After the first two or three doses the child began to get better and we are thankful to say is all right to-day, after seven weeks' sickness."

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, 25 cents a bottle, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Company, Toronto. To protect you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box. 3

Stamping Out Tuberculosis.

London's County Council is to have wider powers in its effort to stamp out tuberculosis. The House of Commons recently in voting powers to the council approved suggestions that when a veterinary surgeon inspecting a cow shed or dairy has reason to suspect that a cow is suffering from tuberculosis the London County Council may order it to be slaughtered. If after its death the cow is found to have been healthy the London County Council shall pay as compensation the full value of the cow before slaughter and all reasonable expenses. On the other hand, if the cow is found to have suffered from tuberculosis the council shall pay three-quarters of the value. The maximum compensation is to be $140.

Colds

How often you hear it remarked "It's only a cold," and a few days later learn that the man is on his back with pneumonia. This is of such common occurrence that a cold, however slight, should not be disregarded.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

has gained its great popularity and extensive sale by its prompt cures of this most common ailment. It always cures and is pleasant to take. It counteracts any tendency of a cold to result in pneumonia.

WINTER.

Soft as the plumes of sleep drifts down
The pure white silence of the snow;
The bells make merry in the town,
Where happy faces come and go.

The brooding quiet of the trees
Is broken sweet, in yonder glen,
By "day, day, day," of crickadees
And keen, sweet song of winter wren.

Of glowing days some magic word
Is warbled when the grosbeaks sing,
And in the moaning pines is heard
The whisper of returning spring.

This is the birthday of the year;
Now faroff summer's battles start;
And lo, the very cold grows dear,
The wildest storm wind warms the heart.

LIFE SAVING WAR DOGS.

Interesting Demonstration of Their Services Made at Wimbledon.

An interesting demonstration of what dogs trained in ambulance service can do in war-time in aid of the wounded has been made at Wimbledon, England. Two highly trained dogs, one of them three parts collie and one part Eskimo and the other also collie with the same strain of retriever took part in the exhibition. Round the dogs was strapped a sort of harness bearing the Red Cross badge and fitted with pockets on each side containing triangular bandages, and round the neck hung a keg of spirits.

The members of the ambulance corps present proceeded to carry out a series of displays in which the dogs found men supposed to be wounded lying on the heath, invisible to the spectators and, having found them, gave tongue. The ambulance then picked up the wounded man and completed the first aid which by the dog's help he had been able to give himself. Dogs trained for this purpose are now in use in the German service, many being now in Herreroland, West Africa, with the German troops in the field, and there are also many with the Russian army in Manchuria.

Nothing Wasted.

Chemistry, like a thrifty housewife, economizes every scrap. The horseshoe nails dropped in the streets are carefully collected and reappear as swords and guns. The main ingredient of the ink with which I now write was probably once the broken hoop of an old beer barrel. The chippings of the traveling tinker are mixed with the parings of horses' hoofs and the worst kind of woolen rags, and these are worked up into an exquisite blue dye which graces the dresses of courtly dames.

The dregs of port wine, carefully decanted by the toper, are taken in the morning as a seidlitz powder to remove the effect of the debauch. The offal of the streets and the wastings of coal gas reappear carefully preserved in the ladies' smelling bottle or used by her to flavor blancmange for her friends. All thrift is an imitation of the economy of nature, which allows no waste.—London Answers.

Influence of Mind on Body.

Alexander Bain, the scientist, explained to the world long ago the subtle influence which the mind exerts upon the body. The mind cure theory can easily be abused, and it seems that there is an opposite extreme which may also be fruitful of harm, and that is disease breeding by letting the mind dwell ceaselessly upon microbes, nerves and so on. One is apt to find just what he is looking for and to magnify its local importance. Nature has provided microbe destroyers and nerve healers and regulators Man cannot, of course, be too careful and cleanly and regular, but at the same time he should not be over-anxious, committing the absurdity of continually searching with a spyglass for that monster he professes to shun and abhor.

Rhinoceros Butts Train.

A collision recently occurred on the Uganda railway, British East Africa, that would be possible nowhere else on earth. A huge bull rhinoceros rushed out of the bush and charged at full speed the so called "up mixed" train, which was slowing down as it approached the station Sultan Hamond, 218 miles from Mombasa. The train was stopped, and the "rhino" was discovered about 100 yards down the track. Slowly he returned to the jungle and was lost to sight. He did not escape unharmed, for pieces of his thick skin were found adhering to the train, but the fierceness of his assault smashed the engine step and splintered the inch and a half footboard of the first carriage.—St. James' Gazette.

AN AWFUL JOURNEY.

How Corporal Field Escorted a Madman From Yukon to Edmonton.

Corporal Field of the Royal Mounted Police, recently arrived at Edmonton, the most northern railroad station in the Northwest Territory, bringing with him a maniac missionary. Corporal Field was stationed at Fort Chipewyan. He was directed to proceed to another station in the Arctic circle and escort a mad man to Edmonton. He traveled by dog sled, using seven dogs, and traveled light. He was fourteen days reaching the station, where he was to meet his charge.

Here he found a missionary named Buckman, who had become raving mad in the lonely solitude. Then began his long journey with his demented charge. He had not proceeded far when the missionary become violent, and it was necessary to strap him to the sledge.

Then the man refused to eat, scratching and biting Field whenever the latter sought to force food down his throat.

For fifty-three days this journey continued, through blinding snowstorms and wind swept prairies. Field finally arrived at Edmonton with the madman, whose attendants took him 2,400 miles to the asylum at Brandon. Field was exhausted and is now slowly recovering from his lost strength under medical care.

He says it was the most discouraging, lonely and difficult trip he ever made, and the authorities say it has never been equalled.

Lady Huntsmen.

This season in Ireland there is a new pack, known as the Rathgael Hounds, which is managed entirely by ladies.

Miss Kate Cleland is master, her sister, Miss Maud Cleland, is the "hunstman," and Miss Florence Cleland acts as whipper-in.

The masters of the County Down Staghounds, North Down Harriers and East Antrim Hounds have presented the ladies with a few couple of hounds, and some capital sport has been enjoyed by the followers of the Rathgael before the snow put a stop to all hunting.

A YOUNG NATION.

Strength of Our Country—Proud of Belonging to the Firm of John Bull—Our Tremendous Virility.

Jack Canuck is the grown-up son in the firm of John Bull and Sons, writes John Foster Fraser, the British correspondent who has been traveling through Canada. He has a great respect for the "old man," but thinks him slow and behind the times. He wants to shake the "old man" up a bit, and show him how to run the Empire properly. He is vigorous, self-confident and doesn't like to be instructed; he imagines—as young nations, like young men, are prone to imagine—he has nothing to learn. Occasionally, when he believes the "old man" has been playing the fool in business—as in the Alaskan Boundary decision, letting the United States have just as much as she wanted of Canada's seaboard on the Pacific, and generally kow-towing to the Americans, feasting them and cheering them, and making the Yankees think John Bull is playing out and wants their help, whereas Cousin Jonathan would in his heart be delighted to see the Empire firm smash up—he swears, and tells the "boss" what he thinks about it.

Jack is proud of belonging to the firm of John Bull, but he wants John Bull to stop his social dinner-party gallivanting with his rival Jonathan. When a distinguished American visits London, he is invited to lunch at Buckingham Palace. When a distinguished colonist visits London, he has to pay for his own lunch at an hotel. This is a topic not noised publicly, but Jack tells you about it when you are quietly having a cigar with him. Not, of course, that he wants to lunch at Buckingham Palace—dare say it would be terribly formal and dull!—prefers to pay for his own lunch, and to feel able—but—but—well, he doesn't like to feel Canada is left on the doorstep, while America is invited inside.

Indeed, Jack is touchy, though, like all touchy people, he insists that he "really doesn't mind in the least."

But behind the touchiness of the Canadian—who, when he asks your opinion of the Dominion, means he wants praise, and snorts that you ought to have stayed at home if you criticize; who, being ignorant of other countries, and especially of England, is cock-sure that the old country is out-of-date—there is a tremendous virility. He works. You do not see in Canada such poverty as you have at home; but neither do you find in Canada the culture and the refinement you have at home. These will come later. At present Jack Canuck is the young man in his shirt sleeves, who has done well, intends to do better, is impatient of restraint, has ideas beyond the running of his own Canadian store and thinks the old man John Bull would be benefited by having more of his help in running his business.

All through Canada is this feeling, pulsing like an under-current. The visiting Englishmen, only watching the surface, only hearing the jibes at the "old country," may conclude that Canada isn't loyal, and would, on slightest provocation, snap the little tie that holds it to Britain. So it would. Except in a traditional, sentimental sense, Canada doesn't care two straws for England. But Canada does care a great deal for the British Empire—with the vague, ill-defined, unconsidered, but unmistakable love of a son for his father—because Canada is part of the British Empire. Isn't a Canadian as much a Briton as an Englishman is?

Certainly, the growth of the Dominion from a little and swaddled colony into a brawny and ambitious nation is worth thought by my countrymen at home. In the United Kingdom are 344 persons to the square mile; in Canada the average is 1½ to the square mile. Yet this mighty, apparently unwieldy, slice of a continent, with an area of nearly four million square miles, and a population of nearly six millions—not that of London—is putting forth all its strength and showing itself a worthy child of old England. Canada opens its arms to the world for settlers; but the warm hand is always toward the old country. She has land to give away, and land to sell. There are millions of acres of Dominion lands. Ten years ago (1894) there were given away in homesteads 513,440 acres, and eight years ago (1896) there were given away 297,760 acres. Last year (1903) there were given away 5,229,120 acres. And the people who are filling up this western land, drawn from all quarters of the earth, forgetting their old nationalities, throwing off the cloak of their old customs—what of them? Crowds, of course, are Canadians, from the eastern provinces, who have moved west. I turn up the list of the people who last year asked for free homesteads. There are Americans, ten thousand of them; Britons, four thousand of them; nearly three thousand Russians and nearly three thousand Austro-Hungarians; a thousand Germans; over two hundred Icelanders, almost six hundred Swedo-Norwegians; over two hundred French; lesser numbers from elsewhere, Belgians, Swiss, Italians, Roumanians, Syrians, Hollanders, Danes, Chinese, Turks, Bulgarians, Persians, Australians, down to one representative each from Spain, Brazil and New Zealand—all men settling to farm under the British flag!

No; Canada is neither English nor Scotch. A million of Canadians with British names never saw Britain; a million and a half of the population are of French descent. But the British spirit permeates the continent. The Britons who have gone out to Canada are the best you have, men ill-spared from the old land. It is under their influence and staunch personality that Canada has been lifted into the position it holds to-day. Take the men who have really made Canada, nine out of ten have British blood in them. It is the triumph of race, the dominance of the Saxon.

Last year the United Kingdom produced 48 million bushels of wheat. Canada, with a sixth of the population, produced 78½ million bushels. But while Britain grew her wheat crop on 1½ million acres, Canada needed 4½ million acres to grow hers—which shows that the old land grows a larger crop per acre than the new land, though it must be remembered that manuring, such as followed at home, is unknown in Canada, and that in this country wheat cannot be grown profitably on any but the best lands.

Canada likes to weigh herself with dollars in the other scale. Take agriculture, and reduce everything to dollars. I take the facts from the census returns of 1901: The value of the land was put down at $1,007,454,858; buildings, $395,815,143; implements and machinery, $108,665,502; horses, $118,279,419; milch cows, $69,287,970; other horned cattle, $54,197,841; sheep, $10,490,594; swine, $16,445,702; poultry, $5,723,890; bees, $792,711; field crops, $194,935,420; fruits and vegetables, $12,994,900; nursery stock sold, $469,501; live stock sold, $52,755,375; meats and products of all animals killed on the farms, $22,951,527; dairy products, $66,470,953; wool, $1,887,064; eggs, $10,286,828; honey and wax, $356,816; maple sugar and syrup, $1,780,482.

The True Masterpiece.

Bliss Carmen said in a recent article: "There is a sort of greatness about a true masterpiece that makes itself felt we hardly know how, that moves us we do not know why; just as there is a sort of greatness about some men, which compels an unreserved enthusiasm and loyalty toward them. It is the quality which endears people to us. This man may be brave and irreproachable; that one may be clever to be'lidement, yet, if they are not lovable, we meet them and part without regret. They convince us, and charm, and even win; yet a moment later we are left as cold as before."

GLORIES OF THE ROCKIES

THEY ARE NOT TO BE COMPARED TO ANYTHING IN THE WORLD.

English Tourist Declares They Are Individual, Apart, Strenuous, With the Touch of Ferocity in Them—Banff Has the Best Mountain Hotel in the World—Wonders of the Country Graphically Described.

The prairie is like a calm at sea, the ends of the earth a great circle within the compass of the eye, and the heavens an inverted cup. The rolling foothills are the first heavy strenuous breathings of a storm. Then comes the hurricane of earth, tossed, jagged, white-toothed, frantic, the tumult of passion, high-flung pinnacles of rock and billows of snow. A weariness follows as though the storm would cease. But you reach port ere the calm settles.

Such is the simile which came as I crossed the Rocky Mountains from Calgary to Vancouver.

Now my heart was envious of the Canadians who crowded on the tail platform of the train, who huddled in the observation car, craned their necks, shouted adjectives, and were busy all the time with their kodaks, pushing the click, pressing the bulb, twirling the spool. I envied them their delight. Few before had ever seen mountains. The black shelves of crag, sheer and stupendous, awed them. The dancing cascades and the soft greens of the rivers entranced them. The sun glistening on the hills, hooded with snow, filled them with rapture. I found as much pleasure watching the wholesome gleam-eyed joy of my fellow-passengers as in gazing upon the panorama while the black engine giants of the Canadian Pacific Railway grunted and snorted through the gulched defiles and screeched and bellowed and threw defiant roars to the hills.

One of Those Darned Tourists.

"I guess that is finer than anything in Switzerland," observed a casual acquaintance, pointing to the universe with his thumb. I agreed it was very fine and stupendous, but—I got a withering glance. I was evidently one of those darned tourists from the old country who won't admit the truth when it is smacking him in the face!

"That's magnificent, sir," said another man, while we looked beyond the firs and the ribbed rocks, to where snow powdered the head of Sir Donald.

"Yes, sir, it is magnificent," I agreed.

"To stand here and look at that mountain is one of the grandest sights on earth, I guess."

"Yes," I added, "one of the grandest."

"Traveled some, sir?" he asked.

"Oh, yes, I've knocked about a bit," I replied.

"Well, I guess, sir, that never in your born days have you seen any mountains that can hold a candle to these Rockies. Now, have you?"

I stammered I was impressed with the stern grandour of the Rockies, but that—well—er if one was asked to compare them—er—but—er—

"Oh, shucks!" was his commept of disgust. Imagining I wanted to be depreciatory. "I'm telling you, sir, there cannot be anything finer."

Why He Envies Canadians.

That is why I envy these generous-hearted, appreciative Canadians. They were not afflicted with the curse of comparison. I half wished I didn't know the Alps, that I had never crossed the Urals, that the picture of the Caucasus range could be wiped from memory, that I had never gazed upon the Himalayas. Then I could have exclaimed, for I would have believed, "There is no finer scenery in the world than the Canadian Rockies."

But as there were strong men before Agamennon, so there are magnificent mountains besides the Rockies.

Really, however, the Rockies are not to be compared with anything. They are individual, apart, strenuous, with the teeth of ferocity in them. They are not beautiful, nor sublime—not any other of the easy adjectives that slip from the lips. They are gaunt, foreboding, things of drear strength. When the black engine blurts through the Gap and opens her throat with a shout which beats against the gray and tumbled rocks, breaks through the million bare poles of burnt firs and surges cavernously up the canyon, it is like the voice of the dragon in Wagner. The hills are like the ruins of a dead world, the rise in grotesque and stately terraces. The stark trees are the totems of death. Close by are the gurgling, chalky green waters of the Bow River, glacier fed. The undergrowth of the land is matted, wiry, tangled, with the paints of autumn splashed recklessly, a long creeper blood red, a maple patch of claret, a tree which sun and early frost have bleached to yellow.

A Mountain Railway.

The twin rails follow the bends of the river, as though fearing to try a lonely way. There are sad and weedy stations. Red Indians are about swarthy, sitting straight on their horses and wearing red blanket trousers, dirty English shooting jackets, Yankee slouch hats and with a knot of raven hair lapsing upon the shoulder—not so picturesque, and feathered, and painted, and whooping as the Englishman sees in Buffalo Bill shows, but quiet men, smoking cheap briars and doing some farming.

Buffalo! There are no buffalo now on the prairies. The thunder of a herd's hoofs is not heard on the baked soil. But here is verdant forest land, a clearing with good wire fence, and within a bunch of these lords of the prairie, tawny and woolly-shouldered, are chewing their cud. They are in a grassy museum maintained for the delight of the tourists, who "snap shot" the tame bulls as though they were theatrical beauties.

Into the hills, rising till the sky is Italian blue and the air is thin, stimulating, making you drink it with deep breaths of satisfaction—like quaffing dry champagne—and so on to Banff. There are the shouts of hotel porters, the banging of luggage, the clatter of omnibuses. You go to the biggest hotel, a chateau perched on a shoulder of rock among the pines. It is one of the fine hotels that punctuate the line from sea to sea. I have a large here-to-day gone-to-morrow acquaintance with hotels. It is the best mountain hotel in the world. You pay 17s. 6d. a day. For this you get a luxuriously furnished room, a private bath, and fare much the same as on an Atlantic liner. If you are zealous you get astride a pony, and let it carry you—women ride cross-saddle the same as men—and if you are lazy you sit in the sun and look up the valley of the Bow, a filmy, restful view set in a broken frame of rock.

WOMEN OUTNUMBER MEN.

Dr. Wickett's Address on Some Modern Social Problems.

The subject of a recent afternoon's lecture before the Household Economic Association, of Toronto, "Some Phases of the Social Problem," seemed to have promised much of interest, to judge by the good-sized audience assembled to listen to Dr. S. Morley Wickett, Ph.D., lecturer on political economy at the Toronto University.

Figures are supposed to tell nothing but the truth, so that the array of compressed and condensed truth presented in the statistics given by Mr. Wickett should be most convincing. The popular belief that there are more women than men in the world received flat contradiction. In both Europe and America figures show that 105 boys are born to every 100 girls, but owing to greater mortality among boys during infancy there is a tendency to equalize matters, until there is a balance of the sexes about the age of 20. To come nearer home, there are 965 women to every 1,000 men in Canada; but in Toronto there are 100 men to 117 women, while in British Columbia there are 1,000 men to 551 women, showing that while the number of women is greater in the centres of civilization it is less in the newer parts of this or any country.

The more strenuous life of the man tells on his longevity; also the fact that women are filling many of the easier occupations formerly filled by men, so crowding them into those attended by more risk and danger. No statistics yet taken give a satisfactory idea of the birth rate in Ontario.

The lecturer next gave some interesting facts and figures in connection with suicide, according to which one not a prophet could forstell to a dot the manner of suicides that would occur in any given place or country at any one time of the day, month, or year.

In the record of criminals there were five males to one female, women being addicted to larceny more than men, and their crimes usually occurring between the ages of 12 to 18 or over 30; between the ages of 18 to 30 the rate of crime among women is lowest. The number of married criminals was comparatively small, not, the speaker considered, because they were married, but because they were not inclined to marry.

The question of divorce was touched on with abundant figures to support all statements. There were more divorces granted in the States than in all other countries together, and two-thirds of these were on demand of the wife. The age of marriage had advanced, so that some one that had pointedly remarked, "They used to marry before they had sense, but now many wait until they have no sense."

In closing the lecturer remarked that the statistics drew attention to conditions, and showed that society was governed by natural laws. The problems stated were not capable of local solution, but the remedy lay in a reformation of social conditions rather than of people. The family shapes the destiny of nations, hence it is the condition of the home that must be improved to reach the root of all these social evils. As men were in the minority in places, would it not be well that they should be carefully sheltered, nurtured, protected?

In moving a vote of thanks to the lecturer, Mrs. J. D. Allan expressed the opinion that a woman could not do too well her share of the world's work in making her own home a place of comfort and rest, even to the toasting of her husband's slippers in readiness for a cold night. The motion was seconded by Mrs. F. L. Higgins and enthusiastically carried.

Canada's Vice-Regal Drawing Room.

New rules have been prescribed for the vice-regal drawing-room. The military secretary is desirous that the ceremonies of the drawing-room shall be modeled as nearly as possible after Buckingham Palace. The rules of precedence will be strictly observed, and ladies are desired to precede their husbands. It is also desired that the card which is to be handed to the military secretary be large, and the name written upon it in large and legible lettering. The card to be used should be as large as the card of admittance issued for the opening. It is particularly desired that visiting cards with the name in small type may not be used. This change is made to enable the A. D. C.'s to announce the names of those presented properly.

The Dockyard's Historic Memories.

Sentimental Halifax sees other cause for mourning in the news from London. Regarding the dockyard as a point of historic interest, its disappearance is a matter for regret. To its piers prizes were brought in the old stirring time of war; on one of its landings the present King of England stepped more than 40 years ago, when he was there as the Prince of Wales; within its walls the Marquis of Lorne and Princess Louise first landed on Canadian soil. From its wharves and from the deck of old Pyramus a quarter of a century ago, in the palmy days of aquatic sports and Halifax champions, thousands of citizens gathered to see the struggles of giants and the 21st of June amusements.

STOMACHS ON STILTS.

The man who puts on stilts does not increase his actual stature. He only feels taller. Stimulants are the stilts of the stomach. They make a man feel better for the time being, but he feels a great deal worse for them afterward.

The need of the man whose stomach is "weak" is not stimulation but strength. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery perfectly answers that need. It contains no alcohol or whisky. It cures the weak, foul stomach with its attendant bad smelling breath, coated tongue, bad taste, poor appetite and kindred symptoms.

"In the year 1899 I had an attack of indigestion and got so bad that my home doctor said he could not do me any good," writes Mr. G. Trent of Gordonville, Ayres. "I wrote to you and you advised me to use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, so I bought six bottles, and when I commenced using it I was so weak could hardly walk about the house. By the time I had used one bottle my stomach and bowels commenced to heal. There were strips of the lining of my stomach or bowels (I don't know which) as large as a man's two fingers passed and I had a good deal of misery in my stomach and bowels, and also in the rectum especially. I could not eat anything without having much distress afterward, but by the time I had taken eight bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' I was sound and well, and could eat anything I pleased without suffering in the least. Could also do as much work in a day as I ever could. I have not suffered from the trouble since, and it was four years ago that I was so sick."

The sole motive for substitution is to permit the dealer to make a little more profit. He gains; you lose. Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery."

HOCKEY.

On Tuesday night in the Brock street rink St. Andrew's Young Men's Guild defeated St. Andrew's Guards in a game of hockey by a score of 5-1. The Guild had the best of the play in the first half, scoring 4 goals while the Guards got none. In the second half the Guards changed their positions somewhat, and played better ho key, each team scoring 1 goal, leaving the score 5-1 in favour of the Guild. The teams lined up as follows:—

Guards.		Guild.
F. Richardson	Goal,	G. McDonald
H. Roseborough	Point,	W. Richardson
R. McKnight	Cover Point,	L. Patterson
V. Tully	Rover,	E. Dormer
R. Reid	Centre,	W. Peace
A. VanEvery	Right Wing,	C. Anderson
E. Curry	Left Wing,	McDonald

Mr. Harry Kingscote refereed to the satisfaction of both teams.

The Guards do hereby challenge the Guild to a game of hockey, City League men to be barred.

* * * *

Polling Subdivision No. 3—Comprising The Karnots will play a practice game with the George Street Guild to-night after the Port Perry game. The following players are requested to be on hand, Kingscote, Dormer, Quinn, Grose, Campbell, Mulhern, Gilman and O'Dette.

T. A. S and Campbellford play a game here in the Trent Valley League on Tuesday. Each team has two wins to their credit and this game should be worth seeing.

ANOTHER WIN FOR THE T. A. S.

Defeated Keene Last Night by 9—6 in Fast Game

Last night the T.A.S. Hockey team took another leap towards the Trent Valley League Championship, when they defeated Keene on the latter's ice by a score of 9—6, making it two straights from this team this season.

The game last night was very keenly contested but was free from any rough play, Referee Wasson having the players well in hand. At half time the score was 4—2, and the final score 9—6, Keene adding the last goal about half a minute before time was up. Mr. E. Wasson, of Peterborough, gave good satisfaction as referee.

The teams were:

Peterborough—Goal, Clancy; point, Meagher, cover point, Quigley; rover, DeForge; centre, Kennelly; wings, McGrath and Rose.

Keene—Goal, Quinn; point, Dickson; cover point, J. McCarty; rover, Lundy; centre, McIntyre; wings, Weir and V. McCarty.

PIVOTAL GAME IN NORTHERN DISTRICT

Will be That to be Played in Midland To-night.

Special to the Examiner.

Midland, Jan. 20th.—What is looked upon as a pivotal game in this district will be that to-night between the home team and Victoria Harbour. When Midland played in the Harbour they were defeated by 9-8 in extra time, in one of the hardest games ever played in this district, but Midland's supporters claim that there will be no doubt of the result of to-night's game here.

The teams as they will line up to-night are:—

Midland.		Victoria Harbour.
Thompson	Goal,	Regan
Hanley	Point,	Corbeau
Cunningham	Cover Point,	Goodwin
Whitcroft	Rover,	Corbeau
Kempt	Centre,	Switzer
Gould	Right Wing,	Good
McLaughlin	Left Wing,	McLaughlin

If Midland wins to-night they will have to defeat Barrie and Collingwood on their own ice and then play Victoria Harbour on neutral ice to win the District championship, which they expect to do.

Great excitement is being worked up over the game to-night and the prospects are that there will be a record crowd.

TO-NIGHT'S GAME WILL BE FAST

Local Team Simply Has to Win but Port Perry Will be Strong.

To-night's game at the Brock street rink should be one of the best of the season. The Port Perry team which will be the local's opponents have apparently got their eyes on the district championship, and have taken the measure of the Peterboroughs as the game in Port Perry Wednesday showed. The referee's report states that the game was fast and close. At half time each side had scored a goal. Peterborough ran in three goals early in the second half and got another after Port Perry had scored one. Port Perry finished strong and had far the best of the game, scoring three goals in eight minutes.

From the above it would seem that the Port Perry team has improved in form since their last visit here, and no doubt will give the locals a hard run.

The home team has to win to-night's game to keep within sight of the district championship, and the local supporters of the team may be assured that they will put up a strong effort to place themselves one step nearer the goal sought.

The team to-night will be chosen from the following,—Wasson, Crowley, McWilliams, Cavanah, Morgan, Parnell, Graham.

SPECIAL TRAIN FOR LINDSAY GAME

There should be a good crowd to accompany the senior team to Lindsay on Monday night, when the second game in the second round will be played there. These two teams have each won one game from the other now, and the Lindsay team is confident of its ability to again defeat the Peterboroughs on the former's ice, as they did on the first round. But there is a different opinion here on that point. Recognizing that many would like to see this game, the team management decided to run an excursion, and the special train will leave here at 7 o'clock, returning after the game. The fare for the round trip will be $1.05, which is exceedingly cheap, and should induce a good crowd to accompany the team, the line-up of which will be about the same as in the game to-night.

A BIT OF CANADIAN PLUCK

An incident of more than common importance is the visit of the Yukon hockey team in pursuit of the Stanley Cup. It is the pluckiest challenge in the history of that trophy, and the players, one and all, deserve the highest praise. The conditions were entirely against their winning. To travel some hundreds of miles on foot, proceed by steamer and railway all the long way from the far north and get at once on the ice to duel with a team like Ottawa with any expectation of success, constitute surely one of the rarest feats of human endurance.

The quality of hockey those young men played last evening was, for a time, brilliant to a degree. Indeed the result was in doubt until they began to tire, which they did towards the end of the first portion of the game. This was expected. The journey had told on them. They would require a fortnight at least to fit them for such serious competition.

The mere playing of the game, whether the visitors win or lose the series, has its value. Sport has become one great medium of inter-communication. Communities, distances apart, are brought into touch by their athletic representatives, prejudices are levelled and good-feeling engendered. A feature of the present day is the constant exchange of international courtesies in the form of athletic contests. Particularly is this the case in Europe and other British colonies, apart from Canada. The pity is that our sports, on account of climatic and other conditions, do not admit of competition on level terms in any one branch.

A hearty welcome awaited the Dawson City players last evening, and all through the game there was a decided sympathy extended to them. They have come a long way and suffered hardships to reach here. We are glad to see them. Our hope is that many more young men from the distant parts of our vast Dominion may be seen in the capital, thinking always that our hospitality is worth sampling.—Ottawa Journal.

Conservatives been guilty of as much evil these many years as claimed by Mr. Ross, they had not been prosecuted by the Government which had control of the administration of justice. He next arraigned Mr. Ross for his declaration that there was no wrong-doing at West Elgin, and said that Mr. McNish, one of the Government officials, confessed to it in a declaration drawn up by Mr. Aylesworth, of which the Premier was previously cognizant, and yet he says now that McN.sh must have been deceived. Now what are you going to do with a man like that?

A voice—"Turn him out."

Turning next to the Pritchard affidavits to wrong-doing, Mr. Whitney said, Mr. Pritchard, who taught the men to switch ballots, retired to Detroit on a pension of $100 a month; but he grew tired of his retirement, because the pension was not arriving regularly. He then made affidavits to his illegal acts, the last of which was read in the House of Commons with Pritchard's declaration that he was then at his home in St. Thomas and defied prosecution. And he has not been prosecuted. Following Mr. Pritchard's example, Mr. Ross now says, "We have sinned, but we propose to forget our sins and go on our way rejoicing." (Laughter.)

History of the Conservatives.

There was a Tory party long ago, when it was the natural party of the province, but it died a natural death in 1854 by a coalition, and the Liberal-Conservative party had been formed, and had progressed ever since, as had the Reform party, and each party had done great things for the province, and each contributing to the course of responsible Government in this country. Because we are Reformers or Conservatives it does not follow that we are right, we may be right to-day and wrong to-morrow. The Reform party is where it is to-day because of the bad leadership of Mr. Ross, who has never had a majority behind him.

The Coalition Proposal.

Speaking of coalition Mr. Whitney said that he thought he would tell something about it. He had not yet told it all.

A voice—"Tell it all, now."

Negotiations had been carried, said Mr. Whitney, looking to a coalition. He had taken a walk one afternoon and he had met a Minister of the Crown, who had asked him to come to his office to discuss a coalition, as a second Minister had also asked him the same day. He had declined to accept the proposition, although it had been discussed. The next year the second Minister had again approached him with the proposition to again form a coalition, and it had again been turned down by Mr. Whitney.

The Details.

The proposal was that the speaker with two colleagues were to become members of the Cabinet and the next year a fourth Conservative was to enter the Cabinet, and an eighth Cabinet position created. He had, however, refused to accept the proposal for reasons which he thought it was not necessary to state. The agreement was that it was to be considered secret, but later the Liberals began to seek to make political capital out of the event, and he then felt that the time had come to break the silence himself and he had done so.

Another Proposal.

A few days before the recent Liberal Convention, another coalition proposal had come to him, starting from a prominent Senator, high in financial circles. He had been told that within a year he would be the leader of the Government, but again he had refused to yield to the temptation—if there was any.

Mr. Whitney appealed to the Liberals to vote in this election with those who believe that the Liberal Government should be turned out. He did not ask them to become Conservatives, in fact he would be sorry to think that they would become Conservatives by so doing.

Following Great Britain.

It was the bounden duty of every one to go out now, and show that the fair fame of Ontario was dear to them. Political parties in this country were something more than a mere name. We enjoyed under the party system blessings which would not be ours under any other system. If the principles of the system were not operative the privileges of the people would be for the time being negatived. Therefore they should hold party feeling in the greatest possible respect. Party "feeling," he meant, not party "prejudice." The records of the parties in this country had made this country what it was.

In England the same parties existed, but there were about 45 per cent of the voters who viewed great questions from a national instead of a party standpoint. The result was that as soon as bye-elections were held they commenced to go against the GGoverramont, until often before its period was over, the Government found itself in a minority. This resulted in there being no opportunity for political impurity to exist. In this country, unfortunately, the opposite was the case, because our standard of public morality was not so high as in England, and we were more apt to be governed by party aims and party prejudices.

He contended that the Conservatives had already received the confidence of the people of the province by a majority of 7,000 of the electors of the province, but when he said that he had been three times asked to come over and join the Liberals, to keep them from dying, he thought he had no further need of producing evidence of the possession of the confidence of the people.

Mr. Whitney reiterated his belief in the success of the Conservatives on January 25th, because he considered that the sense of public morality had not died in the hearts of the people of the province.

There was something in the air at the meeting to convince him that Mr. Bradburn would be elected to help swell the number of Conservative supporters who would be elected by Conservatives and Liberals in the interests of good government. (Applause.)

THE SOCIAL WORLD.

Interesting Personal Items Gathered by Reporters.

Mrs. Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, has returned from a visit with relatives in Orillia.

Rev. W. J. Jolliffe went to Belleville to-day to attend the funeral of the late Mrs. J. P. Wilson, at Napanee to-morrow.

The "Magic Mirror" of Japan.

The "magic mirror" of Japan is a disk of bronze, usually from six to eight inches in diameter. It is silvered on the front, which is a little convex, and there is a raised pattern on the back, which is rather concave. The polished pattern is generally a landscape, flowers, animals or Chinese characters. It is not visible in the front of the mirror, but when strong sunlight is reflected from the front of the mirror to a wall or screen the pattern of the back is visible on the screen in bright lines on a black ground. Professor W. E. Ayrton, F. R. S., with Professor John Perry, F. R. S., was the first to give the true scientific explanation of this magical effect. It seems that the design on the back alters the convexity of the front, making it flat—in fact, along the lines of the pattern. Consequently the light reflected from the front is not dispersed at these points of the design, and they appear brighter on the screen.—London Globe.

Fighting the Inevitable.

Nearly all great scientific discoveries have been combated and misunderstood even by the intelligent. Even Sir Charles Napier fiercely opposed the introduction of steam power into the royal navy and one day exclaimed in the house of commons:

"Mr. Speaker, when we enter her majesty's naval service and face the chances of war we go prepared to be hacked in pieces by cutlasses, to be riddled with bullets or to be blown to bits by shot and shell; but, Mr. Speaker, we do not go prepared to be boiled alive."

The last words he brought out with tremendous emphasis. Steam power in men-of-war, with boilers which at any moment might be shattered by an enemy's shot—this was a prospect he could not face.

Yet in a few years he found himself in command of the largest steam navy the world had ever seen.

OTTAWA CHEERS LAURIER AND ROSS

Sir Wilfred Speaks For and Will Vote For Ontario's Premier — The Opposition's Poverty of Policy—Dominion Premier Shows How All Liberals Have Been Subject to Abuse—Hon. Mr. Ross Eloquent, Amusing, Sarcastic in Describing Whitney Party's Lack of Policy—Tidal Wave of People.

Ottawa, Jan. 21.—Laurier and Ross was the rallying cry not merely of the Liberals of Ottawa but of thousands whose politics are by no means extreme, and who flocked last night to the Russell Theatre to see and hear the Premiers of Canada and of Ontario, the two most eloquent men to-day in all Canada. It was as an elector of Ontario that Sir Wilfrid Laurier came to the meeting to support Mr. Ross. In most emphatic terms he declared that he intended to raise his voice and to cast his vote for the Ontario Premier. More than this, he pointed out that just as Sir Oliver Mowat and other Liberal leaders were the victims of mud-slinging, so a campaign of vilification and abuse was now being waged against Mr. Ross.

Mud-Slinging Fails.

"But," said Sir Wilfrid in a happily-expressed phrase, "I am not carried away from my moorings by the campaign of mud-slinging which is going on to-day in the Province of Ontario." The reception accorded to Premier Ross was a splendid answer, if such were needed, to the unusual campaign of which he is the victim. He spoke with all his accustomed felicity of expression, at one time stirring his hearers deeply with his eloquence, at other times arousing bursts of laughter by his humor. And all the powerful batteries of his sarcasm and invective were directed to exposing the poverty of policy from which the Opposition suffers.

The meeting for numbers and enthusiasm has never been paralleled in the history of Ottawa. It seemed as if the whole city had turned out to do honor to the two Premiers. Although the proceedings did not commence until after 8 o'clock, crowds began to gather around the entrances to the Russell Theatre as early as seven, and when the doors opened, half an hour later, the audience swarmed into the building in such numbers that every seat was in a few minutes taken.

A Tidal Wave.

The onward rush of people resembled the incoming of the tide. It overflowed every barrier and occupied every inch of space until the interior of the building was a mass of gesticulating humanity. And for every score that entered a hundred persons were turned away. Had half a dozen halls been hired for the overflow meetings they could easily have been filled. To-night's demonstration seems to point unerringly to the return of two supporters of Premier Ross.

Character of the Meeting.

As to the character of the meeting much could be said, but the most marked feature was the passionate enthusiasm which swept like a tornado over the audience. Hearty indeed was the reception accorded to the two standard-bearers of the party, Messrs. McDougal and May, who both appeared upon the platform. A second or two afterwards came the two Premiers, followed by an imposing array of Senators, members and prominent citizens. Then the cheers became perfectly electrifying, and lasted for some seconds. Nor were the acclamations confined to men, but the ladies, who were present in goodly numbers, by the fervor of their greeting greatly swelled the tumult.

Huber Claims the Seat.

Berlin, Jan. 21.—There was considerable excitement yesterday, caused by the report that the nomination proceedings on Wednesday were irregular, and that according to the Election Act the independent candidate was elected by acclamation. It is claimed by the independent candidate, Allen Huber, that according to the act the returning officer should have allowed only one hour for receiving nominations, whereas he allowed three hours, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., that there were no nominations handed in to the returning officer within the first hour after his nomination, thus electing him by acclamation, and that his nomination was in at 11.02. The facts of the matter are these: The returning officer allowed three hours for nominations, between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. According to the time taken by Reuben Weber, the returning officer's clerk, he received Mr. Huber's nomination paper at 11.20, Mr. Moore's at 11.55 and Dr. Lackner's at 12.15, all of which were within the hour after the preceding one. No stock is being taken in Mr. Huber's contentions.

Tokio, Jan. 21.—It has been proposed to dam Port Arthur harbor at the entrance and pump out the water preparatory to saving the Russian war vessels.

Shanghai, Jan. 21.—General Stoessel and the large number of paroled officers and others who arrived here Thursday on board the French steamer Australian left Shanghai yesterday for Marseilles.

Nearly 20,000 Are Sick.

Tokio, Jan. 21.—It is stated that there are 18,558 sick and wounded Russian prisoners at Port Arthur. Of these 8,657 are connected with the navy.

Celebrate Fall of Port Arthur.

Tokio, Jan. 21.—The business men of this city celebrated the capture of Port Arthur yesterday. Speeches were made by the premier, Count Katsura; Vice-Admiral Togo and the Ministers of War and the Navy.

Jap Guns Added To.

Huanshan, Jan. 21.—A considerable increase has been noticeable the last few days in the range of Japanese artillery. This fact affords ground for the belief that part of the heavy guns used in the siege of Port Arthur have been sent north.

INCREASED SALARIES.

Despatchers and Telegraphers Get Advance of From $3 to $10.

Toronto, Jan. 21.—C. P. R. despatchers and operators appear to be well satisfied with the result of the protracted negotiations on the score of wage increase. The advances run all the way from $2 to $10 per month.

On the main lines east of Chalk River, first year despatchers will now get $100 per month, with an increase of $5 for the second and $10 for the third years.

West of Chalk River, the scale is $105, $110 and $120 for the three years, while for White River and west it is $110, $115 and $125.

For telegraphers other than train despatchers and linemen, $45 will be the minimum for agents and operators on the main line east of Chalk River, with $48 on branch lines, with dwelling, light and fuel included. Without these latter, the minimum will be $50 and $48 respectively.

Telegraph operators will not get less than $45 on the main line and $43 on the branches, while the minimum for linemen on both main and branch lines is $55.

West of Chalk River, $47 is the least for an agent and operator, and west of Cartier, $53, with, in each case, the added items above referred to. Without them the minimum is $52 and $58 respectively, and for telegraph operators $47 and $53. Linemen in either of the two districts will receive $60 as the lowest.

Train despatchers will be allowed three weeks vacation yearly, and other telegraphers of four or more years' service two weeks.

The revised salary scale for relieving telegraphers shows a substantial advance.

THE KILLING OF THE CZAR.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 21.—A special commission, under the presidency of Gen. Kitro, commander of the Artillery Corps of the Guards, has been appointed to investigate the origin of the firing of Thursday. The report published in America by a news agency of the suicide of Capt. Davidoff, commander of the battery from which the shot is supposed to have been fired, is unfounded.

In the midst of the fever of excitement yesterday over the strike situation, the incident at the Winter Palace on Thursday is attracting secondary consideration. Sensational reports of a widespread conspiracy and wholesale disaffection in the army seem to be absolutely without foundation.

Missiles That Missed Aim.

Grand Duke Sergius Michaelovitch, in his preliminary report, shows that the caissons of the battery contained charges of grape in readiness for a possible emergency, such as to rake the streets in case of rioting, one of which was introduced in the guns, in front of the saluting guard. The guards are under arrest and their antecedents are being examined, and it is impossible to learn whether anything important has yet been discovered.

The military authorities are inclined to believe that the incident was the work of two men, one of whom inserted the missiles while the other trained the gun.

Married One Too Many.

Toronto, Jan. 21. — John Harry Haines is accused of bigamy. Annie Mary Haight married him at Richmond Hill, July 23, 1899, and in 1904 he married Emily Howlett of Newmarket, but deserted her. Her action for non-support attracted the attention of his first wife. Haines is a brakeman. He was remanded for a week.

CZAR CALLS OUT THE MILITIA

St. Petersburgs' Streets are Guarded by Troops

150,000 Men out on Strike and the Situation is Very Serious

Special to the Examiner

St. Petersburg, Jan. 21. — St. Petersburg this morning presented the appearance of a beleagured city. The military are in complete possession. The streets are lined with troops, galloping squadrons of cavalry are seen everywhere, gendarmes are concentrated in all the court yards and the closed factories and mills are surrounded by cordons of police and Cossacks. On every bulletin board is posted the Government's proclamation warning the people against assembling. There is no material change in the strike situation. The movement continues to spread in all directions and it is estimated that fully 150,000 workmen have now quit work in the various towns. The opinion is rapidly growing that the Government will be compelled to concede to the demands of the strikers.

GOOD PROSPECTS IN THE COUNTRY

Last Meeting in the Country Was Held Last Night.

Mr. McWilliams and Mr. Lee Address Electors at Ennismore

The last meeting of the Liberal campaign in the country was held last night in the Town Hall at Ennismore, and was again very largely attended. Mr. McWilliams was supported by Mr. W. T. J. Lee, who delivered a very eloquent address on behalf of the Government and the candidate. The chair was taken by Mr. Wm. Crough, who opened the meeting with a short speech urging the electors of the township to stand by their old colours and gave Mr. McWilliams a large majority.

Mr. McWilliams discussed particularly the financial position and record of the Government, and how vastly richer the province was by reason of the Liberal policy and the opposition which had been given to the policy by Mr. Whitney and his associates. He took up a number of matters which had been dealt with at Mr. Bradburn's meeting the night before and effectively replied to the charges made against the administration. The progressive reform in temperance legislation, the profitable agreements with the power companies at Niagara Falls, the construction of the Temiskaming and James Bay Railways, were all measures marked by foresight and vigilance while the charge re the school book monopoly had been disproven ad nauseam. Mr. McWilliams dealt frankly and effectively with the so-called arguments which had been used in private canvass by friends of his opponents and closed with a vigorous appeal for the maintainence of their former majority. The enthusiasm with which his speech was received leaves little doubt of what will be the answer given.

Mr. Lee congratulated the township on its splendid hall, which had been erected since his last visit. He came before them as a supporter of the Ross Government and did so with special pleasure in support of a candidate who had already shown such marked ability. The splendid financial condition of the province, the high state of all branches of the public service, and the present policy of progress and development, all deserved the heartiest endorsation at their hands. The Opposition cries "Corruption." Yet they asked the people to elect, and in all probability place in Cabinet positions, such men as Beattie Nesbitt, et alli.

In the matter of temperance the Government had not attempted to coerce even a minority into total abstinence, but had done everything which lay in its power to further the cause of temperance reform.

Mr. Lee's address was marked by several eloquent passages, and was listened to throughout with the closest attention and heartily cheered.

The meeting was in every way a fitting close for the splendid series of meetings which the Liberal candidate has conducted in every section of the riding, and there is no doubt felt that the country portion of the riding will give him a handsome majority.

ODDFELLOWS AT PONTYPOOL

Members of Peterborough and Otonabee Lodges Assist at Installation.

A Delightful Evening was Spent—The Ladies' Part in the Programme

Last night a number of the members of the local Oddfellows' Lodges went to Pontypool to assist in the installation of the officers of Pontypool Lodge, No. 296, I.O.O.F.

This event in Pontypool is one which is participated in yearly by the great majority of the residents of that village, almost the entire male poulation of which are members of the Oddfellows' Order, and a most enjoyable evening is looked forward to, and invariably realised. After the more secret part of the proceedings had been concluded, the meeting was thrown open, and the ladies and friends of members were admitted and a programme given.

The members of the local lodges who were present last evening, with the District Committee, to assist in the installation ceremonies, were:—Bro. Fred Fry, D. D.G.M., Norwood; W. J. Webster, P.G., Norwood; R. F. Morrow, P.G., A. A. Fowler, P.G., L. Wallis, P.G., Wm. G. Barrie, P.G., of Peterborough Lodge, and Robert Matchett, P.G., Otonabee Lodge.

The officers installed were:

At the conclusion of the installation ceremonies refreshments were served, the caterer being Mr. T. Hill, who was assisted in the serving by the ladies of the village, who take a pride and a pleasure in performing this service.

After refreshments a short musical programme was given by local and visiting talent, the gathering dispersing in time to allow the visiting brethren to take the midnight train for home.

THE SON OF EX-U. S. MINISTER TO ENGLAND

Commends Pe-ru-na to All Catarrh Sufferers.

Hon. Louis E. Johnson is the son of the late Reverdy Johnson who was United States Senator from Maryland, also Attorney General under President Johnson, and United States Minister to England, and who was regarded as the greatest constitutional lawyer that ever lived.

In a recent letter from 1006 F St., N. W., Washington, D. C., Mr. Johnson says:

"No one should longer suffer from catarrh when Peruna is accessible. To my knowledge it has caused relief to so many of my friends and acquaintances, that it is humanity to commend its use to all persons suffering with this distressing disorder of the human system."—Louis E. Johnson.

Catarrh Poisons.

Catarrh is capable of changing all the life-giving secretions of the body into killing fluids, which destroy and impure every part they come in contact with. Applications to the places affected by catarrh can do little good save to relieve or assist disagreeable symptoms. Hence it is that gargles, sprays, atomizers and inhalants only serve as temporary relief.

There is but one remedy that has the desired effect, and that remedy is Peruna. This remedy strikes at once to the roots of catarrh by restoring to the capillary vessels their healthy elasticity. Peruna is not a temporary palliative, but a radical cure.

MARKET HALL MEETING.

The meeting in the Market Hall on Thursday evening was, in a party sense, a great success, but it utterly failed in that it did not afford the electors the slightest hint of what the policy of Mr. Whitney and his party was. The central theme of both the addresses, of Mr. Dennistoun and Mr. Whitney, was the one sided discussion of the one question of political corruption—it was not even as broad as that—of party wrong doing. Much eloquence was expended to endeavour to show that there was political wrong-doing on the part of Liberals, as much as to say that there was no political wickedness to the credit or, rather, discredit, of the Conservative party. A leader, or a speaker, who takes this stand, defeats, in the very beginning, any honest attempt at reform of political methods. We might just as logically expect the heads of the Reinhardt, Carling or Cosgrove Brewing Companies, to lead a crusade for temperance by abolishing the manufacture of beer, as to expect party leaders who ignore the existence of corruption in their own party to work for effective political reform.

Neither of the speeches at the Market Hall meeting afforded the slightest hint of what the administrative and legislative policy of the Conservative party would be in the event of their being advanced to power. It may satisfy Conservative party ambition to have their leader placed in power, but after the first glamour of their long expected triumph, may have passed off, the people, even the Conservative portion of them, will expect something in the way of administrative methods superior, if possible, to what the banner province of the Dominion now possesses and has flourished under in the past. It is idle, however, to discuss such a possibility for it is not at all probable that the electors will surrender the good government, good administration and good policy of progressive reform they now enjoy for the vague and indefinite administrative policy which the Conservative leader and his followers may have, to use the slang of the day, "up their sleeves," and which they so consistently refuse to disclose.

RESPECT FOR THE JUDICIARY

Even if there were not all the reasons contained in their splendid administrative record for voting for the Ross Government there is one weighty reason why the electors should consider carefully before voting for the Opposition. This reason is found in the manner in which that Opposition has attacked the judges and the courts. If there is one institution in which all British subjects feel a rightful pride it is that by which justice is dispensed. From earliest times it has been the first care of Briton's to maintain this institution in such a way that her people might rest secure in the confidence that the law was administered without fear or favour and as impartially as it was possible by men who, though trained for their position, are yet human.

It is this confidence that the Conservatives have sought to destroy. Whenever and wherever the learned judges have given decisions which did not accord with Conservative ideas that party has invariably cast doubt upon the honour and honesty of the judge. Insistently through their press and by their speakers have they proclaimed the judges to be nothing more than docile tools for men against whom, with as little foundation, they urge every crime in the political calendar.

Now, while it is entirely possible that there might arise on the bench a man not fitted for the high position he occupies, it is unthinkable that all the judges who have all their previous lives been men of sterling honour and unimpeached integrity, suddenly, upon ascending the Bench, became a lot of rascals. Yet this is the idea which the Conservatives are endeavouring to instil into the minds of the electors. But just as there are certain human relations which must not be touched with ruthless hands, if our whole family life is not to be destroyed, so there are certain social relations which must be maintained if the state is not to be disrupted. The honourable independence of the judiciary is one of these. Take away that and a premium is at once placed on anarchy. The man who seeks to destroy it is guilty of grave disloyalty to the state, and the Conservatives in so doing have given the electors of the province much ground for thinking that they are not fit and proper men to be entrusted with the management of the vitally important matters which are cared for by the Legislature.

PRACTICE VS. PREACHING.

Some of those who shout the loudest about patriotism in business get under the barn, mys a trade exchange, when it comes to putting their preaching into practice. There are manufacturers who blazon their establishments with "Made in Canada" placards who do not give that encouragement to other native enterprise they demand for their own. They even go out of their way to buy goods from outside sources not only to meet their personal requirements, but in the ordinary course of business. A handsome catalogue reached this office some time since from a Canadian concern that derives all its support from Canadian buyers, but the catalogue bore the imprint of an American concern. "Made in Canada" was the motto of this concern for its goods, "Made in U.S." for its printed matter.

GOOD MEETING AT CENTREVILLE

Mr. McWilliams' Campaign is Progressing Favourably.

Splendid Addresses by the Candidate and Mr. MacKay of Toronto.

The Liberal meeting at Centreville Thursday night was well attended and the two able speeches delivered by Mr. Robert Mackay, of Toronto, and Mr. McWilliams, were listened to with the closest attention. The chair was taken by Mr. D. McIlmoyle, who briefly introduced the speakers.

Mr. McWilliams devoted his attention to the record of the Government, the present financial position of the Province and the policy of continued progress now presented by the Liberal party. In every department of administration the Government were able to come before the people with a record of marked success, with a present position surpassing that of any of our competitors. Large sums of money had been spent upon the various matters over which the province has jurisdiction but more than three quarters of the expenditure had been made in ways that were a direct saving to the municipalities. Not only do the people of this province not pay a provincial tax as is done in almost every state of the American Union, but the province in making these grants keeps down the local taxes to a very large extent. The Opposition now deem that Mr. Whitney would have done the same had he been in charge but that that would not have been the case is obvious from the fact that he opposed the very methods by which the revenues were raised which were needed to meet these expenditures. In the thrifty, honest manner in which the Crown Lands and Timber had been managed lay the chief source of our large revenue and in this regard the Liberal administration are able to present a record not only good but unparalleled. At the present time one-fourth of the revenue is being raised by the taxes on corporations and by the succession duties all of which were strongly opposed by the Opposition and had Mr. Whitney had charge of the affairs of the Government the province would have been poorer to the extent of over a million dollars a year.

In all departments of administration, upon the temperance question and in the development of the great New Ontario the policy of the Government was one of progressive reform that deserved and would receive another endorsation from the people. There was little doubt about the result in this constituency but he was anxious to have the support of every municipality and he asked all and particularly the large number of young men present to give him their active support on election day.

Mr. Mackay complimented the Liberals of the riding upon the excellence of the Government for which they fought, and of their candidate. The record of the Government is one that deserves to be carefully studied and the more it is studied the more convinced must any man, who is not a hide-bound partisan, be of the importance of keeping a cabinet that accomplishes such things. What policy do the Opposition offer to offset such a record? Where have they made any effective criticism? They opposed the agreement by which the province will make a quarter of a million dollars a year out of the Niagara Falls power. They opposed the pulp concessions which have added another immense industry to the wealth of the province. They opposed the guarantee to the "Soo" industries, which has resulted in the opening once more of the immense works, in which $25,000,000 had been invested, and in the employment of 4,000 men, with a payroll of $150,000 a month. And for all this the Government had not, and would not, have to pay out one cent. They even opposed the payment of the wages of the men who were stranded at Sault Ste. Marie, though of this action they are now heartily ashamed. These are but a few examples of the manner in which the country's business would have been looked after had it been in charge of Mr. Whitney and his party, and it is for the province now to judge whether or not they want such a substitute for the record of the Government.

The Opposition cried loudly about the corruption, but did anybody believe their claims to purity on their own side? They they had not the hardihood to claim that except by implication. What was to be expected from a Premier who is himself led by such a man as Dr. Nesbitt? Mr. Mackay reviewed the record of him and similar men, and asked what was to be thought of the sincerity of a party which asked them to vote for Calder in South Ontario, and for Nesbitt in North Toronto? Mr. Mackay closed a very able and effective speech by urging on the audience the importance and duty of doing all they could in the remaining days to secure the return of Mr. McWilliams and the Ross Government.

Strathcona to the Rescue.

London, Jan. 21.—(C.A.P.)—At the meeting of the British Empire League, presided over by Lord Derby, a resolution was moved by Lord Strathcona, on the status in Great Britain of the offspring of marriages made in other parts of the Empire. The Council unanimously expressed the hope that the Prime Minister would give favorable consideration to the deputation which would submit their views on the question. This resolution is probably aimed to secure the recognition of marriages with deceased wives' sisters, non-recognition of which in Great Britain recently caused a strong protest from Australia.

MOUNTED POLICE PAY.

Premier's Resolution For An Increase Passed By the Commons.

Ottawa, Jan. 21.—After an hour's business, devoted chiefly to the consideration of estimates, the House adjourned yesterday until Monday.

The obstacle to progress in Committee of Supply caused by the delay in bringing down the Auditor-General's report will be overcome by bringing down an interim report from the Auditor-General. Next week the Government will be able to proceed with the estimates for those departments the expenditure of which is covered in the reports.

The House in committee passed the resolution introduced by the Premier for increasing the pay of all ranks in the Northwest Mounted Police. Sir Wilfrid Laurier explained that the Government in granting the increase were merely complying with urgent representations by representatives of the Northwest Territories on the floor of the House and with the public demand. The present cost of the force, $1,000,000, will be augmented by $50,000 as a result of the increase. It was not, he added, the intention to at once strengthen the force to the maximum of 1,000 men. The increase would be gradual as the needs of the service required.

In Committee of Supply the items for the Labor Department under the head of Civil Government were voted. The House adjourned at 4 p.m.

Two Seats to Be Filled.

Ottawa, Jan. 21.—Two resignations were announced by the Speaker yesterday. Sir Wilfrid Laurier in Wright and Edward Kidd in Carleton. Sir Wilfrid ran for both Wright and Quebec East, and has selected to sit for the latter. Mr. Kidd is resigning to provide a seat for R. L. Borden. The Speaker stated that he had issued his writ for both elections.

RIFLES FOR ANSWER

Czar's Reply to Striking Slaves Who Are in Abject Poverty.

PITIFUL PETITION FOR HELP

Russian Authorities Believe They Have the Situation in Hand—Garrison of St. Petersburg Strengthened—Some Concessions Will Be Made—Russian Capital On the Verge of An Incipient Revolution.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 21.—A proclamation has been issued this morning forbidding all assemblages, parades or other demonstrations in the city, and warning disposed workmen and other persons individuals to avoid gatherings, as the authorities are determined to break up and disperse meetings imperilling public safety. The proclamation is printed in The Police Messenger, which is the only publication appearing this morning, the police having forced the printers to remain at work until the paper appeared.

AN INCIPIENT REVOLUTION.

Garrison of St. Petersburg Strengthened—Some Concessions to Be Made.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 21.—With the Russian capital seemingly on the verge of an incipient revolution, thousands of workmen parading the streets, agitators and fanatics sowing the seeds of disorder, half the city in darkness and without fire protection owing to walk-outs, the situation was hourly growing more intense when the authorities decided last night to adopt energetic measures to preserve order, prevent rioting and over-awe the violent-minded, at the same time seeking to placate the striking workmen by offering satisfaction to their demands in so far as they were just and reasonable, thus acting with combined firmness and moderation.

Increase City Garrison.

The Government last night augmented the garrison of the city with 2,500 cavalry and 1,000 infantry from Tsarkoe-Selo and filled the streets, especially in the disaffected quarters, with heavy patrols of soldiers. The refusal to permit a delegation of workmen to present a petition to the Emperor at Tsarkoe-Selo made it known that the great demonstration planned for Sunday, with its unlimited possibilities for an outbreak will not be permitted to take place.

Will Offer Concessions.

At the same time, acting in conjunction with a conference of employers, it has been determined to offer concessions in the terms of employment which the employers declared the great majority of the workmen would be inclined to accept if they were guaranteed protection from the more violent faction. Late last night it was reported that Father Gopon, the leader of the workmen, had been quietly spirited away from his bodyguard and taken into custody in furtherance of the plan to disorganize the elements that are threatening the peace of the city.

Even Expect Peace.

The authorities believe that by these steps they have the situation well in hand, and announce that they expect a peaceful solution of the problem. The situation had entered an acute stage yesterday and the strike had assumed an open political phase. The day was one of intense excitement. Mill after mill and factory after factory closed. Throngs of workmen paraded the streets, and when their colleagues refused to join them broke down gates and forced out the men. The whole industrial centre is idle. All the textile mills and every printing office in St. Petersburg are closed.

Over 100,000 Men Out.

One electric light plant and one water plant have shut down and over 100,000 men are out. Throughout the day workmen's meetings were held, at which incendiary speeches were made, the wildest threats being uttered as to what would come if the authorities and employers failed to meet their demands. The general dread was increased by reports that the workmen of Moscow, Kieff, Kharkoff, Kishineff and other large cities in the interior might join in the movement. While the Government and employers temporized the telegraphers and railroad employes threatened to join the strike, paralyzing the communications of the country. Many foreigners are preparing to send their families abroad. Every newspaper in St. Petersburg has been forced to suspend publication owing to the strike.

Will Affect Our Coal.

Montreal, Que., Jan. 21.—Its a queer wind that does not blow good to some one. F. L. Wanklyn, vice-president of the Dominion Coal Co. stated yesterday that should the present strike of the German coal miners continue, it will probably have the effect of increasing prices of coal in Canada. The strike has already raised the price of British coal considerably, and if the strike continues the result will be that British ships which carry cargoes of coal as ballast to Canadian ports at a low rate, which, on account of the preference, can be landed here with profit, competing successfully with the Canadian article, will be unable to obtain their coal at a cheap enough rate to render it profitable to export

Do Not Suppress a Cough.

When you have a cough do not try to suppress it, but remove the cause. The cough is only a symptom of some disease, and the disease is what you should cure, then the cough will stop of itself. The most common cause of coughing is a cold. Anodynes will promptly suppress the cough, and preparations containing chloroform, opium, etc., are used for that purpose, but they do not cure the cold. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy on the other hand does not suppress the cough, but relieves it by removing from the throat and lungs the mucus which obstructed the breathing and allaying the irritation and tickling in the throat. It also opens the secretions and effectually and permanently cures the cold as well as the cough. For sale by all druggists.

PITIFUL REQUEST FOR HELP.

Russian Workers Petition to the Czar in Present Crisis.

The following is the text of the strikers' petition to the Emperor:

"Sire.—We, workmen, inhabitants of St. Petersburg of all classes, our wives and children and indigent parents, come to you our sovereign, as king for protection. We are poor, persecuted, burdened by labor beyond our strength. We are insulted, treated not as men, but as slaves, who ought to bear their cruel fate in silence. We have suffered, but we are being plunged deeper in the mire and deprived of our rights. Uninstructed, stifled by destitution and injustice, we are perishing. We have no strength left.

"Sire, we have arrived at the extreme limits of endurance, we have reached the terrible moment when death is to be preferred to continuation of our intolerable sufferings. We have left our work and informed our employers that we will not resume until our demands are conceded. We have not asked much; we have asked but for means of livelihood, without which life is a burden, and labor continual torture. Our first request is that our masters should investigate our case. They have refused. We have been denied the right to put forward our claim, it being held that such right is not recognised by law."

After referring to the eight hours day and other points of their case, the petitioners continue: "Any one of us who dared raise his voice in the interests of people of the working classes, has been thrown into prison or transport. Kindness and good feeling have been treated as a crime. The bureaucracy has brought the country to the verge of ruin in a shameful way. It is luring it to its downfall. We have no voice in the heavy burdens imposed; we do not know for whom or why this money is wrung from an impoverished people, and we do not know how it is expended. This state of things is contrary to divine laws, renders life impossible. It were better that we should all parish, we workers and all Russia. Then good luck to capitalists and exploiters and poor, corrupt officials, robbers of the Russian people.

"Assembled before the palace, we plead our salvation. Refuse not thine aid and raise thy people from their tomb. Give them means of working out their own destiny. Rescue them from intolerable official domination. Throw down the wall that separates; free thy people; order that they may rule the country with thee. Create for the people the happiness wrenched from us, leaving us nothing but sorrow and humiliation.

"We pray your Majesty graciously to receive our demands, which are inspired by a desire for your Majesty's and our welfare, and the consciousness of necessity of escape from an intolerable situation. Russia is too great and her needs are too varied and numerous for officials only to rule. National representation is indispensible, as only the people themselves know the country's real needs."

Cannot Reach the Czar.

The above petition was to have been presented personally to Emperor Nicholas. A deputation of workmen endeavored to see His Majesty at Tsarskoe-Selo and appeal to him to come to the winter palace Sunday, to be present at an immense demonstration of the industrial classes. It was planned to have all the workmen in St. Petersburg, headed by their leader, the priest Gopon, in full gorgeous garb, march to the palace and assemble in the great parade ground in front of the palace and there present the petition to His Majesty. The deputation, however, will be refused admission to the Tsarskoe-Selo. The Government believes this will render a meeting on Sunday impossible.

Princesses Plead For Justice.

Princesses Droutsky, Sakolinsky, Diubanski, Kirsakoff and Shamansky, representing the nobility of the Government of Minsk, have petitioned Minister of the Interior Sviatopolk-Mirsky on behalf of whole of the northwestern districts of Russia for equal rights for all nationalities and classes in the Empire. The Minister has replied that the question has already been decided.

ASK ROOSEVELT'S AID.

For Britain If She Stands For Effective Turkish Reforms.

London, Jan. 21.—The Balkan committee, of which Jas. Bryce is president, is memorializing President Roosevelt, by letter, urging American support of any action Great Britain may take tending to bring about more effective reforms in the Christian Provinces of Turkey.

The memorial refers to the President's remarks in his recent message to Congress regarding Turkey and Armenia, says that conditions in the Macedonian Provinces call for no less active interference on the part of civilized nations, and concludes:

"If you in behalf of American people would make known your approval of such proposals and your intention to co-operate with and support the British Government, with or without the active support of other powers, you would thereby strengthen the hands of the British Government and the determination of the British people and thus secure that real reform which to our American kinsfolk in itself is desirable for the simple and sufficient reason contained in your message to Congress, namely, the cessation of chronic wrongdoing."

FOUR ALREADY DEAD

TWO HURT, ONE FATALLY

All Were Married Men and Employes of the Mill, Which Is Situated in the Southern Part of Norfolk County—Second in a Short Time and No Cause Assigned For Explosion.

Woodstock, Jan. 21.—One of the worst boiler explosions in this district in years occurred at John Whitehead's saw-mill in the southern part of Norfolk County, early yesterday morning. As a result four are dead, one more fatally injured and another seriously hurt.

The dead are: George Asphen, George McCallum, Freeman Moffatt, Charles Panard.

Michael Asphen will not live and John Whitehead was severely bruised. All were employes at the mill, and all the victims are married men. The deaths and the injuries were caused by pieces of the demolished engine striking the men. Parts of the iron were hurled 100 yards.

No cause is assigned for the explosion. It occurred while the engine was in operation, and the theory is that the water got too low in the boiler. The mill was completely wrecked, and the injured men were terribly mangled.

This is the second catastrophe of this nature in the section within a short time. An investigation into the cause is likely to be held.

WRECK OF "SUNRISE" EXPRESS.

Four Persons Seriously Hurt, But They Will Recover.

Durham, N. H., Jan. 21.—The "Sunrise" express, from Halifax and St. John for Boston, was wrecked yesterday morning a short distance west of the Durham station. Four cars were derailed and a number of persons were injured, four seriously. No one was killed. The accident was caused by a broken rail.

Those severely injured were: Miss Belle Donald, Hampton, N.B., severe injuries to head and shoulder dislocated; colored porter of Pullman car, head and shoulders lacerated, and bruised by being thrown through car window; Albert Hall, Portland, Me., head and hip injured. It is thought all of these will recover.

Seven other passengers sustained injuries necessitating medical attendance, and a dozen or more sustained cuts and bruises of a minor nature.

The train was an hour late when it passed Durham, and was running at a speed of 70 miles an hour. The forward part of the train passed over the broken rail safely, but four passenger coaches behind the Pullman sleeper were ditched, but were not seriously damaged.

The students of the New Hampshire State College of Agriculture turned out in a body to rescue the passengers from the overturned cars, and seven female members of the college acted as nurses in the caring for the injured.

Escape in Night Clothes.

Brockville, Jan. 21.—The family of William Loucks of Mountain township, escaped in their night clothes from their home, which was discovered on fire early Thursday morning. Mr. Loucks was awakened by the crackling of burning timbers, and immediately aroused the household. Miss Loucks was almost overcome by smoke, and had to be taken out of an upstairs window. The house with the contents was entirely consumed. There was no insurance.

Death By Carbolic Acid

Brandon, Man., Jan. 21.—A Winnipeg woman committed suicide here some time during the night by taking carbolic acid. The woman, whose name was Mattie Borland, came from Winnipeg on Wednesday night's train and proceeded to an east end resort, where her dead body was found yesterday morning. Her husband is an engineer in Winnipeg.

Facts About Flour

Of Special Interest to our Women Readers.

ROYAL HOUSEHOLD MAXIMS.

A cook is only as good as the flour she uses.

Royal Household Recipes make baking day the pleasantest day of the week.

There are two kinds of flour, "Royal Household" and the kind that has not been purified by Electricity.

"This flour is just as good as" begins the grocer. "Send me "Royal Household" never-the-less" interrupts the woman who knows. "I have tried 'just-as-good' flour before."

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

NEAREST GROCER:—We are always glad to send to our correspondents the name of the nearest grocer who handles Royal Household Flour.

HOW MANY RECIPES:—We sent the ten recipes that one of our correspondents asked for last week for her neighbors. We are always glad to send as many recipes as are needed.

THE BEST PAYS BEST:—The reason grocers find it pays to push Royal Household Flour is not because the profit is larger per barrel—for it isn't so large—but because it pays to please the customer.

HARD WHEAT VERSUS SOFT WHEAT:—Royal Household Flour is made of the best grade of hard wheat. Hard wheat is the best spring wheat grown in Manitoba. Soft wheat is winter wheat—inferior for flour making. Some millers advertise that they "blend" soft and hard wheat to get better flour. We do not blend wheat for Royal Household Flour.

THE BEST TEST IS YOUR OWN TEST, IN YOUR OWN HOME.

Your test, Mrs. Home Baker, is final, if you find "Royal Household" best in your baking, there is no argument.

Every day many Canadian women write us how pleased they are with Royal Household Flour —that it is all we say it is.

—that it's just as good for pastry as it is for bread.

—that it's quicker, easier, simpler to bake good bread and good pastry with Royal Household Flour, by the "Royal Household" Recipes.

That's one reason they like it so much.

TESTIMONIALS:—Last week we received nearly five hundred testimonials.

"THE FLOUR FOR ME."

"Royal Household" is the flour for me. I have used the popular brands, but none can compare with Royal Household."—Mrs. J. H. Shearer, 302 Richard Street, Vancouver, B.C. Nov. 12, 1904.

"THERE IS TOO MUCH BAD FLOUR."

"Royal Household" is what the people want—a better flour. There is too much bad flour put on the people of this country at the present time."—J. W. Elliott, Shortreed, B.C. Nov, 27, 1904.

"A GREAT IMPROVEMENT."

"I had an idea Hungarian was as good flour as it was possible to make, but I find "Royal Household" a great improvement, particularly in requiring much less kneading and makes a whiter and lighter bread."—Mrs. G. A. McLennan, Savane, Ont. Oct. 17, 1904.

GOOD MEETING AT WESTWOOD

In Interests of Mr. Anderson, Liberal Candidate

Mr. D. O'Connell and Hon. J. R. Stratton Addressed the Meeting

A meeting in the interests of the Liberal candidate for East Peterborough, Mr. J. Anderson, was held in the town hall Westwood, last night. Mr. Tudhope was in the chair, and expressed the object of the meeting. Mr. Anderson was unable to be present as he was speaking in another part of the riding.

Mr. D. O'Connell opened the meeting with a brilliant address, showing the happy condition in which the province of Ontario was financially as compared with the other provinces. He pointed out that while over one-third of the annual expenditure of Quebec went for interest on the debt, Ontario was receiving on interest over $1,000 per day. He showed the excellence of the educational system from the Kindergarten to the University. The system provided for the maintenance of the afflicted of all conditions. He also referred to the development policy of the Government, which was approved by the people, in the opening up of the newer parts of the province, portions which had hitherto remained dormant. The railway policy, the colonisation road policy, the land, timber and mineral policies, were all pointed out to have been in the interests of the province, which had millions of acres yet unoccupied.

Hon. J. R. Stratton also addressed the meeting, which closed with cheers for the King, Mr. Ross and Mr. Anderson.

SHOVEL FACTORY FOUNDATION

Good and Rapid Job of Work in Winter Weather

Remaining Building Operations to be Rapidly Finished

Mr. H. Sharter, contractor for the foundation of the Shovel Factory, has finished his contract, and has made an excellent job of it.

The foundation is of concrete, 68 x 181, x 4 1-2 feet in height, and contains 498 lineal feet, or, approximately 4500 cubic feet.

The work has been done in just three weeks, by the aid of ingenious appliances for operating in severe weather. The weather, however has been very favourable, comparatively mild. It would have been impossible to do the work at the corresponding period last year, as the thermometer was, on the average, about 20 degrees below zero.

Mr. J. J. Hartley, the contractor for the brick work, will begin operations next week. The C. P. R. is preparing to put in a siding to the works, the machinery will be on hand in about three weeks, ready for installment on the completion of the building, the specified date being the first of April. The factory will be put into operation as soon after that as possible.

CHOSEN FRIENDS OPEN MEETING

Grand Officers of the Order Visited the Local Council.

Objects of the Order as well as its Aims Themes of the Addresses—An Enjoyable Evening.

For those who attended the open meeting held last night under the auspices of the Peterborough Council, No. 423, Canadian Order of Chosen Friends, there was not a little disappointment. It had been expected that J. H. Bell, M. D., Grand Councillor, Kingston, would be present, but word was received that on account of illness he could not attend. N. F. McCammon, Past Grand Councillor, Belleville, was also to have been present, but a previous engagement prevented him. An attempt to secure other Grand Council officers, on short notice, for last night's meeting, did not prove successful. There was, however, a fair attendance. An enjoyable programme was run off and an address by Geo. W. Shibley, Organizer, Napanee, was appreciated. Mr. R. B. McGill, Past Councillor, was in the chair. A cornet solo by Mr. J. C. Miller, with piano accompaniment by Miss Minnie Anderson, was received with hearty applause.

In his speech Mr. Shibley took for his text, "The Chosen Friends, who they are and where they came from." Some years ago, he said, the city of Hamilton was the birth-place of a conviction that the rates for life insurance there were too large. It was a manufacturing city, and the labouring classes could not pay them. Eleven prominent men eventually started a Chosen Friends Lodge, on an idea engendered by experience in the United States. This lodge was supposed to stay in Hamilton, but it oozed out to Dundas and there the first Grand Council met. The Chosen Friends have been in existance for 17 years, and at the last Grand Council held in Toronto there were 600 delegates present. The insurance of the Order came within the reach of all, and the speaker elucidated the table of rates for insurance and sick benefits. A young man was made independent, he said, by the investment of 60 or 75 cents a month in the Friends. The business man never questioned this fact, but knew where value was obtained for money paid. Mr. Shibley said that he did not claim that this was any better than any other society, but he held that it was superior to a straight line society. It was possible to go back 550 years in the Old Country and point to the beginning of such societies, as the Chosen Friends, who had millions of dollars behind them to-day. With regard to the running expenses, he said every member contributed $1 a year to the Grand Council for the purpose; there had been saved out of that to date, $11,000. He asked for still greater effort on behalf of the progress of Peterborough Council.

Mr. Shibley has travelled extensively in the Holy Land, and he promised before leaving Peterborough, he would tell them of his two years' experience there.

Mr. McGill, in a short speech, pointed out that there were 150 members in the Council here, and that an evidence of the strength of the Order was the fact that there are 17 locals in the City of Toronto alone.

The programme of music was now continued, and those who contributed were little Irene Shibley, in a pleasing vocal solo, Mr. J. C. Miller, in a song, which was very well received, and Mr. Will Dundass in a well-executed banjo solo, on which he received an encore.

Mr. Shibley installed the officers who were elected some weeks ago. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

It is expected that the grand officers will be present at a meeting on the evening of Friday, Feb. 3rd.

The officers of the local Council for 1905 are:—

LATE MRS. J. P. WILSON

Was Greatly Beloved by Large Circle of Friends

The Belleville Intelligencer says: Mrs. (Rev.) J. P. Wilson, wife of the pastor of Bridge street Methodist church, and President of the Bay of Quinte Conference, passed peacefully away last evening at the parsonage on Bridge street. Deceased, who was the third daughter of the late Mr. A. L. Roberts, was born in the township of Tyendinaga. In August, 1899, she was married to the Rev. Mr. Wilson, when he was stationed at Picton. She had since that time always taken a deep interest in church work. In April last she was taken ill and has since been a sufferer, but bore her affliction with true Christian fortitude. Her demise is not only a severe blow to the bereaved husband and members of the family, but to the church with which she was identified. In addition to the husband, one son, Dr. Cameron Wilson, and two daughters, Misses Janet and Mary, survive.

Mr. A. A. Roberts, of this city, is a brother of the deceased, and two other brothers, A. W., of Shelbourne, and W. E., of Orange Hall, and three sisters, Mrs. John Palmer, of Shelbourne; Mrs. D. W. Houston, of Troy, N.Y., and Mrs. J. H. Roberts, of Actinolite, survive. To the sorrowing ones will be extended the sympathy of all classes.

On Saturday morning the remains will be taken to Bridge street church where services will be held. They will be taken to Napanee for interment, and Rev. W. J. Jolliffe left for that town yesterday to attend the funeral.

HELPFUL MEETINGS AT THE Y.M.C.A.

Review of the Month's Work at the Association Rooms

The Sunday afternoon Gospel meetings of the Y.W.C.A., held so far this year have been very popular. Mrs. H. P. Kennedy took charge of the first meeting and gave a most practical and helpful talk on the subject, "Consider the Lillies." The appropriate solo rendered by Mrs. G. B. Miller was heartily appreciated by the young women present.

The attendance at the second meeting which was presided over by the President, Mrs. (Dr.) Scott, was unusually large. An able address on "Strong Hearts" was delivered by Rev. Freeman J. Scott, and the beautiful solo, "Face to Face," rendered by Mr. Norman Jolliffe, added much to the interest and helpfulness of the meeting.

To-morrow afternoon at 4.15, Mrs. (Rev.) Campbell will speak to the young women on a subject of much importance to all. Special music will be rendered.

Attention is called to Miss A. Weir's Literary Club which meets on Tuesday evenings at eight o'clock for the study of Shakespeare's "Coriolanus." Also to the Bible class which meets at the same time on Friday evenings. The character sketch of David, which is being taken up at present under the efficient leadership of Mrs. J. M. Roberts, is proving highly entertaining and instructive. All members of the Association are invited to attend these classes, both of which are membership privileges.

On Monday at 3.30 p.m. the first meeting of the new Board of Managers of the Y.W.C.A. will be held for the purpose of electing officers.

LESSONS THAT JAPAN TEACHES

Interesting Lecture by Prof. McCurdy on "Our Debt to the East."

One of the most enjoyable lectures heard in Peterborough in a long time was that delivered last night in the George street Methodist Sunday School room by Prof. McCurdy, of Toronto University, on "Our Debt to the East" and although it was not largely attended the subject was handled in a most interesting manner by the lecturer, who has attained to considerable prominence in Canadian literature, and who is an authority on Eastern questions, which for a number of years he has made a special study of.

The lecture was delivered under the auspices of the Literary Department of the Epworth League, who are to be congratulated upon providing such a literary treat. This is the first of a series of three lectures arranged for by this department, and if these succeeding are as interesting and as profitable as that delivered last night the organization deserves great credit and should receive the hearty support port of all the citizens who appreciate lectures of this nature.

Probably greater interest attached itself to the lecture on account of the prominence which Eastern affairs are being given in the thought of the world to-day, chiefly because of the war in which a representative Eastern nation, Japan, is engaged, and Prof. McCurdy referred especially to that nation in his lecture.

The chairman of the evening was Rev. Dr. Crothers, pastor of the church, and Hon. President of the League, and preceeding the lecture a vocal solo was rendered by Mr. Jas. Browne, which was very much appreciated, while after the lecturer had concluded Miss Clara Helleghem, in excellent voice rendered "Ora Pro Nobis," the accompanists for the soloists being Mr. Schneider and Prof. Milner.

THE LECTURE.

Prof. McCurdy in introducing his lecture said that while it seemed absurd it was a fact that we had to go to the East to thoroughly understand the West, and the first requisite in understanding other people is to understand oneself. It is very difficult to understand the motives and dispositions of nations or people in other parts of the world.

We naturally think that we are the people, and while in a certain way he supposed we were, but it must not be forgotten that there were other nations which were not inferior to us though they may be different. There is the old East and the new East, and Japan is an exemplification of the latter. We owe a debt to the old as well as to the new East, as he hoped to show.

The speaker first referred to what he termed material acquisitions, and said that the greatest of these were those of territory and money, by which the Western nations, and particularly Great Britain had been largely benefitted. He was not sure that these material possessions had been altogether beneficial to them though, and instanced the cases of the famine in India, and the destitution in London, to which the people of Canada were contributing.

Then in addition to the material acquisitions the West had received from the East what he considered of much greater importance, and the contemplation of which he enjoyed more than that of the material possessions. These he designated as semi-material acquisitions, and of these perhaps one of the most valuable was the alphabet. The Bible had also come from an Eastern nation, the Hebrews. The Arabic numerals, without the use of which the present mathematical achievements would have been impossible, have also been handed down to us from the East. Printing had been first discovered by the ancient Babalonyons, but the use of movable blocks for printing had first been made by that despised people, the Chinese. Paper was also the product of a Chinese merchant. The mariners' compass and gunpowder had been discovered by the Chinese, who were an exceedingly clever race in the early days. For, these, and other things which the West has received from the East the former's debt is enormous.

Going more into detail, the speaker referred to the Japanese nation, which, he said was a puzzle to the West, but while Japan was not understood by the people of the West the Japanese are thoroughly acquainted with the West, of which they have made a study during the last few years, and they now know it well enough for all practical purposes, which is all they want.

Japan, said the speaker, has given the world a new idea of the possibilities of the human race by the wonderful advance the people of that nation have made in the last thirty odd years. It is only about thirty-years ago that Japan began to learn from the West and before that time the Japan had refused most strenuously all efforts of the other nations to obtain a foothold for trade in the country, but when once the doors had been opened the Japanese had welcomed warmly the Western people, and had shown themselves most anxious to learn from them. In view of this fact it was nothing short of wonderful the progress that Japan had made in the last thirty-seven years, because it must be remembered that it took them several years to start to learn. They have now come to the forefront of the nations, and are an example of organization as well as of enterprise. Japan is a marvel to the world in legislation, education and business.

The general impression gained during the present war in which Japan is engaged, is that she is a martial nation, but this is not the case; it is simply an exemplification of the predominant motive of the Japanese people.

Japan can teach the West a lesson in patriotism. They make everything bend to what they consider as being in the interests of their country, and individuality is lost sight of. They are anxious to learn from any and every source, and they are not afraid to admit that they do not know when such is the case, and the speaker believed that this was the reason that the Japanese had made such phenomenal progress in recent years.

China was also referred to by the speaker who said that it had at one time been a much greater country than it was at present. It had the longest history of any country in the world, and the speaker believed that the age of the country was due principally to the nation's observance of the principle involved in the fifth commandment, which promised that honour shown to one's father and mother would ensure long life, and China was an example of paternalism gone mad.

The Chinese were equally as clever as the Japanese, but the latter were superior in organization and enterprise. Now that Japan is getting her rights he had no doubt but that China would benefit largely. Only a short time ago the powers had agreed to respect China's rights with regard to territory, which he considered a hopeful sign.

Prof. McCurdy referred briefly to India and Palestine as examples of Eastern typical countries, and spoke of the literature of India, which was remarkable for its moral teaching, many of the same truths, and, in some cases, the same phrases, appearing in the literature of that country as in the Bible, and it was not possible for it to have been copied by either.

The Hebrew people were perhaps the most gifted people in the world, and it was impossible to enumerate the benefits which had accrued to the West from the Hebrew nation. The crowning gift to the world from the Hebrews is the Bible.

The lecture was thoroughly enjoyed by those who heard it, and deserved a much more general attendance. At its conclusion a vote of thanks was moved to the lecturer by Mr. A. O. Kidd, the president of the League, and enthusiastically endorsed by the audience.

If the League continues to provide such entertaining and instructive lectures as that of last night, it deserves the thanks of the public.

MRS. G. A. COX'S SERIOUS ILLNESS

Former Peterborough Lady is Ill in Toronto.

Fears That She May Not Recover—Has Been Ailing For Some Years.

Word was received in town this morning of the very serious illness of Mrs. George A. Cox, at her home, 439 Sherbourne street, Toronto, and fears are entertained for her recovery, in fact a telegram received in town at noon, stated that while she was resting quietly at that time, it was not expected that she would survive the afternoon.

This news will be received with the deepest regret and sorrow, by the very many friends here in Peterborough of Mrs. Cox, who was born, and lived here, both before and since her marriage to Hon. Senator Cox, in 1862. About fifteen years ago, Mrs. Cox removed to Toronto, with her husband, and has since made her home there, but she has frequently visited the town, and is still well-known. She was last in Peterborough about six weeks ago.

Mrs. Cox has been ailing for some years, and has consulted the best physicians both on this continent and in Europe, and only returned from a trip to the continent a short time ago, with Mrs. A. E. Ames, her daughter, and it is feared that the journey was too great a strain upon her system. Mrs. Cox was born on Nov. 11th, 1844, and was married to Senator Geo. A. Cox on May 28, 1862. Mrs. Cox is a daughter of the late Daniel Hopkins.

POPULAR YOUNG MAN'S REMOVAL

Mr. E. R. Jarvis promoted to Management of Milfort, N.W.T., Bank.

Mr. A. R. Jarvis, who for the last two years has filled the position of accountant in the local branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, received word this morning of his transfer by the bank management to Milfort, N.W.T., of which branch he will be made manager. The news of Mr. Jarvis' departure from town will be received with sincere regret by very many persons here, for he is a most popular young man, and during his two years' residence here has made a large circle of friends. He was a member of the Peterborough Club and the C.D.A., a social organization, and was prominent in social circles. He leaves to-night for his new position.

PROF. CLARK'S DANTE LECTURE

A Talented Gentleman will Speak on the Great Poet and his Works

An Intellectual Treat Which will be Provided After Easter

The present seems an opportune time to announce the coming to Peterborough of Prof. Clarke, of Trinity College, Toronto, to lecture upon "Dante." The other evening Rev. Dr. Torrance read a paper on the great mediaeval poet, before a large audience of interested people. It was on the occasion of one of those soiries literaires which Mr. Hughes-Charles instituted last winter, and has carried forward so successfully. The theme of the lecturer was the "Life and Divine Comedy of Dante," and it is needless to say that the subject was well treated. The comment of those who remarked upon the lecture indicated the power of the poet in arousing the profound interest of those who study him. There can be no doubt in the minds of many competent to judge, Dante was not only the greatest intellectual force of the fourteenth century, but of all centuries. His influence upon Italy was supreme. His religious fervour and his raising of a woman to the position of being in all things noble, and worthy of being his guide to Paradise, gave an extraordinary impulse to the worship of God, and to the general regard for a true and noble woman. Prof. Clarke will lecture for one week, giving a course of six lectures, three in the evening, and three in the afternoon. It will be the most notable literary event ever taking place in Peterborough. Although he comes under the auspices of St. Luke's church, he will receive 75 per cent. of the proceeds as an acknowledgment of his kindness to Peterborough in years gone by. The balance will go for expenses, and if there still be a balance it will go to St. Luke's Sunday school fund. As Prof. Clarke does not come till the week following Easter, it is proposed to sell in advance course tickets at one dollar each. The Sons of England Hall will make a suitable auditorium. Those wishing to have their names put down upon the subscription list, will confer a kindness by writing to Rev. E. A. Langfeldt.

GREW THIS HAIR

275 Wabash Ave., Detroit, Mich.

Seven Sutherland Sisters:

Dear Ladies,—I take pleasure in acknowledging the great benefits I have derived from the use of your Hair Grower and Hair and Scalp Cleaner. Three months ago when I commenced using them my hair was very thin and short and nearly all gone from the top and sides of my head. It had been in that condition for nearly three years. Since using your preparations it has grown at least four inches and is very heavy as my photo will show. I think it very remarkable considering my age. I have had my photo taken showing the new growth of hair which I give you permission to use in any way you desire. Also my letter. I remain,

Yours respectfully,

MRS. WOODWORTH.

A TWO-FOLD CONSCIENCE.

Rev. Dr. Milligan, Moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly, Preaches on the Late Principal Grant.

Rev. Dr. Milligan, Moderator of the General Assembly, preached on the late Principal Caven in Old St. Andrew's Church, Toronto, on a recent Sunday. The service throughout was memorial in character, and the congregation completely filled the edifice. Dr. Milligan paid a splendid tribute to the departed leader of Canadian Presbyterianism. He took for his text the words of Isaiah. "He that believeth shall not make haste," and said in part:

"The characteristics of a man whose life is rightly founded are stability of character and constancy of action. Belief means personal conviction and experience. Such a man will have growth, for all things are his. He has the principles of Christ and will work them out in his own way, and will never be unduly alarmed, never unduly elated. A believer will be a man of unity, of architectonic mind, seeing the many through the whole, and the whole through the many. These features were marked characteristics of our friend, Principal Caven. Of him it might truly be said, the boy was father of the man. Constancy was a feature of his life all through. He studied with assiduity alike when his work was in the woods at St. Mary's, his first charge, or as Principal of Knox College.

Endorsed Historical Criticism.

"The stability of Principal Caven was not that of a vast stone on a lonely moor, but of a living tree planted by the rivers of waters that brought forth fruit in its season. In 1902 he expressed himself as endorsing the method of historical criticism as applied to the Scripture, set high value upon a study that has come among us since he was a student, namely, Biblical theology, and deprecated that people should become panic-stricken about mere words. He showed that the man of broad, penetrating light is never the victim of panic.

"It was at the college conferences that Principal Caven shone as a scholar of varied and thorough learning. His students have told me they never knew him from the classroom as they did through the conferences. He mastered the principles and details of varied fields of learning. Hence he was never overelated by cries of wonderful discoveries, or alarmed by fears regarding the decadence of faith.

"The discriminating patience and unflagging thoroughness which characterized him as a student qualified him for valuable leadership in his Church. Every man fitted to lead his fellow-men will recognize that there is a twofold conscience requiring to be dealt with in the conduct of human affairs, whether in Church or State.

The Corporate Conscience.

"A man's personal convictions come within the scope of his individual conscience. There are corporate convictions as well as individual convictions, which the community recognize and beyond which they are not now prepared to go. Any forcing of these would bring hurt to the community, be it civil or ecclesiastical. There is a corporate conscience as well as personal. The wise leader keeps an eye upon the former in discharging his duty to his fellowmen, whilst the personal conscience is one between his God and himself. Only an irenic, constructive mind can exhibit truth as men are able to hear it. Secure himself from panic, he is anxious that groundless alarms shall not stampede his fellow-men into foolish or deplorable actions. A leader among men should have a public conscience, alive to the importance of mutual trust and co-operation being maintained among them in their several relations as far as the interests of truth and righteousness will permit. And doing so with that love which believeth all things and hopeth all things for men, the peace he seeks of a collective kind is not that of expedience desiring peace simply for its own sake, but of the optimist who believes in allowing patience to have her unifying work among men, where mercy and truth shall meet together and righteousness and peace shall kiss each other. In the light of these ideas should be interpreted the tolerance and caution and gentleness, to a large extent, of him who has just been called from our midst.

"No man in Toronto to-day can well say that great learning and great mental gifts cannot be combined with simple Christian faith. On the contrary, his life teaches us that would we give our mental powers their true balance and best scope, we should exercise them with a view to the will and pleasure of God. We are thankful we knew him with his large knowledge, his penetrating intellectuality, his well-balanced judgment, his sweet geniality, his rich humor, his refining courtesy, and his warm and uplifting piety."

School of the Woods.

No doubt you have all wondered if the approaching winter will be as severe as the winter of 1903-04, and it may be interesting to hear of some of the signs of late fall.

The chipmonks, which generally stay in their dens all winter, can still be seen on warm days running about in the forest leaves, and do not appear to have decided to go in for the winter.

The robins still brave the cold November winds and chirpingly seem to say winter will not come yet.

Last year at this time the muskrats had built tunnels in the banks along the shore and were housed away for the winter. But now if a person were to walk along the shore on a moonlight night they could see these busy little workers building their domes far out in the bay water.

The knowing ones who have observed these things say that the cold this winter will be less severe and the snowfall lighter than in the past five winters.

May it be so.

At first we used to wash with Sunlight Soap in the old way as we did with common soap, but after we washed according to directions printed on the package, we would never wash the old way again. We first soap the articles, leave them to soak and then rub out lightly on the wash board. Not much to do and it makes the clothes white as snow.

The Duchess of Argyle.

Among those upon whom the honorary degree of doctor of laws was conferred at the last convocation of Glasgow University was the Duchess of Argyll. She is probably better known to Canadians as the Princess Louise, fourth daughter of Queen Victoria. In 1871 she was married to the Marquis of Lorne, who was Governor-General of Canada from 1878 to 1883, and who succeeded his father as Duke of Argyll in 1900. The Princess is well-known as one of the most talented members of the Royal family and excels as a musician and sculptor. The bronze statue of Queen Victoria in front of the Victoria Ladies' College at McGill University, Montreal, is her work.

BY ADDING NEW FIRM FLESH AND TISSUE AND INCREASING NERVE FORCE WITH

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

The restorative, upbuilding and invigorating influence of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, are the features which make it of incalculable worth to the person who is weak, run-down and nervous.

It is not a stimulant to whip up tired nerves.

It has not a deadening, narcotic effect.

It cures by forming new, red corpuscles in the blood and creating new nerve force.

If you find yourself restless, irritable and nervous, unable to sleep, and easily fatigued, lacking in energy and enthusiasm, subject to headaches, indigestion and bodily weakness you need just such help as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will give you.

This great food cure has become famous because of its power to reconstruct wasted tissues and to put new vitality into wasted nerves.

You need not expect miracles, because nervous diseases are never cured except by patient and persistent treatment. One thing you can be certain of is that each box of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will be of some benefit to you. This is because it is food cure and restorative.

Note our increase in weight while this medicine is being used. Note how the form is rounded out and the healthful glow is restored to the complexion.

Mr. J. Law, 247 Hunter street, Peterborough, and who is employed with the Peter Hamilton Company, states:

"For a long time I was troubled with severe splitting headaches, and suffered a great deal with pains in the region of my heart, caused no doubt by indigestion. I procured a box of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and began using this treatment. Since using this preparation for some time I can say that I feel quite different and my health is very much improved. My digestion is good and the headaches and pains about the heart have not troubled me at all of late. I can sincerely recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food as a thorough cure for nervous dyspepsia and its accompanying symptoms."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. The portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

Home, Sweet Home.

"The best Christmas sermon I have ever heard," says a parson, "was preached by a woman—and in three words.

"I was walking home late one Christmas eve. It was a wild night. Suddenly a poor woman asked me for help, and I told her that if she would follow me I would get her some supper.

"On entering my room I found that my thoughtful landlady had been busy. A plate of hot toast was standing on the fender; the kettle sang merrily; in front of the fire stood my slippers, back by an easy-chair.

"To my surprise, my poor, worn, haggard companion raised her dripping hands and burst into tears, saying, 'Oh, what luxury!'

"That was the best Christmas sermon I ever heard, and the only one I have ever forgotten."

Washington.

"My father," said Wellington's son, "deemed Washington the purest and noblest character of modern time—possibly of all time—and, considering the raw troops with which he had to oppose the trained and veteran soldiers of England, also a great general." Another interesting statement which the second duke made to General Wilson, who writes to the Cornhill, was that when his father was assigned to the command of an expedition to be sent out against the city of Washington and New Orleans in 1814 he declined the command chiefly on the ground that he would not fight against Washington's countrymen. And when his government asked for the names of three officers from whom a commander could be selected Wellington wrote, "Sir Edward Pakenham, Sir Edward Pakenham, Sir Edward Pakenham," and so poor Sir Edward, his brother-in-law, was sent to New Orleans to meet his death in the most disastrous defeat ever sustained by a British army.—St. James' Gazette.

Roman Gormands.

The wealthy gormands of Rome cherished a strong partiality for song birds. Both Horace and Martial refer with approval to roast thrush, and Ovid recommends "a crown of thrushes" as a lover's present to his mistress. Thrushes' breasts were one of the ingredients of the celebrated Apician dish, "Patina apiciana," which also included beccaficos, mushrooms, sow's udder, fish and chickens, rivaling the heterogeneous contents of a gypsy's "pot au feu."

Horace relates that the sons of Actius, to stimulate their appetite for dinner, lunched on "nightingales of monstrous price," and Varro tells us of the aviary of Lucullus, which was also a "salle a manger," so that the epicure gratified his ears and his palate simultaneously, feasting upon the delicate warblers whose congeners, unconscious of their coming doom, were discoursing meanwhile the most exquisite music.

Fen Down and Feathers.

Adulteration laws were quite as necessary in the good old days as in the sophisticated twentieth century. Even the adulteration of feather beds and bolsters had to be provided against. Oct. 14, 1495, is the date of a statute prohibiting the sale in English fairs or markets of these articles or of pillows, "except they be stuffed with one manner of feathers." It expressly denounced the use of such "unlawful and corrupt stuffs" as "scalded feathers, or fen down." The last substance is the same as cotton grass and was evidently in great demand as a substitute in bed stuffing. In the eighteenth century again there were complaints against people who bought fen down at a halfpenny a pound and sold it among feathers at sixpence.

Franklin and Kings.

In the writings of Thomas Jefferson are some interesting anecdotes of Benjamin Franklin. He says: "When Dr. Franklin went to France on his Revolutionary mission his eminence as a philosopher, his venerable appearance and the cause on which he was sent rendered him extremely popular. All ranks and conditions of men entered warmly into the American interest. He was, therefore, feasted and invited to all court parties. At these he sometimes met the old Duchess of Bourbon, who, being a chess player of about his force, very generally played with him. Happening once to put her king into prise, the doctor took it. "Ah," said she, "we do not take kings so." "We do in America," said the doctor.

Rum Butter Hunt.

In certain districts in England a mixture of butter, sugar, spices and rum, called "rum butter," is made when a child is born. A special bowl of the delicacy is hidden in some out of the way place in the house. Then a number of young fellows of the neighborhood search for it. Sometimes they succeed in locating it and at other times they fail. After eating the rum butter a collection is made among those present, and the money contributed is placed in the bowl for the newborn child and returned along with the bowl to the house where it was procured.—London Spectator.

The True Ideal.

The true ideal that should fill a man's heart and fire his energies is excellence in his own sphere, the living of his own particular life just as fully and nobly as he—not somebody else—can. True, this is an unknown quantity, but it is a real and attainable one. Day by day it is rising, and day by day a man may feel conscious of increased power. Whither it may lead him he cannot tell, but that by its guidance he will go farther and accomplish more than by any other he may rest assured. Attempting nothing impossible, he is doomed to no inevitable disappointment, nor is there any limit at which he may cease to strive.—Self Help.

A Pineapple Plantation.

The first operation in starting a pineapple plantation is to cut off the hammock growth and clear the area, though the stumps of the larger trees are left standing. The "slips," which are simply growths from the old plants, are usually put in with a pointed stick at the rate of 12,000 to the acre. The first crop matures in about eighteen months, and when three crops are secured, in as many years, the fields are abandoned for this culture, the surface again cleared and planted in tomatoes.

Facts About Breathing.

In the ordinary respiration of man 16 or 17 cubic inches of atmospheric air pass into the lungs 20 times a minute, or a cubic foot every 5¼ minutes—274 cubic feet in 24 hours. The lungs hold 280 cubic feet. At each respiration 1.375 of oxygen is converted into carbonic acid gas. The nitrogen inspired and expired is exactly equal. During the act of inspiration the lungs have been found to be the coldest parts of the body.

TRENT VALLEY CANAL.

By the End of This Year 130 Miles of the Canal Will Be in Operation—How the Work Progresses.

While the citizens of Peterboro and district pride themselves upon the fact that the Trent Valley waterway is navigable the entire distance from Healey's Falls on the Trent River to the head of Balsam Lake, very few are aware that at the end of the present year about 130 miles of the canal will be ready, and that vessels from Barrie and other Lake Simcoe ports will be able to visit Peterboro. Yet such is the case.

Mr. J. A. Aylmer of Peterboro, a member of the firm of Aylmer and Brown, who so successfully completed the section from Nassau to Lakefield, and who are in charge of the work on one section of the Balsam Lake and Lake Simcoe division, when seen recently, gave some interesting information about that part of the great waterway that should prove instructive, not only to the citizens of the district, but to the people of the Province generally.

The Balsam Lake and Lake Simcoe division is 18½ miles in length, and forms the connecting link between the two lakes. It is divided into three sections—section No. 1, from Balsam Lake to Kirkfield, a distance of about six miles, is already completed. The contract was let by the Conservative Government before going out of power to Mr. Andrew Onderdonk, who finished the work five years ago.

The second section begins at Kirkfield, and extends to the boundary between Eldon and Thora Townships, a distance of seven miles. At Kirkfield a hydraulic lift lock, similar to the one at Peterboro, although the lift is 10 feet lower, is being constructed. The concrete substructure is already completed, and the contract for the placing of the iron works was let a short time ago to the Dominion Bridge Company of Montreal, who installed the iron work on the lift lock. The cost of the lift lock will be about the same. The concrete work was not so costly, but the iron work will be more expensive, making the total cost about the same.

The second section is in charge of Messrs. Larkin and Sangster of St. Catharines, who will have the work completed by next December. There has been much excavation work on this section.

The third section, which is in charge of Messrs. Aylmer and Brown, extends from the head of Section 2 to Lake Simcoe, and is a little over six miles in length. Work on this part of the canal was commenced in the fall of 1900, and will be finished at the end of the present year. A considerable amount of work has already been completed. Messrs. Aylmer and Brown have built five locks, three dams, and five bridges since the commencement of the work. In all 60,000 yards of concrete work and over half a million yards of excavating has been done. There is a great deal of dredging to be done, and the firm are the possessors of a complete dredging plant, including barges, tugs, steam derricks, steam shovels, and other machinery necessary for the work.

Mr. Aylmer states that the work on this section has been more difficult than on the division between Nassau and Lakefield, owing to the fact that the ground is composed of clay, which is very heavy to handle. All the dams on the Lake Simcoe section are of concrete, the Government having decided to dispense with the old timber structures.

Messrs. Aylmer and Brown have between fifty and sixty men now engaged in preparing gravel and stone for this season's operations, which will commence in April. In summer a force of between 150 to 200 men are employed.

When the Lake Simcoe and Balsam Lake division is completed, which will be at the end of the present year, there will be a stretch of navigable water extending from Healey's Falls to Lake Simcoe, a distance in the neighborhood of 130 miles. Thus over three-fourths of the canal will have been completed, only the outlets at the end remaining unfinished. When they will be completed depends entirely, of course, upon the action of the Dominion Government. Surveying parties have been at work at both ends, and the Government will base their action upon their reports.

Auxiliary Bishop For Montreal.

London, Jan. 20.—(C. A. P.)—The Pope, acknowledging the growing importance of the Archdiocese of Montreal, has granted the request of Archbishop Bruchesi for an auxiliary bishop. The appointment has been given to the Vicar-General of Montreal, V. Rev. Z. Racicot.

Solar Eclipse.

The Government has approved of the despatch of a Canadian expedition to watch the total eclipse of the sun on August 30th next. Mr. W. F. King, chief astronomer, will have charge, and the Royal Astronomical Society will be invited to send six members to accompany the expedition. It is proposed to take photographic observations of the corona, also spectroscopic observations of the eclipse. The eclipse will last only two and a half minutes, so that everything must be in readiness for prompt action. The point selected is on the coast of Labrador, about 100 miles north of the Straits of Belle Isle, or on land if a suitable accessible place can be found. The Lick Observatory, California, will send three expeditions to observe the eclipse, one to Labrador, a second to Spain and a third to Egypt. The Carnegie Institute will also take some magnetic observations. This is the first expedition of the kind which Canada has sent out. It will be provided with some special cameras, having long focus lenses and spectroscopes.

When Ottawa Was Born.

From the first of January, 1855, the name of Bytown is to be erased from our Canadian list of towns, and that of Ottawa substituted. Ottawa is said to be an Indian name, signifying the Ear, and the aspiring little city on this fine tributary of the St. Lawrence furnishes a fair example of the rapidity of Canadian progress. We wish the newly named city and the citizens the best compliments of the season.—Montreal Pilot.—From The Globe of Jan. 9, 1855.

A Mathematical Puzzle.

Here is a strange little puzzle, which has the same answer, independent of the fact that no two people solving the puzzle were born the same year and consequently use the same figures. Write down the figures of the year you were born and from this take away four. Add your age at next birthday if it comes before January, otherwise your age at your last birthday. Multiply the result by 1,000 and from this deduct 635,423. Substitute for the figures corresponding letters of the alphabet, as A for 1, B for 2, etc. The result is a Chinese table delicacy which is used in this country for electioneering purposes. Strike out the first letter and transpose those that remain to form a word.

Anaemia.

The word anaemia is of modern origin. It was first mentioned by Albert Michel in 1732 in a thesis entitled "De Anaemia." However, if the nomenclature is new, the morbid condition indicated by the word was at all times well known. Hippocrates devoted several pages to a description of this particular condition, but Halle was the first to apply the term to a malady which was prevalent in 1802 among the miners of Anzin, in the north of France, and of which he gave a detailed description.

A Candid Critic.

Candid Critic—Awfully good song that! You ought to be with Carl Rosa. Jones (feeling rather flattered)—Really, do you think so? Awfully kind of you to—er—but Carl Rosa is dead. Candid Critic—Yes. I said you ought to be with him.—London Tatler.

OUT OF THE PLUMB LINE

ST. PAUL'S CROSS, LONDON, THREE FEET OUT OF PERPENDICULAR.

Cathedral and Other Famous Buildings Show Serious Fissures—The Foundations Unsettled—Recent Tube Tunnels Drain Sand Bed Above Clay and Necessitate Underpinning—Mr. P. Hovenden, Secretary of the London Institution, Explains the Danger.

The old cry is raised again of the dangers attending the undermining of London by a honeycomb of underground electric railways, which is proceeding apace.

St. Paul's Cathedral, the Bank of England and Westminster Abbey are all reported in imminent danger, and this time the alarm appears justified regarding St. Paul's, notwithstanding the denials of the Cathedral authorities.

Experts remain insistent that the danger has become serious. The foundations are sinking as the natural and inevitable consequence of the pumping which has accompanied the work of driving the various tunnels that have been constructed and the others which are still in progress in the immediate vicinity.

The experts go still further and say this incessant, tunnelling, which is proceeding in all parts of London, is undermining the metropolis.

The Bank of England and several other important buildings have been supported by underpinning from time to time. Since the first of the tunnellings of the last year or so were undertaken ominous fissures have been discovered in the fabric of St. Paul's. These are especially notable in the stonework of the southern transept, where one wall in particular has receded some inches from the perpendicular.

That a far greater danger is imminent, however, is the deliberate opinion of experts who have conducted an examination within the last few days.

The cross and ball which surmount the dome are now three feet out of the perpendicular. This is the conclusion arrived at by Mr. Frederick Hovenden, secretary of the London Institution, after spending two years in finding a plumbline among the adjacent buildings in order to gauge the deviation.

Mr. Hovenden asserts that if the Nelson column were as much out of the perpendicular it would soon be in the street, "and for that matter," he adds, "I view with dread the tunnellings which are incessantly going on around it."

Ominous cracks are also appearing in the walls of Westminster Abbey.

The authorities are undisguisedly much concerned about the state of affairs there and are having an examination made by experts.

Asked how the various burrowings cause these subsidences and consequent danger to London buildings, Mr. Hovenden replied: "In the case of St. Paul's, which is built upon a foundation of potearth, under which is a bed of water bearing gravel and sand, and beneath which again is the London clay, the danger has been caused by the gravel bed sinking, owing to its moisture being withdrawn.

"The moisture in the gravel bed has been drawn off by the pumping for the various tunnels which run in the vicinity and also by the percolation through the brick work of the large sewer which runs about thirty yards on the south side of the Cathedral."

But all over London, Mr. Hovenden asserts, the water in the gravel bed on the top of the London clay is being drawn off. The hitherto impervious London clay, disturbed by the sinking of shafts and tunnelling, has been rotted, and large quantities of water have fallen from the gravel and sands strata beside the iron tubes to a lower level.

In the building of these underground lines the pumping has had to be kept up night and day to enable the work to proceed uninterruptedly. Lower water courses have been formed in every direction in which the tube railways penetrate, the water sinking through the rotting clay beside the vertical shafts and running alongside the tubes themselves at a depth of eighty to a hundred feet.

At one or two points the water finds an outlet into the porous bed at the bottom of the London clay and at other points runs into a porous bed underneath the Thames.

The engineers have tried to seal the tubes to the clay hermetically by pumping thin Portland cement through holes in the iron left for the purpose, but this has been unavailing, because the cement had to be mixed so thin in order to pump it that it was precipitated and left all the water at the surface.

As a matter of fact, it has been found to be impossible to stop the downward flow of water from the gravel bed, for where once the maiden clay is disturbed it will resist moisture no longer, and the tubes have become conduits. London, therefore, in reality is being undermined in every part, whether near the tubes or not, for thousands of tons of water which, falling upon the northern and southern heights, formerly flowed into the gravel bed upon the London clay must find a lower level, and are doing so every day, with the consequence that there was never so much underpinning of buildings in the metropolis as is now necessitated in all directions.

The Bank of England was recently underpinned, and a large building in the City Road, erected four years ago, was found to be an inch out of plumb. Two years later this also had to be underpinned.

A further proof that this water has withdrawn lies in the fact that numerous shallow wells which studded the city a few years ago have now run dry.

Silenced.

Housekeeper—Those eggs you sold me were stale, and I asked you for fresh laid eggs. Dealer—Those eggs are fresh, madam, not salted, and they are laid eggs, madam, not manufactured. Had you desired eggs recently taken from the nest you should have asked for freshly laid eggs.

Time's Changes.

"It used to please me," said Olden, "to have the barber ask me if I wanted a shave when I was a youngster."

"Yes?"

"Yes, and now he sometimes flatters me by asking if I want a hair cut."

Lake Cayuga's Mysteries.

Lake Cayuga is one of the wonders of the eastern states. It is situated in west central New York and is upward of forty miles in length, with an average breadth of but three miles. One of its peculiarities is this: Although hundreds of persons have been drowned in its waters since the settlement of the adjacent territory, not a single corpse has so far been recovered, and it is a common saying that "Lake Cayuga never gives up its dead." Those who have made an attempt to fathom this mystery say that the bottom of this remarkable sheet of water is simply a series of large openings and craterlike cavities, the entire lake bed having the appearance of being one huge honeycomb, each of the wellike holes being reputed to be bottomless.

Another Cayuga mystery is its irregular tides. There is no stated time for their appearance, but when they do come they are very decided, the water often instantly receding 50 to 100 feet and as quickly returning with a roar that can be heard for miles.—Exchange.

Tommy Knew.

Mamma (to a friend who is lunching with her)—I don't know why it is, but I always eat more when we have company than when we're alone. Tommy (helping himself to a third piece of cake)—I know why it is—'cause we have better things to eat.

Its Sustaining Power.

"A hundred dollar bill will sustain a weight of forty-seven pounds lengthwise," says a treasury statistician. It will also sustain a man for a couple of months in a fairly good boarding house.

Sudden.

Tom—But isn't your love for Miss Plainum rather sudden? Jack—I suppose so. But, you see, her rich aunt died rather suddenly.

Changeable.

Parke—He says he dresses according to the climate. Rowe—If he did that he wouldn't have time to do anything else.

Severe Cold in the Chest

"My fourteen-year-old boy had a very severe cold in the chest last winter and I really thought he was going to die. He coughed nearly all the time and sometimes would spit up blood. I can positively say that he was completely cured by two bottles of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, and he has not been troubled since."—Mrs. J. Provost, Renfrew, Ont.

TIRED OUT.

There's many a wife sits in the growing gloom of an evening, knowing what if it is to feel tired out; as if there was not another ounce of effort left in her. But if healthy she knows how sound her slumber will be and how refreshed the morning will find her. But it's another thing for the sick woman to feel tired out. Rest only seems to increase her suffering. She feels acutely the aching back and throbbing nerves. Sick women, hundreds of thousands of them, have been made well by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It establishes regularity, dries wasting drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

"I am pleased to inform you of the benefit I received from using Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery,'" writes Mrs. Elizabeth A. Oswold, of 48 Grant Street, Windsor, Essex Co., Ontario, Canada. "Was quite discouraged when I wrote asking your advice, as the physicians here told me I could get no relief except by an operation. Suffered for four years from irregular and profuse menstruation, had sick and nervous headaches most of the time, and at times could hardly walk across the floor from weakness. I thank God there is such a remedy as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for suffering women. Before I had taken the first bottle the headaches had left me and it was not long before regularity was established and still continues so. Have just finished house-cleaning which I never expected to be able to do again, and can truly say I never felt better than at present. I gladly recommend 'Favorite Prescription' to all suffering women, feeling sure it will do for them as much as it has for me."

The selfish editor who urges some reluctant subscriber to "think of the larger good" will make mild sort of your half-paper.

FOOTPRINTS IN THE SNOW.

How Our Small Game May Be Studied in Winter—Their Little Excursions Leave Interesting Records.

He moved a few feet to another little gurgling aperture, where he sat long enough to melt the snow and smooth off the edges of the ice. Then he returned to the larger opening, where the water, dripping from his wet fur, had formed many globules of ice in the snow. His next journey was to the bank, where he scratched some roots from a ledge of earth which the snow had failed to cover up. But this did not quite satisfy his curiosity to know the outside world. He trailed up over the white, rounded bank, and sat in the small open space close to the cedars. It is easy to picture him there, in the moonlight, glossy, wet, and black, hunched and rounded, keenly alert, to catch the faintest sound that would betray the approach of an enemy. His innocent nocturnal excursion was not disturbed. The trail ends where he sat and took a farewell look at the outside world, and in returning he leisurely obliterated the marks he made when ascending the bank. He came back on his trail to the little strip of open water, and there the record of his little excursion ended. In the banks of the shallow stream his aquatic habits are almost entirely abandoned. He does not build houses of aquatic vegetation to serve as resting and breathing places. He does not make long excursions under the ice, with succulent green herbage trailing from his mouth. The banks become his habitation, and there he tunnels and excavates above the water level, making a labyrinth of communal dwelling-places. These communicate with the water wherever it can be found, but the enterprising little swimmer descends to the level of a burrowing animal, subsisting on roots during his long and dreary winter incarceration.

Easier to Manage.

Virginia—I have looked the matter over from all sides. Jack offers me a fortune and Harold nothing but his brains. Hazel—I suppose you will take the one you love the best? Virginia—I have concluded that I can take better care of Jack's money than of Harold's brains.

REASON No 6
WHY YOU SHOULD USE
Red Rose Tea
Because of the care in Selection and Blending.
My agents in the east are expert tea tasters, and every lot of tea that is sent down from the Gardens has to pass their inspection. They take samples from the chests and carefully taste them, then if the tea is fully up to the Red Rose standard, it is accepted and shipped; if not it is rejected.
The most important test of all, however, is when the tea arrives here, as during the passage through the Red Sea, the very great heat often affects the Tea very seriously. Immediately on arrival, samples are taken from each lot and subjected to the most rigid tests, and only those teas which have retained all their original flavor and strength are used for Red Rose (the balance is jobbed off in bulk).
When blended and ready to be put into sealed packages, it is tested again just to make sure no mistake has been made in the blending; nothing is left to chance.
Will you test us by ordering a package?

SARDINES.
The best sardines in the world have been caught recently off the shores of Norway. These have immediately been pronounced by French and other European countries as Par Excellence. The best brand is put up by Stavanger Preserving Co., Norway, under the name of "Crossed Fish" brand. The fish are very small and very tender; they have been slightly smoked before being preserved, which not only adds to their delicacy of flavour, but prevents the indigestive "rising" after eating, so customary with ordinary sardines. The genuine sardine is far above the common herrings sold as sardines, as all connoisseurs well know. To be sure you are getting the best order

Two interesting games were played in the City League last night before a fairly large crowd of hockey lovers. In the first game the Farriers won from the Colonials by 7-6, the winners having the better of the play throughout. The play was fast, however, and the winners had to work for all their goals. In the second game the Earl Greys won from the Verniers by 4-1. This was the first victory for the Greys this year but the team has been strengthened of late and will give all the teams a hard game in future. The line-up was:—

An interesting game of hockey was played last night on the Bethune Street team's ice, between that team and the Excelsiors. The game was fast from start to finish and resulted in a tie, the score being 3-3. The forwards for the Bethune Street team were fast, but the defence were very weak. The Excelsiors played with six men, one being hurt at the beginning of the game. The forwards for the Excelsiors were very speedy and made some great runes and the defence checked hard and broke up some fine combination.

GREAT GAME TO-NIGHT.

B. A. C. and Cereal Co. Office Staff Will Play Hockey.

There will be a great game of hockey at the Brock street rink this evening, when the office staff of the Cereal Works will collide with the renowned B. A. C. team. So far this season, the pathway of both these teams has been strewn with a profusion of roses—not red ones, but white ones—neither team having tasted the bitterness of defeat. Both septettes express a confidence which means something and the conflict should be astounding. The losers will entertain the winners to oysters and things subsequent to the match. Mr. "Bill" Crowley, the popular cover point of the Peterboros has kindly consented to officiate as referee, which is a sufficient guarantee that good hockey will be played. The line up of the teams will be thusly:—

OBITUARY.

Death of Alexander K. Ferguson Occured This Morning.

After a lingering illness of about three years, the death occurred this morning of Alexander K. Ferguson at his late place of residence, Murray street. The deceased was for many years a farmer, residing on the ourth Line of Dummer, and of late has retired and has been living in Peterborough. He leaves a wife and family and was 68 years of age.

The funeral will take place from the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. George Day, at 10 o'clock on Monday morning and proceed to the Third Line Cemetery, Dummer.

LICENSE LAW ENFORCEMENT

The Relations of its Advocates to Mr. Whitney.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Mr. Whitney has been in the way of making touching appeals to the ministers of the gospel to come to his rescue and assist in the application of his policy of elevating moral methods to the high and serene plane of perfect purity. He has not been very successful, however, but in Peterborough on his last visit he met with encouraging response to his appeal. At the market hall meeting, Rev. Dr. Crothers occupied a seat on the platform in the rear row at one end. When Mr. Whitney entered the hall and ascended the platform at the opposite corner, his reverend admirer rushed across the intervening space (scattering the other faithful to each side like chaff) to the front to effusively greet and welcome Mr. Whitney. This in itself is nothing to complain of, but when one remembers what is behind it, the wonder grows. When the reverend doctor preached in St. Paul's Church to the Town Council, he made, as was his right and duty, a strong plea for the rigid enforcement of the license law. Yet, within three or four days of making this strong plea for license law enforcement, he publicly takes to his bosom a political leader who at Napanee made an equally strong declaration of his intention to enforce the license law and within a few minutes of such declaration, personally procured a breach of the license law by personally purchasing, consuming and paying for, strong drink, to wit, Scotch whisky, contrary to the law, with the result that for this offence as a contributory element, the poor hotel keeper was fined $40.

The Kindergarten teaches children to put two and two together and the veriest Kindergartener in political ethics, and apply the lesson of these facts. Political necessity make strange bedfellows.

Yours, etc,
TEMPERANCE.

Nothing Else so Good as Bu-Ju.

Read What Mrs. S. Jones of 5 Carlisle St., Toronto, Says.

5 Carlisle street, Toronto, Feb. 19, 1904:

Clafin Medican Co., Windsor, Ont.,

Gentlemen,—I have had no benefit from anything I have taken equal to "Bu-Ju." I have received great relief, and trust that by continuing I shall entirely lose the rheumatism from which I have suffered so long. I shall do my best to tell my friends.

Yours truly,
MRS. S. JONES.

Mrs. Jones has gone through the experience of thousands of others. She has suffered as millions of patient women are suffering all over the world until they find the proper remedy. Mrs. Jones found it in "Bu-Ju," the Kidney Pill, and naturally feels like telling her friends and the public generally of the benefit she received, so that they too may be cured.

Rheumatism is only one of the many maladies that result from disordered kidneys, and "Bu-Ju" is an infallible cure for rheumatism, if it it taken as directed. All druggists sell "Bu-Ju." Do not continue to suffer. Try it and you will be benefitted. 2

The following is from N. B. Darrell, 387 Water street:—

The wheat market was steady in tone generally to-day, but the trade on the whole was nervous. The news in circulation was closely scrutinized in that there were evidences that some of the Eastern longs were manipulating the market in an effort to reduce their lines without causing a material break in prices. The cash demand was moderate and there was a fair line of offerings from the country, the milling interests doing little in the North West. The foreign advices were rather firm in tone, but at the seaboard there was but little business. In view of the congested condition it is likely that the feverish movements recently noted will continue in force.

PORT PERRY AGAIN MEETS DEFEAT

Score was 11-4—Not a Brilliant Exhibition—Play was Very Clean

Peterborough added another victory to its string last night by again taking Port Perry into camp, the score when the smoke had arisen being 11-4 in favour of the locals. The game was only a fairly good exhibition and was hardly up to the standard of either of the previous games. The locals at all times had the game well in hand and did not find it necessary to exert themselves to any great extent. The play was remarkably clean throughout and the best of good feeling prevailed. Only four players were ruled off, one of the locals and three of the visitors, the offences being of a minor nature.

The play at times was quite fast and the combination effective and then the pace would lag and the play become somewhat loose. Neither team shot in perfect style and many good scoring chances were lost through wild shooting.

The local team was somewhat changed, Glover being off the team on account of recent injuries, the vacancy being filled by McWilliams, a junior who played his first game in senior company, Cavanah was played at point and showed up in his old time form at this position. The forwards did not keep to their positions as well as they should and though the combination was effective at times it will stand some improvement as will the shooting department. The defence might occasionally use their bodies more in stopping rushes of the opposing forwards.

Wasson in goal made several good stops and cleared nicely. Cavanah played a very effective game at point, checking accurately with his long rushes and hard shooting were at all times dangerous factors in the play. Crowley played his usual steady game at cover point, checking well and rushing speedily. Parnell's clever dodging and stick-handling were quite noticeable on the forward line and his shooting was also splendid, several goals resulting from his accurate firing.

Morgan at centre was in his place to take a pass and shoot on goal and he did most useful work throughout. Graham worked steadily at left wing and out-played his check. McWilliams checked excellently at rover and was always ready, and sometimes even too ready to pass the puck. He has good speed and shoots well and with more experience should make a good senior player.

There was a couple of changes on the visitors' team from the team which played here two weeks ago. Powers played a good game at point and Stephens stopped some hard ones in goal. On the forward line Stewart showed up well and Jamieson also did creditable work. The line-up was as follows:—

PORT PERRY.
Stephens
Powers
Carnegie
Denison
VanSinclair, Stewart, Jamieson,
Graham. Morgan, Parnell.
McWilliams
Crowley
Cavanah
Wasson

PETERBOROUGH.

Referee—W. A. McCord, Toronto; goal, umpire,—C. Earls aand C. Clarke; timekeeper,—E. Hooley and J. T. McCabe; penalty time-keeper,—A. H. Stratton.

THE GAME.

The Peterboros got busy at the outset and after about a minute's play Cavanah got away for a long rush and shot a few inches wide. McWilliams secured the rubber on the re-bound and notched the first goal.

Cavanah soon got in the game again and passed to Morgan, who scored, but the pass was offside. These two players combined for a nice rush and when near the nets Morgan passed to Parnell who scored by a pretty side shot. Score, 2-0.

Cavanah dodged through the forward line and passed to Parnell, who again did the needful by a fine side shot, making the score 3-0.

McWilliams got the rubber from the face-off and passed to Parnell, who rushed through the defence and scored. Score, 4-0. This looked easy.

Cavanah checked Stewart's dangerous rush and went down the ice for a score, but the referee over-ruled the Port Perry goal umpire's decision for some reason. Stewart got away from centre and scored after a pretty rush. Score, 4-1.

Stewart took a long shot from centre which Wasson was not expecting and the score was 4-2.

Port Perry had the best of the play for a few minutes, the quality of hockey being very poor, however. Finally Graham went up the side and passed to Parnell, who again scored. Score, 5-2.

Stewart was ruled off for two minutes for tripping and Graham got one minute for slashing. Half time was called.

Parnell rushed nearly the length of the rink for a score. Powers broke his skate and retired with McWilliams.

Parnell made a nice run and passed to Morgan, who made the score, 7-2.

Cavanah got away with another of his lightning rushes and passed to Parnell whose aim was again true. Score, 8-2.

From a scrimmage in front of the goal, Graham swatted the puck into the nets.

The visitors then took a hand in the scoring, Jamieson notching a point after dodging through the defence in neat fashion.

McWilliams and Powers came on at this stage.

VanSinclair got an opening and scored the visitors' last goal from a side shot. Score, 9-4.

Jamieson was ruled off for two minutes. Graham passed to Morgan who scored easily.

Carnegie was hit with the puck and retired with McWilliams. Graham and Stephens had a little trouble and both were ruled off. When Graham got on again he scored but there was an offside pass. Cavanah made a long rush but shot wide. Graham secured and scored the last goal. Score, 11-4.

NOTES.

It was not brilliant hockey but the local boys played well enough to win easily.

Parnell scored five goals, Morgan three, Graham two, and McWilliams one. Cavanah was a success at point though his loss to the forward line was apparent.

The boys will be in good shape to win in Lindsay on Monday.

Referee McCord was very strict in watching offsides and allowed but little to pass unnoticed.

The standing of the teams at present, not including the game which Lindsay lost in Port Perry and which will be replayed is as follows:—

	Won.	Lost.
Peterborough	3	1
Lindsay	6	1
Port Perry	6	3

T. A. S and Campbellford play a game here in the Trent Valley League on Tuesday. Each team has two wins to their credit and this game should be worth seeing.

"MRS. WIGGS OF CABBAGE PATCH"

Lecture Given Last Night by Rev. J. W. Pedley

Amusing Incidents in Story Recited—An Enjoyable Evening

It was a well pleased audience that filled the lecture room of St. Paul's church last evening when Rev. J.W. Pedley of Toronto, gave a lecture on the familiar story of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," and very evident was the enjoyment as evinced by the hearty laughs that were heard as different incidents in the story were told.

After opening with singing the Doxology and prayer by the Rev. Mr. Ketchen, Mr. John Crane, who was chairman, in a few words, introduced the lecturer. Rev. Mr. Pedley congratulated the Mission Band on the very large attendance and said it gave him much pleasure to be in Peterborough as he had many personal friends in town. In introducing his subject Rev. Mr. Pedley said that he had heard Mrs. Wiggs spoken of as the "high priestess of cheerfulness and good nature' and that many lessons might be derived from the homely sayings and doings of Mrs. Wiggs and her interesting family. The great need of the people of this world is cheerfulness and sunshine to face the difficulties and trials of every day life. The tendency is to complain against providence and not to look on the bright side of things, and Mrs. Wiggs' remark that the reason she looked so eternally cheerful was that she had a "happy feeling most all the time," is one of her many good points, it would be well to follow.

Rev. Mr. Pedley gave many different incidents of the story that brought the picture of Mrs. Wiggs and her family very vividly before the eyes of his hearers, and the visit of the family to the "Opery" and the feast that followed was not the least amusing one. Unlike many of our church members whom he knew, Mrs Wiggs though she had ample excuse for not taking part in church work, for she was poor, and her family was large enough to require much attention, felt her duty to her church, and was superintendent, teacher and choir leader of a Sunday school which met in her kitchen and which was a power for good in the community. The faculty of taking things as they were, and making the best of them, was one of Mrs. Wiggs' strong points, and favourite maxims of hers that are good ones to follow are "It ain't no use putting up your umbrella until it rains," and her remark that "It looks as if everything in this world comes right if we just wait long enough." The audience throughout enjoyed the evening, and was sorry when Rev. Mr. Pedley brought his remarks to a close.

Rev. Mr. Ketchen in a few remarks expressed the pleasure of the audience in listening to Rev. Mr. Pedley, and moved a vote of thanks to him, which was seconded by Mr. W. Madill, and received with hearty applause.

The evening was closed with singing the National Anthem, with Mr. Crane presiding at the organ.

Conservative Purity Mission Funds in South Ontario

BRAZEN CONSERVATIVE CORRUPTION

Leading Pickering Conservative Caught Bribing—Had a Big Roll of Bills—One Liberal Was Given $30—Another Got $11 and Another $4—State They Took Money to Establish Fact.

Pickering, Jan. 23.—(Globe Special.)—This quiet Quaker village is the scene of the greatest political sensation in the campaign, and South Ontario again beats the record for brazen Tory corruption. One of the leading Conservatives of Pickering Township, Nicholas C. Brown, Saturday made his headquarters at the Gordon House in this village, and, provided with rolls of bills, started in to of the district. Several of these called on him, and for the sake of getting evidance negotiated and received sums from him varying from eleven to thirty dollars each. The news of the event has created the greatest excitement, and has already traveled nearly all over the riding.

The Conservatives act as though staggered. They are crestfallen, and several have openly admitted that and Hon. John Dryden's election is now more than ever assured. The incident recalls the desperate work of the election of 1898, subsequent to which William Smith admitted having spent $1,200 in trying to secure Mr. Calder's election; in fact, this exposure is the logical result of the double-faced campaign of the Conservatives, who have been waging a fight on "anything to beat Ross."

Affidavits to Liberals.

So far affidavits have been made by the following Liberals that they received money from Brown to vote or work for Calder: William Stanley, $30; Lorne Squires, $11; Wilfred O. Law, $16. In addition, Wm. E. Vanstone swears that Brown subsequently asked him to stop all proceedings against him.

Who Nicholas Brown Is.

The story of this electoral debauchery forms one of the most shameful chapters of our recent political history. Nicholas Brown is a farmer, living on the Kingston road, about half-way between Pickering and Whitby. He occupies a 350-acre farm, lives in a large stone house, and has a reputation for cleverness and for ardent political sympathies. He has long been an active politician, but he had not previously been charged with being corrupt.

THOUSANDS WERE SHOT DOWN

Revolution's Red Flag Unfurled in St. Petersburg On Sunday—A Reign of Terror in Russia's Capital—Neither Age Nor Sex Spared—Workmen Arming—More Blood Will Flow.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 23.—Firing continues on the Vassili Ostrov at midnight. It is rumored that the workmen there have seized a dynamite factory, and also that 80,000 or 40,000 armed strikers from Kolpino, sixteen miles distant, are marching on St. Petersburg.

Destroyed the Barricades.

Barricades erected on the Island of Vassili Ostrov late last night were destroyed by troops almost immediately, with the loss of thirty workmen killed.

Resembled a Shambles.

At the Putiloff works the scenes resembled a shambles. There the workmen, facing the troops when the order was given to fire, threw themselves upon their faces on the ground. The troops fired on them as they lay prostrate.

A DAY OF HORROR.

St. Petersburg Under Martial Law and From 500 to 5,000 Dead At the Hand of the Soldiery.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 23.—Yesterday was a day of unspeakable horror in St. Petersburg. The strikers of Saturday goaded to desperation by a day of violence, fury and bloodshed, are in a state of open insurrection against the Government. A condition almost bordering on civil war exists in the terror stricken Russian capital. The city is under martial law, with Prince Vasilchikoff as commander of over 50,000 of the Emperor's crack guards. Troops are bivouacking in the streets, and at various places on the Nevsky Prospect, the main thoroughfare of the city. On the Island of Vassili Ostrov and in the industrial sections infuriated men have thrown up barricades, which they are holding. The Dowager Empress has hastily sought safety at the Tsarskoe Selo, where Emperor Nicholas II. is living.

Men With Death Aleme.

Minister of the Interior Sviatopolk-Mirsky presented to His Majesty Saturday night the invitation of the workmen to appear at the Winter Palace yesterday afternoon and receive their petition; but the Emperor's advisers already had taken a decision to show a firm and resolute front, and the Emperor's answer to 100,000 workmen trying to make their way to the palace square yesterday was a solid array of troops, who met them with rifle, bayonet and sabre. The priest Gopon, the leader and idol of the men, in his golden vestments, holding aloft the cross and marching at the head of thousands of workmen through the Narva gate, miraculously escaped a volley which laid low half a hundred persons.

From 500 to 5,000 Dead.

The figures of the total number [illegible] cow gate, at various bridges and islands, and at the Winter Palace vary. The best estimate is 500, although there are exaggerated figures placing the number as high as 5,000. Many men were accompanied by their wives and children, and in the confusion which left no time for discrimination, the latter shared the fate of the men. The troops, with the exception of a single regiment, which is reported to have thrown down its arms, remained loyal and obeyed orders. But the blood which crimsoned the snow has fired the brains and passions of the strikers and turned women as well as men into wild beasts; and the cry of the infuriated populace is for vengeance. The sympathy of the middle classes is with the workmen.

Destroys Faith in Czar.

If Father Gopon, the master mind of the movement, aimed at open revolution, he managed the affair like a genius to break the faith of the people in "Little Father," who they were convinced and whom Father Gopon had taught them to believe would right their wrongs and redress their grievances.

The military authorities had a firm grip on every artery in the city. At daybreak guards regiments, cavalry and infantry held every bridge across the frozen Neva, the network of canals which interlace the city, and the gate leading to and from the industrial section, while in the palace square, as the storm centre, were massed dragoon regiments, infantry and Cossacks of the Guards. Barred from the bridges and gates, men, women and children crossed the frozen river and canals on the ice by twos and threes, hurrying to the palace square, where they were sure the Emperor would be present and hear them.

Retreat Cursing Soldiers.

But the street approaches were closed by volleys and Cossack charges, men and women, infuriated to frenzy by the loss of loved ones, cursed the soldiers while they retreated. Men harangued the crowds, telling them that the Emperor had foiled them and that the time had come to act. Men began to build barricades in the Nevsky Prospect and other points, using any material that came to hand, and even chopping down the telegraph poles. Fighting meantime continued at various places, soldiers volleying and charging the mob. The whole city was in a state of panic. Women were running through the streets seeking lost members of families. Several barricades were carried by the troops. Towards 8 o'clock in the evening the crowds, exhausted, began to disperse, leaving the military in possession. As they retreated up the Nevsky Prospect the workmen put out all the lights.

Little Chapel Destroyed.

The little chapel at the Narva Gate was wrecked. On the Kiminostov Island all the lights were extinguished. Every officer wearing the uniform of the Emperor who was found alone was mobbed. A general was killed on the Nicholas bridge, and a dozen officers were seized, stripped of their epaulets, and deprived of their swords.

It was rumored last night that M Witte will be appointed dictator to-day, but the report is not confirmed. The authorities, while they seem to realize the magnitude of the crisis with which the dynasty and the autocracy are confronted with on account of yesterday's events, apparently are paralyzed for the moment. An official statement was promised at midnight, at which hour it was announced that it had been postponed till to-day. Intense indignation is [illegible]

sia. The workmen and revolutionists expect news from Moscow and other big centres, where the troops are not of the same classes as the Guards Regiment of St. Petersburg.

Father Gopon's Letter to Czar.

The following is the text of a letter addressed by Father Gopon to Emperor Nicholas:

"Sovereign,—I fear your ministers have not told you the full truth about the situation. The whole people, trusting in you, have resolved to appear at the winter palace at 2 p. m. in order to inform you of their needs. If, vacillating, you do not appear before the people to-morrow, the moral bonds between you and the people who trust in you will disappear, because innocent blood will flow between you and the people. Appear to-morrow before your people and receive our address of devotion in a courageous spirit. I, and the representatives of labor, and my brave workingmen and comrades, guarantee to you the inviolability of your position."

Soldiers Spare Gopon.

There was a very dramatic scene at the Narva Gate when Father Gopon in golden vestments and bearing aloft an ikon and flanked by two clergymen carrying religious banners approached at the head of a procession of 8,000 workmen.

Troops were drawn up across the entrance. Several times an officer called upon the procession to stop, but Father Gopon did not falter. Then an order was given to fire with blank cartridge. Two volleys rang out, but the line still did not waver.

Then, with seeming reluctance, an officer gave the command to lead with ball, and the next volley was followed by shrieks and cries of the wounded. As the Cossacks followed up the volley with a charge, the workmen fled before them, leaving about 100 dead or wounded. It was evident that the soldiers deliberately spared Father Gopon.

One of the clergymen by his side was wounded but he escaped untouched and hid behind a wall until the Cossacks passed, and he was then spirited away by workmen.

More Trouble Feared.

By midnight the sound of firing had ceased, except on Vassili Ostrov Island, where the troops met a renewed demonstration with several volleys. In the meantime the strike leaders assembled and decided to continue the struggle with arms. No day was fixed for the next demonstration. The scrikers are so excited, however, that trouble is expected to result to-day.

"We Have No Emperor."

At a big meeting last night the following message from M. Gorky, the novelist, was received: "Beloved associates: We have no Emperor. Innocent blood lies between him and the people. Now begins the people's struggle for freedom, and may it prosper. My blessing on you all. Would I might be with you to-night; but I have much to do."

A workingman who was introduced to speak in Father Gopon's name made a fiery speech. He appealed to Liberals to furnish arms. The meeting adopted a letter denouncing the officers and the regiments that fired on the workmen, and another letter extolling the Moscow regiment which refused to fire.

People Against Oppressors -Gorky.

Gorky, the Russian novelist, expresses the opinion that yesterday's work will break the faith of the people in the Emperor. He said last night to the Associated Press:

"To-day inaugurated revolution in Russia. The Emperor's prestige will be irrevocably shattered by the shedding of innocent blood. He has alienated himself forever from his people. Gopon taught the workmen to believe that an appeal direct to the 'Little Father' would be heeded.

"They have been undeceived. Gopon is now convinced that peaceful means have failed, and that the only remedy is force. The first blood has been shed, but more will follow. It is now the people against the oppressors, and the battle will be fought to the bitter end."

Returns from only three of the numerous hospitals give 32 dead and 128 wounded. Many of the wounded have been taken to their own homes.

REVOLT QUELLED---NOW REVOLUTION,

Comments of London Papers Showing Trend of British Opinion.

London, Jan. 23.—Such phrases as these, extracted from editorial articles in the London morning papers sufficiently indicate the opinion held here of yesterday's events in St. Petersburg:

"Revolt has been quelled, but revolution begun."

"The bureaucracy has declared its policy; it is the policy of Blagovestchank—massacre."

"The inevitable reaction has begun, and with it a new chapter in Russia's history, and probably also in the history of Europe and Asia."

"The revolutionary movement in Russia has received its baptism of blood, its crown of martyrdom."

"Is there a Mirabeau or even a Danton in Russia to-day."

"A very grave responsibility lies to-day at the door of the Czar, who has failed to grasp his unique opportunity."

"'The Little Father' has become the murderer of his people, and it remains with him to save the country from disaster. Even at the eleventh hour he may do so, but only by recognizing that autocracy has gone forever."

While many estimate the casualties at anywhere near 2,000 killed and 5,000 wounded, there is everywhere conclusive evidence of the impossibility of as yet estimating with any degree of exactitude.

Quite the Contrary.

NAVAL WORKS BEING DESTROYED

St. Petersburg Resembles an Arsenal Camp This Afternoon.

Warsaw Railway Station is on Fire—Railway Torn up and Traffic Stopped

Special to the Examiner

St. Petersburg, Jan. 23. — This afternoon the city again resembles an armed camp. Strikers continue to drift towards the palace square, and the Cossacks and the police are having more and more difficulty in keeping the crowds moving. A municipal building in the third district was to-day destroyed by the rioters. At a meeting of strikers at the Putiloff iron works this morning, a resolution was passed expressing it as the intention of the strikers to continue the struggle to the last drop of blood. Reports received this evening say several outbreaks have occurred in the Basil Island District. It is rumoured that the Warsaw railway station is on fire. Yesterday's report that a portion of the track of the Warsaw and Baltic Railway had been torn up is confirmed. The Northern Express has not left the station.

Sign of Insubordination.

Interior Minister Sviato-Olk-Mirsky this morning telegraphed orders to close the head-quarters of the Workmen's Union. This was done by the workmen themselves, without police interfering. All the schools of the city have been closed and in many places the water supply has been cut. The Admiralty Works at Sevastopol are ablaze and burning furiously. It is learned the greatest uneasiness is felt by the authorities owing to the troops having given signs of insubordination. This disaffection it is said is spreading among the crews of the Third Baltic Squadron.

THE TWENTIETH CENTURY MAN

Address by Mr. P. K. Holmes at the Y M. C. A. Yesterday

Another large and interesting popular men's meeting was held at the Y.M.C.A. yesterday when Mr. P. K. Holmes, physical director, was the speaker, his subject being the 20th century man, and his religion. His address was thoughtful and helpful. Previous to the address Messrs. Herd and Browne sang a very appropriate selection. The songs in the dark were a new feature which added much to the interest of the meeting. The hymns were thrown on the canvas, and introduced with scenes in the life of Christ. These were briefly explained by Mr. Harding. Mr. Holmes will speak again next Sunday.

We Will Buy

A 50c. Bottle of Liquozone and Give it to You to Try.

We want you to know about Liquozone, and the product itself can tell you more than we. So we ask you to let us buy you a bottle—a full-size bottle—to try. Let it prove that it does what medicine cannot do. See what a tonic it is. Learn that it does kill germs. Then you will use it always, as we do, and as millions of others do.

This offer itself should convince you that Liquozone does as we claim. We would certainly not buy a bottle and give it to you if there was any doubt of results. You want those results; you want to be well and to keep well. And you can't do that—nobody can—without Liquozone.

We Paid $100,000

For the American rights to Liquozone. We did this after testing the product for two years through physicians and hospitals, after proving, in thousands of different cases, that Liquozone destroys the cause of any germ disease.

Liquozone has, for more than 20 years, been the constant subject of scientific and chemical research. It is not made by compounding drugs, nor with alcohol. Its virtues are derived solely from gas—largely oxygen gas—by a process requiring immense apparatus and 14 days' time. The result is a Liquid that does what oxygen does. It is a nerve food and blood food—the most helpful thing in the world to you.

Its effects are exhilarating, vitalizing, purifying. Yet it is a germicide so certain that we publish on every bottle an offer of $1,000 for a disease germ that it cannot kill. The reason is that germs are vegetables; and Liquozone—like an excess of oxygen—is deadly to vegetal matter.

There lies the great value of Liquozone. It is the only way known to kill germs in the body without killing the tissue, too. Any drug that kills germs is a poison, and it cannot be taken internally. Every physician knows that medicine is almost helpless in any germ disease.

Germ Diseases.

These are the known germ diseases. All that medicine can do for these troubles is to help Nature overcome the germs, and such results are indirect and uncertain. Liquozone attacks the germs, wherever they are. And when the germs which cause a disease are destroyed, the disease must end, and forever. That is inevitable.

CAPACITY FOR GOOD SERVICE

Mr. Daniel O'Connell speaking Saturday night at the Liberal rally put the question which the electors of West Peterborough must answer on Wednesday into the most practical form. Which of the two candidates now before them is the most likely to prove of service to the community. Mr. McWilliams is in the very prime of early manhood, and has twenty years ahead of him everyone of which should mean growth in capability for public service. He has had the best education to be obtained in this country, he has abundant physical energy; he is full of ambition and promise. If he is at the present time as capable of giving good service to the constituency as his opponent, then every consideration of years is an argument in his favour. Is he as capable today? Is he the untried youth the Conservatives represent? He has for the last six years taken an active part in almost every field of public interest—in all forms of athletic sports, in the local regiment, in associations too numerous to mention. Have those who have been associated with him in these things found him a capable, level-headed administrator, or an untried youth? He has served for two years in the Town Council. Ask those who have been associated with him there, whatever their politics, whether he has shown himself competent for that and for a larger place and whether he justified their selection of him for chairman of one of the most important committees. The justice of Mr. Dennistoun's fling at him for his youth, may well be left to the judgment of the hundreds who have followed his course. One other important consideration must not be forgotten. Which of the candidates now seeking election will best maintain the reputation of the constituency in the House? Which will be the better able to assist the town or any of its citizens when they come before the Legislature?

A CAMPAIGN OF SLANDER

The campaign of reckless and foundationless abuse to which the Conservatives have resorted, seems to make it impossible for even the best of them to avoid dealing laxly with the truth. Mr. J. H. Burnham has been led by their campaign literature, or the Mail and Empire, into making statements from the platform that are simply untrue. Speaking at Zion on Friday evening, on behalf of Mr. Moore, he declared, according to the Review, "Of the 29 Conservatives reported by election judges, 17 were proceeded against by the Government, and punished, while not one of the Liberals had been proceeded against or punished in any form." What is the fact? Briefly this: that the men so reported have been prosecuted, without regard to their party. One example will suffice to prove this: "In 11898, Mr. Charles Calder, Conservative, defeated John Dryden in South Ontario, and was unseated for corrupt practices. Of the men reported, three were fined, six went to jail, two left the country, and three were acquitted. On November 1st, 1898, Mr. Dryden turned the tables and his election was protested. Nine persons were reported. Of these, Simeon Hewett and Wm. Morrish paid fines of $200 each and costs; William Gilmour, Patrick Sullivan, William Stewart, Bryan Linton and W. Mcmick went to jail in default of payment of their fines. The remaining two, John Sullivan and Benjamin Palmer were acquitted on trial. Of those reported, all were prosecuted, except W. H. Banbury, who removed to the United States, and F. McLean, who died before the date fixed for the trial. It is up to Mr. Burnham to retract his statement, and to make his retraction as public as was his first statement.

WORK FOR WORKERS.

The hour for argument and platform declaration is about passed and it now remains for the workers to put in their work—to realize upon the arguments which have been so well presented in this contest in the candidature of Mr. McWilliams. The candidate himself has put in energetic work, which must count in the final summing up. It now remains for those who have worked and worked so well for him, to crystalize the result into the work of getting the voters to the polls. It is a fact that many electors who may be well disposed towards a candidate or his cause are indifferent to going to the polls. Here is a chance for workers to exercise their influence and bring organized effort to bear to get the vote out. It is self-evident that only the vote polled counts. Sentiment, no matter how freindly or warm is of no account unless it is translated into concrete expression through a ballot marked for the candidate. Let every worker buckle on his armour and buckle down to work.

PROTECTION OF ROADSIDE TREES

Judgement Given Awarding Mr. Holland $25 Damages and Costs.

In the suit of Michael Holland against the Township of Ennismore, arising out of the sale by the Council of the Township to Mr. Collins certain trees growing on the roadside fronting the farm property of the plaintiff, judgment was delivered on Saturday.

At the conclusion of the Court sittings His Honour, Judge Weller, delivered his reserved judgment in this case, finding that the Township were at fault and giving Mr. Holland $35.00 damages and his costs of the suit. As the question in dispute is one of great importance to Municipal Councils, and, indeed, to the public at large and one which has caused great difference of opinion amongst lawyers themselves, a full report is given.

THE CIRCUMSTANCES SET FORTH.

The circumstances were these: In April last the Municipal Council of the Township of Ennismore, held a meeting, at which some trees standing in the 8th concession of the Township and opposite the farm of Mr. Michael Holland, were sold to a man by the name of Collins for the sum of $2.00, the Council deeming it wise to have the road clear of standing trees. When Mr. Collins started to cut the wood, he was notified by Mr. Holland to desist. This Mr. Collins refused to do in view of the Council having taken his money and he said "the trees were on the road anyway". Mr. Holland then came to town and was advised by his lawyers that the Council's action was unlawful under the circumstances and that they were liable to damages for cutting the trees. The Ennismore Council was notified and also Mr. Collins, who paid no attention to the notice and this suit was commenced. It came on for trial before His Honour Judge Weller who heard the evidence on October 6th and after hearing the argument for both sides reserved his decision.

WHAT THE EVIDENCE SHOWED.

The evidence at the trial was that Mr. Holland owned lot 7 in the 8th concession of Ennismore, that along the side of the road next his farm there were some ten or twelve trees growing, some were close to the fence and some were out a piece from it, one being about thirteen feet out. This tree the evidnce showed was rather close to the road as it stood, but it was shown that by cutting a few inches off this tree, travel would not be interfered with. Again, Holland, who did not plant these trees, though he appears to have taken some precautions to preserve them from time to time and particularly at the time the road was opened, although there was some suggestion that anything done there was as statute labour and consequently should not be credited to him as far as protecting the trees was concerned. It also appeared that the notice which the statute distinctly states must be given to an adjoining land owner was not given. The plaintiff further set up the provisions of the Ontario Tree Planting Act applicable to the case. The defence set up on behalf of the council that if there was any right of action at all that according to the Municipal Act it should be settled by arbitration that in any event the action could not be maintained until after one month's notice in writing to the council, and that such notice was not given and the further defence that the council were not the proper parties to sue in any event as they did not cut the trees or direct any one to do so. The judge decided that notice of action was unnecessary in this particular case, that it was not a case such as the statute required to be tried by arbitration and that the council could not escape liability for Mr. Collin's act and especially in view of the fact which came out at the trial, that after the trees were cut and this suit started a special meeting of the council was called and a by-law passed and sealed setting out that these trees were on the highway and should be removed and authorized the sale of them. This His Honour held in any event fixed the responsibility on the council even if it did not already rest there. His Honour after commenting on the evidence referred to the different authorities relied upon by the counsel for both sides and particularly to the case of Douglas vs. Fox 31 v. C. P. 140 cited for the plaintiff, and which was tried before Chief Justice Wilson and a jury in June 1880. His Honour said this case was almost parallel to the one before him and established the plaintiff's right to sue and that he proposed to follow it. The only difficulty is his mind was as to the amount of damages that should be awarded. There was no authority to be found on that point and this case established a precedent to that extent. His Honour held that the damages should be not for the value of the trees, nor yet in the nature of excessive damages, such as might be given in the event of a private person cutting the trees without excuse or authority, the fact being that if the council proceeds according to law they can undoubtedly remove trees from the highway if the circumstances come within the provisions of the Act. His Honour having arrived at the conclusion stated gave judgment in Mr. Holland's favour.

This case has created a great deal of interest and has been Township talk in Ennismore for the last six months and the final outcome has been anxiously watched for by other people somewhat similarly placed to Mr. Holland.

Mr. S. T. Medd acted for Holland and Mr. R. Max. Dennistoun for the Township of Ennismore.

A COONSKIN FARE.

It Would Have Paid the Traveler to Let the Change Go.

Many years ago, as the story runs, when coonskins were worth six bits apiece in Arkansas and a regular fee of two bits was assessed for ferrying a horseman across the St. Francis river, there came along a traveler whose entire capital consisted of but a single pelt, and the ferryman hadn't a cent of change in his pocket.

The traveler was bound to cross, but refused to pay three times as much as the man who passed before him or the one who was to come next. The ferryman would not wet an oar unless payment for his services was assured. Here was ample foundation for an argument, and presumably the opportunity was not neglected. But a satisfactory arrangement was finally reached, the traveler getting value received for his coonskin by being wafted thrice across the stream. This of course would leave him on the right side, and neither party to the trade would have cause for complaint. Such was the generous spirit of accommodation which obtained in these earlier days, such—but hold on a bit.

On the second trip the ferryman chanced to inspect the coonskin closely and found that it was by no means up to the recognized standard. Maybe it had been killed too early in the season or was not properly stretched. Anyway, he decided that four bits was all it was worth, and the traveler frankly admitted the soundness of his judgment, acknowledged that he had received its value in the double ferriage and forthwith started on his fifty mile ride up the river to the nearest point where it was fordable.—Field and Stream.

The Languages of India.

Among the 145 distinct languages spoken in British India are some possessing only a few hundred words, others rivalling English, as Dr. Grierson says, or Russian, as I would say, in their copiousness; some in which every word is a monosyllable, others in which some are elongated by agglutination till they run to ten syllables, like "da-po-lo-cho-akan-tahen-tae-tin-a-e"—a Santali word meaning: "He who belongs to him who belongs to me will continue letting himself be made to fight." Some of these divers tongues lack verb and noun, others are as complex and systematic as Greek and Latin.—Nineteenth Century.

William Martin, the oldest man in Halifax and probably in Nova Scotia, died on Jan. 12. He was 104 years and ten months of age. In early life he was in the army, and he drew a pension of one shilling half-penny per day. He was a native of Scotland, and settled in Halifax over half a century ago.

A LONDON FOG.

Its Miseries Makes a Ghastly Picture of a Gasping People—Business Operations Were Almost Suspended.

The London, England, correspondent of The Toronto News writes:

Nothing has been talked of for the last few days but the great fog of this or any century. For days London was enveloped in a thick, black pall, which stung one's face, and gave one a curious breathless sensation, even within the four walls of a London house. The loss to trade cannot yet be estimated. For nearly twelve hours, there was an immense line of traffic stopped in Picadilly, all the vehicles headed towards the west. Trains on the outskirts of the metropolis were also "held up," and the postoffice operations almost entirely suspended. Telegraphic communication was practically useless, for messenger boys could not find their way in the fog to deliver messages, and only the much-abused telephone system of London was available. Enormous numbers of boys and girls were on their way to London for the Christmas holidays, in some cases escorted by one of the masters or mistresses of the schools. In many of the large stations at the central termini, these parties had to remain. Parents unable to reach the stations telephoned frantically for news of their children. Nearby restaurants were ransacked by venturesome link-boys for provisions for the imprisoned travelers. People were obliged to "camp out" in shops or offices of various kinds, and those who had come up to London from the country to do a few day's shopping were obliged to turn into any hotel or lodging house they might happen to be near when the fog was at its worst. Horses, become terrified, slipped and fell, and motors crawled slowly along, with their lights looming large as compared to the lamps of carriages and lanterns carried by pedestrians who were brave enough to attempt to gain their residences on foot. It was a veritable Plague of Darkness, and fortunately neither the electric light or the gas supply gave out, but the hotel-keepers were unable to replenish their supplies of perishable food, and in many cases milk and bread were ungetable. Doctors who had telephones in their houses were kept busy answering repeated calls from patients who could not possibly expect them to pay the usual daily visits, and the great hospitals had to depend upon the staff for medical attendance.

The fog was almost as bad in Liverpool and Manchester as in London, and shipping became paralyzed in the Thames. Chest and throat troubles are rampant, and for a week or so, it looked as if a bad epidemic of "Flue" might break out. However, people are beginning to understand the premonitary symptoms of this dread disease, and take precautions which years ago they would have derided.

Curious Ghost Story.

Why Christmastide should always bring to the fore such a number of ghost stories must ever remain a mystery. But ghost stories there are without end, filling all the weekly publications and newspapers in England. The best one on record is the shortest given in one of the evening papers. Two travelers occupied a railway compartment on one of the well-known English lines. Neither looked at the other one, as they both appeared immersed in the reading of their respective editions of the evening paper. The motion of the train increased, and it swayed and bumped, until one of the readers could no longer hold his paper steady enough to admit of his reading it. He observed, as he tried to determine why the train was going at such an alarming rate:

"There must be something wrong. We don't usually travel at such a speed."

"Yes, there must," came from behind the other paper. "I know this line. I was killed in an accident about this spot three years ago."

The startled passenger turned towards his companion and found that the man and the newspaper had vanished. History does not relate what transpired after this, but the reader is left to end the story as his imagination dictates.

Marie Corelli has been given an enormous sum for a short ghost story, which is found on all the book stalls in a cheap form at this date. It is, like most of this writer's stories, calculated to carry with it a desirable lesson for the class it is aimed at. The short stories in the Christmas numbers are not of the very brightest character, taking them as a whole, and it looks as if the two volume novel was once more to take the place of the ten page romance which delighted the reading public a few years ago.

Fastest of Cruisers.

The turbine-engined Amethyst has just completed her trails and proves to be the fastest cruiser in the world. Built by Armstrong, Whitworth & Co., she was designed to do 21¼ knots, and has accomplished 23.65. Her further advantages consist of a remarkable economy in the consumption of coal at high speeds, and in the small space occupied by her engines.

CANADIAN COWBOYS.

Picturesque Cattlemen Are No Longer in Evidence as in the Wild Stories of Long Ago.

The "bronco-buster," the "cow-puncher" and the men who ranch among the foothills of the Canadian Rockies are neither so picturesque in garb, so lurid in language, nor so daring in performance as the stay-at-home imagines, writes John Foster Fraser. The days of "raising hell and playing Cain" are nigh over. Cowboys no longer—if they ever did—spend their time riding unrideable horses, which rear and plunge and roll, whoop across the boundless prairie swinging lassoes over their heads and catching stampeding cattle by the hind hoof and downing them. Nor are they any longer in the habit of riding from camp into the nearest town to make the townfolk dance on the sidewalk by playing bullets round them. Nor do they ride their horses into the drinking saloon, knock off the neck of a bottle of rye whiskey with a revolver, and gues they'd have a drink of that!

I have heard many stories of such brisk happenings in Medicine Hat, Macleod and Calgary, but they took place long ago. The events of five years are pressed into the anecdotes of fifteen minutes, and the stories have become picturesque with time.

As you sit on the stoop of the little hotel at Macleod, which is the oldest of the new towns in the west, and was Fort Macleod, an outpost to keep the Blood Indians in check, before it became a typical ranching town, you talk and smoke with ranchers, "old-timers" many of them. They are lithe and scraggy-framed, big-fisted and shamble-gaited; their cheeks have been yellowed and wrinkled with sun and snow glare; heavy wrinkles are on either side of their eyes. They are unshaven and uncombed; their clothes are baggy and unfitting, their boots rusty and their hats ready for the scarecrow. They sit loungingly, cross-legged, talk in a drone, but confidently, smoke incessantly and expectorate unceasingly. You pick out a man you don't think worth ten cents. He is really worth fifty thousand dollars, not in hard cash, but in cattle.

"No, sir, ranching ain't what it was," says he. "In the old days we squatted on the foothills, where there was good feed and water. We haven't got the snows they have back in the middle west. The cattle just grew into money. But now, with the inrush of settlers, getting homesteads and buying land from the Government, we ranchers are being pushed back into the hills."

A young buck, astride a fiery brute, comes pacing down the wide Macleod street. The saddle is high-pommeled, the stirrups Mexican; by the side hangs the useful lasso; on the back of the rider's head is a broad, flat-brimmed, much-dented felt hat, held by an elastic band. He goes by with a swagger, a fine specimen of bronzed and lusty young manhood. For a moment the air is full of dust. Then Macleod—wide-spreading, making the most of its thousand inhabitants—slips back into slumbrous basking in the Indian summer, that breath of crisp warmth which creeps over Canada in October, when at home the days are muggy and the atmosphere is hazy.

Across the way a couple of swarthy men are leaning against a wall, laughing lowly and then tossing a coin, who pays for cigars. A rig has just pulled up opposite the little bank, and the horse is tethered to an iron weight. You can walk a little and see the prairie stretching into distance. Behind you is the earth making its first heave toward the Rockies.

A group of Englishmen from a ranch up-country, swing in. These are tender-feet, men in their first year, still wearing their English clothes and Oxford ties and cloth caps and leather gaiters—curiously exotic in this part of the world. There is a little, high-noted affectation in their voice, which you don't notice at home, because you are always hearing it, but which, heard suddenly in Western Canada, explains why Jake Sanuke thinks all young Englishmen ladi-dadi snobs. They are nothing of the kind. Maybe they are younger sons, who have failed in their examinations for the army or the bar, a bit wild, noisy certainly, with more money than is quite good for them at the start, inclined as healthy young Englishmen are inclined, to think they know all about everything, and get laughed at in consequence; but genuine men, true as steel, who in a few years will be good Canadians and round-up steers with the best.

"See that fellow sitting at the window?" says a rancher. "He's an English baronet. Oh, no, he's just plain mister here. He don't look like a baronet, do he? Yes, we get all sorts out ranching." Two redcoats ride by, "Northwest Mounted Police! They used to be mostly gentlemen born, ne'er-do-weels in your big families, shot out here to be got rid of. Good chaps though, many of them. But it ain't like the old times in the early seventies, when the whiskey traders were about, filling up the Indians on vile alcohol, and then buying skins cheap and fighting their way back. Why, I remember when everybody knew everybody fifty miles round. Nobody thought anything of riding thirty miles to see a friend, hitch up and stay a few days. But that's all altered now; too many ranchers. Lose cattle? Not often. But I remember '85, when a third of the cattle was lost in the snow. I came up from Montana that year delivering cattle to a fool Englishman, who insisted on them being driven several hundreds of miles and brauded; of course they were in bad condition, and most of them died."

"Let Me Like a Soldier Fall."

Inexperienced Young Housewife (thinking to show her sharpness, after purchasing a brace of pheasants)—"I suppose they've been hung?"

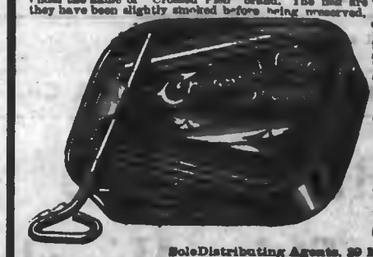
New Shopman (not previously in this trade)—"Hung! No lady, they were shot."

Child had Eczema

"My daughter, thirteen years old, suffered from eczema for three years. She was treated by our family physician and used other ointments without benefit; by using Dr. Chase's Ointment she has been completely cured. She is the only ointment I feel like recommending."—Mr. Jas. H. Patrick, 176 Rochdale avenue, Sydney, C.B.

Something New in----- SARDINES.

The best sardines in the world have been caught recently off the shores of Norway. These have immediately been pronounced by French and other European countries as Par Excellence. The best brand is put up by Stavanger Preserving Co., Norway, under the name of "Crossed Fish" brand. The fish are very small and very tender; they have been slightly smoked before being preserved, which not only adds to their delicacy of flavour, but prevents the indigestive "rising" after eating, so customary with ordinary sardines. The genuine sardine is far above the common herrings sold as sardines, as all connoisseurs well know. To be sure you are getting the best order



"CROSSED FISH" BRAND

A LONG LOST CITY.

Tanagra, the Site of the Modern Town of Gremada, in Greece.

Gremada is the name of the modern city in Boeotia, Greece, which occupies the site of the ancient city of Tanagra. The old town was a rich and luxurious place, greatly renowned for the cock-fights that were given there. It had the honor of being the birthplace of Corinna, the great poetess of the fifth century before Christ, and perpetuated her memory by a majestic tomb, on which she was represented five times crowned in remembrance of the five victories which she had gained in the lyrical contests with Pindar. Despite this comparative celebrity it appeared destined to the eternal sleep of forgetfulness when after more than twenty-two centuries of silence chance drew to it the attention of archaeologists.

In 1870 the inhabitants of the neighboring villages while digging in their fields exposed to view some tombs which the French have assigned to the nineteenth century before the Christian era. The discovery of these first sepulchers was the cause of excavations, during which a quantity of other tombs were discovered, all situated along the roads which led from the walls of Tanagra in the direction of Thebes, Chalcis, Harnia and Platae.

Among this mass of tombs belonging to several centuries the most interest attaches to those of the fourth century before the Christian era on account of their contents. It was in these particularly that the statuettes known today under the name of "Tanagra figurines" were for the most part discovered.

He Lost His Dignity.

A pompous individual from the east, says a Texas newspaper, happened to be traveling in western Texas and stopping at a hotel, when trouble started among some cowboys, who prepared to conduct the argument with revolvers.

"Stranger," said a Texan to the pompous man, "it would be a good idea fur you to lay down on the floor till this dispute is settled."

"It does not comport with the dignity of a Boston gentleman of my professions," said the pompous gentleman, "to wallow in the dirt on the floor."

"You may be right, stranger," answered the Texan as he prepared to recline, "but my opinion is that you had better lose yer dignity fur the time bein' than to have the daylights let into your system by a 44." He lost his dignity.

She Gloated.

A Fort Fairfield (Me.) woman was awakened at 3 one morning by a furious ring of the telephone in her house. Feeling from the wildness of the ring that somebody's house must be on fire or that somebody was bleeding to death, she scampered downstairs and nervously seized the receiver, only to hear a shrill soprano voice shriek: 'Got your washin' done yet? Had mine out half an hour ago."

GEORGE FISHER KILLED.

Man and Team That Wandered On the Track, Dead.

Owen Sound, Jan. 23.—George Fisher of Flesherton was instantly killed Saturday night a mile south of Markdale by the upbound C.P.R. express. Fisher had apparently been driving a team along the track, as the accident took place some distance from a crossing. The train was not running at a high speed, but before it could be brought to a standstill the unfortunate man was overtaken. He was tossed about 50 feet and was instantly killed, his head being crushed beyond recognition. Both horses were killed. Papers found in the man's pockets served to identify him. The body was placed on board the train and conveyed to Markdale.

Fatal Accident to Farmer.

Alliston, Jan. 23.—William McGirr, a young farmer, living close to the town, was engaged in cutting feed in the loft over the stable, when the chain which ran the carriers broke, hitting him on the head, inflicting a deep scalp wound about five inches long and knocking him down through a trap-hole 10 feet to the floor below. Dr. McCullough had to put 25 stitches in his head. There is not much hope for his recovery.

Smothered to Death.

Montreal, Jan. 23.—Mrs. Sarah Wilson, 77 years old, and a little deaf, was smothered to death by smoke from a fire in a tenement house on St. Hippolyte lane on Saturday afternoon. She had been left alone in the house by her son and daughter-in-law, but it seems that death was due to a regrettable mistake on the part of the neighbors. When the firemen arrived some one said the old woman was still in the house, but the neighbors declared they had seen her come out. After the fire had been extinguished the body was found, only slightly burned.

Auto Kills Chauffeur.

Dayton, Fla., Jan. 23.—While speeding his racing automobile on the beach Saturday Frank Croker, son of Richard Croker, of New York, met with an accident by which he was seriously injured, and his chauffeur, Rauel, killed. Newton Stanley, who was riding a motor cycle, had his leg broken. The machine turned over three times. The first turn threw mechanician Rauel out, and the machine crushed his life out instantly. Mr. Croker went out on the second turn and sustained a fracture of the right leg at the knee, fracture of all the bones of the left arm at the elbow and three broken ribs. One of his ears is also badly torn. Newton Stanley the young man on the motor cycle, received a compound fracture of the lower left leg.

Four Railway Men Die.

Many splendid examples which never before have been exhibited publicly have been promised, including a fine portrait of Whistler's patron, Leyland. King Edward will send 150 etchings. Besides the "Portrait of Thomas Carlyle," which belongs to the Glasgow Corporations, Whistler's "Portrait of Sarasate," from Pittsburg, and the "Portrait of My Mother," from the Luxembourg in Paris, which was only secured after great difficulty and through the interposition of the British Foreign Office, will be shown. Several contributions are promised from Chicago and Boston.

What! Is Beer So Dear?

London, Jan. 23.—(C.A.P.)—Writing to The Liverpool Commercial, and enclosing a copy of the report of Mr. J. Kane, Secretary of the Associated Charities, "Ottawa Experiences" says it will give some idea of the sufferings of immigrants coming to Canada at this time of the year. The "experience" is very severe. Canada is a country of ice and snow six months in the year. Ice carnivals are discontinued only because they were found to be advertising Canada as a country of ice and snow. One of the strongest kicks the writer makes is regarding the price of beer, which sells at five shillings per dozen bottles. "Fancy paying this price for a dozen of beer! Canada is no place for the ordinary workingman."

Charged With Forgery.

Fort Frances, Jan. 23.—M. T. Cathcart of Barwick, who was formerly in the general store business, now a partner of Alex. Locking, has been committed for trial on a charge of forgery preferred by F. W. Simkim, assignee of the Cathcart estate. The charge consists of three counts, Cathcart having it is said forged the names of several farmers to notes and then turned the notes over to the estate as available assets.

Charlton of Toronto and Thomas Charlton of North Tonawanda, N.Y., were called. At present he is improving slowly, and hopes of his speedy recovery are entertained.

"WILL END JAP WAR"

Member of Czar's Household on Result of the Russian Revolt.

RUSSIAN ARMY REINFORCED

At Mukden There Are Now Nine Army Corps, Or a Total of 300,000 Men of All Arms—Network of Trenches Between Opposing Armies, Which Are Now Only 500 Yards Apart.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 23.—A member of the Emperor's household is quoted as saying yesterday that this conflict with the masses will end the war with Japan, and that Russia will have a constitution or Emperor Nicholas will lose his head.

HAVE NINE ARMY CORPS.

Russian Army At Mukden Estimated to Number 300,000.

Tokio, Jan. 23.—In well informed quarters here it is said that the Russian army at Mukden was recently reinforced by four divisions. Its present strength is estimated at nine army corps, or 300,000 men of all arms.

Gen. Kuropatkin's headquarters are at Fong Mountain, in close touch with the Mukden Fushun line. The Russians lately have been heavily strengthening their wings. At present two and a half divisions are facing Gen. Oku, two corps are before Gen. Nodzu and the greater strength of three corps confronts Gen. Kuroki and guards the coal mines in the vicinity of the Fushun Valley.

Between the opposing armies is a network of trenches. Gen. Kuroki's outposts are within 500 yards of the Russians entrenched along the line of ridges near Kwantalien Mountain. Cannonading and rifle firing are constantly taking place, but owing to the intense cold there seems to be no immediate likelihood of a great battle.

Refugees From Port Arthur.

Che Foo, Jan. 23.—Twenty-seven men and women, comprising the first party of refugees from Port Arthur, arrived here in a junk yesterday. They stated that 22 other junks, bearing over 500 non-combatants, were also coming. Several launches immediately left, with the idea of assisting the junks in reaching Che Foo.

Drowns Herself in Icy River.

Montreal, Jan. 23.—A dramatic suicide occurred Friday evening at Cote St. Paul, the victim of her own rashness being Philomene Massie, a 16-year-old girl. The girl lived with her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. P. Massie, at Turcot Village. She wanted to go to a party to meet some friends whom her parents considered not quite the best sort for a young girl. Her parents insisted on keeping her at home, but she went and was upbraided by her mother when she returned. "You will never correct me again," exclaimed the headstrong child, "for I will die." She ran by her mother and made for the canal bank, and without hesitation threw herself through a small opening into the icy water. The body has not been found.

Cotton Merger Before Parliament.

Montreal, Jan. 23.—George E. Amyot of Quebec and Ald. Clearkin and F. B. Mathys of this city, representing $800,000 worth of Dominion Cotton stock, have been to Ottawa protesting to Sir Wilfrid Laurier against the cotton merger.

They say that the Premier made good promises and that the matter will come before Parliament. They declare they were not consulted in the deal and that their property has been handed over to an unknown corporation. An appraisal by the American Appraisal Company of the assets of the Dominion Cotton Company, and an inspection of the books of the company since 1895 will be requested from the directors.

France's New Cabinet.

Paris, Jan. 23.—The formation of a new Cabinet under the presidency of M. Rouvier, is well under way. Following a lengthy conference with President Loubet, M. Rouvier entered an automobile and spent Saturday conversing with those whom he hopes to enlist in the Ministry. Those with whom he had interviews included M. Delcasse, who, it is certain, will retain the portfolio of Foreign Affairs in the new Cabinet.

As the result of the conference between M. Rouvier and his associates, it was decided to continue former Premier Combes' policy.

BUILDER OF GREAT EASTERN.

The Great Ship That Was Years Ahead of Her Time.

Of all the great brains that have galloped ahead of their times, none went further than those marvellous engineers, the two Brunels. In everything they undertook they were at least a generation in advance of their times.

The elder, Sir Marc Isambard Brunel, was born near Rouen, in France, in 1769. After beginning his engineering career in America in 1794, he came to Plymouth in 1799, and married and settled down there.

He invented a writing and drawing machine, which was too good to meet with general appreciation in those days, and soon afterwards began to interest himself in steam navigation.

In 1812 he pointed out to the Admiralty the immense use tugs would be in getting warships out of harbor, but the proposal was quickly rejected by the Navy Board.

His son, Isambard Kingdom Brunel, is best known for that marvellous steamship, the Great Eastern, built 1858-1858, and which, though never a commercial success, remained the biggest ship in the world for half a century.

The real cause of its failure was simply that the steam engines of the day were not sufficiently powerful to drive such a tremendous structure through the water.

Could the Great Eastern have been equipped with modern twin-screws and 30,000 h.p. engines, there is no reason why she should not have taken her place with any of the fliers of to-day.

How Southey Worked.

Southey was a methodical and rapid literary craftsman. "I am a quiet, patient, easy going hack of the mule breed; regular as clockwork in my pace, surefooted, bearing the burden which is laid on me, and only obstinate in choosing my own path," he wrote to a friend But his method was by no means simple.

He was a poet, a historian, a critic and a miscellaneous writer; he turned out an enormous quantity of matter and succeeded in doing so by working fourteen hours a day and diversifying his labors within his daily round. He had six tables in his library. He wrote poetry at one, history at another, criticism at a third, and so on with the other subjects upon which he was engaged, and when he was tired of spinning his brains into verse he turned to history and criticism.

There is a story that he once described to Mme de Stael the division of his time—two hours before breakfast for history, two hours for reading after, two hours for the composition of poetry, two hours for criticism and so on through all his working day. "And pray, Mr. Southey," queried the French woman, somewhat unkindly, "when do you think?"—Cornhill Magazine.

Slight Difference.

A girl in Leyburn market sold a gentleman a fat goose, warranting it to be young. It turned out; when roasted for the Christmas dinner, to be unmanageably tough. A few days later the gentleman said to the market girl:

"That goose you sold me for a young one was very old."

"Certainly not," said she. "Don't you call me young?"

"Yes."

"Well, I am but eighteen, and I have heard mother say often that that goose was six weeks younger than me!"

THE LAST WEEKLY LIBERAL RALLY

Speakers Report That the Chances for the Success of the Liberal Candidate are Improving Day by Day.

Stirring Addresses at the Liberal Committee Rooms, on Saturday Night—Largest Meeting of the Present Campaign.

Hon. J. R. Stratton, Messrs D. O'Connell F. D. Kerr and R. F. McWilliams Speak to a Cheering Roomful of Liberals.

The last Saturday night rally in the interests of Mr. R. F. McWilliams, the Liberal candidate in West Peterborough, in the present provincial campaign was held on Saturday night last, and was one of the most largely attended and enthusiastic in the whole campaign. The large rooms on Simcoe street, were crowded, many finding only standing room, and the meeting was in every was a complete success. The speakers for the evening were Mr. F. D. Kerr, Hon. J. R. Stratton, Mr. D. O'Connell and the candidate, all of whom were well received, and delivered exceedingly hopeful and optimistic speeches.

Mr. Garrow, as usual, was the chairman of the meeting, and in opening it he referred to the fact that the campaign was rapidly nearing its close, but the approach of polling day found the Liberals well prepared for the event, and he felt assured that the steady and consistent work which had been done by the different committees during the last, and preceding weeks, would bear fruit on January 25th, when he expected the Liberal candidate in the riding would be returned by a good majority.

The first speaker of the evening was Mr. F. D. Kerr, who, in opening, referred to the splendid attendance which, he thought, augured well for Mr. McWilliams' candidature. The chances for his success are improving from week to week, and were better that night than they were a week ago, and he believed that they would be better still on Wednesday night. The speaker said he had read the speeches of the Opposition orators in this campaign, and while he had seen abuse of the Liberals, he had yet to read of one speaker who attacked the splendid administrative record of the Ross Government. They still harp on the old cry of corruption, and one would think to read their speeches, that they did not know their own party, because those who had studied the record of the Conservative party as well as that of the Liberals, know that the latter will compare splendidly with the former, and they know that there is very little ground for the Conservatives to continue to cry corruption when they think of the record of that party in this particular. He knew of a great many Conservatives who were going to vote for Mr. McWilliams in this election, and thereby evidence their disapproval of the policy of abuse which the Conservatives are indulging in at the present time. Mr. Kerr said he could hear, and he did need to put his ear very close to the ground to hear it either, the rumble, which means victory for the Ross Government on January 25th, and defeat for Mr. Whitney and his cohorts. Mr. Ross has shown not only by his speeches in this campaign, but also by his past administrative record, that he is a fit man to govern the province, while Mr. Whitney has shown conclusively that he is utterly incapable. In conclusion Mr. Kerr expressed his confidence in the result of the election on Wednesday, and urged all the workers to leave nothing undone to insure beyond a doubt the election of their champion.

At this stage in the meeting Mr. Stratton entered the hall, and was loudly applauded, and, in response to the demand of the audience, took a seat on the platform.

THE CANDIDATE SPEAKS.

Mr. McWilliams was the next speaker called upon, and on rising to address the audience, was given a splendid reception. He stated that the week which was just closing had been a pretty strenuous week for him, and he had spent on the average eighteen hours a day in work. During the early part of the week he, in company with Hon. J. R. Stratton, had visited the northern end of the riding, and had held meetings in Galway, which had been successful. On this trip he had found out, that it might be truly said of Mr. Stratton, that "he was the man for Galway!" for he learned in canvassing the electors there that they had invariably said that they wanted to know what Mr. Stratton thought about it, and if he said that Mr. McWilliams was a proper man to vote for, it would be all right. At all the meetings held in that township there was a good attendance, in spite of the exceedingly inclement weather, and he felt certain that in the country districts he would have a majority of between three and four hundred. He would not be satisfied, however, unless in addition to his majority in the country districts, he had a majority right in the town of Peterborough, and he felt that he was not expecting too much to look for it. He was well known here, and in addition to the vote which he had taken in the municipal election, there was the registration vote, which, he believed, would show up well for him.

There was no reason why he should not be elected; he had a strong government to work for, a government with which none of his opponents had been able to find any substantial fault. When a government had given such a good account of itself as the Ross Government had done, there was no reason why it should be turned out. The speaker defied Mr. Whitney to define one single point of public policy upon which he was appealing to the province for support. What the people of this province want is not a campaign of abuse of public men, for they recognize what is a fact, that there are in this province men of as high moral character as are to be found anywhere.

The chief local Conservative speaker at the recent meeting held in the interests of the Conservative candidate, had said some things about the Liberal candidate, and he wished briefly to refer to some of these things. As far as he could learn, and he had read the speech pretty thoiroughly, about the only objection that he had raised against him was that he was too young. In answer to this, he said that more than one-quarter of the voters in this election in town were as young as, or younger, than himself, and he thought that on Wednesday, they would themselves give their answer to this objection in no uncertain way.

At the opening of the campaign the two candidates had made an agreement by which personalities were to be entirely excluded from this campaign, and he believed that the Review newspaper was, as far as he knew, the first to seriously transgress this agreement. He had hoped that with the recent change in editorial management in that paper, the style of campaign which had characterized that paper in the past, when only abuse of the opposite candidate was indulged in, and which style had been condemned alike by Conservatives and Liberals, would have been abandoned, but it seemed that it had not been. He was of the opinion that party feeling had reached a pretty low ebb when, finding nothing else to say, they had to resort to abuse of a man because his father, who happened to be a public official, had helped his son to be elected. A similar case had been discussed in the Dominion House, and the opinion there was that the man who would not help his son under those conditions, was not fit to be a public official.

He had a splendid cause to fight for. He was working for the return of a government which had a record unparalleled in the history of the country for administrative abilities and achievements, and on the other hand, they were fighting an opposition of the weakest possible kind.

Mr. McWilliams extended his thanks to those who had worked so heartily for him during his absence from town. He had been so busy that he had not had time to visit the committee rooms much but he had been gratified to find that the work had been progressing in his absence, and he hoped that the remaining three days after they had had their well earned Sunday rest, would redouble their efforts for the Liberal cause, and he was certain that victory would be on their side.

GOOD WORK IN THE COUNTRY.

Mr. D. O'Connell was the next speaker, and said that during the last week he and some others had been working in the country districts, and despite the very disagreeable weather and blocked roads, the meetings had been largely attended, and at the close practically of the campaign, he could say that the Liberal prospects were excellent. The enthusiasm of the Liberals was growing as time passes, and the condition of the country seemed to indicate a good Liberal victory.

Mr. Whitney, with his characteristic timidity had followed the premier around the country, and on no occasion has he preceded him. He came to Peterborough after the Liberals had held their big meeting, and while the Conservative meeting was large, he was of the opinion that a great many had attended it out of curiosity, and he was certain that if the Premier of this province should visit Peterborough there would not be any hall large enough to hold the crowds which would want to hear him. Mr. Whitney had not attempted to discuss the public questions of the day, but had confined himself to talking corruption and matters of no importance.

If it was simply a question of candidates in this election there should be no doubt as to which would be the better man to advocate the claims of the people of this riding on the floor of the House or in Committee. Mr. McWilliams is a young man, it is true, but he is a man, who, while he is young, has shown a grasp of public affairs which has proclaimed him as a man of decided ability, and the interests of the riding he was sure might well be left in his hands. But it was not a question of the individual man altogether. It was whether the electors of this province thought that the Liberal Government had administered the affairs of Ontario well, and on this point he thought there could be no ground for difference of opinion. Even the Opposition do not successfully attack the administration, but point to the action of members of the Liberal party who have committed wrong acts, but the party cannot be blamed for that, because in every case where these acts have come to the attention the party, with its fidelity to its traditions, the Liberal party has denounced these wrong acts. The Conservatives say that the Government has been kept in power by corruption yet they are unable to point to one single case of corruption on the part of the Government. In conclusion Mr. O'Connell said that if the administration of the Government had been honest, there was no reason why it should not be returned to power.

HON. MR. STRATTON.

The last speaker of the evening was Hon. J. R. Stratton, who urged upon the workers the necessity of seeing that the organization was complete. There are always a number of favourable voters in any election who will not go to the polls unless they are sent for, and this should be systematically arranged. It constituted the factor most to be feared in any election.

He referred to the Whitney meeting, which he said was disappointing to him, not so much in the size of the gathering, but in the speech of Mr. Whitney. He had expected that the Conservative leader would give to the people some reasons why they should change their allegiance, but he did not show how in any way financially, educationally, agriculturally the Conservatives would improve on the record of the Liberal Government.

As to the corruption cry, it could be shown that the record of the Liberal party in the past in this particular is one which in comparison with the Conservative record at once stamps the latter as the party which has the least reason to cry corruption. While no one will deny that there has been wrongdoing in some of the elections in politics, there is also wrong doing in other things, and it is just as reasonable to charge the Liberal party as a party with responsibility for the latter as it is for the former.

In conclusion Mr. Stratton urged the workers to exert themselves to see that the favourable vote was polled on Wednesday.

WILL CANADA BE INVADED?

Rev. E. A. Langfeldt Thinks There is a Possibility

Time of Judgment is at Hand—A Patriotic Sermon in St. Lukes Church Yesterday.

The accession of His Majesty, King Edward, VII to the Throne of Great Britain and Ireland was celebrated yesterday, and in the Anglican Churches in town special reference was made to fact that the day was the fourth anniversary of his accession, and a social form of service was used.

In St. Luke's Church also in commemoration of the event the Rector, Rev. E. A. Langfeldt preached a special patriotic sermon, in which the condition of ancient Jerusalem at the time when Christ uttered his famous lamentation was compared to that of Canada at the present time, and the reverend speaker stated that there were dark days at hand for Canada, and it might be that unless the people revolted against the political corruption in the land we may meet the judgment of God through an invasion by the people to the South of us.

There was a more than ordinarily at the service yesterday morning at St. Luke's, and the alter and pulpit were decorated specially for the occasion, the pulpit being entirely enveloped in a large Union Jack, while the Christmas decorations which were still remaining made a very beautiful effect.

After the first hymn the Rector referred to the fact that throughout the British Empire the accession to the Throne of the King was being celebrated. It was a matter for profound thankfulness that King Edward, during the four years that he had ruled over the great Empire had ruled so wisely and well, and had made a name for himself as Edward the Peacemaker. He was sure that it was the earnest wish of every British subject that he might long be spared to reign over them.

The subject of Rev. Mr. Langfeldt's sermon was, "A Nation's time of grace, a Nation's time of blindness, a nation's time of judgment," and the text was St. Luke, 19; 41-44, "And when he was come near he beheld the city and wept over it, saying if thou hadst known even thou, at least in this thy day, the things which belong unto thy peace; but now they are hid from thine eyes. For the days shall come upon thee, that thine enemies shall cast a trench about thee, and compass thee around, and keep thee in on every side. And shall lay thee even with the ground, and thy children within thee, and they shall not leave in thee one stone upon another, because thou knewest not the time of thy visitation." The events recorded in the chapter from which this text is taken took place in the last year of Christ's life. For four years He had preached the Gospel to them and now His earthly pilgrimage was almost at an end, yet no one would think that He was on His way to death. This is one of the two occasion when it is recorded that Jesus wept, and yet His sorrow was not for Himself, but for those to whom He had been trying to preach the Gospel during the years of His ministry, and who had rejected His teaching.

There is only one record in the Word of Jesus rejoicing and that was only in spirit, and there is, said the speaker, something characteristic in His habitual melancholia. In the depth of life there is a great seriousness, and while it may be that the human race is on its way to good, still the victory achieved is very small, and when the slow progress that the world is making is no cause for surprise that He wept.

The words of the text tell us that in every nation's life there are three periods, viz.:—A time of grace, a time of blindness and a time of judgment. First, considering the time of grace, there were three modes mentioned, "thy day," thy peace," and "thy visitation." This was Jerusalem's time of opportunity, of visitation. Christ had been preaching to the people and spoke of those things which made for their peace, and told them not to look for future deliverance for their deliverer was then at hand. But all these things which he preached to the nation was disregarded by the priests. He was rejected also by the rulers and by the people as a whole, who were content to follow any demagogue who promised them earthly greatness. Thus His rejection was the act of the whole nation.

To the people of that day, His coming into the world was nothing remarkable. They did not think of it as being significant, whereas to the people of to-day, it is regarded as being an event of great import. To the rulers He seemed like a fanatical free thinker, and since they put His words away from them their day of grace was past.

The speaker said that there come to each of us days of grace of which none but ourselves know. There are secrets influences at work in our lives, which are to us days of grace. The day of grace for Jerusalem was short, only about three and a half years and the doom of the city was sealed when Christ uttered the words of the text. The day of grace is always short, but to some it is shorter than to others. To some nations and individuals Christ comes but once with his day of opportunity, and if that day is not accepted it does not come again.

DAYS OF BLINDNESS.

The time of blindness was next dealt with, and the speaker said that there were 'wo kinds of judicial blindness, first because of the removal of the light, and second because of the incapacity of the eyes to see the light. In the case of Jerusalem the first was the cause. Their way of blindness was the result of the continual hardening of their hearts. The law is that if a man will not see he shall not see, and if he will not accept the light it will be withdrawn from his possible possession.

THE TIME OF JUDGMENT.

The reverend speaker portrayed very realistically the awful details of the day of Judgment which Jerusalem met with because of her persistent refusal to accept the teachings of Christ. The Romans devastated the city, and eleven hundred persons perished because of their own actions. The judgment was the result of natural causes, as God's judgments always are, and if the course which leads to destruction as bound to follow, as in the case of the ancient city and its people.

Where there is corruption there will follow destruction, and where there is a carcass there the eagles will be gathered together. The speaker asked if there was no such thing as blindness to-day, and if this might not be the day of our visitation. It is true that in Ontario we are more enlightened than they were in Jerusalem, but they were rapidly becoming more enlightened, and enlightenment will not retard the day of judgment. When he saw the condition of the public morals, and the political corruption, when he heard men who were otherwise honest and honourable condone corruption and say that elections cannot be won by prayer he wondered if our day of judgment was not at hand.

Canadians have come by their great possessions easier than most nations, but this fact is not without its attendant responsibility.

The reverend gentleman wondered if it might not be that Canada might not have to meet her judgment by an invasion of the people to the south of us. The history of other nations has shown that God sometimes sends a nation into temporary captivity, and might it not be that this was what was in store for Canada?

Unless the people of this country revolt against the political corruption which the speaker said was prevalent in the land, dark days will be in store for Canada. This is not the day of refinement or political freedom, and by neglecting the words of Christ we may bring upon ourselves the day of ruin both to the individual and to the nation.

EFFORTS TO SECURE RATE CONCESSIONS

Peterborough Board of Trade has been Endeavouring to Secure Co-operation of Boards of Other Cities.

Closing of Cereal Works has led to an Agitation to get More Advantageous Freight Rates for Millers.

Case Will Likely Claim the Attention of the Railway Commission in Near Future —Meeting of the Board.

To-morrow night a special meeting of the Board of Trade will be held in the Council Chamber, when the Board will discuss a matter of considerable interest to Peterborough, viz.:—the condition which made the partial closing of the American Cereal Works a necessity. As soon as the information was obtained that the local works would have to run on short time, the Board through a representative interviewed the heads of the Company, and tendered its services to the Company in an effort to secure such concessions from the railways in regard to more favourable freight rates as will enable the works to be profitably operated.

The Board in its efforts to accomplish this has sought the co-operation of other Boards of Trade, and Chambers of Commerce in the country, and the secretary has been in communication with Boards in all the large cities of the Dominion and it is understood that when the conditions prevailing here have been explained, most encouraging replies have been received from the organizations with which communication has been carried on, and it is probable that a concerted effort of the leading Boards of Trade in the country will be made to induce the Railway Commissioner to secure such concessions from the railways as will overcome the difficulties under which the local industry, and others similarly situated, are operating.

The business bodies referred to, with the Board of Trade, recognize that this is a crisis in the milling industry of this country, and if the industry is to develop as it should under natural conditions they feel that it will only do so by the adjustment of freight rates which will enable the grain to be milled, en route, without having to pay what the millers consider an excessive rate of freight.

The officers of the local Board of Trade are hopeful that they will be successful in their efforts to secure better arrangements, and that the conditions will be made such that an early resumption of full operations of the local works will be possible. The meeting of the Board to-morrow night will no doubt be largely attended by the business men of the town, who are vitally interested in this matter.

TWO ASSESSORS TO BE APPOINTED

This Decision Reached at Meeting of Whole Council

Messrs. Thomas McKee and John Kincaid—Reasons for Change.

At the meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council on Friday evening the question of the manner of assessing the town was discussed. There were present at the meeting Mayor Best, Ald. Hacks, Tovey, Johnston, McIntyre, Mason, Crowe, Hall, Batten.

The decision reached by the committee was that instead of having four assessors as was the case last year, there should be but two this year. The question of having an Assessment Commissioner, which was one of the planks in the Trades and Labour Council platform, was discussed, but it was the opinion of the majority of the Council that the plan of two assessors would be better for this year at least in view of the new assessment act.

Mr. Hicks was a strong advocate of the plan of having two assessors and gave reasons for his belief. Under the old method of having four men, it was not possible to have the same men and consequently the same judgment in all the wards. By having two men assess the whole town, the same ideas would be carried out throughout the town, there would be uniformity, and better results would follow. The system of two men would be less expensive than to employ an assessment commission, and the expense of employing two men would be about the same as with the four of last year. It was not probable that one man could be secured in whom the council would care to entrust the responsibility of such an important work, and at such an important time, for the money which they would desire to pay. It was especially advisable to have two men this year, as the work was to be done under the new Assessment Act, and a new basis would be laid this year.

Mr. Tovey strongly supported Mr. Hicks, as did most of the other Aldermen present.

Mr. Johnston spoke in favour of the Assessment Commission as he thought that such a change was being made in the Assessment Act this year it would be advisable to appoint the Assessment Commission this year, if it were to be done at all.

It was decided to appoint Messrs. John Kincaid and Thos. McKee, two of last year's four assessors, at a salary of $500 each.

SIX CENT SUGAR MAY BE REACHED

Present Price of that Commodity is $5.83 per Hundred

Opinion of Local Grocery Firm on the Will Probably go Still Higher

Local grocers report that another jump in the price of sugar has taken place, and that necessary commodity, now almost bordering on a luxury, is dearer than it has been for years, and the worst feature of the situation is that the prospects are that the top notch has not yet been reached, and it is believed that the price may yet reach six cents.

The price is now $5.83 per 100 lbs, in car lots in Toronto, and this price is from $1.65 to $1.75 higher than it was a few months ago.

A rise of 10 cents on the hundred may appear somewhat trifling, but a more serious look is given the state of the market when it is considered that as recently as January 13 a similar advance of 10 cents on white and of 15 cents on yellow refined took place. On January 9th last there was another rise of 10 cents, and again of 5 cents on January 3rd. There was an advance of 5 cents on the granulated article on December 28, an advance of 10 cents on December 10, of another 10 cents on December 8.

The Examiner was informed by E. F. Mason & Co. that the reason for this sharp advance in price was that there was a scarcity of raw sugar in the country. Several factors have joined in the restriction of the supply. The Brussels Conference some two years ago, abolished the bounty which the German Government was paying for the export of sugar from that country. This discouragement was added to by our German surtax. There was, too, in Germany, an overproduction of sugar, and as a result the growing of beets was to a certain extent discontinued. In the United States the growing of sugar cane has also decreased on account of the low price paid for sugar. Then comes the increase in the demand. There is to-day a world consumption of sugar of the enormous amount of ten millions tons. Of this Canada consumes about four hundred million pounds. We produce in Canada about fifteen million pounds. That is equal to about 50,000 barrels.

The Examiner's informant was of the opinion that the present price will be maintained and in all probability exceeded during this month, but that during February, when the new supply of raw sugar begins to come in, the price may be reduced somewhat, but it will not again be as low as it was some time ago, when it sold at thirty pounds for one dollar.

LAID AT REST

Funeral of Late Mrs. J. P. Wilson—Reference at George Street Church

The funeral of the late Mrs. J. P. Wilson, took place at 9.30 o'clock on Saturday morning, from the family residence, Belleville, to the Bridge street Methodist church, which was filled with citizens of Belleville, who were present in large numbers to pay their last tribute of respect to the memory of the deceased. A large number of ministers were present on the occasion.

The service was conducted by Rev. George Brown of Belleville, assisted by Rev. Messrs. J. J. Leach, of Belleville, C. Parker of Colborne, T. S. Bartlett of Napanee, J. J. Rae of Picton, and addresses were delivered by Rev. W. J. Jolliffe, of Peterborough, and Rev. N. A. McDiarmid, of Madoc. Suitable music was rendered by the choir.

After the service, the cortege proceeded to the G.T.R. station, a large number of citizens following in the procession. From Belleville the remains were taken to Napanee for interment in the family burying ground there.

At the George street church yesterday, Mr. D. W. Dumble, who attended the funeral, made feeling reference to the deceased lady, who was so well known, and admired, in Peterborough. During her illness the kindest and most sympathetic services were rendered the family by the people of Belleville, who had learned to admire the quiet, dignified and kindly character of the pastor's wife, and though, owing to her sickness they had seen but little of her, the expressions of sympathy on the sad occasion were wide and sincere.

FOOTBALL ANECDOTES.

Some of the Best of Them Culled From Lloyd's Interesting Compilation of the Stories.

A party of school children were being taken round St. Paul's Cathedral, but they did not seem to be much impressed. One boy, however, when standing beneath the dome, said:

"Wouldn't it make a good football ground on a wet day if all the chairs were moved?"

Domes Goal.

After a League match between Sunderland and another team two Wearsiders were discussing the chief events of the game.

"By gum!" said one, "that wor a good match!"

"It wor that!" said the other. "What did ye think o' yon goal Hyslop scored. It wor a demon; goalkeeper nivvor tried to save it."

"Save it!" was the reply. "General Booth hissen cuddent have saved that un!"

Splendid Prospects.

Father of eligible bride (to medical aspirant): Well, sir, and what are your prospects?

Medical Aspirant: I need hardly remind you, sir, that I live in the centre of a football circle, and that the season has just commenced.

Father—Take her, my boy; take her!

A Fact.

Master (to class)—Now, Jones, tell me how many seasons there are.

Jones—Two, sir.

Master—Only two? Name them.

Jones—Cricket and football seasons, sir.

Deadly Sport.

Football as played in the United States is rather a dangerous game, and a match is considered a poor one unless someone is maimed. The humorous papers make many jokes on the matter, as witness the following:

"Can I change my occupation under this insurance policy?" asks a young man at one of the chief assurance offices.

"What do you wish to be?"

"A football player."

"No," is the prompt reply.

"Can I become a Cuban insurgent?"

"Yes," says the clerk, and shuts down the window!

Wouldn't Hurt Them.

A certain famous league club once arranged to send their reserve team into a district where association football was in its beginnings, with a view to encouraging the local teams and showing them how the game could be played.

Unfortunately one of those games had to be abandoned, and the secretary of the great club wired off to the C—— Club, a colliery team, saying that the reserves would be unable to appear, and at the same time expressed his "deep regrets," etc.

Imagine his astonishment when he received the following cheerful wire:

"Never mind. Send the first team. We won't hurt 'em!"

Useless Ball.

The Maori team that visited Britain some few years back acquired a reputation for rough play before they had been three weeks in this country. In one match, indeed, this feature so developed itself that the game had not been in progress more than ten minutes before three of the home team were hors de combat.

As expostulation was useless, the home team—a Yorkshire one—began to retaliate, and a couple of the Maoris were duly carried off the field.

The Yorkshiremen took up the retaliation policy with guesto, for during a fierce hacking scrimmage one of them was heard to bawl out to a comrade: "Confound it, Tom, do look out. It was the ball you kicked that time!"

Rough Play.

Glasgow contains some ardent footballers. One Saturday evening, at a newspaper office, a grimy hand appeared on the outside of the counter, upon which fluttered a piece of dirty paper, containing the result of a very junior football match.

Leaning well over the counter, the clerk saw a little urchin, with a dreadful black eye, standing on tiptoe in order to reach the top of the counter.

"Wull ye be shair tae pit it in on Monday?" was the boy's query.

"Yes," was the amused reply; but the boy still hung about as if loth to leave.

To humor him the newspaper clerk asked if there was anything else he wanted, whereupon the boy, pointing to his damaged eye and several contusions on his face, replied:

"Aye! Ye micht add to it, 'Rough play!' "

DRIVING A ROYAL TRAIN.

An Insight Into the Anxieties of Engineer's Responsible Position.

In the course of a long chat with a keen and highly intelligent engine-driver we were enabled to obtain some insight into the anxieties of his responsible position. The strain is specially felt in the driving of a royal train; yet on such an occasion he is never mentioned, though the names of all the high officials, who play merely ornamental parts in the function, are given at length. Although from a pecuniary point of view it means really nothing, yet the position of royal driver is one of considerable honor as indicating that he has been specially chosen from among his comrades for his steadiness, accuracy, and time-keeping, says Lloyd's Weekly Newspaper.

Of course, the greatest care and all kinds of precautions are observed in the running of a royal train. To begin with, the engine is selected by the officers of the company, as being the most perfect and, at the same time, the one best adapted to the special journey it has to perform. Then every part of it is minutely examined and cleaned, and every nut and bolt tested. In addition to this, it is watched for two or three days—day and night—so that there may be no opportunity of injury coming to it. Notwithstanding all these precautions, there is always a bare possibility of something going wrong; and once the train is on the move the driver's anxiety begins. No amount of familiarity with the work or the route lessens it. From first to last the strain endures, and the nerve-tension is such as no one can describe. The journey over, then comes the reaction, and this, our informant says, is terrible—in fact, far more trying than the deep sense of responsibility experienced during the actual run.

The King, with that kindliness and thought for every one which has always distinguished him, never fails to remember the driver and stoker, and a sovereign is always despatched to each of them by his equerry, and their names entered in his book.

Some few years ago Mr. George Lasham, who had been in the service of the Southwestern Railway Company for over half a century, and had driven the royal train no less than one hundred and fifty-five times, retired upon a well-earned pension. Amongst foreign royalties who never forgot the engine-driver was the late Emperor Napoleon, whom he frequently used to drive between Windsor and Chislehurst. He tells of his surprise on the first occasion upon which he drove him, when, just as he was leaving his engine, one of the Emperor's chamberlains handed a five-pound note to the guard to be divided between him and the driver. The same amount was always given to them whenever Napoleon traveled. The present Shah's father, however (according to Mr. Lasham), seems to have been the most lavish with his money, for on his visit to England he surprised and delighted Mr. Lasham by presenting him with twenty pounds!

You can make dirty picture frames, or any other such articles, look like new if you clean them the Sunlight way. Chop very finely a piece of Sunlight Soap and put it into a bottle with a teacupful of hot water, shaking it well and adding a wine glass full of spirits of ammonia. Paint the frames with this liquid, let it stay on a few minutes, then wash off with a soft brush and cold clean water, and polish with clean chamois leather. Sunlight Soap is the only soap that can be used successfully in every cleansing operation in the household.

Kidney Cells Destroyed

BY REPEATED ATTACKS OF DISEASE—SURPRISING RESULTS

OBTAINED BY USE OF

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

Because it is sometimes a slow and lingering malady, people are prone to overlook the destructive tendencies of kidney disease.

They forget that the wasting process brings about a change in the cellular tissue, which practically renders the kidneys useless as filtering organs.

Continued paleness and loss of flesh, pains in the back and loins, dry, harsh skin, severe headaches and backaches; scanty, highly coloured urination, stomach troubles and irregular bowels are among the symptoms of kidney disease.

As a cause of downright suffering few diseases are to be compared with kidney disease, and the results are frequently, the end coming suddenly and unexpected.

By their direct and wonderfully prompt action on the kidneys, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills call a quick halt to the advance of kidney disease.

By their combined action on kidneys liver and bowels they prove effective in complicated cases, in which ordinary kidney medicines bring little or no relief.

Mrs. H. Trollope, 650 Water street, Peterborough, Ont., states: "I have used two boxes of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and found them an excellent medicine. I had very severe pains across the back which came came from my kidneys being out of order, and since using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for a time, I began to feel a wonderful improvement in my health.

"I have no more pains in my back now and am feeling as well as ever I did. Consequently, I am glad of an opportunity to recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have thoroughly proven their genuine and indisputable merit, and you can use them knowing of a certainty that you will receive all the benefit that would be derived from attention of the most skilful physician. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. 8

An Old Fashioned Clock.

The oldest working clock in Great Britain is that of Peterborough Cathedral, which dates from 1320 and is conceded to have been made by a monastic clockmaker. It is the only one now known that is wound up over an old wooden wheel. This is some twelve feet in circumference, carrying a galvanized cable about 300 feet in length, with a leaden weight of three hundredweight. The cable has to be wound up daily. The gong is the great tenor bell of the cathedral, which weighs thirty-two hundredweight, and it is struck hourly by an eighty pound hammer. The gong and the striking parts of the clock are some yards apart, communication being by a slender wire. The clock is not fitted with a dial, but the time is indicated on the main wheel of the escapement, which goes round once in two hours. This clock is of the most primitive design, more so than the famous one made for Charles V. of France by Henry de Nick.

BRITISH GUN PRACTICE.

Men on Beresford's Ship Have Made Record Shooting.

The Navy League Journal for December tells of some good shooting by a British battleship, the Caesar, flagship of Admiral Lord Charles Beresford of the Mediterranean fleet. The Caesar carries four 12-inch guns and twelve 6-inch.

The performance of the 12-inch guns is not given further than that one gunner made six hits out of seven shots fired at a target 20 feet square supported on a float, at a distance approximating a mile and a half.

The 6-inch quick-firing guns discharged 227 rounds at the same size target, at distances varying from a mile and an eighth to a mile and a half. Only two minutes were allowed to each gun, so that each of the twelve fired an average of nearly 19 rounds in the two minutes. There were no less than 149 hits. This, The Navy League Journal says, constitutes a world's record.

Imagine a torpedo flotilla attempting to get within effective torpedo range (little over half a mile) of a battleship whose 6-inch guns alone would plant 147 hits in two minutes at over a mile. While the larger guns seem to have proved themselves even more accurate!

However, in considering such a case as that of the Sevastopol at Port Arthur, which seems to have been done for by a Japanese torpedo attack, it is to be remembered that the attack was made during darkness, or at least in the very early dawn. The Navy League Journal says that the best gun practice on record at night shows only about 3 per cent. of hits at a mile, by aid of searchlights. This would be a very different story to the Caesar's average in daylight of nearly 75 per cent. of hits out of 227 shells in two minutes.—Ottawa Journal.

Mix-Up of National Anthems.

The indentity of English and Prussian national anthems, says a foreign letter, led to a rather amusing incident the other day at Potsdam on the occasion of the luncheon given by the Kaiser in honor of the birthday of his uncle, King Edward. The Emperor, who after the luncheon was inspecting one of the regiments of Foot Guards, when the British Ambassador took his leave, had given orders that the band of the regiment should play "God Save the King" as Sir Francis Lascelles took his place in the carriage, and should continue playing it as long as the envoy's equipage remained in sight. Sir Frank, unaware of the compliment intended for him by the Emperor, imagined when he heard the familiar strains that it was the Prussian national anthem that was being played, and, in accordance with the demands of etiquette, told the coachman to stop, and stood up in the carriage in honor of the Emperor, for whom he believed the anthem was being played.

The result was rather entertaining. The Ambassador remained standing bare headed as long as the band played, and the band, in accordance with the orders which it had received, essayed to play as long as the Ambassador was in sight. In fact, it was not until the band was striking up the national anthem for the fifth time that the Emperor, grasping the situation, laughingly ordered the band to stop, and thus enabled Sir Frank to at length drive off to the railroad station. With regard to this national anthem of England and Prussia, which is likewise the melody of "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," it is not generally known that this air was likewise used by Russia as her national hymn until the middle of the last century. Nicholas I., however, decided about the time of the Crimean War to cast aside a national anthem borrowed and imported from the enemy, and to substitute for it a genuine national anthem of native composition obtained by open competition. The award fell to Lvoff, the Russian composer, and it is his anthem which is in use to-day in Russia as her national hymn.

Bernard Shaw's Socialism.

"Socialism for the Upper Classes" formed the theme of an address delivered on behalf of the Potteries Fund by Mr. G. Bernard Shaw to a wealthy audience at Holy Trinity Parish Room, Upper Chelsea.

"First acquire an independent income and then practice virtue," Mr. Shaw quoted approvingly from the ancient Greeks. One could not, Mr. Shaw thought, be virtuous or decent unless one belonged to the upper classes, because, in order to practice virtue, health, happiness, and decency one required money, and these things were part of morality.

People often imagined dramatic situations where a person was forced to choose between poverty with virtue and wealth without virtue, but this was a false antithesis, because if a person were compelled to choose between two vices he should choose the lesser, and in this case he did not know but what he should choose the wealth. Consequently society was face to face with this predicament that they could not be decent, virtuous or happy unless they had money, and if they had the money they could not be either.

Take the case of the burglar. He obtained what he did in a manner as right and proper as the means, in many cases, whereby the people from whom he stole had obtained their wealth. More than that, he was heroic and clever, and he worked, and he showed those qualities which had made the British nation famous.

What he suggested was the establishment of a minimum income, and that this might be increased by the work of the recipient. It was no good to attempt a social reform by individual effort, but it could be obtained by social effort.

Will Censor the Bible.

Mr. W. H. Quilliam of Liverpool, the Sheik-ul-Islam, of the British Isles, has received orders from the Sultan of Turkey to proceed to Trebizond, Armenia, to inquire into disturbances arising from the confiscation of Bibles imported from England.

It is alleged that the Armenians have been using extracts from the Bibles on their processional banners, inflaming the populace against Turkish rule and encouraging regicide.

The Sheik has been requested to censor the objectionable passages. Mr. Quilliam is an Englishman by birth, a Mahometan by religion, and a solicitor by profession.

Closed on Sunday.

Transatlantic travelers by the Anchor Liner Columbia, which always arrives in the Clyde on a Sunday, have a grievance against the Sabbatarianism of Arran.

The signalling station at Kildonan is the only one in the world which refuses to report passing ships on a Sunday, or to send on telegrams, a circumstance which often results in considerable inconvenience and even apprehension on the part of those interested in the arrival of the ship from New York.

Come in As Students.

A clever and successful scheme to evade the prohibitive Chinese poll tax, which has apparently kept all Chinese immigrants out of Canada since December, 1903, has been exposed in connection with the working of the Victoria, B.C., School Board. The practice has been to have the new arrival take advantage of the students' exemption clauses, and attend the city public schools for one year, receiving thereupon a certificate under the hand of City Superintendent Eaton, who, at the instance of the Trustee Board, imposed a $2.50 fee. The Chinese, not satisfied with saving $497.50 each, through finding the flaw in the Canadian law, sought through Messrs. Bodwell & Lawson to evade the certificate fee as an illegal impost, and now immediate representation will be made to Ottawa in order that the machinery of Canadian protection against Oriental cheap labor may be repaired where shown defective during the coming session of the Federal Parliament.

Contract For Big Smelter.

Toronto, Jan. 21.—Mackenzie & Mann have made a contract for the erection of a pig iron smelter at Port Arthur with a capacity of from 150 to 200 tons daily, and to be ready by Oct. 1. The smelter is to aid in the development of their iron properties along the C.N.R., between Fort Frances and Port Arthur. About 1,000 men will be employed in the enterprise.

GUIDES' SUPERSTITIONS

CHICKADEE SINGING IN FRONT OF YOU MEANS BAD LUCK.

Declaration of An Old Canadian Woodsman —Some of the Good Signs for Hunters in the Woods—Call of the Wood Pigeon or the Wood Dove Is Supposed by Them to Presage a Good Day.

Many and curious are the superstitions of the guides and hunters of the northern woods of Quebec Province. An old half-breed woodsman who was in the lead of a shooting party the other day stopped, after they had traveled a hundred yards from camp, with the declaration that his companion would direct the party that day, as he was obliged to return.

"Maybe he heard something," was the only explanation the younger man would give of his action.

At night when the sportsmen came back empty handed the graybeard gave his reason for his failure and also for their non-success.

"I heard the chickadee singing right in front of us, and that always means bad luck, you know," he said.

The man who hears the bird's song first must always go back or some accident may happen. The others might as well accompany him, for they will get no game.

News came in of the accidental shooting of a cousin of one of the guides. He had been taking sportsmen to a good place for ducks.

Laughed at Chickadee Singing.

"He always was a mad-headed fellow," his relatives explained. "He never would be guided by anything. He laughed about hearing a chickadee sing one morning, and before noon he had nearly killed the man he was working for."

On the other hand, the call of the wood pigeon or wood dove is good medicine, as the Indians say. Many creatures will die that day if the fortunate hunter hears its cooing early in the morning.

The worst of it is that death may possibly strike some member of the party as well. The guides remember the fact that when a well known Nimrod was found dead in his shack years ago his attendants noticed a wood dove's nest right above his embowered retreat.

He had had wonderful success that season, and in one month had killed more game than in his whole lifetime. Every day the pigeon called him to renewed success.

The hoarse squawk of the raven often means good sport for hunters. Although a bird of evil omen, it is the game upon which the bad luck will fall, unless there are other bad signs noticed. For instance, if the chickadee chirps when the raven calls for "por-rk," it means bad times for sportsmen. And if on an ordinary trip through the woods a raven is heard, look out for falls, breakages or accidents of more serious character.

Poplar Not Used.

An observant hunter will notice that, although the most common of trees in most shooting districts, poplar is never used about the camp. Many a time have young fellows on their first expedition undertaken to lend a hand in setting up the tent at night, and to that end have brought in forked stakes of the clean, white wood.

On one excuse or another they are almost invariably laid on one side and tent poles obtained from another tree. Or a green hand will set up poplar sticks on which to sling the pot. The cook always has a reason ready for discarding this wood.

If by any chance he should not notice it, and the pot tilts over, the bouillon burns or the tea is smoky, there will be a hasty malediction upon the unlucky poplar sticks. The men are by no means ready with an explanation of these superstitions, and when questioned will content themselves with a laughing rejoinder.

"Didn't you know that? I thought everybody knew that poplar always brings bad luck to the men who use it about a camp fire."

But the probability is that the red man noticed the continual restless movements of the leaves of the aspen, and feeling his senses irritated by the incessant motion set it down as bad medicine. The poplar is a brittle, quickly rotting wood, which furnishes a further reason for disliking it.

Tent poles are never drawn from the ground when camp is struck. The old idea of helping the next man to a home makes it almost a crime. Poplar stakes, pretty sure to decay at the bottom within a month or two, would be a poor gift to make to a party of travelers setting up their canvas lodging some dark night.

Some guides go so far as to discourage firing at birds roosting on a poplar tree. Often when bad shooting is made at treed birds the guide will laugh in his peculiar way.

"Couldn't expect anything better firing at a poplar tree."

It would be rash, however, to assume with some observers that there is here any connection between this superstition of woodsmen and a tradition that the leaves of the poplar tree have quivered ever since the crucifixion because from its wood the cross was made.

The Malevolent Moose.

Among the Indian guides the idea prevails that the moose exerts a malevolent influence in the woods. If, as sometimes happens early in the season, a big bull moose charges with a wild rush through the camp, scattering firebrands and pots with its feet, the Indian guides cower in terror before it. As likely as not they will refuse to go further with their employers and will beg to be released from their contract.

If possible the Indian hunter will not shoot at the moose from the front or from where he can be seen. That this contingency may be avoided one of the guides will attract the attention of the moose by rubbing his hand against a tree or by breaking a tiny twig.

A diminutive dog is sometimes taken along. The lordly moose disdains to flee from such a puny foe, but strikes at the dog with his murderous forefeet, the hunter meanwhile getting aim at a vital spot.

At the moment of firing an invocation is often shouted out, imploring the forgiveness of the moose, and giving some good reason—such as the lack of meat—for the intended killing. It is to be remembered that the Indian bogy, the Windigo, is in form a moose, which probably accounts for the superstitions still found in the woods regarding the animal.

The black bear is generally considered in the light of the clown of the forest menagerie. His appearance is hailed with a chuckle, and though respected for his strength and tenacity of life, he may always be attacked and killed.

Good luck is pretty certain to come to a camp where the carcase of a black bear is strung up. But if it is possible the Indian guide will invariably have a word or two of badinage with Pete before killing him.

JOSEPH HOWE HONORED.

Statue of the Great Tribune Unveiled at Halifax.

The first statue ever reared to a son of Nova Scotia in his native Province was unveiled on Tuesday, Dec. 18, 1904, in the Province Building Square, Halifax, in honor of Joseph Howe, the great tribune of the people, who was born in Halifax a hundred years ago.

Phillipe Hebert, the designer of the statue, was present. The statue is considered by many critics to be the finest piece of the sculptor's art in Canada. The figure, which is of bronze, is a marvelously life-like presentment of the great Nova Scotian. It has the pose of the orator with the right arm extended, the hand open, head thrown back, and the left hand grasping his manuscript at the climax of an argument, a pose familiar to the contemporaries of the dead statesman. The statue is 27 feet high, the base and pedestal, which is of granite, being 18 feet high and the figure is 9 feet in height. On the dict the name "Joseph Howe," with a laurel branch, are carved in relief, while below it on a polished granite panel is the inscription, "Journalist, Poet, Orator, Statesman, Prophet, Patriot, Briton; Born at Halifax, Dec. 13, 1804; died in Government House, June 1st, 1873."

The motto which is the quotation of which the lines read this is Britannia subject, but not a Briton only in name. Give me, give my country, the blessed privilege of her constitution and her laws. Let us be content with nothing less."

On either side of the statue are bas reliefs, representing scenes in Howe's career which are historic—one, the famous trial for libel; the other, Howe addressing the House of Assembly.

The statue was erected by the Government of Nova Scotia and cost $10,000.

Character Our Greatest Asset.

Earl Grey's reply to the Ottawa Civic address presented to him on his arrival in the Capital was of a high order.

"It will I am certain," he said, "be a source of the greatest satisfaction to our Sovereign to know that his French-Canadian and other subjects in the Dominion are in hearty co-operation in working out together the magnificent destiny which awaits this country, and in making available for the uses of manking the immense resources with which this country has been endowed by a bountiful Providence.

"But there is one asset which you possess even more important than those to which I have referred—than those of area, riches, mystery, scenery, and climate—namely, that which is represented by your national character. If you do not jealously guard the sacred fire of that asset, the others to which I have referred will be as dross and as the crumbling clay. If, on the other hand, you keep, as your address informs me you will keep, the character of your people high, strenuous, virile, imaginative, heroical, and Imperial, no one can venture to set a limit to the degree of the influence which will be exercised on the future of mankind by the great Canadian nation, composed as it is of all that is best in England, Scotland, Ireland, and France, and privileged as it is to be a factor, and a factor of ever-increasing importance, in that British Empire, representing already over 400,000,000 beings, which is the greatest and most beneficent organization that has ever attempted to be the instrument of God on this earth.

"There is no reason, gentlemen, why the sons of Canada, if they are worthy of their fathers, and of the country to which they belong, there is no reason why they should not in the lifetime of your children, by reason of their numbers and of their character, exercise an all-powerful, and in time to come perhaps a controlling, influence on the development of the majesty and destiny of the Empire whose standard is righteousness, and whose path is duty."

Was Betsy's Sweetheart.

Vote C. Lyster of Ludlow, Ky., the other day stated that he had gone to school near Woodstock, Canada, with Mrs. Chadwick, or, as she was then known, Betsy Bigley. Betsy, as a girl, was fond of finery, ambitious and of a romantic turn. Lyster and the girl grew up together. At one time, when she was about 16 years, he was her sweetheart. Lyster says that the girl a little later deluded her parents into believing she had inherited $18,000 from a relative in England. She had cards printed reading "Miss Lizzie Bigley, heiress to $18,000." She became restless and left home, going to Cleveland to visit her sister, Jennie, who married a man named Campbell. Then followed Betsy's marriage to Dr. Hoover.

The Buffalo Wallows.

A curiosity of the plains is the buffalo wallows. There has not been a buffalo in them for years, but they are the same today as they were generations or even centuries ago. They are no longer frequented by cattle, of course, and therefore not freshly worn, but they remain to this day barren and black amid the vast plain of living green. In the spring they stand full of water until the advancing summer sun evaporates it, and then they are barren and black again. They are perfect circles, some large as a circus ring, and their basins are packed firm and hard by the tread and roll of many generations of the bison. Another recollection here of this extinct race is the buffalo birds, which abound in great numbers. Their function now, as in the time of the bison, is to pick insects from the backs of the cattle which feed on the plains. Sometimes twenty or more feed on a steer's back, while the steer calmly and with evident pleasure munches buffalo grass.

Doctor Pierce's Family Remedies are compounds of medicinal principles, scientifically extracted from native roots that cure the diseases for which they are recommended. They are medicines which have enjoyed the public confidence for over a third of a century. They are medicines not beverages, made to satisfy a craving for "booze."

"Golden Medical Discovery" regulates and invigorates stomach, liver and bowels, and cures dyspepsia, purifies the blood and tones up the system generally.

"Favorite Prescription" cures female weaknesses, irregularities, exhausting drains, painful periods and kindred ailments peculiar to women. Accept no substitute for these medicines, each of which has a record of marvelous cures. Substitution means selfishness on the part of the dealer who is looking for the greater profit on an inferior article.

"Our daughter who was attending college became very nervous and we were advised to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription," writes Mrs. M. G. Fox, of 97 E. Leonard St., Grand Rapids, Mich. "We did so and then you advised us to get the 'Golden Medical Discovery' also. She took four bottles of the 'Prescription' and three of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and you never say such a change in a person. She said she did not feel like the same person. She was about seventeen years old at the time. I will gladly recommend Dr. Pierce's medicines to every one. I advise parents who have young daughters who suffer from nervous troubles to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription at once. I am sure it will help them."

Lee's Military Genius.

One day during the war between the states General Lee sent for General Gordon and said to him: "Take these regiments"—mentioning some—"and go to Spottsylvania. Be there tomorrow morning."

In surprise, General Gordon asked why troops were needed at that particular spot.

"Because," replied General Lee, "Grant will be there."

Nothing had been heard of Grant's movements for a long time, but General Gordon supposed General Lee had had some dispatches which had informed him of Grant's nearness. He asked if this was so.

"No," said Lee, "but Grant ought to be there, and he will be." Lee was a great general himself and knew what a great general should do. He had studied out Grant's plans from the place where he last heard of him and decided where he would next make his appearance.

General Gordon went to Spottsylvania. Grant was there, and one of the fiercest battles of the war was fought.

Mrs. Roach's Death.

Hamilton, Jan. 21.—The coroner's jury brought in this verdict last evening after hearing evidence in connection with the death last Monday evening of Mrs. D. J. Roach: "That Mrs. Catharine Roach did not come to her death through natural causes, but from causes unknown, taken with suicidal intent, we believe." The husband admitted that words had passed between him and his wife the evening before her death. She did not eat any supper, and went to her room about 8 o'clock. Her son and husband found her dead about 9.30. The doctors who conducted the autopsy did not give positive evidence, but stated that they believed that death did not result from natural causes.

Severe Cold in the Chest

"My fourteen-year-old boy had a very severe cold in the chest last winter and I really thought he was going to die. He coughed nearly all the time and sometimes would spit up blood. I can positively say that he was completely cured by two bottles of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, and he has not been troubled since."—Mrs. J. Provost, Renfrew, Ont.

The British Crown Gold Plate.

The Crown gold plate is to be used next week at the state banquet in St. George's Hall, and at the royal dinner parties in the state dining-room, and the famous show pieces will be displayed on the buffets. The gold service, which was purchased by George IV., will dine 130 guests, and his late Majesty also added to the collection thirty dozen plates, which cost 26 guineas each plate; six immense gold salvers, the work of Flaxman; and a silver wine-cooler, enclosed with plate glass, for which Rundell & Bridge received 10,000 guineas.

Among the other notable pieces is a peacock of precious stones, which was valued half a century ago at £30,000. This came from India, and so also did a superb tiger's head, with a solid ignot of gold for his tongue, and crystal teeth. There are two huge fire dogs of gold, which are usually placed on the principal sideboard on state occasions.

The old-fashioned silver wine-coolers, of which there are a great number, are now filled with palms or flowers. There is a remarkable collection of centre-pieces, most of which were presented to Queen Victoria, who left them to the Crown, along with her Jubilee gifts. The huge Lincoln Cup, of pure gold, was won by George IV., who left it to William IV., who made it over to the Crown. There are some pieces taken from the Spanish Armada, and others from Burma and China.

George IV. added a number of splendidly ornamented gold shields, one of which was made entirely from snuff-boxes, which were valued at 3,000 guineas.—London Truth.

It Was All Good.

Mr. Jones was very fond of a kind of boiled pudding his wife made, so, says London Answers, when she had gone away for an afternoon and evening she promised that she would leave one of the favored puddings in the saucepan for his evening meal.

"Well," she said on her return, "and how did the pudding go down?"

"Soo-preme!" said Tom, smacking his lips at the recollection. "'Twas as good a pudding as you have ever made."

"That's good," was the gratified response of Mrs. Jones. "I'm glad you enjoyed it. What did you do with the cloth?"

For a moment Mr. Jones solemnly surveyed her.

"What!" he said. "Did it have a cloth on?"

Married to a Dead Tiger.

A curious custom obtains among the Coorgs. When one of them kills a tiger or a panther, he is married to the dead animal, regardless of his sex. Propped upon a framework of wood or bamboo, the animal is carried in procession, and the marriage ritual is strictly observed, while lavish hospitality is dispensed.

DREAM STORIES.

Strange Experiences of Novelists—Some of the Best Known Stories Originated While Their Writers Slept.

Some of the most popular novels in our language owe their origin entirely to dreams for the wonderful workings of the brain during sleep often furnish material which the author is not slow to turn to good account. Had it not been for a dream "Robinson Crusoe" would probably never have been written. At the time the plot was first conceived Defoe was suffering from great mental worry that resulted in his slumbers being broken by incessant nightmares. On one of these occasions he dreamed that he was stranded on a desert island alone, and began to work out in the dream a means of existence. So pleased was he with the experience that Defoe confessed to feelings of disappointment when he awoke, and he hastened to put his vision into readable form.

"Rienzi" was the dream offspring of Lord Lytton's brain, the whole plot appearing before him in the short space of two hours sleep between violent attacks of neuralgia. Kingsley, after a hard day's fishing, went to sleep, only to get a shadowy outline of "Westward Ho" in his dreams, though what connection the story had with his sport it is difficult to understand. Few people know why Coleridge's entrancing poem, "Kubla Khan," remains unfinished, but this masterpiece has a very remarkable history. The poet had just taken an anodyne and dropped off to sleep, when the poem began to shape itself in his mind, and the lines to run in rhyming order. When he awoke he rushed to his writing table and wrote out the lines as we now have them, without a second's pause, but his memory failed him at the conclusion, so the work was never completed. Another famous poem composed in a dream was "The Bells," while the same author, Edgar Poe, formulated one of his finest pieces of prose, "The Masque of the Red Death," during the hours of unconsciousness.

"The Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" probably caused Stevenson more mental trouble than any of his other works, but a dream got him out of the difficulty. He began a story about a man's double, but it appeared so unsatisfactory to him that he tore it up without banishing the theme from his mind. One night, however, he dreamed the scene at the window and a few minor incidents, while the second night the remainder of the plot followed, and the story was soon on paper.

Only two authors are known to have gone so far as to cultivate dreams for the purpose of plot manufacturers. Dryden often ate raw beefsteaks at night, and the nightmares that followed originated some of his most notable poems. Mayne Reid confessed that his prolificacy in producing novels was due in some measure to his habit of eating a handful of horse-chestnuts ere he retired to rest when in need of a plot.

On Thursday night Belleville juniors will play here. This will be the first home game that the local juniors have had this season and should be a splendid contest. Each of the teams in this district so far have won their home games and lost many from home, and if the home team wins the home games it will leave all the teams tied.

It looks very much as if all four junior teams in this district will break even when the schedule is completed. So far every team has won its home games. Cobourg won from Port Hope by 7-0 Friday and the latter is pretty certain to reverse the score when the teams meet in Port Hope. Peterborough has lost three games away from home by 7-5, 2-1 and 1-0 and should win all the return games. This would make things interesting.

• • • •

W. A. McCord, who was referee here last Friday was the official in the Belleville-Port Hope junior game at the latter place on Tuesday. He says the style of hockey in this district is as fast as he has seen, and the winners, he thinks, should pretty nearly land on top at the finish.

• • • •

Cobourg won the game from Port Hope by 7-0 at the former place Friday night. Neither team scored in the first half, but the home team finished in strong fashion.

• • • •

Midland won at home Friday night from Victoria Harbour in a very close game by 7-6. These two teams are apparently very evenly matched.

• • • •

Belleville juniors will be along on Thursday night. One of the most interesting games of the year is promised.

• • • •

To-morrow night's game between Campbellford and the T. A. S. should be a corker. The Total Abstiners were beaten by 4-3 in Campbellford recently and are confident of turning the tables.

TRENT VALLEY LEAGUE CONTEST

T.A.S. and Campbellford Will Meet on Tuesday Night

On Tuesday night at the Brock street rink the second home game in the Trent Valley League series will be played, the contesting teams being the T. A. S. and Campbellford, and the game should be an interesting one. Both teams have two wins to their credit and Campbellford has as yet not met with defeat this season, while the T. A. S. has lost only one, that at Campbellford early in the season. They expect to atone for that defeat on Tuesday night here. It looks like the winner of this group for the championship of the League and the local teams will make the big effort to land the championship again for the third time in succession, thus making them the owners of the Stratton Cup.

JUNIOR Y.M.C.A. DEFEATED LAKEFIELD

Went to That Village on Saturday and Won by 7—6

The junior Y.M.C.A. school boys hockey team journeyed to Lakefield on Saturday and played a game of hockey against the McKenzie school team resulting in a victory for the Association team, the score being 7-6. The game was fast and noticeable for the brilliant passes and fine combination displayed by both teams. The Y.M.C.A. boys voted their opponents a jolly fine lot of fellows and have arranged for a return game a week from next Saturday. The boys returned in good time, arriving at the Association at 6.30 and all satisfied that they had a great time.

B.A.C. TEAM SCORED A NOTABLE VICTORY

Undefeated Sepette Take Cereal Co. Office Staff into Camp

The B. A. C. hockey team added another victory to its long string on Saturday evening when the office staff of the American Cereal Company was taken into camp. And so it remains that the B. A. C. is still undefeated in any line of sport. It is safe to say that their record is not equalled by any sporting organization in the town and, mind you, the B.A.C. is not merely a sporting organization,—sports are only side issues.

The score on Saturday evening was 6-6 with the B. A. C. on top. The conflict was witnessed by many people who saw hockey played as it should be played,—brilliant, artistic, clever and fast. The Cereal boys were in better condition and finished strong, but the stonewall defence of the winners would not be drawn out and withstood all attacks.

The B. A. C. started off like whirlwinds and Wood lifted the puck almost the length of the rink for a score. At half time the B. A. C. were leading by 5-3.

The Cereal Company will now eat Quaker Oats three times a day and once before going to bed to fit them for the return game.

The teams lined up in this style —

B. A. C.
Hutchinson
Moore
Wood
Jolliffe
Dobbin, Best, Boomer,
Moore, Carr, Heaslip,
Simpson
Williamson
Cochrane
Sullivan
CEREAL CO.

Bill Crowley refereed and gave perfect satisfaction but why he should rule a couple of the B. A. C. team off for simply falling down caused some wondering.

After the collision, the losers, according to agreement in the challenge, entertained the victorious septette to an oyster supper at McCallum's restaurant. A few complimentary speeches were made to the teams and the ladies, the officiating orators being Messrs. Best, Hutchinson, Sullivan and Cochrane.

On Saturday evening at the Brock street rink, the Young Nationals added another victory to their string by defeating the Canadian General Electric team by a score of 6-2. The game was clean and fast all through. The winners played the better game and were better stick handlers. Every man on the team played a good game while Miller and Holland starred for the losers. The line-up was:—

Nationals.		C. G. E.
L. Giroux	Goal,	W. Allen
P. C. Conroy	Point,	W. Williams
K. Pentland	Cover Point,	H. Miller
J. Gorman	Forwards,	R. Galvin
P. Giroux		D. Hilliard
E. Coughlin		A. Doris
M. Nicholl		S. Holland

TO-NIGHT'S GAME IS IMPORTANT

May Have a Direct Bearing on the District Championship.

The present prospects are that there will be a large contingent of supporters to accompany the hockey team to Lindsay to-night on the special train which the club has chartered. The game to-night will be an important one in the decision of the championship of this district and if the locals win it will practically make them the winners, while on the other hand, if Lindsay wins, it will give them a pretty good chance. For this reason it is expected that the game will be pretty hotly contested and the prospects for some fast hockey are good.

The special train will leave here at 7 o'clock and returning will leave Lindsay at 11.30, the return fare being $1.00.

The team for to-night will be:—
Goal—Wesson,
Point—Glover,
Cover point—Crowley,
Rover—Cavanah,
Centre—Morgan.
Left wing—Graham,
Right wing—Parnell,

BASKETBALL TEAM ELECTS OFFICERS

Mr. P. K. Holmes the President of the Y. M. C. A. Team.

The members of the senior basketball team met at the Association Saturday evening and elected officers. They are as follows:—

President—P. K. Holmes.
Captain—Wm. Cavanah.
Manager and Coach—W. D. Campbell.
Secretary-Treasurer—C. Graham.

The team got together and played an exhibition game with another picked team.

The men worked together in nice shape and played good combination. The material is good and they expect to develop a strong team. An interesting schedule of outside games will be planned for through the rest of the winter.

To Young Men

To the Electors of the Town of Peterborough :—

At the close of the campaign I am being attacked because of my youth. It is said that because of my age I am unfit to represent this constituency. Not a word has been said publicly as to whether I am capable of handling your business, of representing you in public speaking, of giving you good service as a member of the House. It is solely because I am too young. I ask for the verdict of the hundreds of young men in this town upon that argument on Wednesday next.

Twenty-five per cent of the electors of this town are men of my own age or less. Hundreds of you know me personally; those of you who do not, know others who do and can easily find the facts by which to judge me. Have I so acted as to be debarred from entering public life?

The same theory which denies my fitness to represent this constituency simply on the ground of my youth, would deny to each one of you the rapid progress you seek to make in your chosen occupation. "You cannot, not because you are incapable but because you are to young" is the bar that you have all met when you have aimed to climb the ladder. You can vote for or against that theory this week.

To the older men I want to say this. Eighteen years ago you made the experiment of sending a young man to the legislature. Was it successful or not? Did his youth make him less capable or less anxious to render you good service? Is it worth your while trying the same experiment again?

I ask again for the vote and hearty support of each one of you.

MRS. COX HAS PASSED AWAY

Wife of Hon. Senator Cox Died in Toronto Yesterday

Was a Lady who Proved Herself a good Friend to Charitable Institutions—Her Life an Example.

Yesterday morning there passed away at her home in Toronto, Margaret Hopkins, the beloved wife of Hon. Senator Geo. A. Cox, after having suffered for years from a disease which gradually becoming stronger, weakened her system and eventually caused her death.

There is more than usual sorrow felt in Peterborough at the death of this good woman, for she was a daughter of Peterborough, having been born here on November 12th, 1844, and was the second daughter of the late Daniel Hopkins, a well-known and prominent citizen of Peterborough, for a number of years, and after her marriage to Senator Cox, lived here for a considerable length of time, removing to Toronto about fifteen years ago, where she has since resided, though she frequently visited here with her daughter, Mrs. A. L. Davis, and that she still had a deep interest in the town and more particularly in its public and philanthropic institutions, has frequently been evidenced in very substantial ways.

The late Mrs. Cox had made several trips to Europe to consult physicians in the hope of being cured of the disease from which she was suffering, but it is feared that the last trip she made a short time ago, in company with her daughter, Mrs. A. E. Ames, was too great a stress upon her weakened constitution, and pneumonia developed, which resulted in her death. The disease reached an acute stage less than two weeks ago, and her death resulted yesterday morning at her home, 439 Sherbourne street, Toronto.

As has been stated, the late Mrs. Cox was born here in 1844, and was the second daughter of the late Daniel Hopkins, the other members of the family being Copeland, born, Oct. 27, 1836, died Nov. 21, 1851; Mary Ann, born May 25, 1838, married in 1867 to W. Morrow, since deceased; Elisabeth, born 1847, died 1848; Wm. James, born September 18, 1851, and Daniel C., born March 16th, 1856, both deceased. Mrs. Cox, therefore was the last surviving member of the family, her father having died in 1881.

The late Mrs. Cox was married on May 28th, 1862, to then Mr. Geo. A. Cox, and lived a happy life with him and in the enjoyment of her home and family associations. The late Mrs. Cox was during her life in Peterborough a modest domestic woman, a devoted mother, and an active member of the Charlotte street church, which was at that time greatly in need of support, and Mrs. Cox gave it material assistance, and also that active church work which is so necessary to the life of a church. As Mr. Cox became more wealthy Mrs. Cox became even more generous in her benefactions, and she also endeared herself to those who knew her by her simplicity and purity of life and character.

During her residence in Toronto she has impressed herself upon the community by her unassuming and gentle manners. She was unpretentious but always self-possessed and dignified.

Many charitable institutions in Toronto and in other places will lose by her death a good friend.

Deceased was a member of the Governing Boards of a number of public charities, and her own acts of philantrophy, although rarely revealed, except to those concerned, were most numerous. Her work in connection with the erection of Annesley Hall, the residence for women students at Victoria College, and her great aid in the operations of the Victorian Order of Nurses were conspicuous recent examples of her public services, and Peterborough has also great reason to remember her for her many benefactions, particularly to the Y.W.C.A. to which she has been a liberal contributor, and the new building now nearing completion on Simcoe street will remain as a monument to her generosity, for she was perhaps the largest contributor to the fund for its erection.

She was the idol of her family and to them her loss will be irreparable. During the years in which she has been ailing she has with great courage battled against the disease and was always cheerful and bright.

The surviving members of the family are,—Messrs. Edward W., Frederick G., and Herbert C., of Toronto, and Mrs. A. E. Ames of Toronto and Mrs. A. L. Davis, of Peterborough.

The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon in Toronto and will be private.

MR. DUMBLE'S TRIBUTE.

At the George street church yesterday morning Mr. D. W. Dumble referred in feeling terms to the great loss sustained in the death of the wife of Hon. Senator Cox, a lady born, brought up and married in Peterborough, and whose beautiful Christian character and wide charity were known to everybody. The late Mrs. Cox was a woman of splendid judgment, a wise counsellor, a true friend, abounding in charity and so unostentatious and quiet that the world will never know the extent of her benefactions. Her charity was wider than her church and her good name was known throughout the land. She will be greatly missed in Toronto where she took a prominent part in aiding many charitable institutions of the city and helped in every good work. The people of Peterborough will remember her as a great hearted and noble woman.

PARTISANSHIP IN EXTREMES.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Will you give me space in your paper to most emphatically denounce Rev. Dr. Crothers' references in the Sabbath School, to a political meeting in the market hall and other partisan political remarks to the children yesterday. It seems to me to be an unfair advantage for a seasoned politician to take of the innocence of children.

Yours, etc.,
PARENT.

THE PREMIER'S CLOSING WORD

Cry of Corruption Recoils Upon Those Who Gave It Birth—The Opposition's Poverty of Policy—A Change of Government Offers No Advantage to Any Class in the Community, Except to Conservative Office Seekers---On the Administration Record Premier Asks for Decisive Majority.

Toronto, Jan. 23rd, 1905.—Five thousand Liberals in convention assembled two months ago to-day laid down a political platform, to which not a single objection has yet been offered by the leader of the Opposition or any of his followers. No more comprehensive platform was ever adopted by any political party in Canada. To the farmer it assures better returns for his industry; to the merchant and manufacturer larger sales and a wider market; to the laboring man fuller employment and steadier wages; to railways larger earnings; to professional men greater opportunities, and to capital increased facilities for investment.

The cry of corruption against the Liberal party, if ever it had any force, has recoiled upon those who gave it birth. The claim of the Opposition to political purity has been shown to be hypocritical and false; on that claim they rested their case and failed.

As leaders of public opinion, they have blundered without excuse or palliation. In dealing with large questions, they had neither the foresight of statesmen nor the initiative of leadership. For thirty years they have discouraged public enterprise and resisted pressing reforms in education, temperance and taxation. Having failed in Opposition, on what ground can they hope to succeed if placed in power?

A change of Government, therefore, offers no advantage to any class in the community, except to the Conservative office-seekers. To all others, the record of the Government is conclusive evidence of wise financial administration, intelligent management of all the natural resources of the Province, and advanced legislation on every question touching the social, moral or educational interests of the people. On that record I ask the electors for a renewal of their confidence. Let the majority be decisive; let every vote be polled.

STRIKE SPREADING

Thousands of Strikers Gathering This Afternoon in St. Petersburg Streets —Finns Also in the Trouble. Strikers Again Assemble.

Special to The Examiner

St. Petersburg, Jan. 24., 12.30 p.m.—Thousands of strikers are at this hour assembling in the Nevsky Prospect. This locality contains the homes of many of the fashionable element of the Capital. Outgoing trains are carrying the wives and children of many prominent St Petersburg citizens to places of safety. A meeting of 350 barristers and solicitors has passed a resolution of solidarity with the strikers protesting against the action of the Government in provoking bloodshed declining to plead in the courts and deciding to open a subscription in aid of the propaganda.

Strike Spreads Rapidly

Moscow, Jan. 24th. — The strike is spreading rapidly here. All printing offices have closed. Thus far there have been no collisions with the police. Employees of the tanneries who are out on strike remain quiet. The police have ordered all arms to be removed from the windows of gunsmiths, and a majority of these have closed their shops. Employees of the Bachrushin, Michaeloff, Linder and Schraeder factories have joined the strikers.

Finns also Rising

London, Jan. 24. — The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Westminster Gazette reports that revolution in Russia is apparently spreading to various parts of the nation. Armed Finns, he says, are rising.

RESPECTED RESIDENT OF DOURO DEAD

Mr. James Kerr Died After an Illness of six Months

There died in the township of Douro on Thursday, James Kerr, one of the best known residents of that township, after an illness of about six months, during which time he suffered considerably, and gradually sank until the end.

The deceased was 35 years of age, and was a well known and highly respected farmer, and his death will be deeply regretted by those to whom he was known. The funeral took place on Sunday at 2.30 p.m., and was from Douro church, where requiem mass was sung by Rev. Father Keilty, the parish priest. The funeral was a large one, nearly ninety rigs following the remains to their last resting place. Deceased was married five years ago to Theresa Bolan, who with two children, survive him. The children are John James and Mary Kathleen. Two brothers and two sisters, Hugh and Michael, and Mrs. M. Crowley and Miss Sarah Jane Kerr, with his father, also survive him. Deceased was born in Douro, and had lived there all his life, beloved and respected by all with whom he came into contact.

TO PLAY OFF IN PETERBORO'

Midland and Barrie May Meet Here to Decide Tie.

Some Particulars of the Great Game Last Night—Not Finished at Midnight.

Special to the Examiner.

Midland, Jan. 24th.—The Midland team had the most strenuous game in its history this season last night, when they played in Barrie, a tie game, four all. For the last hour the teams played four men a side, and at the end the visitors had the better of the argument, and had it not been for the wonderful work of Roy Thomas in goal for Barrie, would have won out. He stopped scores of shots from the Midland forward line, the star of which was Whitcroft, who scored three of the goals. The team was pretty badly used up as a result of the game, Whitcroft suffering the most, and he is to-day nursing a broken thumb and other injuries.

The game will be played off next week and there is a possibility that the game may be played in Peterborough. At any rate the Midland team is trying to make arrangements to that effect.

Kempt was injured last night and had to retire from the game.

ANOTHER BANK WANTS TO COME

Bank of Nova Scotia Inspector to Look for Site.

Statement that Another Bank will Open Here, Comes From a Local Banking Man.

Talk of a fifth chartered bank for Peterborough is being revived, and the Examiner was informed by a prominent banking man that the Bank of Nova Scotia was seriously considering the proposal to establish a branch here in the near future, and it was further stated that the inspector of this bank was expected in town to-day for the purpose of making arrangements for a site if possible.

The Bank of Nova Scotia has a capital stock of $2,000,000 fully paid, and has branches principally in the Eastern part of Canada. Of recent years, however, it has established several branches in Ontario and appears to be reaching for some of the Western trade, which it is getting, to a considerable extent.

It is understood that as yet no negotiations have been entered into for any site, but the visit of the inspector is undoubtedly for that purpose and some developments may be looked for.

The Examiner's informant, who is well posted in local financial matters, stated emphatically, that, "there will certainly be another bank opened in Peterborough in the near future, and it is just a question of which one is willing to pay the amount of money necessary to secure a good location."

The apparent anxiety of the banks to open a branch here seems to indicate that there is something in future in store for Peterborough. The bank officials are well informed in industrial circles and it is never a sign of declining industrial activity when banks flock to a town.

DIED IN THE NORTH WEST

Mrs. W.A.Eaton's Death and its Sad Circumstances

Was Related to Many Local Persons—Formerly Lived in Norwood.

Mrs. T. J. Wallace received the sad intelligence yesterday of the death of her sister, Mrs. W. A. Eaton, which occurred in Oxbow, Assa., yesterday. The deceased, who was a daughter of the late William Miller, of Keene, had been ill only about two weeks, during which time she suffered from lagrippe, developing later into a complication. At the latter part of last week Mrs Miller, her mother, received word that her daughter was ill, but it was not thought that it was of a serious character, but the next day a telegram was received stating that she was worse and Mrs. Miller prepared to leave for the West, and started yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Eaton have been living in Oxbow for about two years, where Mr. Eaton is a merchant tailor, and prior to going there they resided for four years in Norwood, where the deceased lady was very well known and highly respected, and her death will come as a severe shock to her many friends in the neighbourhood. Deceased was 28 years of age, and was the second daughter of the late William Miller, of Keene. She was one of a family of six girls and two boys, and is the first to be called away. The other members of the family are:—Mrs. T. J. Wallace, Miss Florence Miller, of town; Miss Wilene, of Kingston; Miss Emilene and Mrs. Bryce, of Toronto, and the brothers Jack and Melville, who are ranching in Alberta. LAST NIGHT'S MEETING

Last night's splendid meeting in Mr. McWilliam's interests marks the close of the time for argument and now nothing remains but to give effect at the polls to the excellent work done in this campaign on the public platform. Mr. McWilliams has every reason to feel encouraged by the evidence of approval of himself and his cause which the spirit of the meeting showed. The manner in which the facts in the excellent speeches made were appreciated and applauded showed that the large audience was quite in sympathy with the record and policy of the Ross Government, and if this feeling does not find hearty and effective expression at the polls tomorrow then it is difficult to understand the spirit which apparently animated the large and enthusiastic meeting held in the Opera House last night. Mr. McWilliams, now that the day of speaking is past, will depend for his success upon the united, intelligently directed and energetic work of his friends, who should leave no work undone that will contribute to polling every available favourable vote. Never at any stage of an election contest does a candidate depend so completely upon the hard and energetic work of his friends, who compose his organization, as in the last day or two of the fight.

A MID-WINTER WEDDING EVENT

Miss Alice Taylor of Keene, Married to Mr. David Stone.

Interesting Social Event Which Occurred This Week—

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Keene, Jan. 20.—The home of Mr. Robert Taylor was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Wednesday evening, when his eldest daughter, Alice, was united in the holy bonds of marriage, to Mr. David Edwards. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. B. Secombe, in the presence of about seventy friends of the contracting parties. Mrs. Dr. Harrison played the beautiful wedding march as the bridal party entered the drawing room.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a very dainty gown of white silk, with applique and lace trimmings, and wore the customary veil. She carried a beautiful bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaid was Miss Jory, of Warsaw, cousin of the bride. She was tastefully attired in a dress of white voile with silk trimmings, and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Rev. Wilson Avison, of Alma, Ont., attended the groom.

After the ceremony, the bridal party and their invited friends sat down to a sumptuous wedding dinner. The rest of the evening was pleasantly spent in games, song, &c.

The bride, who is a very popular young lady and always active in church work, was the recipient of numerous and costly presents. From the choir of the Methodist church, of which she was a member, she received a beautiful tea service. The Sunday School, of which she was organist, gave her a silver tea tray. The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful gold brooch, with a diamond setting, and to the bridesmaid a gold stick pin, set with opals. Other presents were dinner set, tea set, silver preserve dish and a great many other valuable silver pieces.

The bride's going away dress was of green ladies' cloth (with green velvet trimmings.

Among the guests were, Mr. and Mrs. A. Brown, Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. F. Doughty and Miss Lumsden, Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. Jno. McFarlane, Dr. and Mrs. Harrison, Dr. and Mrs. Shaw, Keene; Mr. Ed. Wright, Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwards have taken up their residence on the farm a short distance from Keene, and the Examiner joins with their many friends in wishing them many years of wedded happiness.

THE RAILWAY IN BOBCAYGEON

How its Entrance Upset the Equilibrium of Things

How the Independent Views the Situation in That Village.

Bobcaygeon's dream of metropolitanism has been centred on the acquisition of the railway, which is now an accomplished fact, and this is the way the independent in its own characteristic fashion deals with the railway:—

We have a railway, and it is a good one. It has all the frills that could be expected of any railway. During construction it knocked the everlasting tar out of Charlie Brown's big polled Angus bull, and made Humphrey's Yorkshire-Tam the base of innumerable dishes of Italian ricasse. The death of Brown's bull ended quite a noted character. He would have faced Old Nick without a tremor. He had ditched many a rig, had chased ten men off a handcar on the rails and a few days previous to his death had charged at an engine. The engineer however, stopped his train and saved a collision. At the time of his despatch, the engineer tried to scare him off with the whistle, and seeing that he was not going to move, and the train could not be stopped, he put on steam. The shock put three or four ballast cars off the rails, and all that was left of Mr. Brown's bull was his fame and pedigree. Then there was the blow out, and fatality at Ancona, and on Monday night in shunting the train ready for the morning the brakes did not act quick enough and a coach went off the end of the line. Page's stable stood broadside about twenty feet from the end of the rails, and about two feet lower than the track level. The stable was shot off its foundation, away from its floor, and turned over on its side exposing all its inner conscience to the gaze of the curious. The wheels of the coach struck the foundation wall, or it would have gone through the building. As for the coach not a pane of glass was cracked. Even two large panes in the end of the vestibule were unbroken. The steps were broken and thaat was about the amount of the damage. Mrs. Smith was sweeping and dusting the coach at the time, and noticed it was a pretty sudden jolt for a shunt but went on with her sweeping. The construction of these coaches is of the greatest strength, and their weight is about 96,000 lbs. They withstand a tremendous shock, but deliver a terrific jolt. Their substantially and elaborate fixtures and trimmings are expensive, the cost of one of them being about $12,000. Naturally it was an easy trick for a vehicle of such weight and plutocratic tendencies to knock the sawdust stuffing out of Harry Page's 12 x 16 cull lumber cow barn. Certainly our railway has all the frills but a railway without frills would be as monotonous as an ox-cart stage line.

WINTER IN THE NORTH WEST

Even in dead of Winter the Settlers are Pouring in West is Satisfied with the Result of the Elections—Splendid Prospects for the Future.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Oxbow, Assa., N.W.T., Jan. 15.—The West of Canada is still in the grip of a severe cold snap which has existed for five days, and during which time the temperature ranged anywhere from 20 to 60 degrees below zero. Saskatoon, where the thermometer registered 54 degrees below zero must have had a chilly atmosphere. The weather is now moderating and we will soon forget the cold spell through which we have passed. Up to January 11th, we had an ideal winter, with frosty mornings and bright clear days. Both wheels and runners were used in traffic up till the beginning of the New Year, but at the present time there is excellent sleighing.

So much is being said in all the papers of the Dominion about this Western country that it seems like repetition for me to say anything yet "the half has not been told".

Even during the winter every train from the east brings its quota of settlers and next spring will witness the greatest rush westward that has yet taken place in this country. Just lately the Province of Manitoba threw open for homesteading those portions of the Kamsack district not already taken up by the Doukhobors, for whose benefit the land, up till then, had been reserved. Hundreds of applicants were on the spot to enter for claims, showing the great demand there is for prairie land.

American capital is pouring in, and the west will develop or rather continue developing at a rapid pace.

Here we see towns spring up in the course of one year, a surprising fact considering that this is a purely agricultural country. I know of one town which had a population of 300 in 1903 that was incorporated as a town in 1904 and where $100,000 was spent in improvements during the last year. This is not an unusual case and I simply quote this case because I am acquainted with the same.

The Federal Elections are over and the "West" satisfied with the past record of the Laurier government and with their ability to cope with the subjects of provincial autonomy and transportation. Have now in Ottawa many representatives who will aid the present government in the settlement of the above questions, which have been burning questions to Western electors for some time. Premier Haultain and Hon. Mr. Bulyea Commissioner of Public Works, are in Ottawa now, in conference with Sir Wilfred Laurier and his cabinet, regarding Provincial Autonomy. They will ask that the Territories be formed into a province, that a subsidy of 80 cents per head on our 400,000 people be granted us, and that we be given control of the public lands or Dominion lands within the province.

The C. P. R. and Canadian Northern Railways have, this year greatly increased their rolling stock, and this, together with increased storage capacities at the head of the lakes and throughout the West has removed the blockade question from our list of grievances. At the present session of parliament application will be made by Canadian Northern Railway Co., for permission to construct several branch lines through the southern part of Manitoba from their main line northward.

In conclusion I may say that easterners who are beginning to think that this country is getting over-crowded, have a very erroneous idea. The Territories which have a population of half a million are capable of supporting twenty-five million people. C.P.R. lands in good districts can be purchased at $6 an acre with ten years to pay for the same.

STORM THE MARKET

Strikers to Seize the Provisions on Vassili Ostroff.

STRIKE SPREADS TO MOSCOW

Workmen of Old Capital Repeat Tactics of Their Fellow Workmen of the New Capital—Danger of Even Bloodier Occurrences That Were Witnessed Sunday At St. Petersburg.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 24.—A report has gained currency that the strikers intend to storm the market on Vassili Ostroff and seize the provisions. At Kolpin, twelve miles up the river, a body of workmen who had started for St. Petersburg to join the strikers were stopped and fired upon by soldiers. Accounts as to the number killed or wounded conflict.

DANGER AT MOSCOW.

Moscow Workmen Strike and There May Be Bloodier Occurrences Than Those of Sunday.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 24.—The most startling feature in the situation is the news that several factories in Moscow have closed and that the workmen in the old capital of Russia are repeating the tactics of their fellow workmen of the new capital, marching from shop to shop and mill to mill, demanding that the establishments be shut down. The whole city is reported to be in a state of great excitement over the news of the bloodshed here Sunday, which has precipitated immediately the strike that had been planned for Wednesday. Moscow has more workmen and less troops than St. Petersburg, and, besides, is just now the heart of the liberal movement, and the danger of bloodier occurrences than have been witnessed here is proportionately greater. A rising at Moscow also is more likely to have greater results industriously and politically than in St. Petersburg.

Other Cities Restless.

According to private reports the workmen in several other big cities, notably Kharkoff, where large locomotive works are located, already have completed plans for a general suspension of work. Moreover, reports are current that the workmen who otherwise would soon be forced back into the shops or starve, have received assistance and assurances of financial support from the sources which have hitherto furnished the sinews of war to the liberal and revolutionary agitation, but have not before been in touch with the labor movement. If the strike becomes general all over Russia, and especially if the railways are involved it might immediately force the nation to make peace with Japan.

The situation appears grave from every standpoint: but the authorities apparently somewhat bewildered, declare their purpose to stand firm, maintaining that it is their first duty to preserve order, scouting the idea of actual revolution. Seemingly the Ministers are mostly concerned over the effect of the present situation abroad, where, they declare, exaggerated reports create a false impression. What, if any, steps have been taken to meet the general situation, however, has not yet been disclosed.

Manifesto To-Day.

There were extremely significant reports last night that Emperor Nicholas, in making the decision at the extraordinary meeting of the Council of the Empire at Tsarkoe-Selo yesterday, to declare St. Petersburg in a state of siege, announced that he had resolved to issue a manifesto to the people with a view to calming them, promising to create a mixed commission of workmen and officials to investigate and decide the questions of the demands of the strikers, especially the one affecting the hours of labor, which Russian law fixed at 11. The representatives of the workmen, according to this report, are not to be appointed, but selected by the laboring men themselves. This would be the first concession to the representative principle.

According to reports, the Emperor will also promise to investigate Sunday's events in St. Petersburg.

No People State.

Yesterday there was no repetition of the deplorable occurrences of Sunday, with the exception that a single blank volley was fired to awe a crowd near the Warsaw Station. Careful investigation shows that no bullets were fired. The military everywhere had a firm grip on the situation, and the police and even precaution, such as forbidding the sale of petroleum and advising persons to remain indoors.

The tension, which was somewhat relaxed in the morning, continued to increase during the day. Conditions appeared to be ominous, when, shortly after dark, the workmen in the electric light plants walked out, refusing triple pay to remain, and plunged into darkness half the city.

GOPON EXCOMMUNICATED.

Czar Is Prostrated By Grief But Will Declare St. Petersburg to Be in State of Siege.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 24.—The general strike in Moscow is proceeding on exactly the same lines as the St. Petersburg strike.

Gopon Excommunicated.

Antonius, Metropolitan of St. Petersburg, has formally excommunicated Father Gopon on the ground that he was causing the people to rise against the Emperor, the head of the church.

Emperor Prostrated By Grief.

Emperor Nicholas is completely prostrated by grief. He is represented to be almost in a state of collapse over the situation. In the meantime everything awaits his decision. Every window in Grand Duke Sergius' St. Petersburg palace was broken by a mob during the night.

In a State of Siege.

It is rumored that Emperor Nicholas will issue a manifesto to-day declaring St. Petersburg to be in a state of siege.

Artillery Officers Arrested.

Davidoff, the captain, and Kurzeff, the senior officer of the battery from which the loaded shell was fired on Jan. 19, striking the Imperial pavilion and other buildings have been arrested.

The Greatest Fear.

The greatest fear is that the water supply will be cut off and the city burned. The military authorities are trying to find workmen to start up the electric plant

Certificate of Loyalty.

It is now officially denied that a single regiment refused to obey orders Sunday, and the War Office expresses not the slightest doubt of the loyalty of the troops.

Workmen's Headquarters Closed.

Interior Minister Sviatopolk-Mirsky at 11 o'clock yesterday morning telegraphed orders to close the headquarters of the workmen's union. This was done.

Official Count of Dead.

The Official Messenger announces that up to 8 o'clock Sunday night the total killed was 76; wounded, 238. But 500 is a liberal estimate of those killed.

Not Revolutionary.

As a rule the Russian working people and leaders of labor unions, composed principally of people from Russia or with Russian sympathies, do not consider the present movement a revolutionary one. They regard it more as a strike.

BIG STRIKE IN MOSCOW.

Moscow, Jan. 24.—Employes of the Bromley Metal Works to the number of 1,000 met at 2.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon and declared that they were unable to continue at work because their St. Petersburg comrades had asked them to strike. They immediately left the works formed a procession, marched through the streets and begged their fellow-workmen in all industrial establishments to join in the movement. A majority of those who were thus requested to quit work complied. Afterwards the strikers visited the Sytin Printing Works, the largest establishment of the kind in Moscow and belonging to the millionaire publisher, Sytin, and induced the men employed there to strike. The works closed at 5 p.m.

Emperor Leaves Tsarskoe Selo.

Something New in----- SARDINES.

The best sardines in the world have been caught recently off the shores of Norway. These have immediately been pronounced by French and other European countries as Par Excellence. The best brand is put up by Stavanger Preserving Co., Norway, under the name of "Crossed Fish" brand. The fish are very small and very tender; they have been slightly smoked before being preserved, which not only adds to their delicacy of flavour, but prevents the indigestive "rising" after eating, so customary with ordinary sardines. The genuine sardine is far above the common herrings sold as sardines, as all connoisseurs well know. To be sure you are getting the best order

STUNNED BY THE DISCLOSURES

South Ontario Conservatives Unable to Answer.

THE MEETING AT OSHAWA

False Stories of Criminal Proceedings Instituted—Brown Described By That Militant Conservative, Dr. T. E. Kaiser—More Liberal Evidence As to the Attempted Bribery —Crown Attorney's Action.

Oshawa, Jan. 24.—(Globe Special.) Stunned by the effect of the Pickering disclosures, the Conservatives of South Ontario tried their best last night to rally their forces and offset the evil effect of the incident. Mr. Charles Calder, the Opposition candidate, gravely announced that the men who made the affidavits were now in the toils and would come before the court to-day. He gave no information as to what they were in the toils for, and, as a matter of fact, the rumor of the arrest, if that is what is meant, was absolutely denied last night from Whitby, the county town and judicial centre of the county; in fact, the information which the speakers at last night's meeting gave on the subject was very meagre and disappointing.

Mr. Calder sought to blacken the character of Mr. Vanstone, who never said he received money, and as to the others they were not even mentioned.

Dr. T. E. Kaiser of Oshawa, the embodiment of militant Conservatism, branded the story generally as a "malicious falsehood," and then qualified it by saying that Mr. Brown was not a prominent Conservative, anyway. He charged Vanstone with using "dope" on Brown, but gave no proof, and beyond his general and vicious redudiations he made no specific denials whatever.

Not one of the other speakers referred to the matter in any way. Great preparations had been made for this meeting, scores driving in from distant points to hear what was expected to tear the Liberal prospects asunder, but no particulars were given, and no affidavits produced to meet the declarations of the four men at Pickering. A torchlight procession escorted Mr. Calder, Mr. E. F. Clarke, M.P., and the other speakers to the Music Hall, and the meeting opened with a good deal of enthusiasm. The utter failure to meet the charges, however, put a damper on the affair, and before long it had become a chilly and unresponsive gathering. An overflow meeting was held in the Town Hall, but the main speeches were made at the Music Hall.

Plenty of Witnesses On Liberal Side.

Whitby, Jan. 24.—(Globe Special.)—The money mentioned in the affidavits was deposited here yesterday afternoon with Major Harper, Police Magistrate. The inquiry of Col. Farwell, County Crown Attorney, shows no truth whatever in the stories circulated by the Conservatives that criminal proceedings for perjury had been taken against Stanley, Law, Squires and Vanstone. A large number of witnesses are ready to substantiate the absolute truth of their statements about Brown paying them the money. Col. Farwell was in communication yesterday with the Attorney-General's Department, with a view to taking criminal proceedings against Brown.

LET THE CATTLE COME IN,

One Irish Council Votes to Remove the Canadian Embargo.

London, Jan. 24.—(C.A.P.)—Somewhat contrary to the majority of the District Councils of Ireland the Croom (Limerick) Council has unanimously adopted a resolution calling upon their Parliamentary representative to use his utmost endeavors to remove the cattle embargo, as they "view with grave alarm the high prices paid by tenant farmers for holding under the Land Purchase Act which prices are ruled by the present artificial closing of the English ports to Canadian and other cattle." This aspect of the case is demonstrated by Michael Davitt in a long letter to the public press. The other side is that removal would utterly ruin the tenant farmers who agreed to purchase under the act.

Mrs. Hotaling told of the shocking brutality of the husband and father, which preceded the burning of their home and the alleged cremation of their crippled child.

Not True.

Paris, Jan. 24.—President Loubet yesterday received M. Rouvier, who announced his definite acceptance of the mission for the formation of a Cabinet. M. Rouvier later held a meeting with M. Eugene Etienne, Gaston Thomson, Raymond Poincare, Henry Berteau, Ferdinand Dubief, Bienvenu Martin, Joseph Ruau and Jean Dupuy, who, with M. Delcasse and one other, still doubtful, will probably constitute the new Ministry.

Continue to Oppose the Vatican.

Rome, Jan. 24.—The announcement of the composition of the new French Cabinet was received coldly at the Vatican, where the belief prevails that, although the Ministers will be more moderate, they will continue the late Premier Combes' program.

TRAVEL AT 2 CENTS A MILE.

Ottawa and New York Railway Makes the Novel Announcement.

Ottawa, Jan. 24.—The two-cent railway fare has been introduced into Canada. The Ottawa and New York Railway recently acquired by the Vanderbilt interests, has announced that in future a two-cent rate can be obtained by the purchase of a mileage book covering 1,000 miles and costing $20. This reduction is the first innovation by the Vanderbilt interests. The two-cent rate is in vogue on all the lines of the system in the States, so that its introduction to Canada is but an extension of the privilege, which in the States has been found to work very successfully, creating as it does an increased traffic. The holders of New York Central mileage books will be entitled to the two-cent rate on the Ottawa and New York line, as well as the other lines making up the Vanderbilt system.

UNCLE SAM REACHES OUT.

Washington, D.C., Jan. 23.—The American state department is working out the details of the announcement touching the administration of the finances of San Domingo and some of these will be made operative within a month. Mr. Abbott is collecting the customs at Puerto Plata and other experts in customs affairs will be stationed at Monti Crit, Azua, Macoris and other ports to supervise Dominican customs collections. A commission shortly will be named to take up the subject of reform of the Dominican finances.

$10,000 Fire At Toronto.

Toronto, Jan. 24.—A quick and stubborn blaze in the premises of R. A. Sabistan, manufacturer of horse blankets, fur robes, etc., at 66 Don Esplanade, will net a loss of $10,000, principally in machinery.

At 7.20 last evening fire was discovered in the building occupied by J. B. Rankin & Co., shoe dealers. The building is occupied by five firms, J. B. Blackley & Co., woollen dealers; J. B. Rankin & Co., Keith & Kemp, printers; the Standard Cloak Co., and A. R. Bremner, manufacturers of Coke Dandruff Cure and Wizard Oil. BRILLIANT CLOSING OF PLATFORM CAMPAIGN

An Enthusiastic Rally Greets Mr. R. F. McWilliams at the Opera House—Last Night's Splendid Meeting — Speakers were Mr. J. A. Macdonald, Editor of the Globe, Mr. R. C. Clute, K. C., and the Candidate—What Liberals Have Done for Laborers—The Issues of the Campaign Ably Explained by the Eloquent Speakers —A Crowded House and a Brilliant Close of the Campaign.

The platform campaign in the interests of Mr. R. F. McWilliams, closed last night by a highly successful and enthusiastic meeting in Bradburn's Opera House. The hall was filled in every part, the gallery and the boxes also contained interested parties of ladies. The spirit of the meeting was jubilant and the enthusiasm with which the telling arguments of the speakers were received auguers well for the success of Mr. McWilliams on Wednesday.

The hall was very effectively brightened with flags and bunting, the work of Messrs. Turner & Sons, and mottoes were also conspicuously in evidence. Prominent among these was "Our Programme, Progressive Reform," "Ross and New Ontario," "Ross is Building up New Ontario," etc. The audience was a good one —more thoughtful than spontaneously enthusiastic. It did not waste its applause on mere abstractions, but when, as was frequently the case, any telling truth was presented by the several speakers, the earnest applause that followed showed that the audience had an intelligent perception of the points made. The speeches were excellent and argumentative, not mere declamation. Mr. McWilliams, the candidate spoke briefly and to the point. He took the position that he only wanted the electors to find out the truth in relation to the questions at issue in the present contest, and act accordingly, and he would have no fear of the result. Mr. R. C. Clute, K.C., after referring in complimentary terms to the candidate, dealt with the salient features of the attitude of the Liberal Government and party towards the interests of the working classes. He showed what the Liberal Government had done to enact legislation protecting the interests of the labour classes and emphasized the fact that through the Liberal Government and party this province had the most complete system of labour laws of any country in the world. Mr. J. A. Macdonald, managing editor of the Globe, made a very effective address penetrated with humourous stories, capitally told, and exceedingly useful in enforcing his points. He showed how the Conservatives had been conducting the campaign on exploded cries. One was the assault on the "Soo" guarantee action of the Government; and the benefits arising from the patriotic action of the Government were graphically presented and elicited hearty applause. He dealt convincingly with the temperance question, and the relation of the two parties to it, showing that the temperance people had no source to look to for advanced legislation but Mr. Ross, If they replaced him by Mr. Whitney they would be bringing in an antagonistic element. In regard to corruption the speaker denounced it in any party as an injury, and while he did not condone any wrong-doing, that may have been done in Liberal interests, he roundly denounced Mr. Whitney's course in refraining from condemning a single one of the many acts committed by Conservatives. Even the startling corruption that had been employed in Mr. Whitney's interests in 1898 to defeat Hon. John Dryden, had been repeated in Mr. Whitney's interests on Saturday, in Pickering, in the same riding. He did not blame Mr. Whitney for that, but he blamed him for not condemning it when he was assailing the Liberal party for corrupt methods.

Mr. D. O'Connell, who occupied the chair, said they were firing the last gun in the present campaign in West Peterborough. Peterborough had been kept in the Liberal ranks with increasing evidences of confidence for eighteen years. He predicted that they could look with confidence for a similar issue of the present campaign. The Conservatives had fought eight unsuccessful campaign in West Peterborough and they had no better cause and no better prospects on the present occasion. After reference to the speakers of the evening he introduced the candidate, who was very cordially received and spoke briefly. He said that if every elector who would cast his ballot on Wednesday should possess himself of the truth of the questions at issue in the present contest, he (the speaker) had no fear of the result either to himself or to Mr. Ross. (Applause.) The speaker referred to the attacks that had been made against him, one of which was that he was a young man. Twenty years ago West Peterborough had sent a young man to Parliament, and they had not repented the experiment. In this matter he left the issue in the hands of the young men of the riding. (Applause.) Another charge brought against him was that his father was taking an interest in his, (the speaker's) election. He thought that politics were at a pretty low ebb when it was made a crime that a father should take a friendly interest in the success of his son. (Applause.) Mr. McWilliams then went on to refer to the record of the Government and to the claim that if Mr. Whitney had been in power, he would have compiled as good a record. It was pointed out in disproof that of the four millions of revenue of the Province, one million came from special sources originated by the Government. These had included the succession duties which, had yielded a large revenue. This had been opposed by the Opposition, as had been the taxes upon large corporations, which brought in an annual revenue of $375,000, and also the tax upon Brewers and Distillers. These sources had brought a revenue of a million dollars yearly which would have been lost to the Province if Mr. Whitney and his followers been in power because they had opposed the legislation establishing these sources of revenue. The speaker then replied to the charge, that the Liberal Government had not prosecuted persons who had been reported for corrupt practices, and if they had done so only Conservatives had been prosecuted. The speaker pointed out that over fifty persons reported had been tried and punished, Liberals as well as Conservatives This was a sufficient answer to the charge that had been made in this connection. Mr. McWilliams concluded a brief speech which was very cordially applauded, by appealing to the audience for their support and if they took the truth as the guide of their conduct on election day he would have no fear of the result. (Loud Applause.)

MR. R. F. McWILLIAMS

MR. R. F. McWILLIAMS,
The Man to Vote for to-morrow.

MR. R. C. CLUTE, K. C.

The next speaker was Mr. Clute, who said that it was about five or six years ago that he had promised Mr. McWilliams laughingly to give him a lift when he was running for Parliamentary honours in Peterborough, and it was a pleasure to him to appear before this splendid audience to speak a few words now in his behalf. He had known him intimately for years, and he had found him in every respect a worthy man. In the hundreds of students who go to Toronto to the Toronto University, or to Osgoode Law School, it is not difficult to pick out those who come out on top, and Mr. McWilliams was always at the front, and one of two or three who were at the very front. There were few more promising young men in the province to-day, than Mr. McWilliams, and he hoped that on Wednesday night he might have the pleasure of sending him a congratulatory telegram. (Applause.)

The Labour Movement

Mr. Clute referred to his connection with the Labour Movement, and he said that his first active association with those interests was when he had been identified with the movement to secure a nine-hour day and although that agitation was at first very unpopular, it had been adopted and was now recognized as a mutual benefit. The speaker expressed his high respect for men who worked, whether by their hands or brain, and disposed those who loved not work.

The Liberal Governments, at Ottawa and Toronto, have done more for labour than any other country, or any state in the union, and the proof of this statement was the fact that the labour leaders themselves stated this, and no less an authority than Ralph Smith had made a statement to this effect.

It was not so many years ago when the labouring men were not protected in the product of their industry, but by the Liberal Government a measure was brought into effect by which it was made possible for labouring men to collect the just amount due them from their employers by means of a lien on the property of the latter.

Mr. Clute referred to the sweating system, and reviewed the facts in connection with the law introduced by Sir William Mulock, and passed by the Ottawa Government, and we cannot disconnect the two, said Mr. Clute, the provisions of which fully protected the interests of the labouring man in all cases in which public money is used, and no contractor or employer of labour in these cases can draw his money unless he shows that the men employed have been paid a fair wage. Since this law was passed millions of dollars have gone where it should go, to the men who earned it, instead of going to swell the profits of contractors. Scores of laws have been passed for the protection of labour by the Liberal Governments, until today there is no country where the men who work are protected so well as they are in Canada. (Applause.)

Mr. Clute expressed his belief in trade unions, which had come to stay, and which were a necessity, and benefitted not only the employee but the employer. He reviewed the changes which have come over the industrial world during the last few years, and said that since the capitalists had combined, it was also necessary for labour to combine, and it was the only way in which the employees could meet with employers. He referred to the conditions of the miners in British Columbia. At Nanimo, where there had not been a strike for seventeen years, an agreement had been entered into between the miners and the owners, the the first clause of which was that there should be none employed except union men, a clause inserted at the general manager's request. The second clause was that no man should be discharged without cause, and the concluding clause was that there should be no strike, until every other means of conciliation had been exhausted. The result of this agreement was that there had been no strike for seventeen years. Mr. Clute mentioned this case, because he said he believed in trade unions, and that the time was coming, and was now present in its beginning, when there was no need for capital and labour to quarrel. He counselled the labour unions to place at their head fair-minded, honest and moderate men. (Applause.)

Ross will Protect Labour

In the return of Mr. Ross, the labour interests would find that the policy inaugurated by the Liberal Government in respect to labour, would be maintained. As far as he knew, the record of the Government had not been successfully attacked, and it was only last week that the Toronto News admitted that the administration of the Ontario Government was such that very little fault could be found with it.

Corruption Dealt With

Referring to the question of corruption, the speaker said that no act of wrong doing had ever been committed which had not done injury to the party in behalf of which it was committed. No head of a government had the power to absolutely prevent a man from committing wrong acts in the province, but it had never yet been proved that the grand old Premier of Ontario, or any member of his Cabinet, had been guilty of any corrupt acts, but, on the other hand no less than three Conservative members of the Dominion Cabinet were driven out of public life for corrupt practices. That the Conservatives had not yet forgotten how to do it, was proven by the actions of a South Ontario man on Saturday night in Pickering. They had learned since the old days, and now they had what was called a "purity fund," and $30,000 was raised in 1902 towards this "purity fund." Where the Conservatives pointed to one case of irregularity he could point to half a score of cases, in which the Conservatives had been implicated. Confession was the first step to reform, and as yet he had failed to hear of the Conservatives admitting or condemning corruption in their own party.

BRILLIANT CLOSING OF PLATFORM CAMPAIGN

"Purity Fund" at the "Soo"

Mr. Clute quoted from the evidence taken in connection with the cross-petition in the "Soo" trial, in which the "purity fund" figured prominently, $2,000 of which was, according to Mr. Miscampbell, sent to the "Soo" for election purposes. Mr. Whitney knew of this purity fund, and recognized it, and knew that it went where it would "do the most good." (Laughter.)

It had been said that what we wanted to keep pure was the ballot, and this, he thought, was true, and and in this connection the Liberals had a record of which they had no reason to be ashamed. In the last election in 1902, the only one in which Mr. Ross was premier, about 500,000 electors voted, and in the recounts, involving 52,000 votes, only some four ballots were questioned, and of these the judges expressed their opinion that nothing could be found to suspect that there was anything wrong with them. This was a record which the Liberal Government had reason to be proud. In view of this fact it was not fair to say that the Liberal Government had not recognized its duty, nor that the cry of corruption was one of which they were guilty.

Protecting Ontario's Interests

Mr. Clute referred to the question of the disputed boundary, and stated that while Sir Oliver Mowat had sought to protect the interests of the province the Conservatives at Ottawa and those in Ontario, were opposing Mr. Mowat, and if they had had their way that vast territory which now belonged to Ontario, would have been lost to the province.

Mr. Clute concluded his address by an eloquent appeal to the electors to support Mr. McWilliams, who was a worthy candidate, and would, he was sure, prove himself a worthy representative, and supporter of Mr. Ross, and would assist him in carrying out his policy of development for which he stood.

Mr. Clute's address was frequently applauded, and at its close he was given an ovation by the enthusiastic audience.

MR. MACDONALD

The next speaker was Mr. J. A. Macdonald who was given a good reception, and said that he was pleased to have the opportunity to speak in the interests of Mr. McWilliams. He said that he was not a politician, but he had no fault to find with those who were. He thought that men should take an interest in political matters and should recognize their duty to the country.

Mr. McWilliams had said that he was being found fault with because he was young, and he remarked that he would soon get over that.

He wanted to discuss the public question of the province, and mention some of the issues of the Conservative campaign, all of which were exploded.

One of the issues which the Conservatives said they would go to the country on, but which decision they had since thought better of, was that of the aid to the Soo, which was one of the most important questions ever decided in this province. Mr. Macdonald reviewed the facts in connection with the industries, their inception, and later their embarrassment, and defended most successfully, the action taken in connection with the guarantee of the bonds of the Company, the result of which was that the industries had been revived and to-day it was announced that the province had been released from its bonds—so successfully had the industries been operated since the revival. (Applause.) The connection of Messrs. Bowman and Conmee with the Algoma Central Railway was fully explained and it was shown that these men would have been paid more quickly by having Speyer & Co. foreclose the mortgage than by having the Government guarantee the bonds, and the speaker showed the utter fallacy of the contention of the Conservatives.

Another Exploded Issue

Another issue, which the opponents said was going to overthrow the Government was that of temperance, and they said "punish Ross," but what then? Suppose they did punish Ross, would the Conservatives do anything more for the people, who are in favour of temperance than Mr. Ross will, or even as much? He did not see that the Conservatives had shown that they had alienated the friendship of the manufacturers of liquor. This issue was exploded in Napanee a few weeks ago, for instance, when Mr. Whitney had said that if by raising his little finger he could abolish the whole traffic, he would do it, but the same night he listened to a carousal in which his supporters and colleagues participated without showing any of his boasted zeal for the enforcement of the law.

Electoral Purity

Mr. Macdonald referred to the question of purity, and said that the electorate should regard the use of the ballot as a right which they should respect and should not sell. No party can benefit by corruption, and least of all the party to which he belonged. He reviewed the case of the "Minnie M." and said that this was the time when the industries at the Soo were closed and the boat was sent to get 20 voters who were not at the Nelson Mine at the time of the election, and the men who took men who were pluggers, was not only a rogue but a fool, and the trick was almost the limit.

Mr. Gibson has been criticised because the four men reported were not proceeded against, and the speaker showed that for the sake of making political capital, Mr. DuVernet, the Counsel for the Conservatives, and proceeded personally against the men before the judges had made their report.

The "Minnie M." was another exploded issue.

The Government was not perfect, but he did not know many persons who were perfect, but taking man for man, he thought that there was no comparison between Mr. Ross and Mr. Whitney. If the latter had shown any evidence of his ability he would not object very much to having him given a trial. When Mr. Whitney finds energy enough to let go some of the men who are affiliated with him to-day, is time enough for him to ask the electors to make him Premier of the Province.

Mr. Macdonald paid a very high tribute to Mr. Ross, who he said he had known for years and he had yet to find that he had done one single thing to which objection could be taken. It was something to have a man leading the affairs of the province of the ability and sterling character of Mr. Ross. There was a greater danger than the barnacles on the hull of the ship and that was when the pirate got on the bridge, when there was little hope for the ship. The speaker appealed to the electors to stand for what they believed to be right, and support the men who had shown that they had capabilities to govern the province wisely and well.

The meeting closed with the usual cheers enthusiastically given.

MR. BURNHAM'S ANSWER.

To the Editor of the Examiner:—

Sir,—Your editorial of yesterday attacks me in a most unwarranted manner. You charge me with misstatements and other perversions of the truth. I enclose my authority. You will notice that I left no stone unturned. I got the statistics and particulars which I made use of from headquarters in Toronto. The last paragraph of the report upon which I relied is as you see as follows:—"There is no trace of any single Liberal wrong-doer mentioned in these official records having been punished under any section of the Election Act or Criminal Code." This statement I repeat. At Zion a son of Mr. Anderson, a guileless youth, sat with pencil and paper as a substitute, I suppose, for the representative of the Liberal party, we had asked for several days before. The organizer notwithstanding the shoals of speakers at his command, couldn't get one on a week's notice to attend our meeting. Now, of course, I see that you reserved your reply for your newspaper. We would have given you, and offered you, every opportunity and now the day before the election, when it is altogether too late to call your feint, you charge me with stating what in not true. Our information came from Mr. C. A. Masten, the well known and highly respected Toronto lawyer. The editor of the Review wrote for statistics concerning the "reported" cases at my request, and I believe Mr. Masten's statement to be correct. The search was made in the official records at the Parliament Buildings. I enclose his letter with the result of the search.

Yours, etc.
J. H. BURNHAM.

Mr. Burnham is quite entitled to file his rejoinder, even if it be an ex parte one. The Examiner did not charge Mr. Burnham with misstatement and perversions. It was careful to suggest that Mr. Burnham got this information from mis-leading sources. His denial is entitled to publicity with all the value attaching to the authority he gives. Mr. Masten may have consulted certain official records, and truthfully reported what he found, but he evidently did not search the records, showing that the Examiner's statement was correct. The "Albany Club" is not a promising centre of impartial political information relating to Liberals.

THE FALLING LEAVES.

"Lightly he blows, and at his breath they fall,
The perishing kindred of the leaves; they drift,
Spent flames of scarlet, gold aerial,
Across the hollow year, noiseless and swift.
Lightly he blows, and countless as the falling
Of snow by night upon a solemn sea,
The ages circle down beyond recalling,
To strew the hollows of Eternity.
He sees them drifting through the spaces dim,
And leaves and ages are as one to Him."
—Charles G. D. Roberts.

IN A LOG CANOE.

Canadian Completes a Remarkable Voyage Around the World.

John C. Voss, master of the "Tilikum," is a Canadian, now in London, England. In 1901 he left Victoria, B.C., in a sailing yacht weighing two and a half tons, intending to go round the world in it. He succeeded in his object.

It was a long cruise, because Capt. Voss is a born explorer, and he visited many strange out-of-the-world spots, besides touching at all the continents.

He completed the circle this year, and is now in London, to give a lecturing tour in England.

The Origin of the Trip.

"What made me start on the trip?" said Capt. Voss. "Well, because everybody said I couldn't do it—not in the 'Tilikum.' She's a canoe really, and the Indians in Vancouver Island dug her out of a single tree. There's big trees in British Columbia."

There were two men in the boat at the start, but unfortunately Capt. Voss' mate fell overboard and was drowned. After that the gallant skipper was the entire crew.

Nothing can upset the equanimity of Capt. Voss. He will tell you of the most alarming, lonesome experiences in the same friendly matter of fact way as that in which he speaks of the weather. The secret of the survival of the "Tilikum" and of her cheerful owner was the use of a sea anchor—Capt. Voss' own patent. He has sketches showing the "Tilikum" climbing the most appalling seas or moving in a trough with vast mountains of water on every side; the sea anchor trailing behind kept the boat safe were the sea never so furious.

Safety of the Sea Anchor.

"After my mate left me, and when I was alone," said the master, "I used to set the sea anchor and then go below and sleep till next morning. I never had a drop of water come aboard unless I wanted to."

One effect of the sea anchor, which was a cone-shaped vessel made of canvas and wood, was to raise the boat as she crested the waves, keeping them from breaking over her.

Capt. Voss made a thorough investigation of that most romantic region, the South Sea and its islands. Very gingerly, with ammunition ready, and a camera near at hand, he approached the isles tenanted by cannibals. "A very bad reputation some of these islands have," said the captain, "and a woman was eaten at one of them just before I landed, notwithstanding the protest of a missionary. But a European is as safe amongst cannibals as he is in London, providing he doesn't interfere with them." Capt. Voss met the captain of a ship which had been wrecked off one of these islands. The natives treated the survivors splendidly, but when a boat put out from the island to hail a passing steamer it was fired on. It was many months before the party got away.

A Substitute for Water.

The "Tilikum" started with six months' provisions and three months' water supply. But on leaving Sydney the Captain forgot one of his two tanks. Consequently he and his mate ran dangerously short of water. They had four thousand miles to go before a fresh supply could be obtained, and, even drinking so little as a pint a day, they were bound to exhaust their stock long before the distance was covered. But Capt. Voss is the equal of Captain Kettle in resource. "Rolled oats," he said, "saved our lives. Soak rolled oats in water and eat them, and you do not need to drink." Thus the water supply was eked out.

Wherever he went the great little man had a magnificent reception. He took his boat overland to Johannesburg, and was entertained there and at Pretoria. "The best time of all," confided the captain to his visitor, "was given me at Panta Delgada, in the Azores. The governor must have spent £50 on me and my boat. Fine people, the Portuguese."

Capt. Voss is going to sail round the English coast in the "Tilikum" next summer, giving demonstrations and lectures at various towns. He is now compiling a book, which he admits "is not much in my line."

The Reward of Merit.

They live on a rented farm somewhere in Glanford, and they came to town this morning on business—the father and son—the latter a sturdy, wholesome little lad about 12 years of age. A few city boys in the group on the corner had been guying him, but so far he had taken it all in good part. An auto came rushing past, and the little fellow in a spasm of astonishment and delight cried out:

The city lads shrieked with laughter, and the country boy, his face aflame, picked out the biggest in the bunch and handed him a jolt that filled him with amazement. His father handed him 50c. for spending money, not because he fought, but because he picked out a boy that was bigger than himself.—The Khan in Hamilton Herald.

Cravats of Wood Pulp.

A syndicate of English capitalists is engaged in an endeavor to promote a market for the silks made chiefly from wood pulp. This product is principally obtained in South America, Paraguay furnishing a large supply. The vegetable silk has its origin in trees and is readily adaptable to native looms. The woven threads are supercalendered, which process presents a silky finish resembling mercerised goods. For several years past this glossy material has been sold in piece lengths to the upholstery trade, by which it is utilised for filling purposes. The selling test of artificial silk for cravats is anxiously awaited by manufacturers.

REASON No 8
WHY YOU SHOULD USE
Red Rose Tea

Because it is full weight.

You get a full pound of tea inside the package. The lead wrapping is not included in the weight.

It is weighed by automatic electric machines—machines that never make mistakes (clerks sometimes do), and the tea is poured into the packages after being weighed.

Put a pound package of Red Rose Tea on a scale and it will weigh 19 to 20 ounces, according to the thickness of the lead wrapper; or the tea, poured out, will weigh 16 ounces.

Everything about Red Rose Tea is always full measure—weight, quality, purity, and cleanliness—and your satisfaction will be full and complete when you use it.

VENTILATING A HOUSE.

Don't Be Afraid to Open Wide All the Windows Every Day.

The thought of opening every window in the house, top and bottom, is very shocking, of course. It is intended that it should be. Many people who think that they are really very fond of fresh air need a shock of some kind—a shock that will make them realize what a well aired house really is.

"I always sleep with my window open," they will tell you. Yes, but how wide do they open it? Perhaps only six inches, and that only at the bottom, and only one window, so that there is no circulation through the room at all.

If that is your way of "having lots of fresh air in the house" then you need a shock of some kind—one that is hard enough to jar the windows wide open. Of course it is not possible to keep all the windows open all day and all night all the year round, but it is possible to always have a little circulation across every room in the house at all times. And it is possible to have all the windows wide open during a good part of the day and night.

Do not be content with a house that is not actually ill smelling. Have the air in the house just as fresh as the air out of doors.

This takes constant thought, but the results pay.

Another thing that nervous women need to do is to hire some one to do their reading of foolish novels for them, and their embroidery work or most of it, and in place of these they need to take up the study of food values and the study of common sense ventilation.—Maxwell's Talisman.

Take no Risk With a Cold.

FURTHER DEVELOPMENTS MAY PROVE FATAL. THERE IS CURE FOR YOU IN

DR. CHASE'S SYRUP OF LINSEED AND TURPENTINE.

If you could depend on a cold passing off of its own accord it would be all very well to let it run its course. The risk is too great.

Consumption and pneumonia always have their beginnings in a cold.

If you take prompt means of curing every cold you will never be a victim of these or other fatal lung troubles.

Did you ever stop to think of it that way?

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is best known on account of its extraordinary control over croup, bronchitis, whooping cough, asthma and severe chest colds.

As a means of overcoming ordinary coughs and colds, throat irritation and the many diseases of the throat, bronchial tubes and lungs, it has made an enviable reputation for reliability.

Pleasant to take, thorough and far-reaching in action, and certain in its beneficial results, Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine should have a place in every house as a safeguard against consumption and other fatal lung diseases.

Mrs. J. Provest, Renfrew, Ont., states: "My fourteen-year-old boy had a very severe cold in the chest last winter, and I really though he was going to die. He coughed nearly all the time and sometimes would spit up blood. We had about given up all hope of his recovery, when I heard of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. After using one bottle there was a great change in his condition and I can positively say that he was completely cured by two bottles, and he has not been troubled since. I never saw medicine take such quick effect, and I can sincerely recommend it."

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates and Company, Toronto. To protect you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

And the Colonel Lost.

"What was the longest engagement you ever took part in, colonel?"

"It lasted two years, and then the girl married another fellow."—Exchange.

A tombstone is about the only place where the average man doesn't really care to have his name in print.

Women Barbers in India.

In India, where a man's trade is almost always determined by that of his father, the village barbers form a class apart. They always marry in caste; their wives, like themselves are descended from countless generations of barbers.

These women shave and cut hair as skilfully as their husbands, fathers and brothers. Most customers steer clear of them, however, for they have a way of leaving men whom they do not like half-shaved, and then driving them through the streets of the village with jeers and mockery. It is a terrible disgrace to an Indian to be seen only half shaved. The poor villager covers his face with his turban and goes home filled with sorrow and shame.

The barbers' wives are most in request as nurses, and are useful in attending sick children. When children suffer from any kind of throat complaint, such as bronchitis or a cough, the barber's wife can be depended upon to cure it. She rubs the child's throat with some mixture made of herbs, applying it with her fingers. It is a rough treatment, but singularly efficacious.

The barber's wife has regular customers in all the Brahmin widows of the village, who must have their heads shaved twice a month or so, in token of their mourning. Their mother or widow sister of a barber always takes up the profession of midwife. Very frequently she is an angel of death in that capacity, being both cruel and ignorant. Medical missions and zenana work are, however, driving her out of business nowadays in many parts of India.

The Pot O-Post.

Ian Maclaren recounted this story in a lecture on Scottish humor:

"In a dull Scottish village, on a dull morning, one neighbor called at another's house. He was met at the door by his friend's wife, and the conversation which ensued was thus:

"'Cauld?'

"'Ay.'

"'Gaunt tat be weety (rainy), I'm thinkin'.'

"'Ay.'

"'Is John in?'

"'Ou, ay! he's in.'

"'Can I see him?'

"'Na.'

"'But I winted to see him.'

"'Ay, but ye canna see him, John's deid.'

"'Deid?'

"'Ay.'

"'Sudden?'

"'Ay.'

"'Verra sudden?'

"'Ay, very sudden.'

Plan For Negro Colony in Africa.

St. John, N.B., Jan. 23.—A plan for the establishment of a colony in British Africa, composed of "intelligent, educated and industrious negroes from the English-speaking countries, principally the United States," is being promoted here. Dr. A. B. Walker of this city, a negro, is at the head of the project, and in a message to the public, issued yesterday, he says his purpose is "ultimately to bring the whole continent of Africa within the pale of Christian civilization."

Bail For Accused Scientists.

Toronto, Jan. 23.—Bail was granted on Saturday morning to the four Christian Scientists who are held on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Wallace Goodfellow. The sum of $2,000 was asked for each. The hearing will be resumed on Thursday.

Anarchists At Michel's Funeral.

Paris, Jan. 23.—The funeral of Louise Michel, the revolutionary agitator at Levallers Perret, yesterday was the occasion of a large anarchist demonstration. The streets, however, were heavily guarded by military and police and there was no serious disorder.

Do Not Suppress a Cough.

When you have a cough do not try to suppress it, but remove the cause. The cough is only a symptom of some disease, and the disease is what you should cure, then the cough will stop of itself. The most common cause of coughing is a cold. Anodynes will promptly suppress the cough, and preparations containing chloroform, opium, etc., are used for that purpose, but they do not cure the cold. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy on the other hand does not suppress the cough, but relieves it by removing from the throat and lungs the mucus which obstructed the breathing and allaying the irritation and tickling in the throat. It also opens the secretions and effectually and permanently cures the cold as well as the cough. For sale by all druggists.

HER OWN CORNER

A Cosy Nook With Her Favorite Books and Belongings.

When a woman cannot have the luxury of an entire room for herself, it is at least fair for her to have a corner of the family sitting room or her own bedroom set apart for her own special use. A cosy nook, with her favorite books within reach, a comfortable lounging chair and perhaps a little table—at any rate, a place for her fancy work or writing materials—all this is very delightful and not altogether impossible for a small outlay of money and brains. Where there is a bow window or a corner turret the rest is easily arranged.

Perhaps the most satisfactory corner may be evolved where the windows meet at right angles, as in the sketch. Here the curtains hang from a valance that follows the angles of the corner, the low shelves are filled with books, while the top of the bookcase is a stand for plants in quaint Dutch or Trentham ware pots. If the shelves are to contain anything but books they might have small curtains to correspond with the other draperies.

Such a corner is indeed conducive to a lazy afternoon or a pleasant hour to be spent among one's favorite authors and flowers.

The draperies of such a corner must, of course, be chosen to accord well with the rest of the apartment.—Philadelphia Ledger.

AUSTRALIAN BUSH LIFE.

The Odd Customs and Types of Humanity Found on Those Great Dry Fields—Their Monotony Is Appalling.

It is in pioneering the distant "backblocks" that the peculiarities of Australian life are to be found. Away in the "never-never" country one meets many curious types of character. The bush tramp, or "sundowner," as he is known, seems to lose his identity after a few years of "humping the bluey" on the plains of Australia. No creature on earth could be more homeless or forlorn. He may have come of good family and have had the prospects of inheritance till that fatal day when he was driven to the bush to hide his face forever from his people.

In the lonely wayside inns, which grow scarcer and scarcer as he threads his way "out back," he finds the only semblance of a home on earth. The monotony of the Australian bush is appalling. One may traverse a hundred miles without the slightest variation in the landscape—the same gum, the same eucalyptus, the same brown, sun-baked earth. And overhead the perpetual screech of the cockatoo and the mocking laughter of the jackal. No wonder the tone of Australian literature is pessimistic since the keynote of the bush is pessimism.

It can be readily imagined under what depressing conditions the hardy prospector treads his way. If by no other marks he can be distinguished from the tramp by his air of self-possession and decisive gait. From end to end of the continent he may be met—a sturdy, cheery son of nature, his eyes by long habit bent upon the ground and hope always in his heart. In his "swag," or blanket, he carries a plain tin dish, the only tool of the alluvial prospector, and sufficient food to last him a few days. This generally consists of "damper"—a kind of crude bread he bakes with the flour bestowed upon him at the last homestead—and tea, which he makes in a "billy," the inseparable companion of all denizens of the bush. Whatever else he may discard from his meagre equipment, the "billy" cannot be dispensed with.

A dozen times during the day he "boils the billy" and partakes of a long draught of black tea—milk and sugar being luxuries unthought of. For many days, and even weeks, he can exist on no other food but the eternal tea and "damper," as if in keeping with the monotony of his environment. Blessed is the wayfarer who invites him to share a plug of tobacco. His festivals are held on the days when he arrives at some homestead; and such is the hospitality of the Australian bush that he never need beg. At the squatter's home there are accommodation and food for every passer-by. One may rest himself and stable his horse as he would at an inn, and it would be an unpardonable breach of bush etiquette to offer payment for the accommodation.

The Australian bushman is a romanticist of the first order. Solitude seems to have strengthened his imagination, and long absence from society to have heightened his powers of expression. He will tell the most impossible stories with absolute sincerity, his language being interlarded with adjectives of an imposing description, one of which he will at every opportunity sandwich in the middle of a word with remarkable effect. This system of syllabic swearing is considered the acme of conversational perfection. Unlike the tramp, he is not lost to sentiment, and he inherits an English love for ceremony.

During a gold rush a man was found dead in a scrub, and steps were promptly taken to give him a decent burial. Unfortunately not one in the camp possessed a Bible, nor could any one remember a prayer. An original prayer was out of the question, probably by reason of the habit I have indicated. Something of a solemn character had to be read, so every tent was searched till at length one of the prospectors unearthed from his belonging a copy of the Declaration of American Independence. And they read that.

In striking contrast to the unruly life of some of the remote states of America, the Australian bush has much to commend it. Throughout the entire country there is a freemasonry not influenced by mercenary considerations. Even in the mining centres, when pulses are throbbing with the fever of discovery, that same feeling of good fellowship prevails, while law and order are maintained above all things. Crime is rare, for the days of the bush-ranger are passed.

The aboriginal is but seldom aggressive, and as a general rule is under strict control. This old time cannibal is a miserable specimen of humanity, but is, perhaps, more sinned against than sinning. Civilization has revealed to him the fiery ecstasies of alcohol, and he is slowly drinking himself to death. "Gimme rum" stands for his dying appeal to the usurpers of his soil. So that while the life of the bush is Bohemian, it is never lawless. No such horror as lynching is ever heard of, for every man is looked to as a guardian of the law.

Strike of Lacemakers.

Between 5,000 and 6,000 workpeople will be affected by a strike of lace operatives at Nottingham, which it has been decided to commence. The manufacturers, who propose a reduction of from 9½ to 10 per cent. in the prices paid for certain branches of work, say that if the men continue stubborn they will be compelled to remove their machinery from Nottingham.

Angler's Bold Project.

Sir Theodore Angier, who has conceived the bold prospect of a second canal through the Isthmus of Suez, will not be found in the New Year's volume of "Who's Who," says The London Star, and this is a distinct oversight, even if his knighthood was only conferred on the King's birthday in November, for he is a prominent figure in shipping circles and on "the Baltic." He is head of the well known firm of Angier Bros., which was founded in 1847, and which he joined in 1869. He controls the Angier Steamship Company and the Angier Line, and is a director of several companies, including the British Steamship Owners' Association. In 1894 he was chairman of the General Shipowners' Society, and in 1895 was president of the Chamber of Shipping. He took a prominent part in the Suez Canal agitation of 1883-4, and in 1894 he was elected a member of Lloyd's Register Committee. Politically he is a Unionist, and is, or was, president of the Walworth Liberal-Unionist Association. He is a Yeoman, too, and a good sportsman.

Wins Victoria Cross.

The King has conferred the Victoria Cross upon Lieut. Herbert Augustine Carter, of the 6th Indian Mounted Infantry for conspicuous bravery in Somaliland.

During a reconnaissance near Jidballi, when a small British force was pursued by a force of Dervishes that outnumbered it by forty to one, Lieut. Carter rode back alone a distance of 400 yards to the assistance of Private Jai Singh, who had lost his horse. He took the Sepoy up behind him and brought him safely away.

The London Gazette, in notifying this appointment, states that the Distinguished Service Order previously conferred is cancelled.

Just Like Quebec.

The citizens of Quebec are in arms against the use made of the Government ice-breaker Montcalm. The vessel was ostensibly acquired at a large cost to promote winter navigation of the St. Lawrence, but its effect has been to break the ice formation at Cap Rouge, and to prevent an ice bridge from forming at that point. In order that navigation between Quebec and Montreal may be made possible a few days earlier in the spring than usual, the Montcalm, instead of sailing down the St. Lawrence in the interest of winter navigation from Quebec to the sea, is kept night and day in the vicinity of Cap Rouge, eight miles west of Quebec, breaking the ice and causing it to keep floating up and down the river, thus endangering all traffic between the city of Quebec and Levis by ferry boats. This use of the ice-breaker is causing great inconvenience to the residents of the north, south and west shores who have to pay their fare on the ferries instead of driving across the ice as in past years.

A SNOWSHOE SONG.

"Hilloo, hilloo, hilloo, hilloo!
Gather, gather, ye men in white;
The wind blows keenly, the moon is bright,
The sparkling snow lies firm and white;
Tie on the shoes, no time to lose,
We must be over the hill to-night.

"Hilloo, hilloo, hilloo, hilloo!
Swiftly in single file we go,
The city is soon left far below;
Its countless lights like diamonds glow,
And as we climb we hear the chime
Of church bells stealing o'er the snow.

"Hilloo, hilloo, hilloo, hilloo!
Like winding sheet about the dead,
Over hill and dale the snow is spread.
And silences our hurried tread.
The pines bend low, and to and fro
The maples toss their boughs o'erhead.

"Hilloo, hilloo, hilloo, hilloo!
We laugh to scorn the angry blast.
The mountain top is gained and past,
Descent begins, 'tis ever fast—
A short, quick run, and toil is done,
We reach the welcome inn at last.

"Shake off, shake off, the clinging snow,
Unloose the shoe, the sash untie,
Fling toque and mittens lightly by,
The chimney fire is blazing high,
And, richly stored, the festive board
Awaits the merry company.

"Remove the fragments of the feast!
The steaming coffee, waiter, bring.
Now tell the tale, the chorus sing,
And let the laughter loudly ring.
Here's to our host, come drink the toast,
Then up! for time is on the wing.

"Hilloo, hilloo, hilloo, hilloo!
The moon is sinking out of sight.
Across the sky dark clouds take flight,
And dimly looms the mountain height.
Tie on the shoes, no time to lose,
We must be home again to-night.

THE DEAD MARCH.

Hats off, friends, for the funeral train!
The dead was wise and great,
We honored him, the living man;
We bury him in state.
Horses with sable housings decked,
Plumes, wreaths—all pride can ask;
Sorrow makes homage at his bier
And Envy wears a mask.

Look how his dust is reverenced!
Let God accept his ghost!
We give him noble sepulture
And praise our uttermost.
We fringe the streets with soldiery
And drape the buildings high,
And mournful thousands throng to see
His empty husk go by.

We wish his soul fair voyaging
In that untracked domain;
We set our sighs to beats and bars,
Bid melody complain.
O spirit strong! Hear you it there
As down the road it comes—
That silver grief of clarionets,
That muffled woe of drums?

Hear you the tread of marching feet,
The undulating chord?
Can cymbal clash or trumpet blare
Ascend where you have soared?
Or are you keyed to grander tunes
Struck from celestial strings—
The jubilates of the stars
Each to the other sings?

What if our lamentations fade
Upon the idle air?
Even our fruitless message holds
The nourishment of prayer.
We do not crave God's puissance
Some pretty boon to win,
But lay our hearts beneath His feet
To pour His glory in.

A Curious Legend.

Easby abbey, the ruins of which lie close to the river Swale, a short distance from Richmond, in Yorkshire, England, is the home of a curious legend, says Photography. One of the main walls of the building is cracked and toppling, but has not yet fallen to the ground. Nor do the natives expect it to do so, at least not until it receives the impulse which it is said to await. For a tradition relates that the wall, when it does fall, will bury in its ruins a newly married couple, and as the tale is well known the chance of a honeymooning pair resting beneath its shade is remote.

THE REAL QUESTION.

The real question of disease is "Can I be cured?" If you or anyone dear to you is losing strength, flesh, energy and vitality, if you are wise you will not spend time trying to figure out just what name to call the disease by.

It is almost impossible to draw the line where debility and weakness merge into consumption. Your trouble may not be consumption to-day, but you don't know what it may become to-morrow. Hundreds of people have been restored to robust health by Dr. Pierce's Marvelous Golden Medical Discovery after reputable physicians had pronounced them consumptive beyond hope.

Were they in consumption? Nobody can say you know. The important point is that they were hopelessly ill but this matchless "Discovery" restored and saved them.

"I was not able to do hardly any work at all," says Miss Jennie Dingman, of Vanburen, Hancock Co., Mich., in a most interesting letter to Dr. Pierce. "I had pain in my left side and back, and had headaches all the time. I tried your medicine and it helped me. Last spring I had a bad cough; I got so I had to lay in bed all the time. My husband thought I had consumption. He wanted me to get a doctor, but I told him if it was consumption they could not help me. We decided we would try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and before I had taken one bottle the cough was stopped and I have had no more of it to remember. Your medicine is the best I have taken."

Write to Dr. R. V. Pierce. He will send you good, fatherly, professional advice, in a plain sealed envelope, absolutely free. His forty years experience as Chief Consulting Physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., has made him an expert in chronic diseases.

An Easy Way to Cure Splitting Headaches.

If headache sufferers would do a little hard thinking, they would surely learn that headaches of all kinds are simply results—warning signals—of far more serious trouble. Usually headache means that the blood and nerves are poisoned by an inactive and sluggish liver. Don't become one of the habitual headache sufferers, who explain their condition by saying, "Oh, I am subject to headaches. I always get headache if I get excited, or it is too noisy." There is no need of it, either. Stop taking headache powders and powerful drugs that may relieve, but leave you in worse condition in the end. Put your liver in good shape, so that it will carry off foul secretions and remove properly the bile elements from the blood. Use Smith's Pineapple and Butternut Pills and you won't have headache. Why? Just because these little pills are Nature's true laxative, and a positive cure for a torpid liver. They assist digestion, unload the bile ducts and cure headache by first removing the cause. Smith's Pineapple and Butternut Pills cure headache, constipation and billousness in one night. Price 25 cents at dealers.

Ship Every Five Years.

The United Empire Loyalist Association of Ontario will shortly present an address to the Governor-General expressing approval of "some form of inter-Imperial preferential tariff between the various parts of the British Empire," and a contribution "towards the expense of Imperial naval responsibilities" on the part of Canada.

The definite suggestion is made that the Dominion should undertake to provide for the royal navy a battleship, fully equipped and armed every five years, thus making a fixed periodical contribution of substantial value and definite purpose. The ships to be thus built, it will be further suggested, should bear the name of some place in Canada, especially selected with a view to sentiment or historical associations.

The Governor-General will be asked to initiate and promote such action as he and his Ministers may deem proper.

A Sure Sign of Death.

Doctor Icard proposes, as a quick and certain process of proving that death is real, the injection into the cellular tissue of a solution of fluorescine. If circulation persists, that is to say if death is only apparent, this produces a yellow coloring of the skin and the mucous membranes, a true jaundice, and the eye becomes intensely green, taking on the aspect of an emerald encased in its orbit. But if the circulation is stopped, if death is real, nothing like this is produced.

Escaped an Operation

"I had itching piles for six years and the doctor told me there was no cure for me unless through an operation. Dr. Chase's Ointment completely cured me in one week. This was six months ago and there has been no return of the old trouble I believe that the cure is a permanent one." — Mr. J. Mawer, Roden, Man.

SLUM LIFE IN TORONTO.

Sixty Italians Living in One House—City Missionary's Statement.

At the annual meeting of the Associated Charities of Toronto, Prof. Goldwin Smith, who was appointed Honorary President, in an interesting address urged that the different charitable associations of the city should be formed into one large organization in order that imposture might be overcome as well as overlapping. The wealthier men of the city might interest themselves in the plan and do something to help the poorer quarters of the city. If a company were formed that would be satisfied with bank rates and build small houses for the accommodation of artisans doubtless a great number of the richer men would give the scheme financial aid and assistance.

"Those who are well acquainted with the poorer sections," continued the professor, "report that the want of decent habitations has become extreme. We are glad to see that the question of artisans' dwellings is likely to be taken up by a conference, including leading men of business, with a special representation of the labor interests. Ultimately this, like other branches of the building trade, to be successful, must be carried out on commercial principles and made profitable, to those who undertake it. But this special exigency may warrant something philanthropic and experimental, so that it may be a project worthy of consideration and one which the leaders of finance may not be unwilling to support."

Rev. Robert Hall, the city missionary, said he knew of instances where 60 Italians were living in one house, where at the most fourteen should be allowed. In a great many houses as many as forty were allowed to live in atmosphere that was not fit for any human being to breathe. He recommended having inspections by the Board of Health into their condition. "One thing I notice," continued Mr. Hall, "and that is the number of deserted women and children living in the city."

Among the others who spoke were Rev. Father Rholeder, Mr. R. F. Massie, Mr. E. J. Hearn, Rev. Father Minehan, Controller Hubbard, Mr. Lee Williams and others.

The Attitude of Prayer.

The effect and value of association was dwelt upon by Mrs. Cutler in her lecture on "Literature and Life" at the Round Table Club in Toronto recently. One learned to love good music by hearing it, and a taste for good literature was acquired by reading it. The more frequently spiritual dominance was sought, the more readily it was induced in time of need. Our lives lacked the daily support of prayer because we did not know how to assume the attitude necessary. We tried to change the infinite mind of God, when prayer was to change our attitude towards His will, and to silence the material consciousness. Sometimes in extreme need a sudden cry would go forth, and in the quiet moment of purity born through the veil, and there would follow peace and vision. It was only in such sudden, intense reach past the real could be attained. By association with the good the undersirable ceased to attract. In music sensuous pleasure passed into spiritual enjoyment. Truth reached the spiritual consciousness as harmony, and all true harmony was a spiritual quality, as Christ perceived in realizing the inner harmony of being.

Prizes for Good Farms.

Superintendent Cowan is considering the advisability of inaugurating annual good farms competitions throughout the Province. His idea is that prizes should be offered through the agricultural societies for the best-kept farms, as was done some years ago in connection with the agriculture and arts competitions. Prizes would be given for the best farms in the counties; the winners would compete for better prizes given for the best-kept farms in districts consisting of groups of counties, and the successful ones in this class would in turn strive for the prize given for the best farm in the Province. It is probable that an early meeting of agricultural experts will be held, at which the proposal will be put into definite shape, so that the competitions may begin next summer. Similar competitions have been held in Quebec Province for the past thirteen years, and have been found very helpful to the farmers.

A RECORD YEAR.

Over 24,000 New Settlers Came to Ontario During 1904.

Ontario had a record year in the matter of immigration during 1904. The total of those coming to this province from across the Atlantic last year was, in round numbers, 24,000. Besides these there were many settlers from the United States who went into the Rainy River, Thunder Bay and Temiskaming districts. The returns showing the number who thus passed the customs and settled in New Ontario have not yet been received from Ottawa. Last year the total immigration to Ontario was 19,000, and in 1900, when the Provincial Immigration Bureau was first established under Mr. Thomas Southworth, the total of new citizens from other lands was only 8,000.

The great majority of the immigrants last year were from Great Britain, and most of them found situations with farmers throughout the province. The reports received by Mr. Southworth show that on the whole the immigrants were of a most desirable class, and many farmers are keeping them on through the winter so as to make sure of having help for the farm work next spring.

The demand for hired help on the farm is not likely to be quite so keen this year as last. There are now considerably fewer applications in from farmers wanting men for next spring than was the case at this time last year. The supply of able-bodied young immigrants who came over last year was fairly equal to the demand. A large number of these, however, after spending a year with an experienced farmer are intending to take up land for themselves this year in New Ontario or the West. This will make room for some thousands of more immigrants, and the immigration agents of the province now in Great Britain are making arrangements to send out large contingents of farm laborers this spring. Efforts are also being made to induce a large immigration of girls willing to enter into domestic service in Ontario. The scarcity of domestic servants throughout the province is very marked at present.

During the past fortnight or so there has been quite an influx of Russian Jews to Ontario. Mr. Southworth reports them to be apparently an intelligent and respectable class, who will make good citizens. They have abandoned their farms in Russia to escape compulsory military service against Japan. They will work in the bush until spring, when they will take up land.

The ladies in the West are playing the strenuous game, as the following despatch from Medicine Hat will show:—

A hockey match took place on Wednesday evening between the married and single ladies of Medicine Hat, the former winning by 5 goals to nil. As the married ladies did not have enough players in their ranks, the services of Miss Gilbert were loaned for the occasion by the single ladies. This proved to be a mistake as Miss Gilbert scored all five goals.

It adds that Miss Shaw sprained her ankle and had to retire.

OUTBREAK OF SAILORS.

Comrades Refuse to Fire On Them Or Fire in Air.

London, Jan. 24.—Special despatches from Russia to the London papers to-day again bristle with sensational statements. For instances, the correspondent at Kiel of the Press asserts that the naval depots at Sevastopol have been destroyed by a revolutionary outbreak of the sailors of the Black Sea fleet, whose lives have been rendered unbearable by over work and robbery by corrupt officials and gives circumstantial details of 8,000 of these men rising and attacking their officers and firing and destroying the buildings, while the troops that, according to the story, summoned to quell the revolt, refused to fire at all or fired in the air. Other despatches report soldiers killed by bomb throwing. None of which can be confirmed in any responsible quarter.

There is much curiosity as to the intentions of the Imperial family. There are rumors that they are going to the Crimea, Copenhagen, or some other place till the storm has blown over. According to The Daily Telegraph's correspondent Emperor Nicholas yesterday went to Catchina.

Prepare For Change.

The Daily Telegraph's St. Petersburg correspondent reports that as the outcome of meetings of the Reform party of Gorky, Annensky, Arsenieff and others, and their adherents Saturday night, a body of men has been constituted who regard themselves as the future Provisional Government of Russia. As yet, the correspondent says, they are political ciphers; but they hope some sudden stroke of luck will enable them to overturn the existing regimes, at the same time they recognize the fact that non-success may lead them to Siberia or the tomb.

How Smith's Friend Got Through.

They were out in Kansas about 100 miles and wanted to reach Kansas City. One of them had a pass for John Smith and wife. He was John Smith all right, but his friend could hardly pass as Mrs. Smith. Although they were practically without funds, they boarded the train. "Take a seat in the rear of the car," said Smith to his friend.

Then Smith went forward and sat down by a young woman. Soon they were talking like old friends, and the subject of tickets was brought up by Smith. He asked her to let him see her ticket. It was not of the variety that requires the signature of the purchaser.

Smith examined it until the conductor came through, and then he handed up his pass and the ticket. Pointing to his friend behind, he said, "The extra ticket is for him." The scheme worked. To this day the young woman does not know that she was once Mrs. Smith for a short ride through Kansas.

Nobility of Purpose.

Go before no man with trembling, but know well that all events are indifferent and nothing to thee, for whatever it may be it shall lie with thee to use it nobly; this no man can prevent. —Epictetus.

PETERBORO' BEAT LINDSAY AT HOCKEY

Won a Decisive Victory at Scugogville Last Night by 13—5.

Great Crowd Saw a Fine Game of Fast Clean Hockey.

Disgraceful Scene at Station —Peterboro's Pelted with Eggs, Coal and Ice— Car Windows Badly Wrecked.

The Peterboros went to Lindsay last night and gave the team of that place a good sound trouncing on their own dear little rink. There was nothing uncertain about the victory either and even Lindsay will have to admit this. The score of 13-5 fairly indicated the play which was from start to finish in favour of the locals and it was only occasionally that the boys from "Hoodlumville" had a look in. It was truly a great victory and the greatest surprise of the season to Lindsay, who were very downcast at the result. But the victory was so glowing and so decisive that they can offer no excuses other than they were up against a superior aggregation.

OUR SUPPORTERS.

The locals went up on a special train which carried about 200 supporters of the white and blue. The rink, which provides very poor accommodation, was jammed to the doors, over 1,000 people being present. The Peterborough contingent gave the winners fine support and there was a little noise on the thirteen occasions when the puck lodged in the Lindsay nets. The rink is a small one and is lighted by about 40 incandescent lights which make it almost impossible to see the puck when it has been lifted. But though they tried it often, the losers failed to score from a lift, the first time that this has not been accomplished by them on their rink this year.

A FAST GAME.

The game was one of the fastest and cleanest that has ever been played in Lindsay and was undoubtedly the best exhibition of hockey played this season in this district. The ice was keen and the pace from start to finish was speedy. In the first half the play was fairly even Lindsay making a good showing at times, but in the second period, the winners were the only team in the game and had the home team "all in".

The Peterboros made a whirlwind finish and were going as fast as ever at the close. The play, considering how much depended on the result and in consideration of the rivalry and high feeling existing between the towns, was clean and though several players were ruled off, the offences were of a trivial nature and there was nothing which even bordered on dirty playing. Referee McCord was very strict and for anything which even looked like an infraction of the rules, the players were disciplined. Consequently the game was clean and not a man was injured. In the second half Duffus took a cramp in his leg and had to retire, but his injury was not caused by rough play. The Lindsay Post made many loud and long false accusations against the Peterboro players for playing rough hockey in the game here with Lindsay, but there was no ground for complaint last night.

THE BEST OF THE SEASON.

The Peterboros played beautiful hockey to a man, and every one must come in for congratulations. The boys seemed to realize that they simply had to win and that they must play hockey all the time and they did it. The forwards played splendidly together, their combination being altogether too speedy for the Lindsay defence. The combination was the best that has been displayed this year and the team is certainly improving in this respect. The small rink was bothersome at times but individually or collectively, the boys shone. The defence was like a huge brick wall and played a brilliant game. Wasson in goal displayed great form and shone throughout, stopping some shots which looked like certain scores, his eye was in fine form and he shone last night. Glover at point played a good game, checking hard but cleanly.

Crowley at cover point played one of the best games in his career. He broke up rushes at will, lifted strongly while his long runs were a strong factor in the play. He played a hard and clean game and is showing up better in every match.

Captain Cavanah was the fastest man on the ice and his work last night was brilliant. He was of great assistance to both defence and forward line and was always in the thick of the fray. His corkscrew rushes were almost unstoppable, his stick handling and skating being superb. The popular captain was in great form and his work was a feature of the game.

Parnell was also very prominent throughout and played a very effective game. His shooting was excellent, while his dodging runs and fine checking were strong factors in what proved to be a glorious victory. The faster the game, the better Parnell plays, and he has proved himself to be one of the most valuable players on the team.

"Happy" Morgan at centre deserves every credit for his plucky work. He was an indefatigable worker and was always in his place to receive or pass the puck and played a most unselfish game. He fed the wings well and frequently got away with a dodging run which culminated in a score.

Graham was in fine shape again after his recent illness and put up a stellar game at left wing. He outplayed his check and was always in his place for a dash down the wing and a shot on goal.

The team is now playing championship hockey and should go a long way before being defeated. The boys showed what they could do last night and the team which puts them out will have to "go some."

THE LOSERS.

Lindsay has a good team but was outclassed by a superior team. McGrath made some brilliant stops in goal, while Rielly and Irving lifted dangerously, but could not stop the rushes of the locals' line. The forwards were fast skaters and good stick handlers but lost many chances to score through rank shooting. In fact both teams might be better in the shooting department. The Lindsay combination was seldom effective. The team played cleanly as a rule.

J. W. FLAVELLE SPEAKS.

Before the game Mr. Flavelle made a few remarks to the crowd. He said there was a strong feeling existing between the two towns and he asked that the Peterboros be given fair treatment both when on and off the ice. He hoped the town would not disgrace itself by any ill-treatment of the visitors. Mr. Flavelle's remarks were timely and had their effect during the game, but afterwards — well, we're coming to that.

BOUQUETS.

During the game a few snow-balls were tossed at the Peterboros, who were hissed whenever they scored. The Lindsay people had but little chance to cheer except when a Peterborough player fell on the ice or missed his shot. The crowd even hissed the referee, who gave a most fair and strict exhibition of refereeing and certainly gave the winners no favours. The players were perfectly satisfied with his work.

THE TEAMS.

The teams lined up as follows:—

LINDSAY.
McGrath
Reilly
Irwin
Duffus
Taylor,	Parkins,
Graham,	Morgan, Parnell,
Cavanah
Crowley
Glover
Wasson
PETERBOROUGH.

Referee—W. A. McCord, of Toronto; goal umpires—E. Hurtubise and Dr. Brown; timekeepers—F. A. Clarke and W. O'Neill; penalty timekeeper—Dr. Walters.

HOW IT HAPPENED.

The Peterboros started off with a rush and McGrath had several warm ones to stop. Taylor was ruled off for tripping. Parnell went up the side, and after a pretty piece of combination with Morgan the latter scored and the Peterborough contingent made a little noise.

Crowley got away with a long run, Glover rushed the length of the ice but was ruled off for some unknown reason, Crowley was given a minute's rest while Cavanah made a long run and passed to Morgan, who made the score 2-0—great rejoicing, great sorrow.

Pringle passed to Parkins who made a nice run and scored by a side shot. And Lindsay howled. Score 2-1.

Crowley was given a rest for checking too strenuously. Parnell rushed up the side and passed to Graham, who scored by a pretty shot. Score 3-1.

Cavanah got a minute's rest and Taylor scored for Lindsay.

Parnell got a rest and Crowley rushed three-quarters the length of the rink for a score. It was a fine rush. Score 4-2.

Parnell nearly scored after a long run and half time was called.

SECOND HALF.

The locals started in to run up a score. Irving was ruled off. Parnell went down the ice and shot, but missed, Cavanah secured the puck and made it 5-2. Cavanah went the length of the rink but missed his shot but Parnell scored from a great side shot. It was getting easy. Score 6-2.

Morgan got away for a fine run and passed to Cavanah who scored. It was a pretty play. Score 7-2.

Parnell rushed down the wing and after dodging two players passed neatly to Morgan, who scored again.

Duffus took a cramp and retired with Glover. Graham was given a rest and Parnell was put off for slashing. With six men to four Lindsay tried hard but unsuccessfully, to score. Cavanah got through the whole team, but McGrath made a great stop. There was a scrimmage in front of the goal and Wasson was knocked down. For lying down he was ruled off, the second time in his long career. Parnell went between the stakes. Irving made a long lift, which struck behind the goal, Duffus secured on the rebound and scored. Cavanah again dodged through the defence but failed to score. Morgan passed to Parnell and the score was 8-2. Taylor was again ruled off. Cavanah passed to Graham, who added another.

Parkins checked Cavanah's rush and combined with Pringle for a rush, the latter scoring. Score 10-4.

Parkins scored from a side shot, but that was all for Lindsay. Cavanah lifted one through from centre. Both Wasson and McGrath made good stops, Morgan rushed and passed to Graham, who scored. Score 11-5.

Graham went down the side and passed to Morgan who dodged Rielly for the last score. Cavanah was off side and was sent to the fence—just to please Lindsay, said the referee. Crowley and Pringle were put off and the game concluded.

DISGRACEFUL SCENE AT RAILWAY STATION

Peterborough People Pelted with Ice, Eggs and Coal—Windows Smashed and Several Injured.

But to Lindsay's everlasting disgrace, the Examiner is grieved, but feels called upon to report the scene which occurred after the game. The Lindsay crowd was naturally incensed at seeing their pets trimmed so fairly and squarely on their own ice and the hoodlum element, was let loose. It is only fair to say that the team themselves and the respectable citizens in the town were not mixed up in the disgraceful scene, but, nevertheless, the town, as a whole, is responsible for the conduct of the ruffians.

As the Peterboros were leaving the rink one of the players was brutally kicked by a Lindsay tough and the team made a hurried entrance into their cabs. A crowd of fully 200 people gathered at the station and as the team and their supporters entered the special train they were pelted with snow, chunks of ice, coal and "ancient" eggs. Several were injured, one young man having his hand cut, another his nose broken, while several others received eggs and ice on the head. It was absolutely disgraceful. But the climax was reached just as the train pulled out, a gang of hoodlums were lined up on each side of the train and as it moved out, chunks of coal were hurled at the windows, fully a score of panes of glass being smashed to pieces. The Peterborough people had been anticipating this and fortunately had pulled down the window shutters, but even some of these were broken by the force of the missiles. The Examiner does not wish to follow the example of the Lindsay Post in giving a misrepresentation of facts and is giving no exaggerated account of the proceedings last night. One could hardly believe that such disgraceful conduct could be witnessed in any place and the town of Lindsay was certainly very much discredited by last night's proceedings. As any fair-minded citizen will admit, the game was a clean one and there was no cause for any unfriendliness, but it was simply a manifestation of the spirit which prevails in Lindsay in every line of sport—be it curling, baseball, or hockey—that of being unable to take defeat in a sportsmanlike spirit. The town is still in an infant stage as far as sports is concerned and it is to be deplored that they cannot take a beating without this everlasting squealing and without such a shocking scene as took place last night. The conductor of the train remarked as he passed through the car, "I thought I was in Russia," and that was about the size of it.

NOTES.

Aren't you ashamed of yourself, Lindsay?

Some of the boys received enough eggs to start up a small sized grocery store.

But what does it matter, if was a glorious victory.

The town is proud of you, boys.

Lindsay is scheduled to play here on Friday.

The Lindsay Post said last week that when the Peterboros went to Lindsay they would be used "decent". Whoof!!

Look out in the west, we're coming!

Lindsay may now expire, hockeyistically speaking.

All the team played stellar hockey.

Coal must be cheap in Lindsay. They throw it away.

The Lindsay team is not as strong as Port Perry.

The question is—how will the Post explain it. Somebody must be blamed.

It is learned from the Grand Trunk Railway Company to-day that by actual count seventeen windows were broken last night.

Thackeray's Odd Ways.

"He wrote a very small, neat hand and used slips of note paper," said the late John Hollingshead of London concerning Thackeray. "These he would often gather up and put in his coat pocket, leaving his secretary at work, and stroll down to the Athenaeum club. Here, if he could get a comfortable table and was not waylaid by any gossip, to whom he was always ready to give an attentive ear, he would pull out his slips and carry his story a few steps farther. In an hour or two he would again collect the scattered papers and go on to the Garrick club, where, if not interrupted, he would resume his writing. This habit of composing in public frightened many of the old club fogies, who thought they were being caricatured for posterity, and no doubt helped to get him blackballed at the Travelers'."

Refugees At Chefoo.

Che Foo, Jan. 24.—Thirteen junks, containing 500 men, women and children, after a passage of sixty hours from Port Arthur, arrived here yesterday. The passengers were immediately sent on board the British steamer Muenchen, chartered by the Russian Government to take them home.

CONSERVATIVES DISAPPOINTED.

Evidence Seems Strongly to Sustain Original Charge of Bribery.

Pickering, Jan. 25.—To turn the force of the proofs of bribery upon behalf of Charles Cluner by his friend and worker in South Ontario, Nicholas C. Brown, the Conservatives on the day before election resorted to a charge of conspiracy against the four informants. The counter-charge was given a speedy hearing, and the Liberals affirm that it has collapsed under the weight of a mass of unprejudiced testimony. All of the machinery of justice was placed at the disposal of those who brought the charge. Magistrate Parker and County Crown Attorney Farewell prosecuted the case with diligence and thoroughness, which won the praise of the special Conservative counsel, Mr. C. C. Robinson. The result proved disappointing to him and to his clients.

Another Get Money.

In the face of the charge of conspiracy another reputable farmer, Mr. Landy McCausland, came forward and declared that he, too, had been approached, and given money by Brown to forsake his allegiance to the Minister of Agriculture. Other witnesses strengthened the weak links, swore to seeing Brown handling money in odd corners of the Gordon Hotel, the scene of his operations, and the trial resolved itself into not one of conspiracy, but an investigation into a charge of bribery, with the evidence strongly sustaining the original charge.

The argument on the testimony is set down to take place on Monday next.

GENERAL TREPOFF RULES IN RUSSIA

Governor of St. Petersburg Declared in State of Siege—He is Named Iron-Handed—Man of Great Energy Whose Repressive Measures Have Caused Revolutionists to Condemn Him to Death—St. Petersburg, Though Quiet Tuesday is Fermenting Underneath—At Moscow.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 25.—St. Petersburg will be declared in a state of siege to-day. Gen. Trepoff, until recently chief of police of Moscow, has been appointed governor-general of St. Petersburg, and has taken up quarters in the Winter Palace. Strangely enough, the only precedent is the case of Gen. Trepoff's father during the reign of Nihilistic terrorism under Alexander II., and it is also a strange coincidence that unsuccessful attempts were made on the lives of both. Gen. Trepoff is a man of great energy, but the measures he adopted at Moscow for suppressing the student demonstrations in December last provoked much resentment, and the revolutionists recently condemned him to death.

The aspect of the Russian capital is decidedly more calm. Business, which had been at a complete standstill, has been resumed upon a limited scale. The employes in a few of the smaller factories resumed work yesterday, and the crowds of strikers in the streets were diminished. Troops in evidence were not so numerous as on Monday, and a more confident feeling exists in official circles that the energetic measures which have been inaugurated will ensure the safety and quiet of the city.

Beneath the surface, however, the ferment continues and the public nervousness and apprehension as to future developments is still unallayed. Secret meetings of different classes in opposition to the existing order of things were held in various places during the afternoon and evening. The concensus of opinion is that the immediate future actions of the agitators depends upon what occurs in Moscow and other large cities of Russia, where the workmen are beginning to strike. Over 100,000 men are out in the old capital. There will be a big demonstration there to-day, and it is feared it will be accompanied by bloodshed.

Bomb-Throwing Incited.

London, Jan. 25.—A proclamation in the name of Father Gopon has been circulated, inciting to the use of bombs, dynamite or any weapon whatsoever against the members of the Government, who, it is asserted, outlawed themselves by the course that was adopted against the workmen of St. Petersburg on Sunday.

It is firmly believed and confidently stated by many Russians in London that the army will quickly become disaffected.

Finns in a Ferment.

Helsingfors, Finland, Jan. 25.—Thousands of workmen joined in a demonstration here last night. Assembling on the huge steps of the Nicolai Cathedral, they paraded the streets till midnight, waving red flags. The windows of public houses, hotels, breweries and a number of newspaper offices were broken. The police interfered rather late, arresting 50 of the workmen.

Britain's Sympathy.

London, Jan. 25.—War Secretary Arnold-Forster, speaking at Croydon last night, expressed the sympathy of the people of the United Kingdom with those of Russia. He said he was sure Britons desired the peasants of Russia to enter upon the heritage of liberty and freedom, which all Britons enjoyed and obtained through the sacrifices of their forefathers.

A FALSE REPORT.

30,000 Strikers Not Marching to Seize Kolpine Small Arms Factory.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 25.—There is no truth in the report circulating that strikers, 30,000 strong, are marching upon Kolpine, twenty miles from St. Petersburg, for the purpose of seizing the small arms factory there.

Father Gopon's Popularity.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 25.—Father Gopon's popularity is unimpaired, but it is already evident that the Social Democrats are getting the upper hand, and demands, notably the question of eight hours work per day, and to make an investigation of the shooting of the strikers.

Press Editor Arrested.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 25.—M. Hessen, editor of The Pravo, whose advanced Liberal views are well known, has been arrested. The Workingmen's Club has been closed by order of the Prefect of Police.

Liberal Literary Men Arrested.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 25.—Prof. Karoff and M. Annensky and Peschechonoff, three well known writers, and Town Councillors Kedrin and Schnitikoff, who are also lawyers, were arrested during last night.

Several Men Wounded.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 25.—Cossacks while dispersing a crowd of strikers at 4 p. m. yesterday, drew their swords and wounded several men. Work has been suspended at the works of the Belgian Electrical Company, which furnished the majority of the electrical supply of St. Petersburg.

Strike Spreading At Moscow.

Moscow, Jan. 25.—The strike is spreading rapidly. All printing works have been stopped. No newspapers will be issued to-day. Employes of The Bachrushin, Michailoff, Linder and Schraeder factories have joined in the strike. The police have ordered all arms to be removed from the windows of the gunsmiths, a majority of whom have closed their shops.

Boiler Workers Forced to Quit.

Moscow, Jan. 25.—The employes of the Bari Boiler Works began work yesterday morning, but the strikers forced their way into the works and ordered the men to cease work.

"Down With the Czar."

Trieste, Jan. 25.—Several hundred workmen assembled before the Russian Consulate here Monday night, crying: "Down with the Czar!" "Down with the tyranny!" "Down with absolution!" The police dispersed the crowd without difficulty. A few arrests were made.

Strike Began At Vilna.

Vilna, Russia, Jan. 25.—A strike has commenced here. The town is quiet.

Moscow, Jan. 25.—A body of strikers at noon yesterday forced their way into the works of the firm of Hopper & Co. and compelled 500 men to join the strike. Simultaneously factories and other works were closed throughout the districts adjoining Danilloff street.

Japs Eagerly Watching.

Tokio, Jan. 25.—The Japanese are keenly watching the developments at St. Petersburg. The newspapers publishing extras with accounts of the riots are eagerly read.

Radom in a State of Siege.

Breslau, Prussia, Jan. 25.—Special telegrams from Radom, European Russia, describe that city as being in a state of siege, with military patrols in every street, who occasionally fire on gatherings of the people who have returned the fire, killing three officers. The people have blown up buildings with dynamite.

EMPIRE POINT OF VIEW.

Question of Colonial Union to Be Settled By British Nation.

London, Jan. 25.—(C.A.P.)—Right Hon. Austen Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, speaking at Moseley, said not to-day nor to-morrow, but within the lifetime of this generation we should have to decide either for better or for worse whether we would strive for a closer union with our kindred nations across the seas now growing in strength and population or whether we were to leave them to work out their destiny apart from us. Those who wished the attainment of that closer union must look at this great problem from the point of view of the whole Empire, not merely from a selfish and individual point of view.

No Dissolution.

London, Jan. 25.—(C.A.P.)—Home Secretary Akers-Douglas, speaking at Dover last night, announced that unless the Government should be defeated there will be no dissolution of Parliament. The Government, he said, has no intention of making an appeal to the country till the end of their term of office.

Fed With Rhetoric.

London, Jan. 25.—(C. A. P.)—Speaking at Weston-Super-Mare, Prof. Bryce said relations between Great Britain and the self-governing colonies would be one of the problems for the next Liberal Government. The Ministry and Mr. Chamberlain, scarcely conscious of the neglected duties, were feeding the people with vague rhetoric about the Empire—the Empire by all means—but the best way to strengthen the Empire was to increase the happiness of the people on whose physical well-being and intellectual force both the kingdom and the Empire rested.

Record Load.

London, Jan. 25.—The Lake Manitoba left for St. John with about 635 third-class passengers yesterday. This is the record for this time of year.

Will Be Commuted.

Ottawa, Jan. 25.—It is now understood that the death sentence imposed upon Giacconi, the Italian, in Montreal, will be commuted to imprisonment for life.

Women Went to Return to Work—The Emperor has Confidence in Trepoff.

Special to the Examiner.

St. Petersburg, January 25. — The lack of money and food is already operating against a continuance of the strike. Weeping women are returning to the cigarette factories and pleading to be allowed to resume work, but the managers are afraid to re-open in consequence of the threats of the strikers to wreck their establishments. An official note this this morning announces that Emperor Nicholas has expressed his thanks to Gov. Trepoff, the new Governor-General of St. Petersburg, for his distinguished and zealous services as chief of police of Moscow.

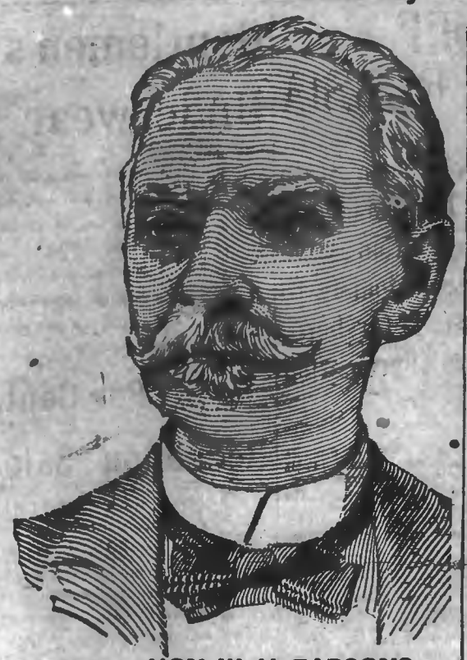
JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

Was Alarmingly Afflicted With La Grippe. Cured by Pe-ru-na.



HON. W. H. PARSONS.

Pe-ru-na cures more cases of la grippe than all other remedies combined.

W. H. Parsons is Ex-State Senator and Ex-Special Judge of the Supreme Court of Texas, also Brigadier-General in Confederate Army. In a recent letter from 925 H Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., this prominent gentleman says:

"Upon the recommendation of personal friends and many strong testimonials as to the efficacy of Peruna in the treatment of the numerous symptoms of the grippe with which I have been afflicted for four months past, I have been induced to undergo a treatment with this justly celebrated formula. I feel a decided change for the better after using it only one week. It is especially good in toning up the stomach and has had a decided effect upon my appetite. I therefore feel much encouraged that I am on the road to complete restoration.

"My numerous friends in Texas, where I have had the honor to command a brigade of her Veteran Cavalry in a four years' war, may accept this voluntary testimonial to the merits of Peruna as a sense of obligation on my part for its wonderful efficacy."—W. H. Parsons.

There is no remedy in the world that meets the conditions produced by la grippe better than the remedy, Peruna. Peruna strengthens as it renovates, soothes while it stimulates, heals as it expurgates. Peruna is not a purgative, or cathartic, or sedative, or stimulant, nor a vegetable or mineral poison. It reaches the source of all diseases of the mucous membranes by its action on the vaso-motor system of nerves.

Every person who has had la grippe during the last year should take a course of Peruna. No one need expect perfect recovery unless they do so. The grippe has produced catarrhal inflammation of the whole mucous membrane, and good health is impossible until these are restored to a normal condition. This Peruna will do. A great many remedies have been suggested for this condition from time to time, but Peruna appears to be the only remedy that has any substantial value in these cases. It has never failed to give satisfaction during forty years' experience and still occupies the unique position of being the leading (if not the only) specific remedy for the after-effects of la grippe.

Henry Distin, the inventor and maker of all the band instruments for the Henry Distin Manufacturing Co., writes the following from 1441 South Ninth street, Philadelphia, Pa.:

"I had a bad attack of la grippe last December which lasted more than three months, and which left me with catarrh, and several of my friends advised me to try Peruna. I began with a bottle the first week in March and it certainly did me a great deal of good. I was so well satisfied that I purchased another bottle and followed the directions, and can say that it has cured me."—Henry Distin.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

THERE'S MONEY IN GOOD CHEESE

Important Address by Chief Instructor Publow on Improvement of Cheese Factories.

Out of 615 Factories Only 125 are in First Class Condition as to Equipment, etc.

Money Spent in Improving Cheese Factories is a Most Profitable Investment.

One of the most interesting addresses at the Dairymen's convention recently was Chief Instructor Publow's report on the work of the instructors during the past season, which read as follows:—

I take pleasure in presenting my second annual report as Chief of the Dairy Instructors for Eastern Ontario.

As a result of the circular and application forms addressed to factorymen by the directors of the Eastern Dairymen's Association over six hundred and fifteen factories applied for the services of an instructor. This being an increase in number of sixty-four over that of last year, made it necessary to increase the number of syndicates from twenty-two to that of twenty-five.

Owing to the lateness in which many of these applications were received, a great deal of difficulty and confusion were experienced in arranging the groups to the best advantage. Many in fact did not arrive till late in the summer and consequently had to be returned as the instructors in the districts from which they were received had as much work as they could possibly attend to. However, where it was possible some arrangement was made by which to give them some assistance. In several instances where the factories were suffering most heavily from defects in their cheese, I gave them my own personal attention, which in most cases, proved to be sufficient, and for which the people were very grateful.

Here I would like to impress upon the factory owners who request the services of an instructor to make application at an early date, as the instructors have to be engaged from year to year and receive a special training for their work; and I sincerely hope that the parties having this important matter in charge will see that it receives the prompt attention it deserves. Of the twenty-five instructors who were engaged this season, nineteen were men who were employed by the association last year, while the remaining six were carefully selected from a list of experienced and successful makers who had made application for the positions.

These men were engaged for six months at a salary of seven hundred dollars, which was paid direct to them by check each month from the Department of Agriculture. This method of receiving the salary proving much more satisfactory to the instructor than the method followed in previous years.

SALARY PAID INSTRUCTORS.

Out of this seven hundred dollars the instructors had to pay all their own expense, and as suitable men sufficiently qualified for this work are difficult to procure, I would recommend that their salary be increased. Before the men who were employed were placed in charge of their respective syndicates, they attended a two weeks' course of special instruction at the Kingston Dairy School, for the purpose of better fitting them for their work.

The six hundred and fifteen factories in the several syndicates received a total number of 4,253 visits. This number includes calls made at the factory as well as full days spent with the maker. Of the 60,450 tests for adulteration 300 proved to be tampered with, 200 showing a deficiency in butter-fat, while 97 contained added water. In dealing with these cases of adulteration it was necessary to impose 54 fines, amounting to $257, which was paid in to the factory treasurers, the remainder being given a warning and allowed to go at this, as it was their first offence.

Some of the instructors paid more visits to factories than others, but this is accounted for by the larger amount of time spent by the other instructors in personally visiting the patrons for the purpose of improving the condition of the milk. These visits of which a total number of 8,841 have been made during the past season, are reaping good results, as will be seen by the improvement in the number of deteriorated samples in the fermentation tests made, there being only 55 per cent. of the total number of samples not suitable for making cheese of finest quality as compared with 80 per cent. deteriorated last year.

GOOD SERVICE RENDERED.

But as well as visiting so many of the patrons, a total number of 168 meetings were held with an average attendance of 37, and while a great deal of good resulted from these meetings, it is not to be compared with the improvement wrought by the personal visits to the farms, as it was usually found that the patrons who attended the meetings were sending their milk in good condition; while those who were most in need of instruction failed to be present.

However, these meetings are not to be thought lightly of, for they had the effect of bringing the true object of the instructors before the people, and of stimulating the patrons and factorymen to improve their factories, and the conditions surrounding the manufacture, and as a result, some $99,085 was expended in the building and equipment of new factories, and the remodelling and beautifying of old ones, bringing the total number of factories improved during the past season up to 343, as compared with $40,536 expended in rebuilding and repairing 248 factories during the season of 1903, or, in other words, more than twice as much money has been expended in making improvements as was expended last year.

Still, I think, more good would be accomplished by holding these meetings during the winter months, when the annual business meetings of the factories are held, as it would give the patrons and factorymen a better opportunity to make the necessary improvements asked for, and, in fact, a great many have applied to me for some one to address these meetings, and, where it was possible, I have complied with their requests. There being still a large amount of improvement to be made, the reports of the different instructors, showing that of the 615 factories in the syndicates, only 125 were placed as first-class; while 228 are second class, and 262 were regarded as third class. I would recommend that some arrangement be made by the Department of Agriculture by which these requests could be granted another year.

IMPROVEMENTS NEEDED.

The nature of the improvements required in these inferior factories is, better means of controlling the temperature of the curing rooms, better floors in the making rooms, better drainage and sanitary conditions, better water supply, and the surroundings of the factories made more tidy and attractive.

In some of the syndicates these conditions were improved much more than in others, and I found that the quality of cheese in these syndicates had improved in like proportion; while in those syndicates made up of small, ill-equipped factories, where the people were indifferent regarding the care of their milk, competition was keen and poor makers were employed at low wages. There the greater percentage of inferior cheese is manufactured.

Of the defects most complained of in our cheese, acidity, weak-bodied, yeasty and badly-flavoured cheese are the most common. A great many such complaints were received during the forepart of the season, especially regarding cheese made in that part of the territory east of Kingston. Notwithstanding the fact that the makers and instructors were repeatedly warned against the manufacture of this character of goods, a large number of such cheese continued to be received in Montreal. This matter became so serious that I invited all the instructors east of Kingston to meet me in Montreal, to go through the warerooms of all the leading exporters, and see and compare the character and quality of the goods that were being received from their respective districts and become better acquainted with the faults found by the buyers; and I take this opportunity of thanking those exporters, on behalf of the instructors and myself, for the cordial manner in which they received us, and for trouble taken in furnishing any information asked for, and pointing out anything that would lead to improvement, for I believed that if there was anything one thing more than another from which great and immediate improvement was made, it was the lasting impression made by this practical and effective object lesson.

To keep in still close touch with the work, I had Mr. Woodard, the Official Referee in Montreal, furnish me with a copy of his weekly reports on the cheese he was called upon to examine, and this information was not only invaluable to me in directing the work of the instructors from week to week, but clearly showed the benefit from the system of instruction, as less than one-third of the rejected cheese were received from the syndicated factories.

SHE GAINED Fifteen Pounds

A young woman in New York wrote us that she had lost twenty-five pounds in four months and her lungs were seriously affected. She had to give up her position as a stenographer. Someone told her to try Scott's Emulsion. She took three bottles and gained fifteen pounds. Her general health was so improved that she resumed her work. Such cases are not the exception, but the rule. We have known persons to gain an average of a pound a day by taking an ounce of

Scott's Emulsion

It seems hardly possible, yet we have received thousands of letters telling of almost similar results. It's not so strange when one is familiar with Scott's Emulsion. It sets the digestion right and furnishes rich nourishment that is easily absorbed by the system. Good food does good when it can be digested. Scott's Emulsion is a food itself, but it helps other food do good and so the gains in flesh are made quickly and easily.

KEENE HUNTERS TO OPPOSE SYNDICATE

Will Petition the Government not to Grant any Shooting Rights in Rice Lake

The Week's Doings at Keene—Social Evening at Recreation Rooms.

From our own Correspondent.

Keene, Jan. 23.—Miss Mabel Walters, of Bowmanville, is the guest of her aunt, Mrs. John Edwards.

Miss Susie Campbell, of Peterborough spent a few days with friends here this week.

Mr. Ed. Wright, of Toronto, was in the village on Wednesday.

The Keene Gun Club held a meeting in Mr. R. J. McManus' shop on Monday evening, for the purpose of talking over the best way to fight the syndicate which is endeavouring to obtain exclusive fishing and shooting rights in certain parts of the lake. It was decided to petition the Government at an early date, not to grant any such rights. The petition will be circulated among the residents who are interested in having the fishing and shooting grounds on the lake preserved for all alike. The petition will also urge the Government to make the law in regard to illegal fishing and shooting more strict.

The Executive Committee of the Reading and Recreation Rooms gave a delightful social to the patrons of the rooms, and their friends, in the Town Hall, on Wednesday evening. There was quite a large number present, considering the very inclement weather. The hall was nicely decorated for the occasion, and checkers, crokinole, and other games were provided. An excellent programme of recitations and vocal and instrumental selections were rendered. Refreshments were provided by the ladies. The following is the programme:—

Piano Solo..... Miss Susie Campbell
Solo..... Mrs. (Dr.) Harrison
Recitation..... Miss Minnie Bowman
Solo, "Killarney" Miss Lilian Bell
Recitation..... Miss Edna Wedlock
Sol..... Miss Margaret Bryce
Recitation..... Miss Jennie Weir
Solo..... Mr R. J. McManus
Farce, "No Pay No Cure,"..Messrs. Kason, Burnham, Pye, Gall and Kemp.

During the evening the chairman, Dr. Shaw, announced that a meeting of the Executive Committee would take place in a short time, when it would endeavour to get a library in connection with the Reading Rooms.

The congregation of the Keene Presbyterian church held their annual meeting on Thursday afternoon. The financial report was satisfactory in every way. After the business of disposing of the report of the Board of Managers and electing managers for 1905, tea was served in the basement of the church. Rev. D. H. MacDonald is pastor.

The two rinks of Keene curlers who went to Peterborough on Thursday to play in the district cup competition were defeated. Messrs. J. J. Moore, R. B. McIntyre, Dr. McWilliams and J. R. McIntyre, skip, were defeated by 20 shots, the score being 28—8. The other rink was defeated by 17—15.

By being defeated by the T.A.S. on Thursday evening, virtually puts the Keene hockey boys out of the running. They have lost two games to the T.A.S. and one to Campbellford. They have still a game to play in Campbellford. They attribute their poor showing this year to lack of practice, and the removal of several of their best players to other places.

The Seventh Line Football Club held a very successful dance in the Lang Hall on Friday evening.

Rev. Wilson Avison, of Alma, Ont., is the guest of Keene friends.

A great deal of wheat and other grain is coming in to the elevator at the station, where Mr. O. Bell is paying good prices. The farmers from across the lake bring nearly all their grain to him.

FOWLER'S CORNERS

(From Our Own Correspondent)

The roads are in very good condition just now.

The Bell Telephone Company has run a line out here, which is being largely patronized by young people.

On Thursday evening last, a number of our young people drove up to Omemee to an entertainment which was held in Presbyterian church.

Large loads of wood and grain are being hauled through the village on their way to town.

Mr. R. Dayell is making preparations for the erection of a new residence.

Several young ladies in this vicinity are anticipating a change of name in the near future.

The presence of a wildcat in the wood near here, has put a stop to much night prowling.

Mr. T. Tindle's new sewing machine is doing excellent work.

One of our enterprising young farmers took a choice load of pork to town on Saturday.

Mr. Herbert Tully is engaged in breaking in a dashing span of young horses.

Several new cutters have appeared in the village lately.

From our Own Correspondent.

Omemee, Jan. 25th. — Mr. Henderson, post office inspector, of Toronto, made a visit here and in East Emily (with a view of locating a new post office at Mr. O'Donnell's, five miles east of here. This will prove a great convenience to the patrons of the Emily cheese factory, situated near Switzer's school house, Emily.

About $7000 of our village debentures for building the new school house and side walks have been disposed of at par.

The formal opening of our new school building will be held on the 27th.

A dance was held here last Thursday evening, the 19th inst., one of the most successful social gatherings ever been here. Members of Lakevale, Omemee and Mount Pleasant congregations were present, and each and every family brought a basket. After refreshments had been served an excellent programme of music, and readings provided by Lakevale and Mount Pleasant, was enjoyed. MR. LACHANCE INTRODUCED Organization of Standing Committees of House of Commons Completed—Civil Government Militia Estimates Taken Up—Mr. Foster's Question Regarding the Martineau Defalcation—Mr. Smart.

Ottawa, Jan. 25.—The House made good progress with the estimates yesterday, and the organization of the standing committees was completed, so that when the Ontario members, who have so far been conspicuous by their absence, return to the House in a couple of days the committees may commence their labors.

The introduction of Mr. Arthur Lachance, the member for Quebec Centre, who succeeds Mr. Malouin, afforded the supporters of the Government an opportunity to extend a cordial greeting to the youngest member of the House, of which they availed themselves to the fullest extent.

In Committee of Supply the estimates of the Department of Militia and Defence, under the head of Civil Government, were taken up.

The Martineau Forgeries.

Hon. Mr. Foster asked for information in reference to the position of the Martineau matter. It seemed to him rather strange that in a well-organized department it should have been possible for a raw young clerk to carry out such a fraud as Mr. Martineau had accomplished. There appeared to have been something wrong in the system of checking in the department. He inquired if anything had been done to draw the lines tighter.

Hon. Mr. Fitzpatrick replied that it was almost impossible for any Government or corporation to devise a system that was absolutely free from defects. He explained that the checks were required to be signed by two officers, and in addition to that the checks, when returned each month with a bill from the bank, were checked over by two officials of the department, entirely independent, one of the other. He pressed himself unable to understand how the defalcation went on without detection for so long. It was difficult to understand why the monthly checking had not disclosed what had been going on during the month. The question of the liability of the Government was now pending in the courts, and he did not, therefore, enter more fully into the case, but Mr. Fitzpatrick added that the defalcation was not at all events attributable exclusively to the remissness of the Government, inasmuch as the bank had paid some of the checks, although they bore only one signature, and some bore no signature at all.

Mr. Smart's Retirement.

Hon. Geo. E. Foster paid a neat compliment to Mr. Jas. A. Smart, ex-Deputy Minister of the Interior, by his inquiry as to the reasons for the retirement from the service of a very efficient officer.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who was acting Minister of Militia and also of the Interior, replied that Mr. Smart had left the service because he thought he could better his circumstances by going into business for himself. Items of $253,370 for administration of Justice, $37,000 for the Dominion Police, and a good portion of the estimates for the Postoffice Department were passed before adjournment.

On the item of $960, salary for Mr. James Dundas, a railway mail clerk, reinstated in the service on September 1st, 1898, and restored to his former status under the civil superannuation act, the Postmaster-General was asked for an explanation.

Sir Wm. Mulock said that Mr. Dundas was reported guilty of corrupt practices by the Judges in 1896, and for that reason was dismissed. After being out for one and a half years he was reinstated. Representations were made to the effect that the offence of which he was pronounced guilty resulted from good-fellowship. The Judges were asked if they could report any extenuating circumstances, and did so. Dundas' reinstatement followed.

The House adjourned at 6 p.m.

Montreal, Que., Jan. 25.—The Governor-General of Canada, Lady Grey and the other members of the vice-regal household arrived in the city yesterday shortly before noon and were received with enthusiasm. At the depot the party were greeted by Mayor Laporte, Sir George A. Drummond, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, George E. In the afternoon His Excellency visited the City Hall, where the best people of the French sections were presented to the King's representative. His Excellency replied eloquently to an address presented by the Mayor. At 9 o'clock a brilliant throng gathered at the Board of Trade where a reception in honor of Lord and Lady Grey took place.

THE CHINESE REPLY

Has Not Swerved One Iota From Her Neutrality.

ANSWERS RUSSIAN CHARGES

General Denial, With Instances Pointed Out Where Russia Has Violated Neutrality—The Ryshetelni Incident Not Yet Closed—Russians Forced Sale of Provisions in the Neutral Zone.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25.—China's answer to the American Government's communication calling attention to the charges that the Chinese were violating neutrality was delivered to United States Secretary of State Hay at his residence yesterday by Sir Chentung Liang Cheng, the Chinese Minister. It will later be sent to the President. Until the Chinese answer has been read by the President its text is withheld, but the Associated Press has obtained an approved synopsis of the note. Regarding the charge that the Chinese bandits are enlisted in the Japanese army, the Chinese Government calls attention to the fact that they were enlisted first by the Russians as frontier guards, and fought against the Japanese.

"We find no Japanese officers in our northern army at all. We do find in the Government school in Paotingfu, several Japanese translators. All of them, however, had been engaged before the war. They are on the same footing as Russians and other foreigners in educational institutions throughout the Empire. China further regards this as a matter of internal administration of which no other Government has cause to complain."

Regarding the iron ore said to have been furnished the Japanese army, the answer says this ore is from certain mines owned by Chinese merchants, separate from the Government mines at Hangyang. The transactions are not recognized by the Chinese Government. The Matao Islands are said to have been used by the Japanese as a base for their navy. The Chinese Government for the past year has stationed the swift cruiser Haiki to watch this island, and no sign of any landing of Japanese has been reported to the Government. Regarding the articles of contraband alleged to have been sent to Dalny, the answer says, ships have left Che Foo with the knowledge of the Chinese Government for Dalny, and no clearance papers for that port has been issued by the Chinese custom officials.

Regarding the Ryshetelni incident it is stated that the seizure was as unexpected by the Chinese as by the Russians. The Chinese Government did everything it could against such seizure. The Chinese Government later requested Japan to return the vessels, while the incident is not yet closed, China considers her Government has done all possible in the matter. The Chinese Government considers that Russia has violated neutrality in a number of instances. Bridges have been built by the Russians over the Liao River, and Russian troops have encamped on the west side of the river, which is supposed to mark the boundary line of the neutral zone. In many places in the neutral zone the Russians have forced the sale of provisions.

The Chinese have made protests of the Russian smuggling ammunition, arms and other contraband articles. The captain of the Ryshetelni, while going to Shanghai under military escort, made his escape from the authorities in whose charge he was. It is stated in conclusion that in view of the baseless charges made by a belligerent, China feels it incumbent upon her to make this answer and let the truth be known: that the Chinese Government has not swerved one iota from her neutrality, and that the general attitude of her people is peaceful and has been appreciated as such by the powers.

Fire At Collingwood.

Collingwood, Jan. 25.—A fire starting in the Lindsay Block on Huron-tario street, yesterday morning, did considerable damage. Daw & McGregor suffer a loss of $3,000; McBride's cigar store, $2,500; Tewsley & Kennedy, drygoods, badly damaged with smoke and water, loss around $8,000; the Strathcona Restaurant, in the Carmichael Block, was damaged by smoke and water. The Carmichael Block was damaged by smoke and water; Brown & Saunderson, slightly damaged by smoke and water, insured; George Stephens, damage slight, insured; Patterson & Cooper, slight, if any, damage, insured. It is one of the worst fires since the big fire of 1881.

One-third the Deaths Due to Pneumonia

La Grippe and Kindred Diseases of the Respiratory Organs—Alarming Report of the New York Board of Health—Dreadful Results of Neglected Colds.

The report of the New York Board of Health for the first six months of 1904 places the number of deaths from pneumonia and other respiratory diseases, such as la grippe and severe chest colds, at 14,091, or one-third the total number of deaths during that time.

Scientists and physicians are appalled at the enormous increase in deaths from this source, and the people are becoming aroused to the danger of allowing the system to become run down and neglecting to cure colds.

By the timely use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine coughs and colds are readily cured and danger from more serious developments entirely avoided.

Most people know about the exceptional merits of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine as a cure for croup, bronchitis, whooping cough and asthma, but there is a tendency to neglect a cold or cough until it is beyond control.

Another danger is found in allowing the vitality to run low, for pneumonia is almost invariably caused by taking cold when the system is in a run-down condition.

As a means of building up the system to prevent disease, and as a convalescent food to restore strength to the body after such wasting diseases as pneumonia and la grippe, there is no treatment comparable to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

With Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to enrich the blood and increase the vitality of the system, and Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine to loosen the cough, allay the inflammation and heal and soothe the ulcerated linings of the throat and bronchial tubes, you have the strongest combined treatment known to the medical profession.

In the great majority of homes Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is kept constantly at hand as a cure for coughs and colds and preventive of such serious diseases as pneumonia and consumption.

Something New In----- SARDINES.

The best sardines in the world have been caught recently off the shores of Norway. These have immediately been pronounced by French and other European countries as Par Excellence. The best brand is put up by Stavanger Preserving Co., Norway, under the name of "Crossed Fish" brand. The fish are very small and very tender; they have been slightly smoked before being preserved, which not only adds to their delicacy of flavour, but prevents the indigestive "rising" after eating, so customary with ordinary sardines. The genuine sardine is far above the common herrings sold as sardines, as all connoisseurs well know. To be sure you are getting the best order "CROSSED FISH" BRAND 15c per tin. Each tin has a patent easy key opener. The fish can be taken out whole.

SPECIAL TRAIN LEFT WITHOUT PASSENGERS

A Number of Campbellford People Stayed here all Night

A number of those who accompanied the excursion from Campbellford last night, ran by the hockey club of that place, had rather an unpleasant experience.

The train was due to leave here for Campbellford on the return trip at 10.45, but on account of the game not being finished in time, it did not leave until 11.30, which was within a few minutes of the close of the game. About one-half of the two hundred persons who came up on the train failed to get to the station in time to catch it on its return trip, and had to remain in town all night, and left for home on the regular Belleville train this morning.

It is understood that an attempt was made to have the train stopped at Keene and sent back for those who were left, but the attempt proved abortive, and there was nothing for the delinquent ones to do but stay here until this morning.

It is a distinct compliment to the attractions of Peterborough that so many of the Campbellford citizens should find it so hard to leave Peterborough.

LAST NIGHT'S STORM SEVERE

Trouble With the Street Railway Service.

Cars Were Blocked in Snow at South Terminus—Are Clear Today.

The storm of yesterday afternoon and evening "played hob" with the street railway, and it was only by the greatest difficulty that the line was kept clear. The fine drifting snow, such as that which fell last night, is the most difficult to cope with, and at the southern terminus and near the exhibition grounds, it had drifted on to the tracks to such an extent that it was only with the greatest exertion that the service was continued, and, in fact, several times the traffic was stopped, the sweeper itself being stuck in the snow on one occasion. At 9.45 one car had made only one round trip during the evening.

The sweeper was run at intervals during the night and with the abatement of the storm the line was operated with the full complement of cars this morning, and no further trouble is anticipated from this storm. The sweeper is still being run over the line periodically to clear off any of the drifting snow, but the the full service is being given.

The storm affected the steam railways to a certain extent, and the trains were nearly all more or less late in arriving. The storms similar to that of last night are dreaded by the railways even more than those in which a greater quantity of snow falls, for the reason that it drifts and packs in between the rails and makes fast travelling an impossibility. The noon C. P. R. express from Toronto was about forty minutes late.

FUNERAL OF LATE MRS. COX

Took Place Yesterday Afternoon in Toronto.

Those Who Attended from Peterborough—Tribute of Prof. Wallace.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Geo. A. Cox took place yesterday afternoon from the family residence, 439 Sherbourn street, Toronto to Mount Pleasant Cemetery. The funeral was private, as the wish of the family to this effect had been intimated through the papers, and also no flowers were desired, consequently only a small number of the most intimate friends and associates of Senator Cox, with the relatives were present at the beautiful home at the time of the funeral.

At the house the services were taken part in by Rev. Dr. Potts, Educational Superintendent of the Methodist Church; Prof. Wallace, of Victoria University, and Rev. G. S. Fairclotb, assistant pastor of Sherbourn street Methodist Church, who acted in the absence of Rev. Dr. Cleaves, pastor.

Rev. Professor Wallace, who was Mrs. Cox's pastor in Peterborough and a lifelong friend, delivered a brief address. He said in part: "Mrs. Cox was one who realised the old ideal of right living and godliness; to do justly, love mercy and walk humbly with one's God. She expressed the New Testament ideal by going about doing good, and carried through her life the precious ornament of a meek and quiet spirit. Her ability was not of the kind that dazzels the public, but was of that finer judgment and ability which made her the trusted adviser of her husband in high business enterprises. She had no selfish or worldly ambitions, but was content with the place in which Providence had assigned her, whether humble or more exalted. She was thoroughly unspoiled by elevation to wealth and dignity and of unaffected graciousness and transparent sincerity. While associating with the highest in the land she was always true to the friends of early adoption. To one it will seem as if the light has gone out of life. But she has left to this community an example of good which must make us all better, and to her family memories and influence which comfort and inspire them."

The pall bearers were the deceased lady's three sons, Mr. E. W. Cox, Mr. F. G. Cox, Mrs. H. C. Cox, two sons-in-law, Mr. A. E. Ames, Toronto, and Mr. A. L. Davis, Peterborough, and Mr. G. W. Morrow, a nephew of the deceased.

At the cemetery the short service was conducted in the beautiful chapel by Rev. Dr. Potts and Prof. Wallace, and the body placed in the vault, and it will be interred later.

During her illness the late Mrs. Cox expressed her wish to be buried near the home of her children, in Toronto, and in deference to her wishes the funeral took place as above.

Those who were present from Peterborough in addition to the relatives of the family were: Messrs. D. W. Dumble, Jas. Stevenson, W. J. Thompson and H. Morphet.

HORSE INTO A MILLINERY STORE

Runaway Horse Broke Window in Miss Delaney's Store.

A Lady's Narrow Escape This Morning —Some Election day Incidents.

An exciting incident took place this morning on George street, and only by a miracle was serious injury and damage averted.

Mr. S. A. Oke's delivery horse was standing outside the store, facing north, when something frightened the animal and it turned around and started to run swiftly south. It had only gone a short distance, however, when it encountered another horse and cutter coming north, and into this the runaway steed crashed, upsetting both sleighs and crowding the horse coming north onto the sidewalk, and driving the shaft through Miss Delaney's millinery window. A lady who happened to be standing in the doorway of the store at the time was knocked down, and only escaped serious injury by being rescued by some persons who were standing near, and who saw the accident.

The damage done consisted of the broken plate glass window, and a smashed cutter and harness, but fortunately neither horse was injured to any extent.

The runaway horse was stopped and brought back to the place from which it started and made fast, as a precaution against a repitition of the incident.

Three other runaways were reported this morning, but no serious damage was done.

THE ELECTION IS VERY QUIET

Prospect That a Small Vote Will Be Polled.

The Severity of the Weather Will Affect the Vote Doubtless.

It is many years since an election in Peterborough has created as little excitement as that which is being held to-day. Both candidates and their friends are working quietly and industriously and are endeavouring to get as large a vote out as possible, but the prospects are that a comparatively small vote will be polled.

There are but few persons around the streets for election day, and the polling booths were not at all crowded only during the noon hour, when a considerable number of votes were polled. The Canadian General Electric Works' employees were given from 12 to 2 o'clock to vote.

There will be a large portion of the vote not polled, due to the fact that apparently many are indifferent as to the result.

Perhaps in no election in Peterborough in recent years has there been less betting. Practically the only betting being done to-day was on majorities.

No doubt the severity of the weather has had the effect of inducing many to stay at home who would otherwise have gone to the polls.

At the Examiner office to-night the returns of the election will be given as soon as they are received, and those who are interested are invited to make use of the office for hearing the returns.

CATHEDRAL WEDDING

Nuptials of Miss A. M. Beauregard and Mr. Samuel Houlihan

St. Peter's Cathedral was the scene of a quiet but pretty wedding at nine o'clock yesterday morning, when Miss Amelia Margaret Beauregard, daughter of late Louis Beauregard, was married to Mr. Samuel Houlihan. The officiating priest was Rev. Dr. O'Brien. The bride who was given away by her brother, Mr. Louis Beauregard, was attended by her sister, Miss Alphonsine Beauregard, while the groomsman was Mr. Jas. Deroeher. The bride was becomingly attired in a travelling suit of blue ladies' cloth trimmed with tan leather and steel buttons, and hat to match. She carried white roses. The bridesmaid was dressed in bronze green trimmed with steel buckles and carried pink roses.

At the Cathedral Miss Maggie Doherty played the wedding march and Miss Nettie Lewis sang very sweetly the "Ave Maria."

The bride was the recipient of a large number of handsome presents, among them a silver pudding dish presented by Miss Mercier, and the young ladies of Richard Hall & Son's store.

A wedding breakfast was served to a large number of guests at the residence of the bride's mother on George street. Mr. and Mrs. Houlihan left on the 5.30 train for western points and on their return will reside on Donegal street.

PRESIDENT CHARLES' IMPORTANT MISSION

Will Go to Montreal to Interview Railway Officials to Secure Rate Concessions for American Cereal Company.

Board of Trade Decides on a Definite Plan of Action—To Assist the Company to Resume Export Business.

Small Meeting of the Board but Important Matter was Discussed—The Railway Commission.

Little general interest was evidenced in the special meeting of the Board of Trade last night by the members of that organization and as a consequence only a bare quorum of members was present and the programme as laid out for the meeting was not carried through with.

The matter under consideration was one which affects every business man in town, whether they wish it or not, and any action which would be taken to relieve the circumstances attending the closing of the Cereal Works would be welcomed.

The first step decided upon was that of sending the President to interview the heads of the railway companies and endeavour to secure the concessions asked for by the company and afterwards to ask the Railway Commission to assist in the matter.

Last night's meeting of the Board of Trade, was a special one, and was called to consider the conditions which made the closing of the Cereal Works necessary, and to devise some means, if possible, by which these conditions could be removed, making a resumption of work possible.

The meeting was not a largely attended one, only the following members being present, viz.: Messrs. D. Hughes-Charles, president; Lt.-Col. Edwards, R. E. Wood, K. Eardley-Wilmot, H. LeBrun, T. A. S. Hay, William Might, P. Campbell, B. F. Ackerman, J. Coyle Brown, G. B. VanBlaricom, and the secretary, Mr. T. Q. Quartermaine. The small attendance was accounted for by the fact that it was the night preceding the election, and a most disagreeable evening, and it should not be taken as an indication of lack of interest in the subject upon which discussion was to take place.

The president referred to the regrettable fact that the American Cereal Company had found it necessary to cease manufacturing for export at their Peterborough mills, and said it was a fact which was of great importance to Peterborough, since it meant that fully $100,000 per year less would be paid by this company in wages, than would be paid if the works were operated continuously, and this fact was sufficient reason why the Board of Trade should interest itself in the matter, and seek to render what assistance was in its power to the company to bring influences to bear upon the proper authorities to secure such concessions as are necessary to ensure the steady operation of the plant here.

It was explained that the services of the Board had been tendered to Mr. Robert Stuart, the treasurer of the company, to this end, and they had been accepted gratefully by that gentleman.

Necessity for Closing

The main facts in connection with the partial closing of the mills here, and the supplying of the export demand from their American mills, are known to the majority of people, but some further light was thrown on it last night. Last year the crop of oats in Canada was large and the grain of good quality, while that of the United States was small, and the quality not first class, and in view of this fact the company had found it more profitable to operate their mills here for the handling of the export trade, as well as supplying the domestic demand, and as is well known the mills were very busy, working for the most part night and day. But this year the conditions are changed. The crop of oats in Canada was small, and the grain generally of a poor quality. On the other hand, in the United States the crop was large and the quality fully up to export requirements.

No Split Rate Here

These facts, in themselves, however, might not have necessitated the closing off of the export business if other things had been equal, but, according to the company, there were circumstances operating in favour of handling their large and constantly increasing export business from the Akron mills, instead of from the mills here. The leading factor in inducing the company to reach this decision was the fact that they could secure better freight rates from the American roads than could be secured from the Canadian railways, the chief difference, but one which is a very material one being the fact that in the United States the millers are given what is known as a split rate by the railways, that is, grain can be shipped from a point in the West to where it is manufactured into cereal or other product, and the latter transhipped to a port for export, at the same rate as would prevail were the stop not made for grinding and manufacturing, and the effect of this provision is that manufacturing is encouraged at points in the United States other than at export points, or in a foreign country. According to the information obtained by the Board of Trade, the Canadian railways have not granted this privilege to the millers in this country, and the result is that practically two rates have to be paid because it is pointed out that the rate on oats from a point in Western Ontario, say Chatham, where a large portion of the grain is purchased for the mills here, to Peterborough is practically the same as the rate to an export point, and under present conditions, after the grain has been milled another rate is charged on it to the seaboard, and the difference is said to be about 10 cents per hundred pounds, which is sufficient to turn the scale in favour of the United States, when, as is the case this year, the crop there is abundant, and as a result the prices lower than they are in Canada.

The Boards Action

The action that it was suggested the Board of Trade should take in the matter was that of first securing the moral support of the Boards of Trade in the country after stating to them the facts of the case and pointing out the importance of the matter, and, armed with this support approach the Railway Commission, and ask that body to secure for the Cereal Company and kindred concerns the same privileges as far as rates are concerned, as are enjoyed by American millers.

Some modification of this plan, however, was decided upon at the meeting of the Board last night, when it was agreed that the first step now should be that of interviewing the railways themselves and seeing if the concessions asked for by the Cereal Company, could not be secured, and if they could be, it would then not be necessary to approach the Railway Commission at all, in the matter, and if the companies refused, then the Board would at least know their position in the matter and would be able more intelligently to present their case to the Commission, and in accordance with this decision Mr. D. Hughes-Charles, the President of the Board, was instructed to go to Montreal to interview the heads of the freight departments of the two railways, and see if some adjustment of the rates could not be secured along the lines suggested by the Cereal Co., and if Mr. Charles found it impossible to go he had the privilege of naming an alternative. The feeling of the meeting was that this course would be the wisest one to pursue at the present time.

Support of Other Boards

The Secretary of the Board, acting on authority given by the Council had already written a letter to a number of the Boards of Trade in Canada, including among others, those at Toronto, Hamilton, Montreal, Kingston, London and Winnipeg, setting forth the facts of the case, and asking for their support in pressing their case before the proper authorities. Replies were received from a number of these letters, but in none of them was any definite action recorded, although there is no doubt that the support asked for will be given.

The matter will be let stand now until the President's return from Montreal, when another meeting will be called and his report presented.

The members of the Board who were to have spoken on the subject last night were,—D. W. Dumble, Col. Edwards and R. E. Wood, but the first named gentleman was out of town, and the action decided upon obviated the necessity of discussing the matter to any great length, as the action was unanimous.

Manufactures Association

During the short discussion which took place, Mr. B. F. Ackerman referred to the fact that the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, an organization comprising about 1,000 manufacturers of the country, might be able to deal effectively with this matter if they were applied to. He knew that in many cases of a similar nature concessions had been secured, largely through the co-operation of the members, which in such a large body of influential men had some weight. He understood that the Cereal Company was not a member of that Association, however.

This was the only business transacted at last night's meeting of the Board.

LATE THOMAS H. GOLDEY.

His Death Occured at Nicholls Hospital Yesterday Afternoon.

A very sad death occurred at the Nicholls Hospital yesterday afternoon when Thomas Henry Goldey died after an illness of about two weeks.

The late Mr. Goldey had been employed by the street railway company in repainting the old cars, and since the operation of the line had been a conductor, giving most satisfactory service. He was taken ill about Christmas time but was able to resume work again, but only for a brief period. He was seized with a stroke about two weeks ago from the effects of which he never recovered, and he passed away yesterday afternoon.

The late Mr. Goldey was born in Philadelphia, and was for 39 years a resident of Peterborough, where he was well and at all times favourably known for his many sterling qualities. For about 25 years he was connected with the Third Dragoons. He has many friends in Peterborough who will deeply regret the sad intelligence of his death.

The late Mr. Goldey's wife predeceased him by about seven years, and a large family of children is left to mourn the loss of a loving father. The deepest sympathy is expressed for the sorrowing family. There are three sons, Edward and Harley of Toronto; Howard, of town, and four daughters, Mrs. J. H. Wolstenholm, Mrs. J. A. Wolstenholm, Phyllis and Grace, all of town. Four sisters of the deceased are living in the United States.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, East Nicholls Park, to-morrow afternoon, at 2.30 o'clock o'clock and proceed to the Little Lake Cemetery.

Fruit is Nature's Laxative.

Fruit contains certain principles which act like a charm on the liver—and keep the whole system well and strong. But these principles in the fruit juices are too weak to have any marked effect on the internal organs. The value of lies in the secret process by which they are made. The fruit juices are so combined that they have an entirely different effect from fresh fruit. Their action is the action of fruit greatly intensified. They have a marked effect on the liver—toning it up—making it active. "Fruit-a-tives" are, without doubt, the only complete cure for all Stomach, Liver and Kidney Troubles.

Fruit-a-tives

or Fruit Liver Tablets

HE HAS NO LIVING PEER

LORD KELVIN THE GREATEST SCIENTIST OF THE DAY.

His Installation As Chancellor of the University of Glasgow a Memorable and a Picturesque Ceremony—Some of His Actual Achievements in the Dominion of Science—The Honors He Has Had Conferred Upon Him.

The University of Glasgow honored itself on the 29th Nov., 1904, by installing as her Chancellor the most illustrious of all her sons, past or present. To those who remember such names of Hutcheson, Adam Smith, William Hunter and Joseph Black, each an epoch-maker in his own department—this may seem a bold thing to say of a living man, though he be Lord Kelvin himself. But the claim can be sustained.

Lord Kelvin was the first man of science to be elevated as such to the peerage of Britain. He has been president of the Royal Society; he is now president of the Royal Society of Edinburgh; and for 58 years he filled the chair of natural philosophy in his alma mater. To enumerate the honors poured upon him, to quote the eulogies that have been pronounced on this octogenarian genius—who is advancing to-day the sciences he founded more than half a century ago—would be easy; but as evidence of the first order it would be suggestive rather than final. Rather let us entirely ignore anything but actual achievement.

And, first, let us refer to practical matters. Lord Kelvin's compass guides the sailor on every sea. In defying the idiosyncrasies of the earth's magnetism and other disturbing factors, it must have saved thousands of lives and property worth many millions during the last thirty years or so. His genius solved the problems of ocean cabling. When nothing else could record the faint electric impulses that crossed "the deep's untrampled floor," Lord Kelvin bethought him of a beam of light, most sensitive of indicators, and now his mirror galvanometer is a commonplace.

Lord Kelvin has measured the size of atoms by studying the colors of a bursting soap-bubble; he has estimated the age of the earth, its past and its future; and he is the greatest electrician of any age—this "modern Democritus" of his time.

A Brilliant Theorist.

In matters of theory Lord Kelvin knows no living peer. He helped to found "the greatest of all exact generalizations," that of the conservation of energy, proving by irrefragable mathematics, the dogma laid down by Thales some 25 centuries ago, "ex nihilo, nihil fit." He conceived the idea of the "dissipation of energy," which expresses the fact that, in our part of the cosmos, at any rate, energy always tends to dissipation, in the form of useless and irrevocable heat. These things he did when little more than a boy, almost rivaling the feat of Descartes, who made an epoch in mathematics at an age when most of us are in tutelage. Lord Kelvin it was who induced the "absolute scale of temperature" which takes its zero from no arbitrary point, but from that negation—273 degrees below zero, centigrade—at which heat no longer exists, and than which nothing can conceivably be colder. Lord Kelvin's, also, is the suggestion that life may be conveyed to this planet by a meteorite bearing its germs "from the moss-grown ruins of some other world.

This Colossus—a little lame old gentleman with a pensive face—is a Scoto-Irishman. Buckle's famous definition of the Scottish genius, which after a critical estimate includes three of the Glaswegians whom I have mentioned, would now be compelled to include a greater than any of them. Adam Smith himself was not the founder of political economy; but the science of thermo-dynamics, of equal importance to the engineer, and, by its tremendous implications, to the philosopher and metaphysician, was founded and conceived by the genius of William Thomson, who is now known by the name of the sadly polluted stream beside which many years of his productive manhood were passed.

Within the last few months, whilst reading papers on wave-propagation before the Royal Society of Edinburgh, and making important criticisms upon the prevalent theory as to the properties of radium, Lord Kelvin has made a bold pronouncement on a matter which has long been vital to him. This co-founder of the theory of the eternity of energy, upon which Herbert Spencer based his theory of universal evolution, has always been a believer in creation. I do not, of course, mean that the measurer of the earth's age, who assigns to its crust a past of some hundred million years, is a literal believer in the first chapter of Genesis. But Lord Kelvin insists upon the facts that "spontaneous generation" is denied in our day; and that for the origin of life, whereof we are the latest fruits, science "absolutely demands creative power."

A Picturesque Impression.

The ceremony was historic in a double sense. It saw the installation of a Chancellor—after a lapse of twenty years in such ceremonies—who is one of the university's most brilliant sons, and Lord Kelvin, with all his honors thick upon him, also had before him as recipients of honorary degrees a royal graduate, the Princess Louise (Duchess of Argyll) and two inventors of world-wide reputation, Signor Marconi and the Hon. C. A. Parsons.

The Bute Hall at the college was early filled in expectation of the ceremony, and the beautiful gothic building, in its dress of sober brown, varied by the delicate notes of color in the windows which commemorate distinguished sons, was indeed a fitting scene for a great academic gathering. Rigid selection seemed to have excluded the exuberant undergraduate, or else he was enjoying the holiday in other ways, for there was almost solemn silence observed throughout the ceremony, in striking contrast with the boisterous proceedings at ordinary graduation functions.

The playing of "God Save the King" on the organ was the signal for the opening of the proceedings. As the strains poured forth a stout, square-jawed, white-haired figure in scarlet robes over a naval uniform stepped on to the platform, leaning heavily on an ivory staff, and took his seat in the enclosure reserved for honorary graduates. This was Admiral Sir John Dalrymple Hay, a Crimean veteran who saw Sevastopol fall, the hero of a hundred fights. Later, a graceful figure in grey and silver, with trencher and gown of black, glided in almost imperceptibly, bowed and took her seat. She was the royal graduate, and the audience raised a rousing cheer. Following her, in the scarlet robes of a doctor of civil law, came the Duke of Argyll.

Simultaneously Principal Story and Lord Kelvin were leading the professorial procession up the hall from the other end. It flowed over the reserved spaces by the rostrum in waves of color, and when it finally settled had the look of a parterre of academic blooms. Meanwhile the audience were wondering where Signor Marconi could be. The slight boyish figure, undistinguished by a note of color, had stolen in unobserved and taken his seat by the Secretary for Scotland without anyone noticing his appearance.

The installation was a simple affair; but it had a picturesque side—when Lord Kelvin, relinquishing his own hard-won robes, felt the great robes of the Chancellor, of sweeping black and heavily embroidered in gold, fall upon his shoulders, his face was lit up for a moment with a smile of mingled pleasure and pride.

Then came the conferring of the degrees, and the derisive undergrad., had he been there, would have beheld the unwonted sight of a professor of humanity humbly assisting to arrange the folds of a graduate's gown. But it was a royal graduate Signor Marconi's name was the signal for the ovation of the day. Lord Kelvin regarded the unassuming youth with an unselfish pleasure delightful to witness as he rested the velvet cap upon his head, and a linguist in the back gallery cried "Viva Marconi!"

It will be many moons before the walls of the university look upon the like of such a ceremony again.

A Famous Whistle.

In the train of Anne of Denmark, when she went to Scotland with James VI., was a gigantic Dane of matchless drinking capacity. He possessed an ebony whistle, which at the beginning of a drunken bout he would lay on the table, and whoever was the last able to blow it was by general consent considered to be the "champion of the whistle." It happened, however, that during his stay in Scotland the Dane was defeated by Sir Robert Laurie of Maxwelton, who after three days and three nights of hard drinking left the Dane under the table and "blew on the whistle his requiem shrill." The whistle remained in the family for many years, and the last person who carried it off was Alexander Ferguson of Craig-Darroch, son of Annie Laurie, so well and musically known. Bobbie Burns immortalized the subject in a poem entitled "The Whistle."

TOBACCO BLINDNESS.

Another Danger to the Lovers of "My Lady Nicotine."

Tobacco blindness—the existence of which was made in a public report of a case at Manchester—is a malady that has been exercising the medical profession greatly of late. It is a consolation to know that it can nearly always be cured.

A great authority on the eye told a press representative that the one thing absolutely essential for the victim was total abstinence from smoking.

"When a smoker falls a victim to tobacco blindness he must not drop from, say, twenty pipes a day to two, or from thirty to one. He must give it up entirely.

"How does tobacco affect the eye? It is a question of paralysis. To put it popularly, I may say that in cases of excessive smoking of strong tobacco in pipes the tobacco produces a paralyzing effect upon the optic nerve.

"The popular suspicion will fall at once, of course, upon the cigarette. The cigarette is not the offender. There is not a single case on record of tobacco blindness being brought about by cigarette smoking only.

"Shag is the chief culprit. Bricklayers, laborers, navies and the class of men generally who smoke strong shag form the bulk of the victims of tobacco blindness. Cigars have not much to answer for, but of course, neither these nor cigarettes should be smoked to excess.

"It is extremely difficult to lay down a rule as to what is the safe quantity. I should say, however, that the man who smokes only half an ounce or so a day, or, say four ounces a week, is pretty safe."

Another eminent eye hospital authority said—"It is only of recent years that tobacco blindness has come to the front.

"The symptoms are impairment of sight and of the sense of color, and if neglected it may lead to practical blindness.

"The results of toxic amblyopia, as we call it, rarely go as far as total blindness, as there is usually some ability to perceive light and to see large objects vaguely.

"Tobacco blindness is extremely rare in persons under forty years of age. After that age the nervous system is less able to withstand the inroads of excessive tobacco and alcohol."

IN NEW ONTARIO.

Interesting Particulars About the Great Clay Belt.

I have recently returned from a trip through the southern portion of this great clay belt, of which comparatively little had been known until within the last few years, writes J. E. Kenny in The Gananoque Reporter. This great wheat belt, the extent of which is three hundred miles long, contains over 16,000,000 of acres of the finest agricultural land in the world, and all in our own Province of Ontario. Nearly four millions of acres on the southern slope of this belt have, during the last few years, been surveyed, and the greater portion of it located by actual settlers, who are now on their claims performing their settlement duties, which consist of clearing fifteen acres, building a house 16x20, and residence of six months in the year for a period of three years. They then get a clear deed from the Crown.

This land is practically free from stone, rocks, swamps and muskegs, and is densely covered with a valuable growth of green timber, consisting chiefly of pine, cedar, spruce and tamarack, which is a veritable Klondike to the settler, as he can sell to the lumbermen for cash, either standing or hauled on the banks of any of the small creeks or rivers with which the country is intersected. The land is easily cleared, as the settler simply slashes the timber down in huge windrows and the fire burns the whole thing off, leaving the ground practically ready for the seed. The roots of the trees, instead of penetrating deep into the soil, simply interlace on the immediate surface, and the stumps can be pulled out by hand the second year after clearing, and the land plowed.

The soil is a clay loam, averaging 100 feet deep, and produces marvelous crops of timothy, clover, wheat, oats, barley, peas and roots of every variety.

The Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway is completed and running daily trains from North Bay to the beautiful and flourishing young town of New Liskeard, at the head of the lake, and the Government is extending this railway north right through this great clay belt for another 150 miles, up over the height of land to Abittibi to connect with the new transcontinental railway.

Branching out from New Liskeard, east, north and west, the Government has, during the last few years, completed over 300 miles of good, colonization roads right through the forest, which will compare favorably with the best roads in the County of Leeds.

This district has passed its experimental stage and everything points to a great tide of immigration there in the coming spring from the older parts of the Province.

Without the shadow of a doubt, it will in the near future be one of the greatest dairying and mixed farming districts on the Continent of America.

Snakes' Eyes.

Snakes may almost be said to have glass eyes, inasmuch as their eyes never close. They are without lids, and each is covered with a transparent scale, much resembling glass. When the reptile casts its outer skin the eye scales come off with the rest of the transparent envelope out of which the snake slips.

Every hair has two oil-glands at its base.

The Breeding Ewes.

Not over fifty breeding ewes should be kept in one flock, and these should be of equal size and strength.

A Queer Food.

A most singular food is the larvae of a fly common in certain portions of California and known as ephydra. This insect is found in such vast quantities in Lake Mono, Cal., that it is washed upon the shores in vast windrows and can be collected by bushels. The water of Mono is very singular, seemingly very heavy and smooth, like oil, so much so that it resists ordinary wind and refuses to become ruffled. When the larvae begin to appear the Indians gather from far and near and scrape them up, place the wormlike creatures on cloths and racks in the sun and dry them, when they are beaten up and husked, looking then like rice. The Indians call the food koo-chah-bee, and many bushels are collected at his time. That larvae are nutritious is shown by the condition of the Indians, who soon grow fat on the rich diet. Many birds are attracted by the larvae and gorge themselves with the singular food.

The Laws of Nature.

The universe is under the reign of law, which is everywhere—in things mean and minute as well as in things noble and great. So far as we have come into an understanding of these laws we have found none defective.

No sound philosophy can concede that a law of nature can be out of balance or in any way less than true and perfect. When we advance a theory to the point where it would prove that a law of nature is out of balance and defective, we should know that the conclusion is wrong; that it is our reasoning, and not the law, that is out of balance and defective.—From "Balance: The Fundamental Verity," by Orlando J. Smith.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

Copyright, 1904, by Duncan M. Smith.

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

A good way to forget your own trouble is to remember the other fellow's.

If it were not for vanity the milliners would all go into bankruptcy.

It may be that the good die young, but in the case of the boy next door the young will never die good.

An accident insurance company that would issue a policy against falling in love would do a land office business.

A self cooking dinner would be a winner in a prize contest.

If being good were a money making proposition the devil would have to go out of business.

The average man does not shoot folly as it flies. He flies with it if he possibly can.

Bachelors are usually bachelors because the women in the case do not consider the game worth the candle.

The man who hasn't time to be agreeable couldn't be agreeable if eternity were at his disposal.

While you cannot judge a book by the binding, you may know whether it matches the color scheme of your library.

Although a ring has no end it often causes no end of trouble.

The girl who is too gentle and sympathetic to crush a worm thinks it is the rarest kind of sport to go about breaking hearts.

Neutralizing It.

In Happy Hollow lived a man
Without a single trouble,
Because he had evolved a plan
To have his troubles double.
So, when a trouble came his way,
He hunted for its brother,
And thus he would make out to play
The one against the other.

Suppose his bills were overdue,
So large he could not settle,
And that the man would not renew,
But wanted good gold metal—
Instead of kicking up a fuss
He'd treat it as a bubble,
Or have a jumping tooth, and thus
Forget his other trouble.

Sudden Rise in Price.

"What is that old spotted cow of yours worth?"

"Oh, about $30."

"The railroad train has just killed her."

"Is that so? Well, she is worth $60 if she is worth a cent."

The Schoolma'am.

Fresh as a draft from mountain pool,
Bright as a lowland daisy,
She comes to teach the district school
And set the natives crazy,
For widower, youth, wit and dunce
Will fall in love with her at once.

She comes with earnestness intense,
With purpose grand and high,
To pound perhaps a little sense
In heads of blaring shy,
While wrapped up in the teaching art
To break, say once a day, a heart.

Engrossed all day in spelling
And teaching boys to write,
There is no way of telling
If not out riding with a beau
Because she doesn't care to go.

Oh, charming country teacher!
You sit in fortune's lap
And have, most lovely creature,
What might be called a snap,
For every single man in view
Is bound that he shall marry you.

Where the Law Steps In.

"Poor fellow, he wants to marry his third cousin, but the law will not allow it."

"Strange! I never heard of a law like that."

"Well, the reason is that he already has a wife."

Knew Mankind.

"He is a man after my own heart!" exclaimed the gushing young lady.

"Beware, child," exclaimed the wise old uncle, "that he is not a man after your pocketbook!"

Then She'd Know.

"I love you more than tongue can tell,"
Sighed low the lovelorn youth.
The listening maiden answered: "Well,
As I would know the truth
(If in the paths of truth you walk),
Suppose you let your money talk!"

Needed Them in His Business.

"Can I put you down for a small donation for our society, organized for the purpose of discouraging war?"

"Not much! I am in the mapmaking business."

When She Can Get Them.

"Should a girl allow a man to kiss her before she is married to him?"

"Poor girl; she would better if she wants to have him kiss her at all."

STORIES OF JUDGE CLARK.

"Brighten Old Boy" and Police Magistrate Dumble of Peterboro Recollections.

"Brighton Old Boy" relates some stories of the late Judge Clark of Cobourg. He writes:

"The judge was extremely partial to boys, and always took a deep interest in whatever tended to their welfare. He would not only allow them to attend his court, but would see that, so long as they were quiet and attentive, they were provided with comfortable seats from which they could follow the proceedings.

"Whilst this partiality on the part of the judge was the cause of many of us lads being flogged with due regularity for playing truant to attend his court, it was also the cause of a practice becoming general among the schools of Northumberland County, that, in my many years' experience as teacher, I never found prevailing elsewhere, the practice among the pupils themselves of "Trial by Jury," not only for the purpose of trying offenders against the great unwritten laws of the playground, but also of offenders against the more clearly defined laws of the classroom.

"The youth who could the more fluently deliver the latest of the judge's charges to a jury or quote his most scathing remarks to an unwilling witness was sure to be elected a Q. C. to conduct the criminal docket at the next school assize."

A Lesson in Law.

"On one occasion," continues the narrator, "at the close of court held at Brighton, the late judge expressed a desire to be driven to Cobourg as quickly as possible. Several lads offered their services as coachman, but the judge thought they were rather small, until one remarked that we had been making muscle since the day he knocked out Tim Gourley, the horse-trader, when he thereupon entrusted the reins to me. As there were several toll-gates to be negotiated with, Hewitt, the liveryman, gave me a dollar for expenses, when we reached the first gate the judge forestalled me in paying toll, and did more than I would have done by paying double fare, remarking that I would be returning later. This he did at each gate, and when we arrived at Cobourg he paid for my dinner and the care of the horse. I then offered him the dollar that had been given me, when the following dialogue took place:

Judge—Why do you give me this dollar?

A.—Because it was given me for expenses, and you have paid them for me.

Judge—Did you ask me to pay those expenses for you?

A.—No, sir.

Judge—Why do you give me this dollar? Should anyone pay your debts or advance money on your behalf without your request, you are under no legal obligations to make good the amount. This dollar is yours; not mine nor Hewitt's. Goodbye.

The above legal opinion was given me gratis by the late judge forty years ago, and while I believed it to be "good law," yet unfortunately I have never been given an opportunity of testing it.

Judge vs. George Clark.

The late Judge Clark was a man of splendid physique, tall, slim, lithe, and active. In his younger days he was regarded as one whom it was safer to let alone than offer any violence. On one occasion I remember while he was holding court at Campbellford a local bully undertook to address him in very insulting and improper language in the court. This the judge endured with astonishing patience, but after court he met the bully at the door of his hotel and said to him: "In the court I was Judge Clark, but here I am George Clark. If you have anything to say, now is your time." The bully opened on him with abuse, but he did not get out a second sentence, for a straight one from the shoulder of the judge left him sprawling on the ground and as modest as possible.

He Was in a Hurry.

The judge was active and quick on his feet, and one day, wanting to reach his home, about a mile below the town, he employed one of the cabs to which was hitched very heavy fat horses and slow. The cabby promised to pick him up in a minute, and the judge started for home. Looking over his shoulder several times there was no sign of the conveyance. Finally when he was about half-way home the creaking cab came up, and the cabby asked him if he would drive home. "No, I am in a hurry," the judge answered promptly.

"No more painstaking or careful judge ever sat upon the bench. He got at the root of the matter, and gave judgments that were almost universally accepted as correct. He served the judgeship for 35 years, and withdrew on full pension. The C.P.R. then retained him as their counsel for many years. He was a prudent man in financial matters, and leaves a large estate."

CURED Lumbago FOR EDITOR LANE.

"I cannot speak too highly in praise of Smith's Buchu Lithia Pills, as they have done me a vast amount of good. For several weeks I suffered terribly from Lumbago, and expended a great deal of money in experimenting on a cure, but failed to find anything of merit until I commenced taking your pills. DO YOU FEEL THIS WAY.

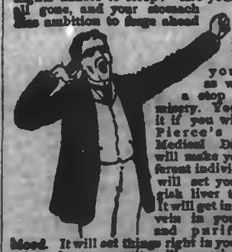
Do you feel all tired out? Do you sometimes think you just can't work away at your profession or trade any longer? Do you have a poor appetite, and lay awake at nights unable to sleep? Are your nerves all gone, and your stomach too? Has ambition to forge ahead in the world left you? If so, you might as well put a stop to your misery. You can do it if you will. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will make you a different individual. It will set your sluggish liver to work. It will get into every vein in your body and purify your blood. It will set things right in your stomach, and your appetite will come back. If there is any tendency in your family toward consumption, it will keep that dreadful destroyer away. Even after consumption has almost gained a foothold in the form of a lingering cough, bronchitis, or bleeding at the lungs, it will bring about speedy cure in 98 per cent. of all cases. It is a remedy prepared by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., whose photo is given free to all who wish to write him. His great success has come from his wide experience and varied practice.



O. S. Copenhaver, Esq., of Mount Union, Huntingdon Co., Pa. (Box 222), writes: "About twelve years ago I was taken very sick with a pain in the pit of the stomach which was so violent I could not walk straight. It would grow more severe until it caused vomiting and vomiting of a slimy yellow water. A physician told me I had a case of dyspepsia, and treated me for about six months with but little benefit. Another physician told me my liver was out of order and that I had indigestion. He gave me a treatment for that, and I got much better but only for a short time. I then tried another one, who said I had chronic dyspepsia, aggravation of the living of the stomach, torpid liver and kidney affection. He treated me for more than a year and I felt much better, but it did not last. I then took to taking several highly advertised patent medicines, but received no more than temporary relief. Finally I tried Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery,' and the 'Pleasant Pellets,' and in two months' time I was feeling better than I had for years before."

Don't be wheedled by a penny-grabbing dealer into taking inferior substitutes for Dr. Pierce's medicines, recommended to be "just as good."

MAY BE.

May be that you and I shall cease to be
On some soft night that lurks in summer's train,
And up the pathway, silver o'er the sea,
Go climbing to the day that shall not wane,
May be that you and I shall take our joys
In closed, cold hands to other, stranger ways,
The treasured ones among our mortal toys,
To make a playtime of our newer day.
May be that you and I our love shall find
When we have climbed among the starry throng,
Then catch the echoes of the days behind,
And know them preludes to our fuller song.
May be that you and I shall find the way,
When shadows fall and God shall threaten night,
To claim together the eternal Day,
And make our sweet abiding-place in Light.

LESS TEA DRINKING.

British Isles Show Decrease in the Annual Consumption.

Figures published by the Tea Brokers Association of London for the five months ending October 31 this diminution in the consumption of tea.

The deliveries of tea of all descriptions for home consumption from the London bonded warehouses totalled just under 118½ million pounds compared with 122½ million pounds during the same period in 1903.

"The heavy tax of 8d. per pound is checking the consumption," said Mr. Ernest Tye, secretary of the Indian Tea Association, to an Express representative recently.

"A few years ago the average annual consumption of tea was four pounds per head of the population. More recently it rose to 6 pounds per head. Now it is dropping back again, although every Chancellor of the Exchequer is supposed to disapprove of any taxation which is likely to check consumption.

"The planters in British dominions are discouraged in every possible way by the Government. What with the labor problem and the fixed price of silver in India and the heavy taxation at home, they find the utmost difficulty in carrying on their plantations at a profit.

"Yet these plantations are of great value to the Indian Empire. Broadly speaking there are 750,000 acres under tea, which provide work for, say, half a million people. Until the British planter arrived, the only produce which most of this land yielded was gall-nuts and wild honey."

The consumption of tea in the British Isles for the last three years was as follows:

1901..... .....255,873,000 pounds
1902..... .....254,440,000 "
1903..... .....255,366,000 "

The bulk of this tea is grown within the British Empire. For instance, last year over 229,000,000 pounds came from India and Ceylon. Yet twenty years ago China and Japan provided 325,000,000 pounds, against 74,000,000 pounds produced by India and Ceylon.

Her Revenge.

The dinner was in progress. It was a dinner given in honor of some very important new acquaintances. Just before the guests arrived the master of the house had been intensely rude and annoying to his wife, and she had not forgotten it. There was a moment's pause in the buzz of conversation round the beautiful table, gleaming with lights, blushing with roses. Then the wife leaned forward and in a voice soft, but loud enough to attract the attention of the whole company, said sweetly, "By the way, James, what was that story you told me to lead up to in the middle of the dinner?"

Got All the News Promptly.

A countryman gave the following reason for not subscribing to a local newspaper: "I get all the news there is. My wife belongs to the woman's club, one of my daughters works in the millinery shop and the other is in the delivery window at the postoffice, and I'm the village grocer."

The Only Master Carpenteress.

The only woman ever admitted to the Master Carpenters' association is Miss Louise Catherine Hinck of Montclair, N. J. Miss Hinck received her preliminary education at Hanover, Germany, and graduated from Vassar college with high standing, completing her collegiate course at the New York university law school, from which she has received several degrees. Although admitted to the bar as attorney and counselor at law, Miss Hinck prefers conducting a real estate business in Montclair, though her greater interest is in designing and building houses. Some twenty of the most attractive and convenient houses in her home town bear testimony of her great success in this unusual occupation for women and confirm the opinion of the owners that a woman can do such work better than a man. Miss Hinck has several buildings under construction and finds her broad education of immeasurable assistance to her.—Pilgrim.

A Dainty Hand.

A dainty, well groomed hand indicates refinement to all observers and often produces the impression of general beauty. Soft white hands are not so difficult to obtain as is supposed, though beauty of shape is the gift of nature. Gloves which are too small or fasten too tightly are likely to engender redness or a puffy condition. A comfortable size should be selected, so that the blood may circulate freely, and the hands exposed as little as possible to the sun or wind. Great care should be observed in the selection of toilet soaps, and the avoidance of common, ill made creams and lotions cannot be too strongly urged, as these produce a leathery appearance of skin as well as roughness.

FAST GAME HERE TO-MORROW NIGHT

Belleville and Peterborough Juniors Play Important Game

To-morrow night's game between Belleville and Peterborough juniors will be the first O.H.A. game in home for the local team. The Colts have lost three games away from home by very close scores and should easily win all their home games. The boys must do this to remain in the running and are certain to put up a clever game. The team is the strongest that has represented the club for some years and is deserving of hearty support. There should be a large turnout at to-morrow's game. Belleville has a appetite of husky juniors who will make things interesting for the Colts. "Chaucer" Elliott will be the referee.

LINDSAY BEATEN BY BETTER TEAM

How Lindsay Post Accounts for That Team's Defeat

Throws Some Bouquets at the Peterborough Team—A Fast and Clean Game.

The Lindsay Post in its last night's issue devotes two columns to a report of the game played there on Monday night, and admits that the better team won. It was on the whole the fairest report of a game that the Post has given in a long time and shows a much to be welcomed improvement. It says:—

"Before the largest crowd seen in a Lindsay rink for some time our Intermediate seven went down to defeat last night before Peterborough's hockey players. It was one of the fastest games of the season, and was played on good ice, although a trifle rough at the sides. Peterborough brought about 250 supporters along, who had lots of chances to use their vocal organs, as their pets played too fast a game for Lindsay all the way through.

"As was expected, it was a great game. It was not very rough, but was fast and full of excitement. The result was never in doubt, although at times the locals showed signs of piling up a score. If our boys want to land the district championship they will have to move faster. They did not show up as well as we have seen them do in former matches, playing a loose game. Luck seemed to be against them, but was in evidence more than once in the playing of the visitors. Frequently our boys displayed a burst of speed and made some splendid rushes, but when they did get by the visitors' defence, they had the worst kind of luck in shooting, missing heaps of chances to tally. It was probably the poorest game our boys ever put up. They did not work together as well as usual. They would get the puck right in front of their opponent's goal, but would lose it although they worked hard to score. It was no use—luck had turned against them.

"McGrath, in goal, had his hands full watching his nets, having more to look after than Wasson. He did splendid work and saved many a goal by stopping hot shots. Towards the end he became more reckless and one or two easy goals rolled in. Rielly, at point, played a "horse" of a game—that is, he worked hard, and if the rest of the team had followed his numerous grand rushes up the ice, Lindsay would have had a larger score. He defended well, but his long rushes were a feature. Capt. Irving did not play his usual game; his lifts were not so effective. Our four forwards played a hard fast game and managed some pretty passing, but were checked hard and close by their opponents. They did not get their fast "com" going. Pringle, on the wing, made some nice rushes and passed the puck, but there was nobody there to help it on. Duffus was not much in evidence, Taylor and Parkin were in the game, but failed to score on many good chances.

"Peterborough seemed to be in perfect condition and displayed lots of speed, good "com" work and also good individual work. Their defence is strong and they fed their forwards nicely.

The forward line are fast and clever players. Cavanah was perhaps the star of the bunch—he has got abundance of speed, is a pretty stick handler, and can shoot almost as good as Callaghan. He was responsible for numerous scores on individual plays. Graham and Parnell are speedy players and helped considerably. Morgan is a strong worker. Crowley is perhaps the only man on the Peterborough team who is not a favourite with the Lindsay sports—he is not liked; he is a strong addition to a team. Glover is a good lifter. Wasson showed up well, but has a tendency to leave his goal, and—as happened last night—tie down across it to prevent a score."

At any rate Peterborough has one consolation and that is the fact that in the estimation of the Post, the players are becoming more popular in Lindsay. It now only finds fault with Crowley, and it is pretty hard to understand why this should be. The fact that he is criticized by the Post, is, perhaps, as strong an endorsement as he could get. It is no doubt due to the fact that he is too clever a player for the Lindsay men that "he is not liked", but he has no occasion to worry over that fact.

After the last game there were only three men whom the Post could tolerate at all, but now they are all right, except one.

SECRETARY'S FRENCH WAS COMPLIMENTED

Mr. T.Q. Quartermaine was Subject of a Graceful Compliment

A graceful compliment was paid the Secretary of the Board of Trade last night. A communication was received from the French section of the Montreal Board of Trade, known as the "Chambre de Commerce," in reply to the letter sent by the local Board with reference to the closing of the Cereal Works and asking the assistance in securing from the railways such concessions as would enable the mill's to again operate.

The letter was written in French, and Mr. Quartermaine read it last night at the Board of Trade meeting, translating it into English as he read. The letter was later handed to Col. Edwards who remarked that the Secretary's knowledge of the French was good, and complimented him on his accurate and rapid translation of the letter.

STOMACH TROUBLE

The Agonies of Indigestion Can be Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

All over the land there are people whose lives had been made miserable through the pangs of indigestion, who have been restored to the enjoyment of health through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. One of these is Mr. Wm. Moore, of Welland, Ont. Mr. Moore is the manager of the electric light plant in that town, and stands high in the estimation of the citizens. He says:—"It is really a pleasure to speak in favour of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. For four years prior to 1903 I suffered great torture from indigestion and stomach trouble. I could not eat solid food without experiencing great agony, and for over two years I had to resort to a milk diet. I had grown emaciated and was almost unfit for active work. I was treated by doctors and took advertised medicines but without any lasting benefit. One day a friend urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I began their use, but I must confess that it was without much hope that they would cure me. After taking a couple of boxes I could see an improvement, and this gave me encouragement. I continued using the pills until I had taken eight boxes, when I was completely cured and able to eat any kind of food I desired. I shall always praise Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as they saved me from such misery as only a dyspeptic knows. I might add that my wife has also used the pills for troubles that afflict her sex, and has been fully restored to health."

Bad blood, poor blood, watery blood, is the cause of nearly every ailment that afflicts mankind. It is because every dose of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make new, rich, red blood that they have such wonderful power to cure such ailments as indigestion, anaemia, rheumatism, neuralgia, St. Vitus dance, heart troubles, kidney and liver troubles, and the special ailments of women, young and old. But you must get the genuine pills with the full name "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," on the wrapper around each box. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

T.A.S. WON FROM CAMPBELLFORD

In a Fast Game of Hockey by 7—3 Last Night

An Interesting Exhibition Before a Fair-sized Crowd—Game Late in Starting —Standing of the Teams.

The T.A.S. won a splendid victory in the Trent Valley League last night by defeating Campbellford in a fast and clean game of hockey by the score of 7-3. The game was a speedy and at all times an interesting exhibition and was thoroughly enjoyed by the fairly large numbers of spectators present. Fully one half of the crowd was from Campbellford, a special train bringing along about 200 enthusiasts. The train was late arriving and it was 9.30 o'clock before the visiting team appeared on the ice. A wait of twenty minutes then ensued because of the fact that the referee's train was also late and it was nearly ten o'clock before the game began.

The game was a good exhibition of hockey, the pace being fast throughout. The stick handling was good while the combination and shooting was above the average. The play was comparatively clean and the best of feeling seemed to prevail.

The T.A.S. played a hard and swift game and especially in the second half showed up strongly. The scoring department was superior to that of the visitors while the defence played a very steady game. Clancy's work especially in the second half was a feature, he stopping innumerable hard shots. Meagher put up a fine game at point, checking and lifting in great form, while his rushes were always dangerous. Quigley played effectively at cover point and his lifting was right on the goal. DeForge at rover had all kinds of speed and his shooting was a strong factor in the play. Both the McGrath boys worked hard and made several pretty runs. Rose was always on the puck and did most useful work. The team is fast and well balanced and will take a lot of beating.

The visitors team was a good bunch and were always dangerous. The forwards are speedy and handle their sticks and shoot in fine fashion. Shaw was good in goal and stopped almost everything Roppeble. Smith checked well, but was weak in lifting. Tait played very effectively at cover point. Shannon at rover was the pick of the forwards, his speedy rushes being very hard to stop. Garvey at centre is a comer, while Blute and Lowry on the wings worked well, though both had a tendency to lag off side.

The teams lined up as follows:—

T. A. S.
Clancy
Meagher
Quigley
DeForge
Rose, T. McGrath, F. McGrath,
Blute, Garvey, Lowry,
Shannon
Tait
Smith
Shaw
CAMPBELLFORD.

Referee, Sandy Burrows, of Belleville; goal umpires, E. Dillon and C. Green; timekepers, J. Reesor and W. Crowley; penalty timekeeper, H. Morgan.

The play opens fast and furious and for a short period the visitors rushed matters. In a few minutes, however, Rose stopped Tait's lift and passed to DeForge, who notched the first goal.

T. McGrath was ruled off and Garvey scored for Campbellford from a side pass. F. McGrath was ruled off, Shannon was making many dangerous rushes. DeForge scored again from a neat side shot. Lowry and Blute were both given a sojourn with the timekeepers.

In the second half the play at the opening was in favour of the Total Abstainers, who scored twice in quick succession, Fred. McGrath and DeForge doing the shooting. The former was ruled off again and Shaw rushed from centre and shot wide, Garvey, however, secured the rubber and made the score 4-2.

Lowry was ruled off. The visitors made many good rushes, but Clancy's work in goal was excellent. F. McGrath passed to DeForge, whose shot again sagged the net. Score 5-2.

From a scrimmage T. McGrath swatted the puck into the nets. Tait was sent to the fence and Blute was given a minute's rest for loafing offside. DeForge was ruled off. F. McGrath scored from a nice shot and just as time expired, Campbellford scored the last goal of the match, leaving the score 7-3.

The standing of the teams in this district is now:—

	Won.	Lost.
T. A. S.	2	0
Campbellford	1	1
Keene	0	2

Keene has to play in Campbellford, which game the latter should win, putting them on equal footing with the T. A. S.

OYSTER SUPPER AT ALL SAINTS CHURCH

Enjoyable Affair Under Auspices of Woman's Auxiliary Last Evening.

A very successful oyster supper was that held in All Saints' Sunday school room last evening, under the auspices of the Woman's Auxiliary. There was a good attendance and the evening's proceedings were of an enjoyable character. A short musical programme was presented, the rector, Rev. W. Major, being the chairman.

Misses Mulholland and English were heard in a well-played piano duet and the former also gave a piano solo very acceptably. Miss Marion Elliott's vocal solo, was encored. Miss Flowers gave an instrumental solo, which proved enjoyable, and the Colman brothers' songs were much appreciated.

After the programme oysters were served by the ladies, the tables being very prettily decorated.

Escaped an Operation

"I had itching piles for six years and the doctor told me there was no cure for me unless through an operation. Dr. Chase's Ointment completely cured me in one week. As that was six months ago and there has been no return of the old trouble I believe that the cure is a permanent one." — Mr. J. Mawer, Bodes, Man.

—The temperature was only down to zero last night, but the wind prevailing made it feel much colder.

HOW LINDSAY VIEWS THE AFFAIR

The Disgraceful Conduct of the Hoodlums Explained and Excused in the Post.

The Lindsay post explains and expresses its regret at the treatment which the Peterborough team and its supporters received at the station on Monday night by Lindsay in the following terms:—

The Post and the lovers of true sport regret the occurrence at the station last night as the visiting supporters were getting on board. A few of the Lindsay young boys and some older ones undertook to repay the ill-treatment received at Peterborough a week ago, and when the train pulled out, the Peterborough players and supporters retaliated by throwing handfuls of coal and two or three empty bottles at the Lindsayites. One of the latter struck Mr. W. Hickaby, a Lindsay boy on the forehead, inflicting a nasty cut. "Bill" is a young fellow who had nothing to do with the rowdyism displayed by a few others. The true hockey sports regret the usage, which was the work of four or five young men.

—To-morrow night the regular meeting of the Young Men's Guild of the George street church, will be held, and Mr. D. W. Dumble will give a talk on "Commercial Law." This is a subject which should be of great interest to young men, and no doubt there will be a good attendance.

VICTORY FOR THE CONSERVATIVES

Sixty-Nine Followers of Mr. J. P. Whitney in the New House—Only Twenty-nine Liberals—Five Members of Government Have Been Defeated—Movement Against Liberal Party was not at all a Sectional One—Many Good Men go Down Carrying the Liberal Standard.

Toronto, Jan. 26.—The most complete victory in the history of Provincial politics was won by Mr. J. P. Whitney and the Conservative party yesterday.

There will be many explanations of the overthrow of Ontario Liberalism. The election returns indicate that the dissatisfaction of the electors with the policy of the party was not sectional and was not due to the personal unpopularity of candidates. Many of the best men in the public life of the Province went down to defeat yesterday as Liberals.

When Extremes Meet.

The temperance vote was thrown directly against the party because the Liberal convention had not gone far enough in the direction of temperance reform. When the liquor dealer, the distiller and the prohibition worker go to the polls to vote the same ticket it is rather probable that the party they are voting against will be beaten.

The cry that it was time for a change had also a very great influence upon that portion of the electorate which does not take its politics seriously, and thinks the affairs of Ontario will be just as well administered by one party as by the other. The feeling is there and must be given its weight in estimating the causes of the overthrow of the Government.

Many Liberals Out of Touch.

Lastly, there must have been very many stalwart Liberals out of sympathy with the party, chiefly, no doubt, because of the purity-at-elections issue. When North York goes Conservative and South Oxford stays Conservative despite the wooing of an admirable Liberal candidate, there is one conclusion to all about the defection of many Liberal voters.

MR. J. P. WHITNEY,
Who will be Called Upon to Form a Cabinet

The weather conditions under which the election took place were most difficult. The temperature was below zero, and a bitter wind and drifting snow added to the discomforts of going out of doors. This deterred many people from voting, but the result is so decisive that the weather could not be seriously blamed by either party.

The Conservative victory was obtained with the minimum of loss. Of the Conservative members who went up for re-election only Mr. Denis Murphy of Ottawa, and Mr. W. D. MacLeod of Glengarry, were defeated. The most prominent member of the party defeated was Mr. James Clancy in West Kent, but Mr. Clancy must by this time be quite inured to defeat.

Party Leaders Go Down.

The Liberals defeated were among the leaders of the party. Five members of the Cabinet go down—Hon. F. R. Latchford, Attorney-General; Hon. W. A. Charlton, Commissioner of Public Works; Hon. John Dryden, Minister of Agriculture; Hon. J. M. Gibson and Hon. F. A. E. Evanturel, Minister without portfolio.

The defeat of Mr. Evanturel was at the hands of a Liberal regularly nominated, but who the Minister said did not represent the party.

The Premier Safe.

Late bulletins created some doubt as to the position of Mr. Ross and Mr. Harcourt. The Premier then had 50 majority in West Middlesex, with two places to hear from, which could not be reached last night. The bulletin added that they would go Conservative, but that Mr. Ross was considered safe. The result in Monck was also reported very close, but Mr. Harcourt was almost certain of election.

THE RESULT IN WEST PETERBOROUGH.

It is quite an unusual experience for the Examiner to be required to explain the defeat of a parliamentary candidate in a Provincial election in West Peterborough.

The defeat of Mr. McWilliams in yesterday's contest may be somewhat of a surprise to those who do not know the local conditions and to those who, knowing them, do not apply them with a full appreciation of their weight. It is somewhat difficult to conceive that a riding which had for eighteen years returned a supporter of the Liberal Government, and in more recent general elections, with very large majorities, should have compiled a minority in yesterday's contest. But upon consideration there are very evident reasons for this result, quite apart from lack of recognition of the strong claims of the Ross Government upon popular favour.

It is to be remembered that with a change of personnel of the candidates, then and now, there was an entire change of conditions. The normal political complexion of West Peterborough is Conservative. But exceptional circumstances, the work of a member who faithfully discharged his representative duties and served well the best interests of the riding—who showed himself the painstaking representative of both parties of his constituents—Liberals as well as Conservatives—developed a large following of independent Conservatives. Their support, added to the almost solid support of the Liberal electors of the riding, produced conditions and results whose continuance and repetition could not be expected when the personal factor entirely changed.

Again Mr. McWilliams could not have come out as a candidate in the Liberal interests at a more inopportune time, either for himself or the party in West Peterborough. He could not reasonably expect the united and hearty support of Liberals under the circumstances. It is to be remembered that the auspices under which it was considered he was pushed to the front, had for years not been active in helping the Liberal cause in West Peterborough, but had rather been practically hostile to what the great mass of Liberals believed were in the interests of the party. Then for Mr. McWilliams to transfer his activities from one riding where he had been long working, where he was well known and where he had not been associated with a spirit of antagonism to Liberal interests as he had been in the West, represented, to the minds of many prominent Liberals too sharp a shift to be regarded with favour. And, added to that, to work for a nomination and secure it by regular organized efforts, over the heads of those who would not adopt similar methods and who had been faithful to Liberalism in the West Riding, who had worked honourably for its interests, and who would have been willing, with disturbing elements eliminated to have accepted a candidature, was not to inspire a very cordial zeal in those persons or their wide circle of personal and political friends. The almost certainty of another "Independent" candidature like that of last November, did not present very desirable conditions.

From the very beginning of the present campaign, it was noticed—and few were surprised—that Liberal stalwarts who were leaders in zealous and active work in previous Liberal campaigns, were not willing to strengthen the influence that had been exercised at their expense, especially when that influence represented an element which had by many been considered hostile and even antagonistic to Liberal interests in West Peterborough for over a score of years.

The circumstances attending the nomination convention, were anything but promising for the success of the candidate. It was quite evident that sufficient time had by no means elapsed to efface from the memory of Liberals, the practically hostile attitude taken against the Laurier Government as represented by an "independent" candidature and by a hostile attitude taken against its candidate; and there need be no wonder if yesterday many remembered the feelings aroused by that unfortunate episode in the career of the candidate and some of his friends. Even in this age of lax ideals there are many old-fashioned enough to set a sufficiently high value upon party loyalty, honourable allegiance, and fidelity to the fortunes of their party, to view with practical disfavour a course of action which they had little difficulty in regarding as close kin to unpardonable disloyalty, and to permit their strong feelings on the subject to affect their attitude and action to the extent of creating lukewarmness, or even positive hostility. No doubt many such Liberals, with the greatest confidence in the Ross Government, preferred taking a course that involved the risk of its defeat, to condoning actions which they could not overlook, in selecting a representative, and contributing to the strengthening of an influence which had not been looked upon as entirely in sympathy with Liberal interests in West Peterborough.

Then, largely due to this influence, a course of action was adopted which naturally antagonized on personal and business grounds, an important lumber corporation, which could not be expected, under the circumstances, to be friendly, or even neutral, towards the candidate of a gentleman closely associated with transactions which need not be more specifically referred to.

In addition to the positive elements contributing to Mr. McWilliams' lack of success, there are some negative elements to be considered. It is to be remembered that the full strength of those opposed by interest to the advanced temperance platform of the Ross Government, was arrayed against Mr. McWilliams, and on the side of Mr. Bradburn, and though the association may seem incongruous, the influence of many professed temperance persons was exercised in the same direction, while there was no perceptible recognition of the consistent temperance record and principles of Mr. McWilliams. Those who in the last provincial election united their support in favour of Mr. Miller as a temperance candidate, had no difficulty in supporting Mr. Bradburn in this election.

The Examiner does not for one moment believe that the result of yesterday's voting in West Peterborough, argues any lack of confidence in the Ross Government on the part of the Liberal, and many other, electors of West Peterborough. The real issue was clouded by the tactics of the opponents of the Government, and complicated by the relations of the candidate to a large number of Liberal and independent electors. On the other hand it is pretty certain that any other Liberal candidate who could have commanded the undivided support of the Liberal and independent electors, would have been more successful.

Mr. McWilliams himself—if he had been the bona fide, instead of the nominal—the sought-for, instead of enforced, candidate of the Liberal party — if his unfortunate attitude at the time of the Dominion elections could have been forgotten — if entangling personal alliances, with all that they represent, had not existed —would have been a hard man to defeat. In this contest he has shown himself to be a good platform speaker, with a comprehensive and intelligent knowledge of provincial affairs, of commendable industry, and capacity for hard work, which, without the handicap of conditions which had been created, might easily have represented all the difference between success and defeat.

THE WHITE PLAGUE FOLLOWS COLDS

Neglect the Cold and Consumption Finds an Easy Starting Point—You can Cure the Cold by Using

DR. CHASE'S SYRUP OF LINSEED AND TURPENTINE.

If you check the cold you prevent consumption.

By the use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine you can cure the cold and avoid the risk to serious developments.

It lessens the cough, aids expectoration, clears the choked up air passages, heals the raw and inflamed membranes and thoroughly cures the cold.

There are many newer medicines than Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, but few that have been so long before the public, and none with such a grand record of success — of success in curing disease and consequent enormous sales.

Especially in the treatment of croup, bronchitis and severe chest colds, this great prescription of Dr. Chase has easily taken the lead. It is far more than an ordinary cough mixture and can be depended on even in the most serious cases.

Don't be satisfied with new and untried remedies, when you can obtain Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine from any dealer at 25 cents a bottle.

Mr. John Clark, coachman, Port Hope, Ont., writes:—"Being exposed to all sorts of weather I frequently catch cold. Last winter I was so bad with a cold that I could not speak above a whisper and had great pains in the chest. At last I feared it would develop into consumption, if I did not succeed in getting proper treatment.

"A friend advised me to try Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, and I began to improve before I had taken half a bottle. One bottle cured my cold which I believe would have proven very serious if I had not used this medicine."

To protect you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

THERE'S MONEY IN GOOD CHEESE

Important Address by Chief Instructor Publow on Improvement of Cheese Factories.

Out of 615 Factories Only 125 are in First Class Condition as to Equipment, etc.

Money Spent in Improving Cheese Factories is a Most Profitable Investment.

YEAST FERMENTATION.

Of the defects most complained of in our cheese, perhaps the one most difficult to remedy was that caused by the yeast fermentation which this year proved to be so universal in its course and caused serious loss in some sections. Of the remedies that were tried nothing proved so effective in overcoming this as that of having the patrons pay strict attention to the washing and scalding of their milk cans, especially in factories where whey was being returned in the cans, and in cooling the milk to at least 65 degrees F. immediately after milking. This enabled the makers to get their milk set sweeter and have the curds better firmed in the whey before the desired amount of acid had developed, and I would recommend that all patrons who are supplying milk to cheese factories provide some suitable means for cooling the milk as quickly as possible to at least 65 degrees Fah., as it was found that cheese made from milk seeded with this fermentation and containing more than a certain amount of acid (.19 per cent.) were more or less open in character and had a bitterness of flavour which was more pronounced as the amount of acid in the milk had been developed before the rennet was added. This allowing of the milk to become overripe before setting, also causes the texture to be rough and course and makes it impossible to have the cheese of that fine, silky character which our Canadian cheese should possess.

So extensive was the path of this troublesome fermentation that I appealed to Dr. Connell, of Kingston, to investigate and if possible locate the seeding of the milk, and the results of this investigation he will give in his report.

The finish of the cheese, I am pleased to say, improved wonderfully during the season but there is yet room for a great deal of improvement. Of the common defects in our cheese this is the one most easy to overcome, and one to which many of the makers should pay far more attention, as it is one of the qualities he has in his own hands and which he should take the pride and pains to improve.

One of the most pleasing features in the work this year was the manner in which the people received the instructors and complied with their requests, their services being much more appreciated than ever before. And while some of the men employed as instructors may not have accomplished as much as others, still I believe they all put forth an honest effort to bring about improvement in their respective districts and I am satisfied that as the people become better acquainted with the benefits to be derived from the services of these men the more anxious they will be to have them. As a proof of this I have received letters from a large number of the most progressive dairymen throughout the different districts, speaking of the appreciation of the work and hoping that the system of instruction would be continued with requests that the same men be returned to them another year.

As a further proof of the good work accomplished by the united efforts of the instructors and patrons, the quality of the cheese made during the last half of the season, and especially those of the months of September and October, was better and more uniform in make than that of any previous year.

Thus the good work goes on and with the better organization and the hearty co-operation of the people, we hope another year to make still further progress in making Canadian cheese famous for its excellency of quality and demonstrate to the world the ability of the dairymen of Canada to manufacture fancy dairy products.

SOURCE OF GOOD MILK.

Constant care is necessary during fall and winter months if good, clean wholesome milk is desired, and it is the only kind fit for use or for the manufacture of butter and cheese. If stable ventilation is bad it will be impossible to keep the cows and their surroundings in the healthful condition necessary for the production of a pure article of milk. Poorly constructed stable floors, insufficient bedding, negligence in care of stables and in properly cleansing the cows before milking, will surely result in a product unfit for any use, and from which it is impossible to make good flavoured butter or cheese.

It is a simple matter to make the stable tight, light and warm, and to arrange for the ingress of pure air without causing a draught over the animals, and the egress of the cold, foul air constantly accumulating where any number of animals are confined together. The warm air in a stable is at the top, near the ceiling, and fresh air from the outside must be admitted from the top where it will mingle with the air of the stable. As the air becomes foul it also becomes heavy and sinks to the floor, and must be taken from the stable by means of ventilating tubes that go down to within a foot or two of the floor.

Such a system of ventilation permits the warm air to remain in the room, and takes out the cold, foul air. Cold fresh air cannot be admitted to the stable by simply cutting a hole in the outside partition near the ceiling; that would allow the warm air in the stable too escape. A shaft on the outside running down near the ground and opening into the stable at the ceiling will admit fresh air. An opening between two studs near the ground on the outside and the ceiling on the inside will answer the purpose, provided that the stable is tightly sealed on the inside.

To take out the bad air a tight box 6 to 8 or more inches square running from the floor up through the roof of the building or into the ventilator in the roof will do. Such a thing may be between two studs at one side of the stable up to the roof, and between two rafters to the peak of the barn. A slide should be arranged at the bottom of the shaft so that the amount of air to be let out can be controlled.

If the stable is large more than one shaft may be necessary, one at each side of the room or at each end. To get good results from such a system of ventilation the stable must be tight overhead and at the sides.

With good air, tight floors, plenty of bedding, the use of land plaster in the gutters daily and careful brushing of cows at milking time, the quality of milk will be good, provided, of course that good wholesome feed and pure water are given cows and that they are healthy to begin with.

MONTH'S DEATHS IN THE PROVINCE

Report of Provincial Board of Health for December

Shows 2077 Deaths From all Causes, and 1011 From Contagious Diseases.

Dr. Hodgetts, Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health, issued yesterday morning the following statement concerning the health of the Province during the month of December, 1904:—

"The total number of deaths from all causes, as reported by the municipal clerks, are 2,077, representing a population of 1,920,443, which gives a death rate of 12.7 per cent. per 1,000, and for the corresponding period of 1903, 2,142 deaths were returned from a population of 2,051,868, which gave a death rate of 12.5 per cent.

"As may be seen by the comparative table, smallpox, scarlet fever and diphtheria are less prevalent throughout the Province, while measles, whooping cough, typhoid and consumption show an upward tendency:—

PREMIER ROSS SILENT.

Received the Returns With Philosophical Cheerfulness and Greeted All of His Callers Cordially.

Toronto, Jan. 26.—Premier Ross received the election returns in the Council chamber of the Parliament buildings, where he remained last night until all the ridings had been heard from.

To a reporter who saw him just before he left for home the Premier declined giving an interview. "I have nothing to say to the press to-night," he said.

The Premier Philosophical.

The Premier, who had not been at the buildings for several days, having rested at his own home since his closing meeting at Ottawa on Friday last, received the returns with philosophical cheerfulness. He had many callers, and he greeted them all as cordially as though the returns were spelling nothing but victory. Several members of his family were with him during the evening, and among the callers were Messrs. Robert Jaffray, Hugh Blain, N. W. Rowell, K.C., H. H. Dewart, K. C., J. K. Kerr, K.C., and Mayor Urquhart.

Regret For Mr. Dryden.

None of the other members of the Government were in town, all with the exception of Hon. Mr. Gibson, who is still too ill to leave his home at Hamilton, having remained in their own ridings. Among the crowds who gathered at the buildings to hear the news the keenest regret was expressed at the defeat of several members of the Cabinet, and particularly of Hon. Mr. Dryden, whose long and admittedly splendid service for the Province, it was felt, entitled him to re-election.

The Party Gains.

Liberal gains—Ottawa (two seats), Glengarry.

Conservative gains.—Brant North, Bruce South, Durham West, Fort William, Halton, Kent East, Lanark North, Lambton East, Middlesex East, Middlesex North, Nipissing East, Nipissing West, Norfolk South, Ontario South, Peterboro West, Parry Sound, Perth South, Perth North, Port Arthur, Renfrew South, Simcoe Centre, Stormont, Welland, Wellington East, York East, York North.

MR. WHITNEY ON THE RESULT.

Acknowledges Serious Meaning of Expression of the People's Will.

Morrisburg, Jan. 26.—"In the immediate presence of the great political upheaval in the province to-day, I can have but little to say.

"All must acknowledge the serious meaning of this emphatic expression of the people's will.

"I fully and gladly appreciate the fact that Liberals in large numbers joined in that expression."

J. P. Whitney, leader of the Conservative party in the Province of Ontario, made the above statement last night.

IN A PATERNAL TONE

Pacific Proclamation of Governor-General Trepoff,

FOR BREAKING RUSS STRIKES

General Effect of the Proclamation Said Considered Problematical in St. Petersburg—Bloodshed in Moscow to Be Averted If Possible—None Has Been Spilled There So Far.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 26.—Governor-General Trepoff and Minister of Finance Kokoveeff issued a proclamation last night which reveals the Government's plan for breaking the strike not only here but throughout Russia. The proclamation is conceived in a paternal tone, and points out that honest workmen, who want to better their condition, should have brought their demands to the Government instead of being misled by agitators into affiliating with a movement which is not confined to economic aspirations. It invites them to return to work, promising them, in the Emperor's name, a revision of general laws, so as to restrict the hours of labor, the institution of a plan for state insurance and otherwise to meet their demands as far as the law will permit, and guarantee them protection against interference by agitators. This document will be followed either by an Imperial manifesto along the same lines, in the hope of preventing the spread of the strike or by specific proclamations by the local authorities wherever strikes are in progress. By promising to yield the question of hours of labor, which are now legally 11 in Russia, the authorities believe they will meet the main grievances of the workmen.

This together with the guarantee of protection, the authorities hope will induce those strikers who are indifferent to political demands and which class they declare constitutes a great bulk of the men to resume work.

Effect Problematical.

It is certain many strikers were forced out against their wishes, but the general effect of the proclamation is still problematical. Though the strikes have been spreading to various towns the situation last night, while disquieting, is not acute anywhere. The great demonstration, with an accompaniment of bloodshed, which was anticipated at Moscow Tuesday, did not occur, and the strike in the ancient capital has not spread rapidly, only about 20,000 workmen being out, according to latest reports. Cossacks charged and dispersed a crowd of 3,000 workmen, and reports were circulated in St. Petersburg that many were killed, but advices from Moscow at midnight deny this, the best information being only a few blank volleys were fired. The Moscow military have received orders to avoid a repition of the Sunday tragedy here, and not use ball cartridges unless they are driven to do so by the direct necessity.

Finns Are Armed.

In several Baltic province towns there has been considerable disorder, especially in Riga, where the military are in complete possession. In the streets of Helsingfors, there was last evening a resumption of the Tuesday night's rioting, with bloodshed, some 30 persons being wounded. If a general movement breaks out among the Finns, it is likely to take the form of an armed uprising, as almost every Finn has a weapon in his house.

Sir Charles Hardinge, the British Ambassador, last night received from Captain Grove, the British Consul at Moscow, confirmation of the Associated Press despatch from Moscow, announcing the public posting of a London telegram, imputing the disorders to British and Japanese influences, and he will ask for explanations from Foreign Minister Lamsdorff. It is not expected, however, that the affair will lead to a serious diplomatic incident, but it is thought the Russian Government will disavow responsibility for the course of Acting Chief of Police Roudneff.

Panic in a Theatre.

Kishineff, Jan. 26.—A seditious demonstration during the performance led to a panic in a theatre here last night. Twenty arrests were made, including four Jewish soldiers.

Gorky Arrested.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 26.—The Associated Press has been privately advised that Maxim Gorky, the author and reform party leader, has been arrested at Riga, whither he had been summoned by the illness of his wife.

Strike Due to Threats.

Kovno, Russia, Jan. 26.—The governor has issued a proclamation announcing that the general strike at Kovno has been brought about by the threats of a small group of workmen.

Martin to Hang March 10.

Toronto, Jan. 26.—Alexander Martin's doom was pronounced yesterday by Chief Justice Falconbridge. Unless the Minister of Justice revokes the sentence, Martin will be hanged on March 10. Martin is only 22 years of age, and convicted of one of the most cruel crimes that man or woman can be guilty of—the doing away with his young child.

Something New in----- SARDINES.

The best sardines in the world have been caught recently off the shores of Norway. These have immediately been pronounced by French and other European countries as Far Excellence. The best brand is put up by Stavanger Preserving Co., Norway, under the name of "Crossed Fish" brand. The fish are very small and very tender; they have been slightly smoked before being preserved, which not only adds to their delicacy of flavour, but prevents the indigestive "rising" after eating, so customary with ordinary sardines. The genuine sardine is far above the common herrings sold as sardines, as all connoisseurs well know. To be sure you are getting the best order

SCOTCH CONCERT! BURNS' ANNIVERSARY

Excellent Program, including Miss Elspeth MacDonald, Scotch reader, in St. Andrews' Lecture Hall. Admission 15c.

THE RESULT IN THE PROVINCE

The results of the polling in the general elections of yesterday, are, it is useless to disguise, a surprise. That the Conservative party should have secured a majority of forty in a House of ninety-eight, is something that no one, not even the most sanguine Conservative, under the most frenzied optimism, would have forecast. The causes of this are not a matter of immediate concern; the result is of the most vital importance to the province. Of course, from a party point of view, the result is not so important as from the point of view of the good government of the province. That is a vital question. The return of the Conservative party to power will be regarded with more equanimity, if Mr. Whitney and his Cabinet, will generally adopt the policy, and emulate the administrative record of the Ross Government, which have been, and are, so palpably in the interests of the progress and development of the province, and take a broad, liberal and progressive view of their responsibility. Mr. Whitney and his Cabinet, have a strong example to live up to, and if they live up to it, and even better it, the Liberals of the province will be better reconciled to a popular verdict which has retired them into opposition after a brilliant and excellent governmental record of over thirty-two years.

As to the new representative of West Peterborough, the Examiner naturally has to regret that it is able to offer its congratulations upon the brilliant personal victory he achieved yesterday, with the understanding that that success is deplored from a political and provincial view-point. If, however, Mr. Bradburn will only strive to make himself as diligent, painstaking, broad-minded and faithful a representative as West Peterborough has had for the past eighteen years, the edge will be largely taken of the party disappointment his election represents. If he will stand by West Peterborough, and watch over its interests, as well as has been done in the past, he will amply justify the confidence which his party and, apparently, a considerable number of the Liberal party, have reposed in him.

THE EAST RIDING

East Peterborough has proved to be among the stalwart Liberal constituencies. It has remained true to its Liberal record and true to its late representative, Mr. Wm. Anderson, who is to be heartily congratulated upon so excellent a result, when so many other Liberal constituencies were stampeded and broke away from their party traditions. His return, even by a reduced majority, is a notable victory and his majority would have been larger but for weather conditions preventing the polling of a fuller vote. Mr. Anderson has shown himself to be a steady, safe representative and even in Opposition will still be able to render good service to the riding, which has so well stood by him.

CARD OF THANKS.

Mr. T. E. Bradburn to Electors of West Peterborough.

To the Electors of West Peterborough.

Gentlemen,—I desire to thank you for the handsome majority by which you have returned me as your representative in the Provincial House. Believe me, that as far as is in my power lies, I will endeavour to serve faithfully and honestly your interests as well as the interests of the country.

To my Conservative supporters, who devoted both time and labour to insure my success I offer heartiest thanks. No candidate could have had assistance more freely offered and generously afforded. A new factor in the campaign was the valuable work done by the Young Conservative Club, and I recognize that I am largely indebted to its kind offices for my success.

I know that I received the votes of many Liberals, and that my majority was increased thereby. I appreciate this mark of confidence and offer most hearty thanks in return.

West Peterborough has joined with the Province in an expression of want of confidence in the late government and in an endorsation of the principles put forward by our leader, Mr. Whitney, and which policy as your representative, I shall support.

Again thanking you for favours received, I am,

Yours faithfully,
T. E. BRADBURN.

WEST PETERBOROUGH GOES CONSERVATIVE

But the East Riding Remains Faithful and Re-elects Mr. Wm. Anderson by a Good Majority---Bradburn, Conservative, Will Have About 1200 Majority in the West Riding---Conservatives Show Their Jubilation at the Result---A Mass Meeting in the Opera House---The Liberals met in Their Committee Rooms and Learned Results of the Voting---A Great Turn Over---Big Majority for Bradburn in Town.

Yesterday for the first time in twenty-two years, West Peterborough elected a Conservative to represent this riding in the Legislative Assembly, at Toronto, and the event was made the occasion of great rejoicing on the part of the local Conservatives.

A Liberal majority of 1194 in 1902, has been transferred into a Conservative majority of over 1200, a greater change perhaps than has ever been recorded in the province in any one constituency.

In East Peterborough the Liberal candidate, Mr. Anderson, is returned, though by a reduced majority, and during this term in Parliament he will sit on the Opposition side of the House, since the Conservative members will be in the majority in the next Parliament.

Mr. Anderson's election was expected, though it was conceded that his majority would be reduced, but it is safe to say that no one, not even the candidate himself, looked for such a sweeping victory for the Conservatives in West Peterborough.

The weather yesterday was not conducive to getting out a large vote and as a consequence the total vote polled was smaller than in the previous contest, though in Peterborough there were over a thousand registered voters, which were in addition to those polled in the election of 1902.

In the country the roads were in a bad condition, and, as a result, the normal vote was not polled. It is probable, however, that this condition was about an equal disadvantage to each party, for, contrary to the general expectation, the country polled a strong vote for Bradburn, the Liberal township of Smith returning a Liberal majority of 169 in 1902 to a Conservative majority of 45, while in Ennismore, which in 1902 gave Hon. Mr. Stratton a majority of 174, this time gave Bradburn 23 of a majority.

As the news of the victory for the Conservatives became known, their spirits gradually rose, and shortly after nine o'clock a demonstration was organized, and the successful candidate was drawn through the streets by hundreds of his supporters followed by many hundreds carrying torches and discharging rockets at intervals.

The procession proceeded up George street to Brock, and east to Water, returning to the opera house, where a public meeting was held.

During this triumphal march the cheers of the crowd could be heard for blocks, and it was evident that the result of the election was pleasing to them.

The bugle band of the 57th Regt. headed the procession and made itself heard at intervals above the cheering of the followers.

MR. T. E. BRADBURN, M. P. P.,
The New Representative of West Peterborough in the the Legislature.

In the opera house the returns from the riding, as well as those from the other parts of the province were received and bulletined on canvas, and were received with cheers or groans as the case might be.

The opera house was by Mr. R. P. Dormer, with a lime light lantern, as well as a number of cartoons executed by Mr. R. Maher.

The band of the 57th Regiment was present and rendered a number of musical selections, patriotic airs predominating.

When it became known beyond doubt that Mr. Bradburn was elected, he was called on for a speech, and responded to the demand gracefully. He said that he was very grateful to his friends for the magnificent majority that had been given him, and which had wholly exceeded his most sanguine expectations. He paid a tribute to the ladies, who, he was sure, had exerted their influence in his behalf in this election. He also thanked the members of the young Conservative Club which under the leadership of Mr. Layfield, had rendered him such valuable service.

A pleasing feature of the evening was the visit of Mr. R. F. McWilliams to the Opera House, to personally congratulate Mr. Bradburn on his election. To these congratulations Mr. Bradburn responded fittingly and Mr. McWilliams, who was called upon for a speech, to which he responded. He said that he had been defeated honourably and fairly and he heartily congratulated his opponent on his splendid victory. The campaign had been conducted in a manner alike creditable to Mr. Bradburn, the Town, the Parties and himself. The Conservatives in the Province have won a great victory, but they have been a long time doing it. And he hoped Mr. Whitney would give this Province a record as honourable as that of the Ross Administration. If he were pleased with one thing more than another, it was the fact that Conservatives in refusing him their vote, had always replied, "It's not you, Roly, we are against, but your party."

Mr. McWilliams pledged his support to Mr. Bradburn in his efforts to advance the interests of Peterborough, and he would not allow any party spirit to hinder him. He hoped to try again and next time with better success. Mr. McWilliams was loudly applauded.

Mr. Jas. Kendry gave a short speech, congratulating Mr. Bradburn on his splendid election, and said that he was the kind of a man they wanted to have to represent them at Toronto.

The meeting dispersed at a late hour.

The Liberals heard the news in their committee rooms on Simcoe street, where a large crowd had gathered, and where the returns were announced as received.

The record of the town vote, showing as it did, a complete reversal of things, left little doubt as to the result in the riding, although, of course, it was not known to what extent the Liberals had suffered defeat, but, as later returns came in, and it was found that not only had the town gone Conservative by a large majority, but that the Liberal vote in the country districts was not as large as it had been hoped, and that even the old Liberal township of Smith had gone Conservative by 45 majority, it was felt that the riding was indeed, at least temporarily, lost to the Liberal cause.

However, with that spirit, which has always characterised the Liberal party, they accepted their defeat like men, and although they have not been successful in this contest, they will still continue to contend for the principles of Liberalism, and will prepare to reverse the order of things at the next contest.

When the result of the elections became known, a meeting was formed, and a number of addresses were given by some of the leaders of the party, including the candidate, who accepted his defeat gracefully. The rooms were crowded, and although the returns from the various constituencies in the province showed that the battle had gone against them, they still found reason to cheer, as the wires flashed the news of Liberal victories in different constituencies, and there were some pleasing surprises, none more so than the intelligence that in Ottawa City two Liberal gains were recorded.

The Liberals had been defeated and badly so, said Mr. McWilliams, but they had fought a clean, straight fight and had nothing to be ashamed of in the conduct of the campaign. The whole province had swung against the Government. They seemed to have been in one of the worst spots in the landslide. There seemed to have been throughout the province a big slide of bodies of people who had supported the Liberal Government for many years and have now changed across to put the new Government in power and they had suffered from this probably more than any other place. Now that the Conservatives were in power, he was satisfied there would be much corruption on the Liberal as well as on the Opposition side, and that probably was why a large number of Liberals in the province had supported the Opposition. By the time of the next election, he was satisfied there their party would be stronger and better than it had been in the past, and that they would be able to redeem the riding. Unfortunately, a considerable number of Liberals in the riding, some openly, and some secretly, had opposed him, but he hoped that he had conducted the campaign in a manner that would leave no hard feeling in any section of the party. Mr. McWilliams then thanked the men who had worked so hard and so faithfully for him during the campaign, and said that he appreciated their efforts just as much as if he had been successful. He mentioned

THE RIEL REBELLION.

The Part Played in That Event by His Late Excellency the Earl of Minto, Then Lord Melgund.

As chief of staff to Gen. Middleton, the Earl of Minto, then Lord Melgund, saw some rough campaigning in the Canadian rebellion of 1885, and on his recent ride across the prairies he must have recalled the time, twenty years earlier, when he rode there as a soldier, ever on the alert for the hidden foe. Col. Denison, in his interesting book, "Soldiering in Canada," gives the following account of his meeting with Lord Melgund:

"I was sound asleep in my tent about 4 o'clock the next morning, May 10, when I was awakened by hearing a voice saying to the sentry, 'Which is Col. Denison's tent?' The sentry pointed it out, but I was up before he had done it, and pulling on my jack-boots, which was all I had to do to be completely dressed, I unhooked the tent door and said to the officer, 'Come in.' As he bent his head to come in, I saw a staff officer's cap, and thought it must be Capt. Freer, the general's aide, but when he got in and stood up I saw it was Lord Melgund. * * * * I knew Lord Melgund was chief of staff, and that a battle had been fought the day before, and it startled me to see the chief of staff fifty-five miles to the rear by the morning. All this went through my mind in an instant, and I said, 'What news have you from the general?' He lowered his voice, so that the sentry should not hear him, and said, 'Well, it is not good.' 'What!' said I; 'surely he has not been defeated?' 'No,' he replied, 'but he has had a check. He tried to drive the enemy out, but could not succeed, and he has fallen back a little way, and formed a defence with his wagons, and there they are. Some thought he had better retreat, but it was considered that that would have a bad moral effect, and he has determined to stick it out.' He then said, 'I want to send off some telegrams at once.' The operator was away, trying to mend the line beyond us, but one of my sergeants was an excellent operator, so I awakened him and we went down to the station. On the side of an old hayrack, leaning against the back of the log shanty which constituted Humboldt, with his cipher book before him, Lord Melgund wrote out his despatches. I walked up and down the grass, and saw the sun rise on a lovely May morning, everything looking beautiful, and I could not help thinking of the anxiety this news would carry to many a home in Manitoba and Ontario.

Sorry to Leave the Front.

"Lord Melgund came back to our camp, where breakfast had been prepared. He then slept till about 1 p. m., when he had dinner, and I furnished him with a fresh horse to ride on towards Qu'Appelle. He never said a word about why he was sent down, but the impression was that it was to get up some regulars from Halifax. * * * * * Lord Melgund told me he was very much averse to leaving the front, but that Gen. Middleton thought it necessary to send him, as he had important work for him to do. Just at this serious crisis of the campaign, the telegraph lines were constantly interrupted and the events were thickening. Lieut.-Col. Otter had been defeated at Cut Knife on May 2nd, and for four days the general was entrenched about half a mile from the enemy's advanced posts. During this period Humboldt became the end of the telegraph line, and as I was in command there, and the telegraph operator away for some days trying to repair the line from Humboldt to Clarke's Crossing, the whole work had to be done by Sergt. Harry Wilson, of the Body Guard, who was an expert operator. We were, of course, anxious about the general's position, and I asked Lord Melgund whether we should not bring out all the troops we could hurry up and march out to reinforce our comrades. He advised me to wait, and I found that at any time I could not get in couriers to the camp and receive replies, then it would be best to telegraph to the Government that, as senior officer near, I was going to order forward all the troops that I could reach, and march to relieve the general. Fortunately I had not to take any such responsibility. * *

Surrounded by a Patrol.

"I did not see Lord Melgund again for 14 years, when as Earl of Minto and Governor-General he held his first reception in Toronto, when he reminded me of meeting the patrol of my men on their way to the Spatinaw. He met them a few miles away from our post in the early dawn. Lord Melgund was accompanied by an orderly, the Hon. Mr. Fiennes, one of French's Scouts, a son of Lord Saye and Sele. When the patrol met them, two men rode out rapidly to each flank and surrounded them, much to the amusement of Lord Melgund, who did not at first understand what they were doing. They showed him the way to our camp and then went on."

The Earl As An Imperialist.

Nearly every other historian of the memorable rebellion has had something to say about Lord Melgund, and one and all speak with the utmost respect of the soldierly qualities he there displayed. He was recommended for honors by Gen. Middleton, but unfortunately the general was at the time under a cloud, and his representations were not given much consideration. Since coming to Canada as Governor-General it has not been possible for His Excellency to prominently identify himself with any particular circle or interest, but it has been plain to all that he cherished the warmest recollection of his comrades on the prairie. The Earl of Minto's love for horses has been equally manifest, and no important race meeting in Canada has passed without his familiar figure being seen in the paddock.

BUILDING THE SHIP.

What It Means to the Workmen in London's East End.

Amid the cheering of thousands of spectators, H.M.S. Black Prince, the newest first-class armored cruiser, has been successfully launched by the Countess of Selborne at the yard of the Thames Ironworks and Shipbuilding Company at Canning Town.

Although the new cruiser is officially named the Black Prince, it will always be known in Canning Town as the "Christmas cruiser."

The fact that the order had been given to the Thames Ironworks Company was first exclusively announced on Christmas Eve, 1902.

Acute distress, owing to lack of employment, had prevailed in Canning Town for months previously; and the prospect of work aroused the greatest enthusiasm.

Flags fluttered everywhere, and large crowds of unemployed gathered outside the works, all eyes being turned upon the two towers of the company's works. When a Government order is received the White Ensign and the house flag of the firm are run up, and when, late in the morning, the flags were hauled to the top of the flagstaffs, the crowd cheered themselves hoarse.

At that time 2,000 fewer hands were being employed in the yard than were at work a year before. Within a few months large batches of laborers were drafted in to work on the huge vessel, and for over 18 months past the number of hands employed on her has never been lower than 500, and often well over 1,000.

The new vessel, which is estimated to cost about £1,200,000, is one of the most heavily armored cruisers ever constructed. Her length is 480 feet, and her indicated horse-power 23,500. She is expected to give a speed of over twenty-three knots.

Bought Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and Sent it to Friends.

Mr. F. W. J. Fletcher, a druggist in Victoria, Australia, says: "A customer of mine, was so pleased with Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which she had used for her children when suffering from colds and croup, that during a fortnight's time she obtained at my shop, nine bottles, which she sent to her friends in different parts of the state, telling how much good it had done and advising them to give it a trial." Maritime Loses $100,000 a Year.

Naturally enough, Halifax is especially concerned in the present situation, created by the British Admiralty closing the dockyards there. Where the rest of the country loses in peace of mind, Halifax loses in dollars. The direct money loss to the capital of Nova Scotia will be at least $100,000 a year, equal to a lump sum of $2,000,000. The pay roll of the officers and men at the yard is $1,000 a week. At least 100 men are thrown out of employment, and 200 more lose the occasional work which they have been accustomed to rely upon. Coming at this season of the year, the situation is unusually grave, and may prove no slight embarrassment to the municipality. In addition to the wages received by the men in the dockyard, the large sums spent by visiting men-o'-war will no longer find their way into the pockets and reticules of the people of Halifax. Not without protest will the city see this amount vanishing, and protests to the Canadian Government will follow as a matter of course.

Crushed Under Logs.

Guelph, Jan. 25.—William Millar, a young man about 20 years of age, met with an untimely death about 2 o'clock Monday afternoon. He with others was loading a car of logs at Moffat siding, on the C.P.R. Millar was on top of the car fixing the braces when one gave way and he rolled off with the logs, being covered by eight of them. He was rescued unconscious and died shortly afterwards. The deceased was a son of James Millar, a well-known resident of Nassagaweya, and a veteran who carries many medals of the Crimean War.

Killed By a Train.

Bracebridge, Jan. 25.—A man said to be from Uffington, and named McDougal, was killed last night by a train. He tried to board the train, and as far as can be judged caught it, but could not keep his hold. One leg and one arm were severed from his body.

Escaped an Operation

"I had itching piles for six years and the doctor told me there was no cure for me unless through an operation. Dr. Chase's Ointment completely cured me in one week. As that was six months ago and there has been no return of the old trouble I believe that the cure is a permanent one." — Mr. J. Mawer, Boden, Man.

The Trial At the Soo.

Sault Ste. Marie, Jan 25.—The trial of the persons reported for corrupt practices in connection with the Provincial bye-election of Oct. 27, 1903, notorious because of the use of the Minnie M., a small steamer belonging to the Lake Superior Company, to carry personators, or, at any rate, men who voted illegally, to Michipicoten, began here yesterday morning before Chancellor Boyd and Judge Teetzel. The decision not to call witnesses who might lose their vote by attendance on election day took some of the interest out of the proceedings.

Lachlan Kennedy, the Seaforth man who under the name of "Ferguson" was the chief figure in the Minnie M. cruise, was put in the box almost immediately after the court opened by Mr. DuVernet. He was represented by Mr. W. C. McKay of Toronto, his brother-in-law. Kennedy told once more of the trip of the boat. He had come up to the Soo on the suggestion of Mr. James Vance to help Mr. Smith, whom he had known for a long time. During the organization work arrangements were made between himself and Mr. Coyne, Manager of the Lake Superior Co., for the polling of the vote on the company's works at Michipicoten and elsewhere. He (Kennedy) firmly believed the men who were being taken up to be bona fide voters, and retained that belief until he saw them voting a second time. This was on the return from the Helen Mine.

Edison Under the Knife.

Orange, N.J., Jan. 25.—Thomas A. Edison, the inventor, was recovering rapidly yesterday from a surgical operation performed Monday night for a mastoid abscess behind his left ear. Owing to a similar trouble a few years ago, the operation was difficult, but the doctors declared it was entirely successful. Mr. Edison recovered quickly and was in good spirits yesterday. The doctors say they expect an uninterrupted recovery.

WALES DEEPLY STIRRED

A WONDERFUL REVIVAL STARTED BY A YOUNG MINER.

Evan Roberts Fills the Valleys With Singing Converts in Crusade Against Conventional Formalism—Religious Movement Which "Unstops All Ears and Causes the Tongues of the Dumb to Sing Everywhere."

The religious revival in Wales, the antics of dancing dervishes from Denver, Col., and the publication of the life of Father Ignatius, in which the power of working miracles is claimed for that curious latter day monk, are providing for London newspaper readers a triple bill of strongly sensational flavor.

It is some weeks since Evan Roberts, the young miner of Forth, South Wales, received what he described as a call to raise the fallen, convert the ungodly to Christianity and stamp out drunkenness.

"The ears of the deaf shall be unstopped," he said, "and the tongues of the dumb shall sing," and truly there have been many hitherto heedless of religious duties whose ears have drunk in Roberts' fervid oratory, and thousands whose tongues, hitherto dumb, are spreading "the fire," as it is claimed, by singing and preaching.

Even public houses have been invaded and converts captured at the bars. Football clubs have been converted en masse. The whole Rhondda Valley, holding a quarter of a million inhabitants, notorious for a loose manner of living, has been brought to see "the light." The villages in the valley are being linked up nightly with the lights of chapels. Not since the memorable Loughor revival, which began in 1859 and lasted eighteen months, has there been seen such a tremendous religious upheaval and not even then during the whole time it lasted did it spread with such rapidity as on this occasion.

Spreads Over All Wales.

The revival, though less than a month old, has spread from South to North Wales, where Roberts and his converts are carrying "the brand" which unstops all ears and commands the tongues of the dumb to sing everywhere.

The greatest excitement is manifested.

No matter where one goes, over all Wales the incidents are the same. The results of the methods are the same. The streets are deserted, shops and public houses do no business, everybody is at chapel, and yet the correspondents who are following this extraordinary revolution agree that it is as yet only beginning.

"How is this?" as one of the Welsh papers in an editorial says.

One of the curious features of the revival is the very subordinate part played by the regular ministers of the chapels. They are rather following in the wake of the young revivalists, Roberts, who has converted them to his methods. In fact, the revival seems to be, first, a sort of passionate protest against the conventional formalism of regular service and of the ordinary sermon, and, second, the great majority of those directly influenced are men and women in the heyday of youth, who, flushed as with triumph, bring into play an enthusiasm which is overwhelming and an earnestness that brooks no resistance.

One Welsh correspondent, who has been taking a flying visit over most of the ground where the revolution is at work, says: "Everywhere the churches of all denominations are vivified and stirred to activity. No longer content with the hoary system of exclusive meetings for exclusive worship, they have become centres of aggressive operations, in which workers are plentiful and the desire for work all consuming."

Roberts' Personal Magnetism.

Another important factor in the spreading of the revival is that the Welsh newspapers have caught the infection, and there is scarcely a meeting at which there are not present crowds attracted from distant towns which the voice of Roberts has not yet reached by the voluminous, thrilling reports of the daily press, and these visitors returning home carrying with them some of the sparks, which presently kindle great fires.

Roberts is described as a man with passionate convincing utterance.

While he speaks every eye is riveted on him, every ear seems strained, as if afraid a single word should be lost, and at the end are seen tear stained features, while Roberts stands throughout wreathed in smiles. Young men and maidens, old men and veteran ministers, and preachers gray in service, pastors scholarly and ambitious deacons and elders solemn and austere, spectacled students, who have deserted their lessons, all follow in the young revivalist's train.

Then, when the meeting comes to the end, the new converts are escorted round the streets, amid the joyous singing of hymns.

"We've been too long singing in a minor key," says Roberts. "A church that can't sing when sinners return home must have something out of place. Therefore, sing and rejoice." And they are singing and rejoicing all the time.

One correspondent, who has been in Wales studying the revival and who has had acquaintance with revival work in all parts of the world, gives it as his conviction that the movement will not confine itself to Wales; that it will spread all over England, and even take London or a portion of it by storm.

Chaos Through Dancing Dervishes.

But of all the curious shapes that recent religious revivals have taken there is none more remarkable than the dancing dervishes of the churches of the Burning Bush and the Pillar of Fire, who have started giving visual evidence of their religion to Londoners at Camberwell Baths.

The first night they appeared, after being well advertised, the huge building was crowded by spectators, more in expectation of entertainment than in seeking the truth.

The platform had hardly been occupied by Mrs. Obadiah White and her chosen seven than the audience showed signs of impatience.

Why didn't they dance?

They hadn't come to hear any preaching, some of them cried.

The preacher stopped. The chosen seven rose, stood in line and sang what was evidently meant for a hymn. Though very vague, it seemed to have an inspiring effect, for it drove them to dancing. They hopped higher and higher, till they dropped back again to singing.

After a sort of cakewalk in embryo the performance closed, without call for either collection or repentance, but the dancing had a certain effect, for chaos reigned.

On the second night thousands struggled for admittance to the baths, fighting and tearing at one another for the best places of vantage in the big hall. The pentecostal lieutenants made wild efforts to quell the tumult, but it was not till Mrs. White appeared, held up her hands and signed for fair play that the uproar ceased and the meeting proceeded in peace.

Unlike the Welsh revival, however, it is not yet recorded that there has been a single convert brought to the fold of the dervishes or any other fold.

Miracles of Father Ignatius.

The life of Father Ignatius is described as the most remarkable biography that has seen the light of day for many a year.

It would seem as if the Father had been selected as an habitual worker of miracles, though in many cases the miracles do not seem to have had any merciful use.

During his first curacy at Plymouth Father Ignatius visited punishment upon innocent offenders which appeared rather excessive, taking the nature of the offence into consideration. A woman had turned the curate from her door with strong language. "Then," to quote the Baroness de Bertouch, who is responsible for the biography, "the avenger which loosed the plagues upon gorgeous Egypt and wrote the flaming message on Belshazzar's wall swooped down and smote the firstborn in that shabby little house."

In later years to quote another instance of the miracle working powers of Father Ignatius, a woman who had cursed his bald head suffered a miraculous dispensation which caused the hair of her boy to fall off at her feet. "I have been emphatically assured," says the Baroness, "that in the twinkling of an eye the lad had become absolutely hairless."

Father Ignatius, too, was a stern disciplinarian. The books tells how he made ladies of his church lie down in cinders, men carry guttering candles and boys receive stripes at the altar for attending a local dance in a hall that once belonged to a monastic order in mediæval England.

Curing a Smoker.

A wise mother caught her little boy smoking a cigarette the other day. Instead of inverting him over her knee and nearly spanking the life out of him she said:

"Johnny, dear, I see you are getting quite a big little man. Come away in, and I will give you one of papa's great big cigars to smoke."

So she marched Johnny away into papa's study and sat him down to smoke one of papa's cigars.

She sat down opposite and watched, while his lips grew white and his eyes yellow and his hands dropped helplessly, and as a little later she ministered to him she had the satisfaction of receiving his vehement promise that he would never, never smoke again until he was older.—London Tit-Bits.

Dies Aged 103 Years.

Brockville, Jan. 25.—From Berryton, a small place in Leeds County, comes news of the death of Mrs. John Dunn, a remarkable old lady of 103 years and 11 months. She was born in Enniskillen, Ireland, Feb. 8, 1801. Eighteen years later she came to the Township of Bastard, where she spent the greater part of her life. Her husband is dead and a family of one son and five daughters survive.

Hanover, Prussia, Jan. 25.—The Misburg Cement Works here, have closed for want of coal.

Essen, Prussia, Jan. 25.—The electric railroads still have coal enough for a few days.

Do Not Suppress a Cough.

When you have a cough do not try to suppress it, but remove the cause. The cough is only a symptom of some disease, and the disease is what you should cure, then the cough will stop of itself. The most common cause of coughing is a cold. Anodynes will promptly suppress the cough, and preparations containing chloroform, opium, etc., are used for that purpose, but they do not cure the cold. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy on the other hand does not suppress the cough, but relieves it by removing from the throat and lungs the mucus which obstructed the breathing and allaying the irritation and tickling in the throat. It also opens the secretions and effectually and permanently cures the cold as well as the cough. For sale by all druggists.

WELCOME WORDS TO WOMEN.
Women who suffer with disorders peculiar to their sex should write to Dr. Pierce and receive free the advice of a physician of over forty years' experience—a skilled and successful specialist in the diseases of women. Every letter has the most careful consideration and is regarded as sacredly confidential. Many sensitively modest women write fully to Dr. Pierce what they would shrink from telling to their local physician. The local physician is apt to say that he cannot do anything without "an examination." Dr. Pierce knows that these distasteful examinations are generally needless, and that no woman, except in rare cases, should submit to them.
Dr. Pierce's treatment cures in the privacy of your home. His "Favorite Prescription" has cured hundreds of thousands of bad cases. It is the only medicine of its kind that is the product of a regularly graduated physician. Some unscrupulous medicine dealers may offer you a substitute. Don't take it. Don't trifle with your health. Write to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.,—take his advice and be well.
Mrs. E. D. Montort, of Lebanon, Warren Co., O., writes: "I have received the Medical Advisor all right, and am very glad I did write you. I could not resist the 50 cents with it."
On receipt of 21 one-cent stamps, to pay cost of mailing only, we will send to any address a paper-bound copy of Dr. Pierce's great 1008-page book, "The Common Sense Medical Advisor." Or, for 50 stamps the same in cloth binding. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.
The Original LITTLE LIVER PILLS, first put up by old Dr. R. V. Pierce over 38 years ago. Much imitated, but never equalled. Little pill. Little dose, but give great results in a curative way in all derangements of Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

FAMINE'S SHADOW.

Hangs Over the People of Connemara—Potato Crop Is Less Than the Seed Put In.

The London Daily Express has sent a commissioner to investigate the stories of impending famine in the west of Ireland, and under date of December 2 he wires from Clifden, in Galway:

The west of Ireland is face to face with the most serious situation which has threatened that poverty-stricken country since the dark days that preceded the devastating famine of 1847.

It was only during the last few days that many of the peasants finished digging the ridges where they planted their potatoes last spring, in the hope of growing their winter's food. The melancholy fact now remains that the crop has turned out almost a complete failure. The yield varies from something over a half to a tenth of the normal quantity, and the larger proportion of it is unfit for human consumption.

To understand the sad and stern reality of what this failure means, it must be remembered, first, that the potato is the staple food of the Connemara peasant, and, second, that he always lives on the border line of starvation. In the coming winter months he will, unless some speedy preventive measures are taken, experience all the cruel pangs of hunger.

There are many districts where the distress is already beginning to be felt. Clifden is one, and the conditions in Clifden are reproduced from the East Galway Bay right round to the shores of Killala Bay. All along this rugged coast, and for many miles inland, potatoes are scarce.

A hundred thousand people, as fine a peasantry as ever breathed, frank, hardworking and thrifty, are in a condition which is almost desperate. Already men are beginning to speak of famine.

A Bitter Saying.

I was present last night at a little meeting of clergymen, who had gathered informally to discuss what each might do in his own parish. Each had a pitiful tale to tell of families trying to make a meal of the wretched potatoes, and of the distress that awaited the people. When means of relief were discussed, one said, in tones of bitter irony: "Let them die, and then subscribe to send a dead body to the Chief Secretary. It is only then that Dublin Castle will open its eyes to their real condition."

Famine is a dreadful word to use, and it is going too far to say that such condition will prevail here this winter. Real and bitter want, however, there will be, and even now in many islands on the coasts of Mayo and Galway the condition of affairs is pitiable.

Inishturk, Innisbofin and Innishark are. When the sea is calm, within fairly easy reach of Clifden. In none of them has the amount of potatoes taken from the land equalled the quantity of seed planted in the spring. In many cases the owners have not troubled to dig them, so worthless are they.

The failure is not attributed to any disease, but mainly to the destructive nature of two storms which swept the coast late in May and early in June, and to a generally rainy season.

Whatever small profit these islanders make is from the harvest of the sea, for small indeed would be the harvest from their storm-swept, sterile land. Very little has been made this year from the mackerel fishery, which two months ago closed until the spring of next year, and only a few can ever hope to make a reasonable sum, for boats big enough to weather the Atlantic storms are scarce.

Listless and Dispirited.

These islanders are already affected by the distress. Canon McAlpine of Clifden, who visited them during the last fine weather, told me he found the people listless and dispirited, and almost afraid to talk of the situation. Many of them were compelled to take the pigs, that literally in this countryside pay the exorbitant rent of the homestead, into the last fair at Clifden in order to buy food for their families.

I drove to-day about twenty miles along the sea-gnawed coast of the rugged promontory that ends in Slyne Head. The state of affairs in this district would open the eyes of those used to the air of prosperity of the English countryside. The thousand or so families who have their homes—or the wretched hovel which is dear to them as home—here cannot even in the best times live, for it is not life to exist on insufficient food such as in England would not be offered to a dog. Neither is it life to wrestle day after day, ill-clad and ill-fed, with a sterile soil, and to share the night with the pigs and fowls in a damp and draughty hovel.

Trust in Providence.

The people I met along the road had all the same tell to tell, yet they were not uncheerful, and they had a sort of blind faith in the power of Providence that something might yet turn up to alleviate their distress. "Ah," said one man, whose hovel I visited, looking at his quiverful of children, "sure the Lord niver sent a mouth yet that He didn't send a bit iv food to put in it."

Another man with whom I talked had been lucky, and made nearly £7 from the mackerel fishing, but all had gone to pay the rent and a long-standing bill with a local shopkeeper. He had about three-quarters of a hundredweight of potatoes, but when these were gone he had nothing left but to sell the cow. "Mebbe," said he, "the boord" (the Congested Districts Board) "would build a pier or make a road that I'd earn a thrifle at. If it doesn't, God help us all. It's only the Lord can help us, and put a bit in our children's mouths."

The children, however, already feel the pinch of poverty. I saw thirty-five to-day in the school in the wild hamlet of Dunloughan. Twenty-nine were in their bare feet, in spite of the raw December day, and their rough, home-made, ill-fitting clothes were patched to the last stretch.

BLOOD POISON
On account of its terrible effects, blood disease is called the king of all diseases. It may be either hereditary or contracted; so while it may not be a crime to have the disease, it is a crime to permit it to remain in the system. It may manifest itself in the form of Scrofula, Eczema, rheumatic pains, stiff or swollen joints, disease of the skin, eruptions or blotches, ulcers in the mouth or on the tongue, sore throat, falling out of hair, disordered stomach, and a general deterioration of the system. If you have any of these symptoms don't neglect yourself. You have no time to lose. Beware of "cold fogy" treatment—beware of mineral poisons—beware of Quacks and Fakirs. OUR NEW METHOD TREATMENT is guaranteed to cure this disease, never to return. Bank Bonds will prompt you. Our treatment is not injurious in any way, but reaches the very root of the disease and eliminates all poison from the system. The symptoms of disease gradually disappear. The blood becomes pure and enriched, the whole system is cleansed and purified, and the patient feels prepared anew for the future and the pleasures of life. WEST PETERBOROUGH GOES CONSERVATIVE particularly the workers in the suburban division of North Monaghan and in the north end of the town. They had fought a hard, fair fight in the face of conditions strong against them, as the result throughout the province showed. But it would not be long before the tide would turn again, and they would have a chance to work together and win a victory greater than the present defeat. He again thanked those who had worked so faithfully for him both on the platform and in the committees.

HON. MR. STRATTON.

The crowd called for a speech from Hon. J. R. Stratton, and he was received with great applause as he rose to respond to the demand. He said he regretted exceedingly the defeat of Hon. Mr. Ross. He had long known him, and more intimately since he had been a member of his Cabinet, and there was no man in the province who appreciated more fully the necessities of the province, nor who was more deeply interested in, or more anxious, or more resourceful, in devising large measures, to promote its welfare, and it is a significant fact; that during the whole campaign, the Opposition has never been able to successfully criticise, or find fault with, the legislation or administration of the Government.

The Liberals had been governing the province for a number of years and it was perhaps not surprising that there should be a change. No government can expect to remain in power always, but he was satisfied that it would be found that during the thirty-two years in which the Liberals had been the governing power in the province, the affairs had been well managed.

The defeat of Mr. McWilliams was a fact which the Liberals could not help regretting. During this campaign their candidate had shown that he possessed a good knowledge of public affairs and had the ability to express himself well on the public questions of the day, and he had no doubt that in the future he would get an opportunity of taking a prominent public position.

There was no doubt that the situation in Peterborough was complicated by the action of recent mass meetings for the election of a candidate, and the result would probably be that in future the Liberals here would select their candidates by a delegated convention, when there could be no doubt as to the selection of a candidate representing the party.

It was perhaps just as well when the Government was defeated that the Government of the day should have a good working majority, and it would then be fully responsible to the people for the measures adopted, and there would then be no excuse for not giving good legislation and administration. They could then be held strictly to account for their action.

As far as the East was concerned, his friend, Mr. Anderson, had gained a splendid majority, which, under the conditions was a magnificent one. He had made a good representative, and had attended to his duties faithfully, and would, he felt sure, look after the interests of his constituents even though he should be on the Opposition side of the House.

He hoped the Liberals would accept their defeat in a sportsmanlike manner. It was twenty years since this riding had elected a Conservative to represent them in the Legislature and he thought that surely once in a quarter of a century they could accept defeat in a proper spirit.

Mr. Bradburn had won a good victory, and he had no doubt that Mr. McWilliams would accept his defeat in a philosophic manner. He was a young man with years of usefulness ahead of him, and he had no doubt that with the exercise of carefulness he would yet reach the heighth of his ambition.

The present occasion was one in which the conditions were unfavourable to the candidate, but the result must be accepted, and he was glad to see that he did accept it in a graceful way, as indicated by his remarks.

MR. W. YELLAND.

The next speaker was Mr. W. Yelland, who was received with applause, and said that he did not intend to make a long speech, because he had been defeated himself, and knew how it felt. They were fighting for a principle, and not for individuals. He had voted for the Ross Government in his belief of the principles for which he stood.

There was no doubt that Mr. Bradburn was elected, and he hoped he would support all the measures which were in the best interests of his constituents. He also hoped that the Conservative Government would continue to give the province as good legislation and administration as their predecessors in office. He said he hoped to live to see the Liberals again in power in this province.

Mr. R. A. Hall, M.P., who was present, also delivered a brief address, pertinent to the occasion.

A number of short speeches were given and the meeting closed with the usual cheers.

BEST YEAR IN HISTORY

Charlotte Street Church Receives Encouraging Reports

Congregational Meeting well Attended Last Evening—The Programme.

The congregational meeting of the Charlotte street Methodist church, was held in the school room last evening. There was a large attendance of the members of the church, who listened with deep interest to the reports of the various societies, each of which presented most favourable reports. The finances of the church were shown to be on a sound footing, while the spiritual advancement had been along encouraging lines, and the church membership had shown a marked increase.

During the past year the church had been entirely freed from debt, and, besides, had been renovated and improved on an extensive scale. These repairs were all paid for and there is a substantial balance in the bank at the present time. According to the reports presented, the church has never enjoyed such prosperity as is being experienced at the present time and the outlook is a most encouraging one in every way. As regards finances, $700 more has been raised during the present pastorate of two years, than has been raised in any previous pastorate. The missionary givings have increased by 75 per cent and other departments have also advanced materially.

Last evening's meeting was presided over by the pastor, Rev. W. J. Jolliffe. The proceedings opened with devotional exercises, after which the various reports were presented. Mrs. Wharton reported on behalf of the Ladies' Aid Society, which showed that the receipts were $426.16, and that the balance on hand was $5.49. Mrs. Morris is president of the society, which is in a prosperous condition.

Miss Emmerson reported on behalf of the Epworth League. The receipts had been $79.20, and the balance on hand was $6.57. The meetings throughout the year had been well attended, and were of much interest. Mrs. Armstrong is the president of the society. The secretary reported as follows:

"The League is very helpful to our young people, and they are putting vim into the work.

"Our missionary department has more than doubled the number of those who are taking part in the systematic giving in the last few months, which is very encouraging.

"The social feeling is still being maintained, and our prayer meetings are a great help, and tend to make the members more zealous to work for Christ and the church.

"We have 45 active and 29 associate members, making a total of 74 on the roll, and our average attendance is 46."

Mr. Bookout, president of the Young Men's Guild, gave a satisfactory report of that society. There was a balance on hand of $6.71, and the guild has furnished a room for its members and had expended a considerable sum in this undertaking. A number of most interesting meetings had been held with good attendances.

Mrs. A. L. Adam presented a most favourable report of the Women's Missionary Society. She outlined the work which had been accomplished during the year. The Society had raised $53, which was sent to the Branch Treasurer. The following was the report as presented:

"It is said that charity begins at home, but it does not stay at home. The river has its source, but should it stay at the source it means for it stagnation. The river finds an outlet running down the mountain slope and through the valley, watering and fertilizing the region through which it flows, until it finally is lost in the fathomless ocean. So with the love of God, or Christian charity, it begins at home, but is sure to find an outlet.

"We have met here to-night to present and to hear the reports for the year from the different departments of our church work, and it is a cause for rejoicing that each department is in a flourishing condition. It is no less a cause for rejoicing that although every other department of our own church work is well sustained, yet we have not become self-absorbed; our love to God and humanity finds an outlet. A missionary church is a live church, and we are a missionary church, as the reports of the missionary societies, both the general society, and the W.M.S. will show that we aim at being a missionary church. The amount reported to-night as being the total raised by our auxiliary, $54.34, is really last year's report, and as it is considerably less than the income of the preceding year, will require explanation. Last year the powers that be decreed that a change be made in the termination of our missionary year, changing from September to May. We were obliged to close our books and send in our reports four months before the end of the year, hence the falling off. It is yet four months till the end of the present year in May, therefore we cannot present a full report However we can make a very encouraging statement. We have now a membership of thirty-nine, which represents $39.06. In October we held our "New England Tea." The proceeds together with the Sunday collection were $27.20. Also in October a box of clothing was sent to the All People's Mission, Winnipeg, valued at $23.00. We hope to do some more active work during the next four months, and give a good account of ourselves at the next meeting. Last May a Mission Band was organized, which to-night will speak for itself.

Our meeting to-night might be compared to vessels meeting in the ocean—sailing under the same colours, and bound for the same port—which meet in the ocean, salute, exchange signals, sail together for a little time and then part. We are all sailing under the blood-stained banner of King Jesus, we have met, we saluted and soon we must part. We trust we shall all feel cheered and receive a fresh impetus to nobler service.

The flag which is unfurled over our Mission ship has this motto inscribed on it, "The World for Christ."

We would that every woman in our congregation had a share in the great, grand undertaking and a share in the joy of knowing that precious, Christless souls will be piloted into the safe Harbour.

Mrs. (Rev.) Kilgour is president of the Auxiliary.

Miss Letitia Elliott presented the report of the Olive Mission Band, which had been organized but a short time ago and which was proving to be a strong factor in missionary work. There were 66 members and from May 10 to Dec. 31, 1904, $49.21 had been raised with a balance of $45.30. Mrs. Robt. Neill was president.

The Trustee Board account showed that $2,513.45 had been raised with a balance on hand of $763.00. The Quarterly Board showed $1891.75 receipts during the year. The total receipts as shown in the Auditors' report presented by Mr. Cunningham were:—

Trustee Board	$2,513 54
Quarterly Board	1,734 49
Missionary givings	486 90
Women's Auxiliary	53 00
Olive Mission Band	589 01
Ladies' Aid	333 29
Sunday School	421 85
Young Men's Guild	138 11
Epworth League	62 57
Total	$5,782 97

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Mr. Percy Hamilton presented the report of the Sunday school, showing that the past year had been the most prosperous in the history of the school, both in attendance and collections, the total membership now being 500, an increase of 35. The largest attendance on any one Sunday was 355, and the smallest 190. The average attendance was 345. The total number of officers on the roll is 41, and of these the largest attendance was 38, and the smallest 22, and the average 33. During the year 385 visitors have been in the school.

The total collections for the year were $329.30, or an average of $6.55, against $6.53 last year.

The classes having the highest collections were Mr. J. Gordon's, Miss Collins' and Miss Thomas'.

The missionary collections were not up to the standard, $47.63 being contributed against $67.57, last year.

The financial statement showed that the receipts for the year were $728.04, and the expenditure $626.90. This left a balance on hand of $101.14

Three members of the school were removed by death, Rev. J. Kilgour, Miss Nellie Gray and Miss Olive Kidd.

The report was adopted.

At the close the pastor made a few remarks congratulating the church upon its excellent showing during the year. While it was gratifying to see the finances in such a flourishing state, it was also a source of thankfulness that the spiritual side of the church work was showing a healthy condition and the membership had been steadily growing. This was where the real strength of the church lay and this was the object of the church.

During the evening Mrs. Read rendered a vocal solo and was encored. Mr. G. W. Jones' violin solos were much enjoyed as was a monologue by Mr. F. Breiningger.

After the meeting refreshments were served and an enjoyable social time was spent.

The prospects for the present year could hardly be brighter and a banner year in the church's history is looked for.

WOULD STOP THE EXPORT OF ASHES

Americans Purchase Large Quantities From Canada

Pay 5 Cents and Sell For 50 Cents Per Bushel

The next issue of the Horticulturist the government agricultural paper, will show that during the past year 43,262 bushels of hardwood ashes have been purchased by Americans at 5 cents a bushel and shipped to American farmers and produce growers, who pay about 50 cents per bushel. Examination and investigation to obtain the fertilizing qualities of ashes shows that wood ashes contain at least six times as much nutrition as the ordinary fertilizers. The Government will be asked to take some action towards preventing the exportation of wood ashes and other powerful fertilizers.

HUNTER'S WIFE DIED IN WOODS

A Sad Case Reported From Sault Ste. Marie

The Woman Died Before a Physician Could be Procured.

A very sad case in which an Indian named John Johnston is the principal character is reported from the office of Indian Agent W. L. Nichols at the Soo. Johnston has been hunting since the beginning of the winter season between the end of the steel on the Algoma Central and the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway. He lived with his wife and three small children in a small hut. A few days ago his wife took ill and died before her husband could procure professional aid. Johnston came into town with the three small children and left them at the Shingwauk home, while he has returned to bury his wife. The children cannot be admitted to the Shingwauk home and Indian Agent Nichols is now endeavouring to make some provision for them.

POLICE COURT NOTES.

Two Vagrants Heavily Sentenced This Morning

Frank Meehan was again before the Magistrate this morning on a vag. charge. He was sent to Central Prison for six months.

Henry Nolan was convicted of a charge of stealing a jack knife and of being a vagrant. He got six months in Central Prison on both charges, to run concurrently.

John Gilligan was charged with vagrancy. He got out of jail on election day. He was ordered to leave town.

—In London last year every murderer was run down and convicted except in two cases, where self destruction defeated the law. In Chicago only about one fourth of the murderers were convicted, and in 99 cases there were no arrests. If it were as certain in the United States as in England that the murderer will die on the gallows, there would be an end of the carnival of homicide in a very short time.

MID-WINTER AT HAVELOCK

Latest Happenings From the Railway Town

Epworth Leaguers Visit Norwood—Coming Events.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Havelock, Jan. 26.—Mrs. Boyce and family have returned from an extended visit to her home in Belleville, and their many friends will be sorry to learn that it is their intention to remove to Peterborough in a few days. Our loss will be Peterborough's gain.

Miss Dies, of Toronto, is in town visiting Mrs. Boyce.

A large number of young gentlemen went over to Hastings of Friday last to attend a ball in the Town Hall. They report a first class time and a wish for a quick repetition.

Mr. Ezra Fluke, of Hastings, has bought out Mr. Teeney's livery business. We hear the price was $1,000. We wish him luck in his new venture.

Miss Garrison is considerably improved in health.

A large party of young people went to Campbellford on Sunday last. Notwithstanding the inclement weather a good time was enjoyed to the full.

The Epworth League took a trip to Norwood on Saturday and there met their comrades of the Hastings and Campbellford Leagues. Quite an enjoyable time was spent and many were the exchanges of good wishes from friends who seldom have the pleasure of meeting. We hope more of these excursions will be arranged from time to time to enable the members of the various Leagues in the district to become better acquainted and it would tend to strengthen the movement among the young people.

Mr. Williams and wife, Mr. King, and Mr. Jeanneret, of the Sovereign Bank, went to Manmora on Saturday to visit their friends of the Sovereign Bank there.

Mr. Williams is about to be transferred from the Sovereign Bank here to a larger branch of the same bank. All his friends will be sorry to part with one who has been so popular during his residence here, and their good wishes will go with him for his success in his new position.

Mr. J. W. Bryan is a little better, we are pleased to learn.

Miss Marion Mills, of Belleville, is in town visiting at Mr. C. Barlow's.

Mr. James Henry, of Bobcaygeon, is visiting his old friends in town.

William and John Barlow are on a visit to their home here for the occasion of their sister's wedding.

The event of the season is to be held in the Town Hall on the latter part of February or the first of March. It will be an Irish drama, wholly presented by local talent. The scenery is of the very best, which the Council willingly paid for when put before them. The Council is also going to deepen the stage about four feet so as to accommodate the scenery and give more room. This will be the main benefit to the building as all always coming here always complain about the depth of it. Everyone is now looking forward to this, and the tickets and plan of hall will be out in the near future. As a whole, everyone who knows about the council advancing the money on the scenery, thanks them, and are delighted with the way they have started in to do business.

We are sorry to learn that Mr. Norman Stibbs, storeman for the C. P. R. at this point, has been laid up for the past week, and is still very low. It is not known as yet just what is the cause of his illness.

Our rabbit hunters are complaining that the weather is too severe for that kind of sport, as when the dogs start they go a few yards and then start for home.

A number of the boys of this place went to Peterborough on Tuesday evening to see the hockey game between the T.A.S. of that place and Campbellford.

Mr. T. R. Dimpen spent Tuesday in Peterborough on business connected with the drama that is in preparation.

A heavy snow and wind storm east on Wednesday blocked the trains to a considerable extent, which was the cause of the trains being delayed on that date.

A peculiar incident took place in McNicholls hotel last week, when Wm. McCormack, a man who has been working around the town for some time, went into a trance about noon on Sunday and did not recover until some twenty-four hours after. The case was the most extraordinary that has happened here for some time. He was removed to the town hall.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Haig and daughter spent a few days last weeks visiting friends in Peterborough.

Mr. Edwin Dorricott, Mr. Harry Totman, and Mr. Wm. White, have returned from Rat Portage, which place they have been running out of all summer.

Mr. P. Haig is to be congratulated on being the father of a bright baby daughter.

FOSTER AS A RAILROAD MAN

Rapid Rise of the New Locol District Passenger Agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The recent appointment of Charles B. Foster as successor to the late A. H. Notman, in the post of C. P. R. district passenger agent at Toronto, is another of the frequent reminders of the truth of the saying that he who would succeed in a railway career must begin young, "the younger the better." Mr. Foster can look back upon a record of 18 years spent continuously in the service of the C.P.R., and he is still well under 35 years of age. When it is said that the territory over which he is called upon to exert supervision extends over all Ontario west of and including Kingston and Sharbot Lake, to Detroit, and also south of North Bay and Detroit City, it can be easily seen that a wide range of responsibility is opened up, and that the post of overseer of all the passenger arrangements for so extensive and largely travelled a district is not a gilded sinecure. The post calls for a man of quick, decisive judgment, almost unlimited executive capacity, and, lastly, tact. To be at the helm in the passenger department of any road demands these qualities and upon their possession is greater or lesser degree depends the measure of success.

Mr. Foster's record speaks for itself. He has always been in the atmosphere of passenger tickets, and his railway lore is of the concentrated kind. His 18 years' experience has been all along one line, but, then, that one line is a life study in itself. Getting into a rut is a thing impossible or nearly so, when it comes to the matter of handling passenger transportation. The problems that arise and the contingencies that confront are divers and peculiar, and to straighten out the kinks all the gifts above spoken of are required.

Born in Kingston, Kingston County, New Brunswick, Sept. 30, 1871, Mr. Foster entered the C. P. R. passenger department at St. John, N.B., when under 20 years of age, as stenographer. Within 18 months he became senior clerk in that department, and in September, 1893, was promoted to the position of travelling passenger agent. During the six years which followed, Mr. Foster remained, thus accumulating in that time a thorough knowledge of transportation technique, and becoming ultimately acquainted with the ins and outs of it, as especially concerned the Maritime provinces, and part of New England. In July, 1899, he was appointed chief clerk in the department at St. John, and was given an opportunity to use in an executive way the knowledge assimilated by him as travelling representative. That he was enabled to do this effectively, is shown by the fact that in Feb. 1902, or two and a half years after becoming a chief clerk, to the district passenger agent at St. John, he was chosen to fill he latter important position. It gave him charge of territory east of Oldtown, Maine, and Levis, Que., including New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, P.E.I., and Newfoundland. His duties embraced the looking after of the C.P. R. winter Atlantic steamship service, and the summer excursion traffic, neither being a small item.

The death of A. H. Notman, one of the most popular railway men in Canada, made a gap in the ranks of C. P. R. officials, which required an able man to fill. That Mr. Foster was asked to be Mr. Notman's successor, was but the forging of another link in a career of the rapid, steady and consistent progress. After 13 years spent in the Maritime Provinces, he was called upon last November to enter a new field, and to deal with problems more complex. It need only be said that his work has already abundantly justified the wisdom of the appointment, and that his personal popularity is no mean factor in the success he is achieving in Toronto.

NEWS NOTES FROM NORWOOD

Death of W. J. Waters—Funeral of the Late Wm. Baskin.

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Norwood, Jan. 24.—The singing Leaves Cantata, written by Grace Mayhew, is to be given Friday evening, Jan. 27th, in the Norwood Town Hall, by The Mrs. M. Dunlander Choral Class. Mrs. W. J. Morrow, Mr. Norman Jolliffe and Mr. Legg, of Peterborough, and Miss Watson, of Hastings, will contribute several vocal and piano selections during the evening. Mrs. Morrow's piano numbers are "Fantasie Impromptue," by Chopin; "Movement Perpetual," by Weber. Her vocal selection will be a grand Italian aria, Puritani, Bellini. The concert will be one to meet the approval of every music lover.

Miss Florence Taylor, of Picton, and Miss Minnie Marsh, of Campbellford are the guests of Miss Edna Waters.

The young people of the Hastings and Havelock Methodist Epworth Leagues were entertained by the Norwood Leaguers on Monday evening. The respective Leagues furnished the evening programme, which took the form of a regular League meeting, with the addition of several vocal selection and recitations. The basement was prettily decorated with flags and bunting for the occasion. After the programme, light refreshments were served.

The remains of the late Mrs. W. A. Eaton, who died at Oxbow, Assa., on Sunday will not be brought east for interment but laid at rest at her late place of residence in the Northwest.

Mr. John Poth, of Lindsay, spent Sunday with friends in town.

Miss Morrison of Hastings is staying with her sister Mrs. E. F. Cuffe.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Vandervoort and daughter, of Brandon, were the guests of Mrs. Vandervoort, Queen street, last week.

The Sunday services in the Methodist church were conducted by Rev. Mr. Johnson, of Havelock. Rev. C. Parker occupied the Havelock pulpit.

Mr. and Mrs. George Buck, of Hastings, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. H. G. Buck.

Mr. B. W. Waters received a telegram on Monday, stating that his brother, W. J. Waters, of 115 Jackson street, Hamilton, had died very suddenly, on Sunday, Jan. 22nd. The deceased was brought by G.T.R. on Tuesday to Hastings for interment. Mr. R. W. Waters and Mr. C. W. Waters attended the funeral.

Mr. J. B. Pearce, who has been a patient in the St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, for the last four weeks, returned home on Saturday. We are very glad to state that Mr. Pearse is convalescent.

Dr. Patterson went up to Toronto on business on Friday.

Messrs. Buck and Walsh shipped this week one carload of hogs—price paid $5.90.

The funeral of the late Wm. Baskin took place on Thursday from the family residence, Peterborough street. Service at the house at 1.30 p.m. Rev. Geo. McLennan, Presbyterian minister, assisted Rev. C. O. Pickford, English clergymen. The remains were then taken to Christ church, Norwood. Service at the church at 2.30 p.m.

The deceased was buried by the Canadian Order of Foresters, Court Rob Roy, No. 14, Norwood Lodge, together with sister lodges, Stony Lake, South Dummer, Campbellford, Hastings and Havelock. The bearers were brethren of his own lodge, viz., Bros. M. E. Knox, A. B. Greenbanks, J. Cornell, Hugh Robb, F. Anderson, W. J. Rork. The cortege was the largest that has been seen in Norwood for some time. Those who attended the funeral from a distance were: Mr. O. W. Baskin, Mr. A. T. Baskin, Cowans, Que.; Miss Annie Baskin, Mr. J. R. Baskin, Montreal; Mr. A. McAuley, C.P.R. yard master, and Mrs. McAuley, Toronto; Mr. T. J. H. Hallaway, C. P. R. road master, Toronto; Mrs. Hallaway, Toronto; Mr. John Gray, Claremont; Mr. J. Malloy, C. P. R. road master, Smith's Falls; Mr. and Mrs. J. McNicholl, Campbellford.

A span of horses belonging to Mr. Robert Embleton, Havelock, ran away on Sunday from Mr. Brown's residence just a short distance outside of the village. Mr. Embelton had just driven up and was attempting to turn around when a dog caused the horses to take fright and run away, upsetting the cutter. They ran through the village and were not stopped until they reached Logan's Crossing, half way to Havelock. One of the horse's legs was badly cut.

Mrs. W. A. Eaton, wife of Mr. W. A. Eaton of Oxbow, Assa., died very suddenly at her home on Monday, Jan. 23rd, after a short illness. The news of her death came as a great shock to her friends in town, as it was quite unexpected. Mr. and Mrs. Eaton were residents of Norwood up to about a year and a half ago, when Mr. Eaton sold out his business of merchant tailor, and moved west to Oxbow, where he has resided since.

JAPS AND RUSSIANS

Meet Again on the Hun River in Large Engagement.

FIGHTING IN A SNOWSTORM

Russians Made First Move, But Japanese Advanced and Made An Attack—Kuropatkin Reports That European Russians in the Ranks Decide War Must End Now Port Arthur Is Taken.

Gen. Kuroki's Headquarters, Jan. 27.—A heavy and continuous artillery roar was heard to the westward all day yesterday. Apparently the largest engagement since October is being fought. Reports received here are to the effect that the Russian force has crossed the Hun River on the Japanese left wing. A Japanese force advanced against the Russians making an attack.

The fighting must be attended with great suffering from the cold. A snowstorm began on Monday, following a long period of remarkable mildness. The temperature is below zero and the plains are covered with several inches of snow. The ground is too hard for rapid trenching. Yesterday's move by the Russians is the first important one since Gen. Mistchenko's recent raid.

Troops Will Not Advance.

London, Jan. 27.—The Daily Telegraph's St. Petersburg correspondent asserts that Gen. Kuropatkin has telegraphed to the Emperor that his offensive power is seriously hampered by the obstinate reluctance of his troops from the European provinces to advance against the enemy. Whilst the Cossacks and Siberians are full of dash, the Europeans argue that now that Port Arthur has surrendered, there is no object in continuing the war.

Japan Makes War Preparations.

The Daily Telegraph's Tokio correspondent says that Japan is making enormous war preparations. Besides immediately laying down a battleship of 19,000 tons at Yakasuka, and the contemplated building in Japan of a 12,500 ton cruiser, large additions to her torpedo and submarine flotillas and two cruisers already have been started building at Kure. All future ships will be armed heavily, but guns below the 10-inch will be discarded.

The 5th army is being organized under command of Lt.-Gen. Kawamura, the correspondent says, who is calling out more reservists. Conscripts are expected. All men under 40 years of age are being drilled.

To Blockade Vladivostock.

The blockading of Vladivostock is imminent. A fleet of cruisers is leaving for the south and Admirals Togo and Kamimura will follow with battleships. Three cruisers and several torpedo boat destroyers are near Borneo. A division has been landed at Formosa.

It is now evident that the cruiser Takasago was lost. The names of her crew, from the commander down, are now officially published as killed.

Negotiations continue for the purchase of a Chilian cruiser. Fifteen new submarine boats will be provided this year. Ten recently arrived under control of American instructors.

OCEAN TRAFFIC SUFFERS.

New England Swept By Blizzard and Many Disasters Noted.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 27.—New England was engaged yesterday in shaking itself free from the grasp of Wednesday's blizzard and reckoning the damage caused by the severest storm in six years. On land the loss was comparatively small, but along the coast the list of marine accidents showed one steamer, 11 schooners, and a small sloop ashore between Block Island, R.I., and Eastport, Me. Most of the vessels probably can be floated.

Elections With Troops.

Buda Peath, Jan. 27.—The elections are proceeding throughout the country with the aid of troops. No serious disorders are reported, but small rioting has occurred in several provincial towns, and in the sixth district of Buda Peath, where Socialists attacked Minister Hieronym's supporters and the military were obliged to intervene.

ELECTION'S AFTERMATH

Both Parties Lay Claim to the Riding of West Huron.

THE CABINET MEETS TO-DAY

Decision May Be Reached As to Resignation—Two Courses May Be Pursued—In Any Case New Ministers Go Back to Their Constituents For Re-Election—Conservative Majority 40.

Toronto, Jan. 27.—The drifting snow along the concession lines and the zero weather that has prevailed all over Ontario are responsible for the many incomplete returns of Wednesday's battle. The guesses that had in several cases to be made on Wednesday night have, however, all been justified, except in the case of two seats—Port Arthur and Rainy River and Parry Sound. Mr. Milton Carr (Lib.) was defeated in Parry Sound by Mr. John Gains (Con.), but, as an offset to this loss, Mr. H. W. Kennedy (Lib.), reported as having been beaten in Port Arthur and Rainy River by W. A. Preston, has carried the seat by 50 majority.

The party standing is, therfore, still 69 Conservatives and 29 Liberals, which will, no doubt, be regarded by Mr. Whitney as a safe working majority. There may be changes yet. It is nip and tuck in West Huron for Mr. M. G. Cameron, who, with all the returns in, claims 4 majority. Mr. Holmes, his Conservative opponent, says the vote is a tie. The official declaration will be necessary to settle the doubt.

Following are the revised returns so far as available:

The Premier Still Missed.

Premier Ross was at the Parliament buildings early yesterday morning, and received a number of callers. He declined to see any newspaper men, however, sending out word that he had "nothing for the press today." He was at home in the afternoon, and to inquiries made at his residence yesterday evening again answered that he had no news.

It is understood that the Premier will shortly leave for Jamaica, where he will take a holiday for some time. He is much in need of a long rest, after the more than usually exacting official work of the past few months, and the arduous campaign through which he has just passed.

The other Ministers in town yesterday morning were Hon. Messrs. Charlton and Dryden. The latter intimated that he would retire from public life.

Cabinet May Meet To-Day.

It is expected that a Cabinet meeting will be held to-day, and the Government will then decide upon the course of action to be followed in view of the present situation. Two courses are open: The Legislature may be summoned, and the Government may announce its resignation at the first sitting, or the resignation may be made by notification to the Lieutenant-Governor, without a meeting of the House, and after the lapse of a reasonable time, wherein the Government may dispose of routine business. The latter course is the one that has been followed in recent times by British and Canadian Governments, and will no doubt be adopted in the present instance. His Honor would then call upon Mr. Whitney to form a Government, the members whereof would follow the usual course of going before their constituents for re-election. The writs for the elections would be issued, as now, by the Clerk of the House, in his capacity as an official of the Legislative Assembly.

Foundations Ramors.

The rumors in circulation yesterday to the effect that the Premier had already notified the Lieutenant-Governor that his Government had resigned had no foundation. His Honor said last night that he had no news to give out. It is certain that Mr. Ross would consult his colleagues before taking any such step as that rumored.

Hon. Mr. Dryden to Retire.

To a reporter who saw him at the Parliament buildings, Hon. Mr. Dryden said: "As far as I can see now, my services for the public are finished. I am too old a man to commence afresh. I have been no idler, and can fairly claim to have given the country as good a service as I knew how to give."

Hon. Mr. Gibson Going Away.

Hon. Messrs. MacKay, Graham, Latchford and Eventural are expected in the city to-day or to-morrow. Hon. Mr. Gibson, who is still confined to his home at Hamilton, is recovering from his severe illness, and it is expected he will be able to leave on Saturday for a sojourn in the Southern States.

Hon. Mr. Harcourt reached town yesterday afternoon, and was at the Parliament buildings for a short time.

Mr. Whitney Comes On Monday.

Mr. J. P. Whitney, M.P.P.-elect, is not expected in Toronto before Monday. A leading city Conservative last night stated that there could be no object in the immediate resignation of the Government, as it would only be reasonable to give Ministers an opportunity to straighten up their official business.

Soo Trial Over.

Sault Ste. Marie, Jan. 27.—The court sat only for a short time yesterday morning. Mr. DuVernet renewed his application for a summons against C. N. Smith, but the judges held to the decision of Wednesday, leaving the criminal courts open to proceed against him. F. J. Galvin's case was dropped. The arguments against William Coyne will be proceeded with in Toronto, Feb. 14; also that of George Sutherland. Their Lordships left for the east yesterday.

Girl Takes Her Life.

Sault Ste. Marie, Jan. 27.—Lillian Thomas was found dead in her room Wednesday evening, having committed suicide by taking carbolic acid. Her mother is Mrs. Arnold of Detroit. In a letter addressed to her mother, she bade her good-bye and asked that her body be buried in Detroit. The girl was tired of life on account of her position, and a love affair, in which a young man of the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, played the role of sweetheart. She came to the Soo from Toronto last October.

Escaped Convict Caught.

Virden, Man., Jan. 27.—Convict McQuillan, who jumped from a train near here on the 24th, was captured Wednesday at Lenore, after enduring severe frost bites, owing to his exposed condition. He was found laid up in a shanty.

KILLED 30 WORKMEN

Confirmation of the Acts of the Troops at Riga, Russia.

PAHL'S FACTORY IS BURNING

At Libau Telegraph Lines and Telephone Wires Have Been Damaged—Printers All Strike At Saratoff—Troops Patrol Streets At Kovno, But Street Cars Stop Running.

London, Jan. 27.—A despatch to Reuter's Telegram Co. from Riga confirms the previous announcement of a collision there between strikers and troops. Thirty workmen were killed or wounded, and a sub-chief of police and two soldiers were mortally wounded.

Employes Return to Work.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 27.—Three hundred employes of the Baltic works returned to their employment yesterday. It is expected that work at the Neva shipbuilding yards will re-commence to-day.

Factory Burning.

London, Jan. 27.—A despatch from St. Petersburg, timed 9.26 p.m. yesterday, to a news agency, reports that Pahl's factory and a large cotton mill have been set on fire and are burning fiercely.

Damage Telegraph Lines.

Libau, Russia, Jan. 27.—Telegraph lines and telephone wires have been damaged. A strike has also begun at the wire works. Men singing songs and blowing trumpets went from factory to factory calling out the workers.

All the Printers Strike.

Saratoff, Russia, Jan. 27.—All the printers have struck. The employes of the Riasan-Ural Railroad have joined in the movement. There has been no rioting thus far.

Street Cars Stop Running.

Kovno, Jan. 27.—This town is calm. Some of the factories were reopened yesterday morning, but they were closed later. The street cars have stopped running. Troops are patrolling and bands of workmen are parading the streets, but there has been no disorder.

Troopoff Optimistic.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 27.—Governor-General Trepoff manifests complete confidence that the crisis is over, and that public order and the safety of the city are assured. Further than this the Governor-General takes an optimistic view of the situation in the province.

Moscow Strikers Indoors.

Moscow, Jan. 27.—Although the strike is steadily spreading the movement thus far has not been accompanied by collisions of great gravity. Yesterday's events were restricted to minor skirmishes in the northern and eastern outskirts of the city, in which the troops successfully resisted all efforts of the crowds to break through the cordon. No bloodshed is reported. Both the authorities and the masters have shown admirable coolness in the face of the situation, the former avoiding provocation by studiously concealing the troops and the latter by displaying a readiness to meet the men's demands.

It appears that when the strikers made the round of the mills calling on their comrades to quit work, under threat of wrecking the plants, the masters decided to allow the men to take a holiday with full pay, providing they remained in their dwellings, and the workmen unanimously consented, the result being that the intimidators were unarmed.

In the meantime workers and masters are negotiating for a settlement of their differences. Several firms have offered an advance in wages which would bring the average earnings of their workingmen to $10 per month and lodgings. One firm has offered to knock off one hour from the legal working day of 11 hours, but this is the burning question on which the majority of the masters are unwilling or unable to agree to concessions. The Danilowsky textile factory alone continues working.

Editors to Be Released.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 27.—Although the strikes in Reval, Libau, Kieff, Odessa and a few smaller places are extending the situation is nowhere acute. An increasing number of workmen are out in Moscow, but there is no general disorder there. The whereabouts of Father Gopon still remains a mystery, although it is believed the priest is in Moscow.

The Russian capital presents almost a normal appearance, and the authorities are confident that the backbone of the strike has been broken. Some factories and mills already have resumed, and a general resumption of operations is expected on Monday. The authorities expect the failure of the strike here will have a discouraging effect upon the workmen in other cities to which the troubles have been spreading, and believe that there is no longer danger of a complete suspension of all the industrial concerns in Russia.

Minister of the Interior Sviatopolk-Mirsky has promised a delegation of editors who called upon him that he will investigate the arrest of several prominent writers who are now confined in the St. Peter and St. Paul fortress and secure their release as soon as possible.

True Bill For Murder.

Quebec, Jan. 27.—A true bill for murder has been returned by the grand jury at the Criminal Court now in session at Chicoutimi, against Joseph Maltais. The crime with which Maltais is charged took place on April 4, 1904, at St. Fulgence, when it is charged Maltais, during a dispute over the ownership of a piece of land, struck Joseph Laforest with a pivet, crushing his head and causing his death.

PHONES IN MANITOBA.

Legislative Committee Suggests Government System As Solution.

Winnipeg, Jan. 27.—The Manitoba Legislative Private Bills Committee yesterday rejected a bill to incorporate the Northwest Telephone Company and the Independent Telephone Company of Canada.

They reported that a better solution of the matters complained of and which the present bills proposed to remedy, viz., the correcting of abuses of monopoly, would be for the Government during the recess to inquire into the whole matter of telephone service, with a view to either taking over the present system in the Province or the building of a new one to be owned and operated by the Government in the interests of the people, and that pending such inquiry the bills be not proceeded with.

Fruit in Florida Ruined.

Jacksonville, Fla., Jan. 27.—It is believed that the frost Wednesday night in Florida destroyed all citrous fruits on trees, excepting in the extreme southern part of the State, the total destruction being placed at 300,000 boxes, possibly more. It is feared that trees in the Jacksonville section are injured, if not killed. It will be impossible to arrive at definite conclusions before spring. The fear as to orange trees, however, is confined to the northern section of the State.

Something New In----- SARDINES.

The best sardines in the world have been caught recently off the shores of Norway. These have immediately been pronounced by French and other European countries as Par Excellence. The best brand is put up by Stavanger Preserving Co., Norway, under the name of "Crossed Fish" brand. The fish are very small and very tender; they have been slightly smoked before being preserved, which not only adds to their delicacy of flavour, but prevents the indigestive "rising" after eating, so customary with ordinary sardines. The genuine sardine is far above the common herrings sold as sardines, as all connoisseurs well know. To be sure you are getting the best order

SEED WHEAT OF CANADA.

Secretary Shaw Recommends Passage of Law Granting Refund of Duty.

Washington, Jan. 27.—Secretary Shaw yesterday sent to Congress letters recommending the passage of a law that will permit him to refund duty paid on wheat for seed purposes. Mr. Shaw thinks it would be impossible to allow wheat intended for seed to be entered free of duty. Such a provision would open the door to fraud, but a refund or "drawback" on wheat actually used for seed seems to Secretary Shaw to be feasible, thereby permitting Canadian hard wheat to be imported for seed, which, under existing tariff regulations, is now impossible.

The present tariff on wheat is 25 cents a bushel, which is wholly prohibitive. Secretary Shaw, said that under the law as suggested by the Secretary of the Treasury, probably a million bushels of Canadian wheat would be imported for seed purposes.

It is expected that a fight will be made in the Committee of Ways and Means against throwing down the bars to Canadian wheat by some of the northwest states.

OPENING FOR WOODENWARE

President of Board of Trade Wants Another Industry

English firm with order for 10,000,000 Handles Could not get it Placed.

Canadians have, in some quarters in England, a reputation which is not enviable. It is hinted at there that Canadian manufacturers are not alive to the trade possibilities for them in England. Orders placed here are said not to be given the attention which American firms give, and it is also said tha there seems to be little general desire to cater to the English trade.

This is undoubtedly not because the Canadians do not want to trade with Englishmen, but is, perhaps, because they are at present too busy filling their own orders to take those from other countries.

But it must not be lost sight of that the time will come, when we would be mighty glad to get the English trade, and the only way to get it is to impress them with the idea that we want it, and that we are prepared to go to some little trouble to get it.

That there is an opening in Peterborough for an important industry, and one which promises much for the future, is evident from information that was given by President Hughes-Charles of the Board of Trade, at its last special meeting, and subsequently to the Examiner.

The matter was brought up when the secretary read a letter from Mr. Bell, the Dominion Agent at Birmingham, England, expressing regret that he could not accept the President's invitation to visit Peterborough, and Mr. Hughes-Charles explained that learning that Mr. Bell, whom he knew well, was in Canada, he wrote him asking if he would come to Peterborough and deliver an address before the Board of Trade on trade questions, and particularly upon the opportunities for Canadian manufacturers in England.

Mr. Hughes-Charles further explained that he was influenced in his action in making the request by the fact that he had learned that there were great opportunities for Canadians to secure some good English business, which at present they were not getting, and he instanced the case of a representative of an English firm, who was sent to Canada prepared to place an order for 10,000,000 tool handles. He visited a number of manufacturers of woodenware in this country, and sought to get someone to undertake to accept the order, but, strange to say, he could not succeed, and he actually had to go back to England with the order unplaced, and this not because the account was not good, or the order was not remunerative, but solely and simply because the manufacturers in this line here were so busy with their own orders that they could not accept an order of such proportions.

This fact so impressed Mr. Hughes-Charles that he conceived the idea of endeavouring to induce a manufacturer of these goods to locate here, or failing that to get some capitalists to form a company to manufacture this class of merchandise. He believed that there was no place in Canada where a factory of this kind would pay better than right here, with the timber easily accessible, and good facilities for shipping out the finished product.

From subsequent research into the matter, the Examiner learns that at the present time there is not a single factory in Canada manufacturing all classes of tool handles. It is true that there are some where the ordinary straight handles, for tools such as hammers, hoes and other garden tools, and straight shovels, but the D handle, the one most in common use, is not manufactured in this country at all, and all that are used here have to be imported from the United States. This may seem strange when it is remembered that in no country perhaps is there such wealth of timber as in Canada, and it certainly seems as if the Canadians were not living up to their opportunities in this matter.

Mr. Hughes-Charles has written Mr. Bell for further particulars in connection with this particular industry, and also information along general lines in regard to the openings for Canadian manufacturers' products in England, and it is probable that when his reply is received if it offers suggestions which can be acted on with profit by the Board of Trade, a meeting will be called to consider it.

THE WORK OF A LOCAL POETESS

Contributed to High-class Literary Publications.

It is a compliment to Miss Alma Frances McCollum's literary reputation that the productions of her fancy and her pen, are sought by high-class journals. She contributes to Asta Victoriana a sparkling little poem, entitled "The Falls of Burleigh," whose literary qualities, as well as moral mood, entitles it to more than one reading. One also finds in the Christmas "Varsity" a dainty little autograph poem, illustrated with a photogravure reproduction of a scene in Jackson Park, taken by the author, and forming the subject of the little poem—"The Pebbled Stream," as below:

The stream that glides o'er silver sand
Knows not its gift of song
Until it meets a pebbled strand
And swiftly flows along.

So life that leads through pleasure's way
Then turns to grief's abode,
Oft finds the richest harmony
Along the roughened road.

The first annual meeting of the Home Missionary Society of St. Paul's Mission was held in the Mission on Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 25th. The meeting was well attended, there being 32 present. The President, Mrs. McPherson occupied the chair.

After the opening exercises Mrs. McPherson gave an excellent Bible reading on the subject of Peace.

The Secretary's annual report was read and adopted.

An interesting letter was read from Miss Bell, acknowledging the receipt of a bale of clothing sent to the Toulon Hospital.

The dedicatory prayer was offered by Miss Martha Dickson. This was followed by an excellent paper on the Claims of Home Mission Work, read by Mrs. R. E. Wood.

Mrs. Mein and Miss Montgomery kindly sang a duet while the offering was being received.

An extract from the Record giving an account of the life and work work of Rev. Dr. Black, the Apostle of the Red River, was read by Mrs. Robt. Hall.

Greetings were received from the Murray Street, Charlotte Street and St. John's Churches, and the meeting was closed with a brief prayer offered by Dr. Torrance.

The Secretary's report was as follows:—

Report of St. Paul's Mission, Home Missionary Auxiliary.

The Home Missionary Auxiliary of St. Paul's Mission was organized by Mrs. McClelland of Toronto, on the 26th of January, 1904, just one year ago, with a membership of 18. We have 57 names on the roll at the present time, showing a large increase in membership, and, we believe, a growing interest in Home Mission work. Our meetings are held in the Mission on the last Wednesday in each month. The average attendance for the year was 23.

It would perhaps be well to explain that this is not a society composed of women only. We have a few male members, and would like to have many more. A work which is carried on among men who have gone from our own land of churches, to seek new homes in the West, should appeal to the sympathies of the men of the congregation.

A very successful evening meeting was held in April and was well attended by both men and women.

In September, the Rev. J.J. Wright of our own town, gave an interesting lecture on his mission work in the Yukon.

We held our first Thank-offering meeting in October. There was a good attendance and the offering amounted to $40.

Learning that second hand clothing would be acceptable for distribution among the Galicians, we sent out to Dr. Hunter of the Toulon hospital, a bale valued at $62.

A special interest in this hospital is felt by our Auxiliary, as the head nurse, Miss Bell, is a daughter of the late Rev. Alex. Bell, at one time pastor of St. Andrew's church, of this town. Miss Bell's letters, published in the Home Mission Pioneer, are much appreciated. This interesting little 15 cent monthly magazine, gives full information with regard to the work of the Home Mission Society, and it will repay careful perusal. The number of our subscribers is 31.

With the influx of settlers to the new districts of Western Canada, come increasing demands, which we trust will meet with an increasing sympathetic response from those interested in the work of the Auxiliary.

SESSION REPORT.

The Session report, which was signed by Rev. J. G. Potter, Moderator, and Mr. J. S. Ferguson, clerk of Session, said that the church life and work had given good cause for encouragement. A survey of the various departments of congregational activity showed there was a strong note of advance and a deepening of the spiritual life. While the work of the Managing Board and the Ladies' Aid Society needed no comment from the Session, the members were of the opinion the whole congregation recognised that the ever developing work of the young people of St. Andrew's to be its great inspiration and hope.

During the year Elders Alex. Campbell had removed to London, Ont., and Adam Gillespie to Tweed, and there had been added to the Session James Girven, George Cockburn, W. C. Forman and William Smithson. Appreciative reference was made to the good services and excellent work of the choir as well as the choir leader, Mr. Mark Wilson. The Session would also notice the moral value of the floral tributes to the sick, which had been adopted as a special object of the Young Men's Guild work.

There were added to the church during the year 50, being 38 by certificate and 17 on profession of faith, 14 being from the Sunday school. There were 20 baptisms. The present membership of the church is 452.

LADIES' AID.

The Ladies' Aid Society reported a membership of 52; 30 new members being added at "an home" held in March last at the residence of Mrs. T. C. Elliot. Eleven regular and six special meetings had been held during the year, with an average attendance of fourteen. The special offering on the anniversary Sunday of the church for the renovation of the edifice was a liberal one, and at the High Tea on Thanksgiving day $120 was cleared. The officers are Mrs. John McClelland, president; Mrs. J. G. Potter, vice-president; Mrs. W. R. Thompson, secretary; and Mrs. H. Harper, treasurer.

W.F.M.S.

The report of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society, Mrs. J. G. Potter, president; Miss Annie Edmison, secretary, showed that $166.50 had been sent to the treasurer of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society. There were two new life members during the year: Mrs. John McClelland and Mrs. George Edmison. The meetings had been successful and thanks were returned to an all-wise Providence for His many blessings.

MISSION BAND.

The Mission Band has a membership of 24, and the average attendance at the ten regular monthly meetings was 14. During the summer months quilts and clothing were made for a girl in the Northwest. The amount raised in 1904 was $20.20. At the Converat held in November $7.57 was cleared. The officers for 1905 are: President, Miss Bertram; 1st vice-president, Miss Langford; 2nd vice-president, Miss Richardson; secretary, Miss Carry; assistant secretary, Miss Thornton; treasurer, Miss Thompson; organist, Miss Mathieson; convenor of N. W. Clothing Committee, Miss C. Anderson; convenor of Social Committee, Miss Allan.

For the Willing Workers, Mrs. George Laing verbally reported a membership of 12 and good progress during the year.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Superintendent George Stevens and Secretaries Donald Potter and W. S. Laing reported on behalf of the Sunday school that good progress had been made and faithful work done by the members and officers. Mr. John M. Laing, the efficient secretary, had to lay down his work for a time owing to ill health but it was hoped he would completely recover. The work had been carried forward by Messrs. Stewart Laing, William Langford, and Donald Potter. Supt. Alex. Campbell, Assistant Superintendent A. Gillespie and Miss Aggie VanEvery, organist and teacher, had removed during the year, and regret was expressed at their loss. Mr. W. C. Forman and Mr. F. E. Kerr, were valued additions received to the Sunday school staff. The Bible class formerly conducted by the pastor, will be re-organised as a men's Bible class. Special reference was made to the primary and Kindergarten departments, wherein Mrs. Laing and Miss E. Tully and their assistants deserve the recognition of the congregation. The total number of scholars on the roll was 282; teachers and officers, 34; total, 316; average attendance, 200; kindergarten class, 35; primary, 51; Bible class, 41. The receipts during the year were $346.74, and there was a balance in the bank of $64.25.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOUR.

Mr. J. S. Ferguson, President reported a favourable work being accomplished, in spite of discouragements and failures. Cottage prayer meetings had been held during the winter at the homes where the occupants find it inconvenient to be at the regular meetings, and much success had attended these gatherings. The Society was sending to Rev. Dr. MacKay $15 for the support of a native teacher and the remainder of the contributions for missionary work were included in the church funds. The membership was about sixty.

YOUNG MEN'S GUILD.

Mr. Wm. A. Richardson, secretary of the Young Men's Guild, reported a steady increase of interest and that the number of members now amounted to 75. Mr. H. H. Edmison was president last year. The baseball team created a good deal of interest, although it was not successful in winning the championship, as in the previous season. The sixth annual excursion and the St. Andrew's Day concert were highly successful. The church decorations on Christmas were undertaken by the Guild, and greeting cards were sent out to the members, absent guildsmen, and others. The meetings are held the first Tuesday evening of each month, and a good programme is always given.

ST. ANDREW'S GUARDS.

The club composed of boys and known as St. Andrew's Guards, Ernest Reid, secretary, is an organization to help keep up the attendance of the boys at the Sunday school and to support two cots in the Lakeside Home, Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto.

The sum of $65 had been raised to endow two cots for last summer. The Guards will hold their annual concert this year about St. George's Day.

JUNIOR BOYS' GUILD.

Fred Richardson, is chairman and Allan VanEvery secretary of the intermediate Guild, which looks after, the Junior Boys' Guild. The latter is composed of lads from 10 to 16 years of age. Meetings are held every Friday night and the members, who number about 35, are all pledged against the use of liquor and tobacco. The Sunday School lesson is studied at each meeting.

DAUGHTERS OF ERIN.

Mrs. J. J. Cosks, secretary of the Daughters of Erin, reported a membership of 16 and meetings are held monthly at the homes of the respective members. The annual concert in March last was a great success. The receipts for the year were $107.50, and the expenditure $80.70, at which $60 was sent to the Point Aux Trembles School towards the support of a pupil, and a further $10 to th building fund.

MANAGERS' REPORT.

Mr. J. D. Kelly, chairman of the Board of Managers, read the following:—

In presenting our annual report for the past year we are pleased to be able to show a substantial reduction of our indebtedness. We then, (1903) had a debt of over $1,000 which is now reduced to about $485. It was hoped by the committee who undertook to canvass the congregation that the entire amount would have been paid off, but the balance is not large enough to be burdensome.

On account of the steady growth of the congregation and the increased work of the pastor, the members of the Board felt justified at our last meeting in submitting a recommendation to increase his salary by the addition of $200 a year.

We would also ask you to consider what is now a necessity, and a further result of our pastor's faithful work, the providing of more seating accommodation. I have been handed a list of the names of 45 families requiring pews and if our congregation is to increase it cannot be done otherwise.

We would also respectfully suggest that in order to meet our regular expenditure, so as to avoid the necessity of extra subscriptions that our pew holders would endeavour, as far as reasonably possible to contribute at least what would be considered the value of a pew, as there is no doubt that if the pews were rented, as in most churches, we would have sufficient revenue to meet all expenses.

REPORTS ADOPTED.

All the reports were adopted, and the recommendation of the Managers to increase the pastor's salary by $200 was carried after a short discussion by a unanimous standing vote. Mr. Potter warmly thanked the congregation and said the addition to his stipend was entirely spontaneous on the part of his people and had not been suggested by him in any way. Mr. H. M. Lloyd, Mr. T. C. Elliott and others referred to the efficient services of Mrs. Peter Kerr, organist, and suggested that the Board of Managers take into consideration the advisability of increasing her salary. Messrs. George Laing, Frank Fakenham and H. M. Lloyd were added to the music committee and a hearty vote of thanks tendered the church choir for their faithful work. Mr. Andrew McFarlane moved a cordial vote of thanks to the Ladies' Aid society, which was carried. Messrs. Lloyd and Elliott were re-appointed to the Board of aManagers for three years; Rev. Mr. Potter was re-elected as representative on the Nicholls Hospital Board and Mr. Wm. Fowler to the Charity Board.

The annual meeting, which was in every way successful, encouraging and harmonious, broke up with the singing of the doxology, after which all the members partook of choice refreshments, generously provided by the members of the Ladies' Aid Society.

FOUNTAIN PEN FOR SECRETARY

Mr. J. W. Buyers Presented With one by his Forester Brethren

After Nine Years of Service for the Local Court—Delightful Occasion.

Last night's meeting of Court Chemong, No. 530, I.O.F., was one of exceptional interest. Bro. G. W. Brown, D.H.C.R., by request, was present, and initiated quite a number of new members.

The business of the evening being concluded a very pleasant event then took place, when Bro. J. W. Buyers, who has been recording and corresponding secretary of the Court for nine years, was presented with a valuable gold mounted fountain pen by his brother officers as a mark of their esteem and respect for himself and his faithful and painstaking efforts in connection with the office he occupied.

Bro. G. N. Brown, on behalf of the officers and brethren present, requested Bro. Buyers to come forward. He then made the presentation to Bro. Buyers, hoping at the same time that the recipient might live long to use the pen in the interests of the Court. After applause and the singing of "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," Bro. Buyers, although quite taken by surprise, suitably thanked Mr. Brown and the officers and brethren, for their great kindness in presenting him with such a beautiful pen as a mark of their esteem, and trusted he would be enabled to use it to good advantage in the interests of the order. Several of the officers and members made brief addresses and referred in feeling terms to Bro. Buyers' long and faithful services.

SNAILS IN LONDON'S MENU.

Popular Food in the Restaurants of the Metropolis—Frogs a Dainty Against Which Prejudice Prevails.

In many London restaurants, particularly in Soho, says The London Globe, snails now figure on the daily menu. This is an imported taste from France, but in the West Country snails are highly esteemed by the lower classes. As a matter of fact, the snail is extensively eaten in Somerset and Gloucestershire, both as a dainty and a medicine. There are men who make a living by collecting snails and selling them under the name of "wall fish." Boiled in their shells they are picked out and eaten with bread and butter, being accounted a great luxury and very nourishing. In pulmonary diseases they popularly rank as a specific.

Frogs are a dainty which prejudice denies to the Englishman, though in the United States and Canada they are esteemed as highly as in France. Spasmodically a sturgeon is offered for sale in London, and the accident of its capture affords a novel dish which should not be passed by, for it is generally sold at 8d. a pound. Cut and cooked as a cutlet it tastes rather like veal, without a suspicion of fish about it.

In Germany bear's flesh is greatly favored, and smoked bear tongues, hams and sausages are both appetizing and expensive. Ever since Paris, in the siege of 1870-71, was driven to eating up the animals at the Zoo, camel's flesh has been demanded by French gourmets. Remarkably like beef in appearance, it is as tender as veal, and there are Parisians who import it regularly from Algeria. On the same testimony, lion steaks are reported to be only moderate eating, while tiger is both tough and sinewy. Jaguar flesh, however, is delightfully white and toothsome, and alligators and crocodiles provide a meal of the most delicate flavor midway between that of veal and pork.

Beef and mutton, with pork, so entirely make up the menu that lamb and veal are actually regarded as distinct dishes. Why should not goat flesh be introduced into the bill of fare? It is good eating, as Robinson Crusoe and Don Juan testify. In France it is largely eaten, Paris alone requiring 100,000 goats annually for the table. The donkey, whose flesh, when killed young, resembles that of the turkey, is of much finer flavor. Though a hippophagic banquet arranged by the late Sir Henry Thompson was held in London some years ago, it is still almost dangerous to suggest horse flesh to an Englishman as food. In reality it is very excellent eating, and only prejudice can gainsay the fact. Old and worn-out horses cannot afford either nourishing or palatable meat, but that of a horse reared like an ox for the table, has a finer fibre and flavor than beef, though darker in color. It is served in the best French restaurants, as well as being largely eaten by the people.

"It was in Paris," wrote Mr. Vandam, the author of "An Englishman in Paris," "that I learned how the cat had been misjudged. Call the dog the friend of man if you like, but don't eat him. Fry him, stew, boil or bake him, do what you will, his flesh is and remains oily and flabby, with a strong flavor of castor oil. But I declare that stewed puss is far finer than stewed rabbit."

Another neglected article of food is the guinea pig. Were the edible virtues of the hedgehog known it would rival ortolans in epicurean favor. As cooked in rural England, it is delicious. The correct way is to encase the hedgehog, bristles and all, with a thick coat of soft clay, and place it in the glowing embers of a fire to bake. The bristles and skin come off with the harden clay, leaving the tenderest and most delicate meat imaginable.

"Word-Blindness."

Some remarkable examples of "word-blindness" are given in The Lancet by Dr. Sydney Stephenson, ophthalmic surgeon to the Evelina Hospital.

That some children are much slower than others in learning to read, he says, must be an observation as old as reading itself. It is, however, only within the last few years that such tardiness in otherwise bright children has been recognized by a special name, and studied with some approach to scientific accuracy.

One lad, after seven years' application, was only able to spell monosyllabic words although he could read fluently and do simple arithmetic.

Another youth was so slow in learning to read that at 18 his tutor despaired of teaching him. To Dr. Hinshelwood, of Glasgow, belongs the credit of having been the first to describe the condition scientifically, to assign it to a defect in the visual memory centre for words and letters, and to name it "congenital word-blindness."

The London School Board, in a report issued some time ago, described several curious cases of an allied nature, except that the children could read, but could not spell.

One of Toole's Jokes.

It is related that Toole once entered a provincial dairy and solemnly remarked to the shopman that he would "take a boy." The surprised shopman mildly answered that his establishment was a milk shop.

"Come outside," said the comedian, and taking the shopman by the arm to the door, he pointed up to the sign: "Families supplied in any quantity."

After repeating that he would take a boy, the comedian rapidly walked away.

Under Freedom's Flag.

Henniker Heaton, speaking at Canterbury, said there was not a single one of King Edward's 300,000,000 subjects in prison for treason or disloyalty, whereas in Germany hundreds are in prison for these causes, in Russia thousands, and thousands are exiled from France.

THE JANUARY THAW.

I think we pretty soon will have
The January thaw;
There is trouble in the kitchen, an'
The stove won't draw.

The cook is weeping bitterly,
Her nose is red and raw,
Her dough it isn't risin'—an'
The stove won't draw.

The hens are singing sweetly,
As they scratch among the straw,
Which indicates the coming of
The January thaw.

The crows among the cedars
Fill the air with many a caw,
And thus they prophesy we'll have A January thaw.

But still the best of all the signs
For a January thaw
Is when the cook is he pin' mad,
An' the stove won't draw!

ICE RACING.

Frank Smith Describes One of Canada's Winter Glories in U.S. Paper.

Our good friends the Canadian horsemen, are in their glory at this season of the year. The winter ice racing circuit, inaugurated at Port Perry recently, did credit to the breeding industry. The kite track on Lake Scugog was very fast, several heats having been raced in the free-for-all class better than 2.20, by Gipsey Girl, famous Looking Glass and good old Black Joe, horses of national reputation on ice. Looking Glass was formerly owned by W. Perry Taylor of Buffalo, and can pace blue streaks over ice. There isn't a road horse in Buffalo that could get near enough to him in a mile race to see him at the finish with a spy-glass! They don't go up on the avenue and race an eighth of a mile, and then figure out quarters in 30 seconds at Becker & Wickser's store the next morning, or while picking their teeth over at the Iroquois. Not much. They step full miles, and five heats in one race in from 2.19½ to 2.21, is the way old Looking Glass made 'em go over at Port Perry. Two colts sired by Malvolio, another horse owned by W. Perry Taylor, showed up exceedingly well during the past week, beating 2.28 in the slow classes three times, stepping as lofty as a dancing master. Although Port Perry is a small place of about 2,500 inhabitants, this was the thirty-fifth annual meeting held there. No admission is charged, as it is next to an impossibility to fence in the track on Lake Scugog, owing to the scarcity of lumber, but for all that the association has money in its lockers. The business men of the town and farmers for miles around contribute small sums to the annual enterprise, and everybody comes to the city race week, while sport galore is the result always. Soon the campaigners will be at Lindsay and Peterboro, then on to Picton, Belleville, Ottawa and Montreal. Is it cold? Only nine below zero on a recent Thursday morning. But, dear reader, a little hot Scotch has a powerful effect on a Canadian campaigner during the frigid racing afternoon, and in your imagination, thermometers are not always what they seem!—Frank Smith in Buffalo Courier.

Debatin' School.

The "debatin' schule" in Tattletown was in full swing. The town hall was crowded. A challenge debate was on between a team from Holy Smoke and the Tattletown Demosthenoses. The subject of debate was:

"Resolved, That War has caused more suffering and death than Intemperance."

Gosh! How they did show up the horrors of these two agents of the devil! One youth depicted the battlefield, the wails of the wounded, and the groans of the dying.

He was followed by an orator from Holy Smoke, who was giving the shuddering crowd a condensed version of "Ten Nights in a Bar-room" when a gruff voice at the door cried "Avaunt!"

All was still.

The voice continued: "I have slain more folks than the gun or the whiskey bottle. I contend that the frying pan and the pump have killed more folks than either of them, but I have done to death far more people than the frying pan or the pump. Cotton stockings and thin shoes have killed lots of pretty girls, and the quick lunch has killed plenty of pretty men, but I have slain more than the three of them put together."

Cold chills ran down every back.

"Who are you?" gasped the pale and trembling referee.

"I am the Spare Bed," came the terrifying answer.

And the audience leaped through the windows and fled home in panic. —The Khan.

A Canadian Centenarian.

At the remarkable age of 104 years, Mrs. Robert McGee of Huntley township passed away on the 13th January, 1905. The aged lady was active to the last, and could read without the aid of glasses. For eighty years she was a resident of the township, coming out from Ireland when a young woman of 23. Her husband died 25 years ago. Two sons and a large number of grandchildren and great-grandchildren survive. From a wilderness the deceased lady had seen the country develop into one of the richest farming communities in the land, with villages scattered throughout, and the capital city of the Dominion was unknown when she first passed through where it at present stands.

"THE LAWS OF SICKNESS."

Explanation of the Principles of Insurance and of Their Application to Fire, Life, Marine and Accident Offices.

At the Canadian Institute on a recent Saturday night, the paper of the evening was by Arthur Harvey. The subject was "The Laws of Sickness," but it was prefaced by an explanation of the principles of insurance and of their application to fire, marine, life and accident offices. Mr. Harvey having framed the first insurance law of the Dominion, and having had charge of important insurance interests, was enabled to take a broad view of the field, and to bring forward views which cannot be ignored.

All insurances was said, to depend on the persistence of averages, apropos of which some curious instances were given. From this persistence those who make a study of the ratios connected with any class of happenings, hoped to derive a financial advantage, which was quite legitimate. If there were no such means of estimating risks, insurance would be mere gambling, and not the serious work it is for the actuary and his backers.

Mr. Harvey thought fire insurance the most difficult of the main branches of insurances, on account of the constant and rapid changes in the circumstances which cause hazard. He recalled the changes of fuel from wood to coal, and of lighting, from candles to burning fluid and kerosene; electric lighting, once claimed to prevent all danger from artificial illumination, had proved to be a frequent cause of loss. Elevators were the occasion for new anxieties to insurance people. The filling up of vacant spaces in towns and cities, due to their increase in population, tended to the spread of fires, and the enlargement of business, which now made into a large store what were really several tenancies under one roof, had to be paid for in the increased risk or cost of insurance. While the gradual rise in the rate of fire premiums for some years past was, perhaps, due to combinations among companies, he was inclined to think there had been a real increase of hazard in the business quarters of rising towns and cities, with which protective systems had hardly kept pace.

He thought, however, that if the companies would combine to keep down their expense account, the premiums which had prevailed would be found sufficient to allow of a fair profit. These premiums now amounted in Canada to twelve million dollars a year, and the increase was fairly constant, but the losses were irregular, and had varied from 80 per cent. of the premiums in 1902 to 225 per cent. in 1897, and this inequality proved the necessity for large capitals and reserves, for the Canadian field was evidently not large enough to "establish an average."

Canadian capital ought not to attempt to monopolize Canadian fire business, and no steps should be taken which would discourage foreign companies employing their capital here. The official figures plainly showed that there had been little, if any, profit made by fire insurance companies in Canada.

This led to a brief discussion of municipal insurance, to which, on the whole, Mr. Harvey was opposed.

As to life insurance, the author's views were adverse to Government inspectorates and superintendencies. He could not see why insurance should be treated differently from other kinds of savings companies, where obligations covered in many cases quite as long a period as insurance policies. Moreover, the superintendence was a false reliance; the guarantee was the care of the directors and managers in making sound investments.

There was here a digression to answer the question, "Is life insurance a good investment?" Examples were given to show the marchantable value of long-standing life policies, and to contrast therewith the sums that the premiums would have amounted to by careful investment at fair current rates. Of course, the companies had realized the latter sums, often several times the face of the policies, and many times their selling values. Mr. Harvey knew that many people grumbled at this, but it was the fortune of life, and they should reflect their contributions had relieved many an anxious heart and benefited many a widow and bereaved family. There was a remedy, to be satisfied with less protection and to take the benefit in the shape of an endowment.

This naturally led to the consideration of the sick and funeral benefit provided by fraternal societies. As an actuary, Mr. Harvey had several times been called in to value the liabilities of such societies, for comparison with their assets, and he had not found one which charged fees enough to be really solvent. The laws of sickness were here expounded, and shown to be even less variable than the laws of mortality. The deficiencies in the ordinary rates were pointed out and a tariff given which it was thought would suffice, under honest management and without being hampered by Government red tape.

The paper concluded with an exposition of the German system of wage-earners' insurance, which Mr. Harvey did not think would be acceptable to our people, or even financially preferable to our existing methods. Some form of support in sickness and of relief in old age would soon develop here, as it was needed, and the best method for attaining the object was worthy of due consideration. It was, of course, a financial question mainly, but it was more—it was one for the true philanthropist and patriot to think about, and from it a man or set of men who devoted patient thought, might well reap the reward of a noble duty well performed. That reward was not measured by dollars, but by the esteem and thankfulness of contemporary and future generations.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

This House Listlessly Discusses the Estimates Wednesday.

Ottawa, Jan. 26.—It was a listless discussion of estimates that took place in the House yesterday afternoon, and a thin House at that, for members were absent either in person or in spirit. All interest was concentrated in the great political struggle in Ontario.

Mr. Ames was informed that it is the intention of the Government to revise the whole organization of the harbor commissioners of Montreal this session.

Mr. Ward was informed that surveys are now being made between Rice Lake and Cobourg and Rice Lake and Trenton to determine the best route for the great canal.

The Minister of Marine informed Mr. Morin that the big ice-breaking steamer Montcalm cost the Government $272,000 delivered at Quebec, and her per diem cost since has been $150, principally owing to her large consumption of coal. She is employed in the endeavor to secure the opening of navigation between Quebec and Montreal earlier in the spring and keep it open late in the fall; also to render assistance to vessels caught in the ice and establish the possibility of winter navigation on the north shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence. She will also be employed in the summer time as a lighthouse and buoy tender for the Province of Quebec. The vessel's work this winter has been above Quebec.

Mr. Daniel inquired the status of goods imported into Canada under the preferential tariff in 1903 and 1904; also the quantity imported via Canadian and United States ports respectively.

The Minister of Customs gave the value "entered for consumption under the preference" as $37,614,505 in 1903, and $44,765,253 in 1904. But no separate record, he said, had been kept of importations by Canadian ports.

The House then went into Committee of Supply and proceeded with discussion of the Postoffice estimates.

The Postmaster-General said that 384 letter carriers had accepted the new arrangement by which they are paid by the day instead of by the year. There are 142 who are still under the old arrangement.

The House adjourned at 6 p.m.

Died From Injuries.

Langton, Jan. 26.—Michael Aspden, who was injured in the sawmill explosion at Cultus last week, succumbed to his injuries yesterday morning.

Goes Back to Baltimore.

Hamilton, Jan. 25.—Dr. Dawson, the dentist, wanted to answer to serious charges in Baltimore, who at first prepared to make a fight against extradition, changed his mind and left on the train at 6 o'clock last evening for Baltimore. He was accompanied by Detectives Hagan and Burns. He decided that it would be useless to waste money in a fight against extradition.

ANECDOTES OF SAILORS.

Many Interesting Stories Told of the Jolly Jack Tars of Great Britain—Too Much Port.

Lord Bridport, when he commanded the Channel Fleet (in the year 1797), was called the "Whiting Catcher," from his being so often in port. At a dinner given by the Mayor of Plymouth on one occasion, he said: "Captain Troubridge, I suppose you have no objection to fill a bumper to the health of the Commander-in-Chief?" "Not at all," replied the gallant Troubridge; "but hand me the claret, for I am quite tired of drinking him in port!"

Worth Sixpence.

No one can pay a compliment neater than a bluejacket. At a bazaar superintended by some of the most beautiful women in London, a young sailor stood in front of one of the stalls for some time in breathless admiration. Then, taking a sixpence from his pocket, he laid it shyly upon the table and passed on.

"Won't you have something for your money?" asked the fairest of the attendants.

"I've had more than my money's worth already," answered Jack, gallantly, and walked on quite satisfied.

A More Breeze.

In his "Memoirs," Baron Lejeune, a Frenchman, who was captured by the British while fighting in Spain in the year 1811, tells a story of the self-possession of the English captain of the ship that carried him to England. He says: "This was the first time I had ever made a voyage, and the creaking of the timbers of the ship greatly alarmed me, for I thought again and again that she was breaking to pieces. Once I said to the captain in my anxiety, 'Is this a storm?' He replied coldly, with a smile, 'I do not think so!'"

Middy's Discovery.

When the famous Sir John Franklin, Arctic explorer, was a middy he went (in 1801) on a trip round Australia with Capt. Flinders, who was a relative. Many discoveries were made and many strange things were seen, for Australia was then a practically unknown land. Both officers and men were much puzzled on seeing a kangaroo for the first time, and were unable to give these animals a name. The future Sir John was not to be baulked, however. He entered in his log-book: "Saw several rabbits on stilts!"

Queer Poultry.

On board one of His Majesty's ships two seamen were hotly engaged in an argument as to the class of animal a hog belonged to, one of them asserting it was a sheep and the other being equally certain it was a pig. Not being able to agree, one of them turned to a petty officer who was standing close by, and said, "Here, Billy, you've knocked about a bit. What is a hog? Is it a pig or is it a sheep?" Bill duly considered the point, and then replied, "Well, to tell you the truth, chummy, I don't know much about poultry!"

Warship Wit.

Whilst at Gibraltar in 1900 the crew of H.M.S. Ramillies, which was then the flagship of Lord Charles Beresford, second-in-command of the Mediterianean fleet, wrested the Gibraltar Cup for boat-sailing from the crew of the Renown, which was the flagship of Sir John Fisher. A few days later, when the squadron was on the way to Arcani Bay, the Renown spun merrily past the Ramillies, which was rather a slow vessel, and sarcastically signalled, "Are you towing anything?" The Ramillies folk promptly signalled back: "Yes; the Gibraltar Cup. Don't you miss the weight of it?" The Renown had nothing more to say.

True Grit.

In Portsmouth Dockyard a party of bluejackets were once engaged in moving a heavy boat on rollers, which were placed under the keel so that the craft, which weighed a ton and a half, might be pushed towards the water. By a mischance it happened to slip from its supports, and the foot of one of the sailors was caught under the keel. Though the pain must have been sickening, the bluejacket merely turned to his companions and remarked, "Now, then, why don't some clever chap laugh?" His foot was afterwards amputated at Haslar Hospital.

Joy Abounded.

Once in the "good old days" Admiral Pakenham landed at Portsmouth from a lengthy voyage, and a friend asked how he had left the crew of his ship.

"Oh," said the admiral, "I think I have left them all to a man the happiest fellows in the world."

"Glad to hear it. What makes them so happy?"

"Well, I flogged seventeen of them, and they are happy because it is all over; and all the rest are happy because that seventeen felt the rope and not themselves!"

Afloat and Ashore.

Sir Alfred Jephson, ex-captain, who died in 1900, used to tell some good stories of men-of-war's men. When one ship was being fitted out there was a great deal of inexplicable drunkenness on board. The only unusual circumstance which the ship's corporal could discover was that the bum-boat woman seemed to sell an inordinate quantity of butter done up into neat little pyramids. Suspecting these innocent-looking comestibles, Sir Alfred poked his pencil into one and pressed the sides. Immediately a fountain of gin sprang up, and the mystery was solved.

Referring to the cheerfulness of the men under difficulties, Sir Alfred told the following story: During the Egyptian campaign (1882) a staff officer rode up to a sailor who was staggering under a truss of hay, and put the query to him, "What are you?" The man replied, "Well, I used to think I was a British bluejacket, but I'm hanged if I don't begin to think I'm a Commissary mule!"

Open Secrets of Health.

What is the secret of health and old age? Mr. Chamberlain, as Chancellor of the University of Birmingham, has just been assuring his medical students that they may take ices, smoke at work and at play and drink with impunity. Students, as a rule, need no such assurance, but the experience of four other aged and eminent politicians, published on the same day, somewhat discounts Mr. Chamberlain's belief in ices, smoking and drinking.

Lord Avebury in The Young Man frowns on the Highbury regimen and counsels the open air, with little to eat or drink. Mr. Frederick Harrison says, "Touch not tobacco, spirits nor any unclean thing," and rises from every meal with an appetite. Sir Algernon West would seem to tolerate tobacco in moderation, but "not on an empty stomach." Mr. Justin McCarthy lays the emphasis on steady and regular work, with plenty of open air and physical exercise. Here again Mr. Chamberlain, whose only exercise is lighting big cigars, would, in his own favorite phrase, "join issue."—London Chronicle.

Mark Twain and the King.

Admirers of Mark Twain will recall his famous letter to Queen Victoria. According to his own account, he once wrote: "I don't know you personally, but I have met your son. He was at the head of a procession in the Strand and I was on a 'bus." During a late visit to London, Mark Twain was presented to King Edward, who showed his appreciation of the American humorist by remarking: "I have met you before. You must remember. It was on the Strand and you were riding on a 'bus."

BEING'S GLADNESS.

I love this world, I love its days,
It days so golden, fair and bright;
I love the sun, I love its stars—
The silver jewels of the Night.

And, oh! I love its mountains high,
With their grand peaks uplifted far,
As if they stood as stepping-stones
From this fair earth to some bright star.

I love the winds that breathe so low
Amid the tall leaf-bannered trees,
As if some spirit whispered there
Soft-toned, angelic harmonies.

And, oh! I love the broad green vales,
Where blossoms stand with lifted face,
All perfume-laden as they pour
Their fragrant incense into space.

I love the songs of birds and bees.
The silver streamlet's rippling voice,
Gliding from mountains to the seas,
And whispering to the land, "Rejoice!"

And most of all I love to be
In such a world with beauty bright,
So full of love and harmony,
Of wondrous grandeur and delight.

God's world! The tall, straight-columned trees
He Heavenward lifts, the sunbeams fall,
At His light touch, to fill the air,
The glad birds answer to His call.

And flood the world with songs that be
Like seas of symphony outspread,
Above, around us everywhere,
Whichever way our footsteps tread.

To be! How sweet when God is here,
Although we may not see His face,
But we may feel His presence near,
And in all things His footsteps trace.

SEA LINE CHANGES.

Cliffs Sliding Into the Sea Near Dover, England.

England has not quite the same coast line as it had at the beginning of 1905. During the first week of the year several landslides occurred between Dover and St. Margaret's Bay. The largest of these, indeed, the largest, it is said, which has occurred on the southeast coast for more than half a century, took place at St. Margaret's Bay, when an enormous slice of the cliff, estimated by the coastguard at about a quarter of a million tons, fell into the sea.

The first landslide occurred without the usual warnings in the shape of cracks in the earth. The effect was disastrous in the extreme. Fields have disappeared in seams as though the whole cliff was gradually slipping away from the mainland.

Early in the morning on which the big slide occurred, there had been a slight fall, and the inhabitants of the locality rushed to the cliffs. Being warned that there might be danger of further falls, they hurried away, and none too soon, for shortly afterwards a noise like the simultaneous discharge of a hundred great guns was heard, and a sharp earth tremor was felt through the village.

The tremendous section of the cliff, including a portion of the path leading to Walmer, had slipped away and crashed into the sea. Spray was sent up to the full height of the cliffs, some 350 feet. Masses of chalk, as they fell, seemed to explode into hundreds of fragments, which immediately built themselves up into what witnesses described as a pier running into the sea. Seaward, the debris extends a quarter of a mile, and rises to a height of 20 or 30 feet.

The main cliff looks as though a part of it had been scooped out with a gigantic scoop, for the fall made a gap about a quarter of a mile in length.

Every day for a week there have been falls of several thousands of tons at a time, and numerous ominous cracks are appearing on the top of the cliffs, widening almost every hour. They involve a mass of chalk estimated at more than a million tons. The South Foreland lighthouse stands just eight yards from the edge of the cliff where one fall took place, and great anxiety is felt about its safety.

A rich man died the other day. He died in the very midsummer of life, and he left his family $1,000,000. The doctor's certificate showed that death resulted from typhoid fever. The doctor himself said to a friend: "That man was a suicide. He had a splendid constitution. It could have pulled him through if his stomach had been sound. But he ruined his stomach by hasty meals, snatched in intervals of business and by neglect of symptoms which have been warning him a year past, that his stomach was failing in its duties."

The symptoms of a disordered stomach are, among others, variable appetite, sour eructations, nausea, undue fullness after eating, cold headache, dizzy sensations, discolored eye, fluctuations in physical energy, nervousness, sleeplessness and despondency. No person will have all these symptoms at once.

The restoration of the stomach to sound health, begins with the first dose of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The same process assists the functions of the stomach are in healthy operation. The nerves are quiet and strong, the appetite healthful, the sleep rested, the eye bright, the complexion clear.

"I can accept no thanks for the benefit which my child received from your medicine," writes Mrs. W. A. Harris, of Sharon, Schoharie Co., N.Y. "Words fail to express my gratitude for what your wide liver completely banished from my system. I gave her 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and after using five bottles of the 'Discovery' and three of the 'Prescription' she was entirely well once."

If you want a cure accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery."

A TALE OF THE ARMADA.

The Blowing Up of the Florentine Galleon, the Florencia.

Over three centuries ago a vessel of the Spanish Armada was blown up in Tobermory Bay, off the coast of the Island of Mull. Recently numerous relics have been recovered from it by divers. They include old cannon, swords, pistols, plate and coins. The vessel was the Florencia, a Florentine galleon which came from the Levant, one of the Italian possessions of the King of Spain, and was commanded by one Pereija. After the defeat of the armada the Florencia was forced by bad weather and lack of provisions to put into Tobermory Bay. There Sir Lauchlane MacLean, who, because of his feuds with his neighbors, had been made a "denounced rebel" by King James of Scotland, formed an alliance with the Spaniards. With the aid of a hundred soldiers from the ship and of his own followers the wild chieftain made war on neighboring clans for some time.

At last he received a message from Captain Pereija requesting that the Spanish soldiers be sent back at once, as he was preparing for sea. At the same time he heard that the provisions supplied to the Spaniards had not been paid for. Sir Lauchlane remonstrated with the Don for his injustice, and satisfaction was promised. On the strength of this the men were sent back, but MacLean, not relying entirely on the captain's promise, retained three of the soldiers as hostages till the debt should be paid. At the same time he sent one of his own men, Donald Glas MacLean, on board the Florencia to receive an adjustment of the demands of his people.

Donald Glas when he went on board the ship was disarmed and made prisoner, and no communication was allowed between himself and his friends. But Donald Glas conceived a plan which, though it meant certain death to himself, promised a speedy and terrible retribution to his captors. Finding that the cabin in which he was confined was close to the magazine, he forced his way into it, and, laying a train from it to the outside, he fired it. The ship was blown to pieces, killing the 300 or 400 persons who were on board.

Trivial Causes of Wars.

The immediate cause of the great wars of history has often been a surprisingly trivial accident. It is said incidentally that no two wars have ever been brought about in exactly the same way. Mere jests have often caused dreadful wars. In the time of William the Conqueror, for instance, it was a jest pure and simple that brought about the war between England and France and ultimately cost the great William his life. One day his contemporary Philip of France delicately remarked at dinner that William was "like a fillet of beef on castors and ought to be exhibited at a prize monarch show." William heard of this and in a furious rage ordered his troops to invade at once. This was done, and a war commenced, which ended in the English King being thrown from his horse and killed while superintending the siege of Mantes. A more recent case is told of Frederick the Great, who nearly caused a war with England by referring to King George as "a bloated ox."

In a recent war between the army of Ecuador and that of a neighboring State considerable damage had been done before any explanations were forthcoming. Then it transpired that the rival armies had been "manoeuvring" on the frontier rather too near each other, and could not resist the temptation to try conclusions. The only recent case in Europe of a formal declaration of war made before actual operations were begun was that of the Franco-Prussian war in 1870. The first intimations of the intentions of the Boers in their war came out of the muzzles of their Mausers.

How Himself As Others See Him.

Sir Henry Irving, whose stage career covers forty-eight years, has acquired many striking mannerisms during that time. One day when he was ill and rehearsing understudies to play his parts he chose a particular actor to play Richelieu.

At the end of the rehearsal Sir Henry called the histrion to him and said:

"Why did you deliver that last speech in such a curious manner, and why did you go off the stage so spasmodically?"

"It's the way you do it, Sir Henry."

And all the great tragedian said was:

"Good Heavens!"

Sir Henry tells a story about J. L. Toole, the famous comedian. On the occasion Toole lost a rather valuable man a sovereign, never expecting to see the money again. To his amazement the man turned up and paid the sovereign back with many thanks. Some weeks after the same individual requested the loan of £5.

"No, no!" said Mr. Toole. "You deceived me once. You won't get the chance of doing it again."

An Ecclesiastical Umbrella.

An umbrella big enough to cover a dozen persons belongs to the Church of St. Peter Mancroft, Norwich, England. It is used on wet days for wedding parties, so that the bride and bridegroom, the bridesmaids and guests may not get their smart dresses spoiled when walking from the church door to the carriages. It is also used by the clergy at funerals, when the service has to be held by the grave side in pouring rain. That it is useful is obvious, and it is rather remarkable that many other churches do not possess such an article as a part of the ordinary church furniture.

John Bull's Big Family.

The British Empire to-day numbers 400,543,713 citizens. The recent completion of the Cape census enables the total to be made up. Over 11,876,745 square miles of British territory are dotted to the number of about 36 per square mile.

A Canny Centenarian.

An anecdote is told of Hon. David Wark, the centenarian Senator from New Brunswick, who, in spite of his extreme age, takes an active interest in men and affairs, and thoroughly enjoys life. One day last June a charming young matron, well-known by name at least in London, was introduced to him by Hon. "Bob" Watson of Manitoba. After a few minutes' conversation the Western Senator whispered: "Ask him to go for a walk." Turning to the veteran of politics, Mrs. S—— said: "Won't you go for a walk in the Lover's Lane?" With a twinkle in his eye he replied, "But I'm not looking for a wife."—London Free Press.

JUNIORS LOST TO BELLEVILLE

In the First Home Game in the Junior O. H. A. Series

Local Team was Outclassed—A Small Crowd Saw the Game.

Before an ordinary City League crowd the local junior O. H. A. team played their first home game in this series last night, and lost, to Belleville, thus breaking the tie in this district, and being the first team to lose at home. The game last night was not good hockey, the visitors, however, displayed a form which was superior to that of the locals and won the game on their merits. The locals were clearly off colour, and did not begin to play the game of which they were capable.

For a short period in the second half they did show signs of returning to their accustomed style of playing, and while the spell was on scored two goals, but in the early part of the game, and in its closing period, they were simply outclassed, so much so that the score was 6-2 against them, the half time score being 3-0. Individually the players worked hard, but they did not play their positions well, and frequently from this cause the visitors got away for combination rushes, which should have been stopped. They did not check back as quickly as the visiting forwards, which are a fast bunch, and although the homesters defence played a splendid game the odds were against them, and the game went accordingly.

It had been confidently hoped that the team would have won their game last night, which would have put them right in line for the district championship, but they have been handicapped by the lack of games, almost the last of January before a home game could be played and they showed last night clearly the effects of this lack of experience.

They are not down and out yet by any means, however, and with some more games they should improve considerably. It must be confessed that the game last night was lost because the team was not playing the game of which they are capable, and not necessarily because their opponents were a better team, though they did play decidedly the better game, but the locals have this season played well enough to win the game last night.

Their shooting last night was poor, and added to this a number of easy chances were missed because the men were not in their proper positions at the right time, which, on the other hand, the Belleville team shot well, and Fitzpatrick was called upon to stop scores of hot ones and he played a magnificent game, the six goals scored against him being all hard ones, and it is through no fault of his that the game was lost. The whole defence in fact played well, but the forwards, while generally, they worked hard, were not up to their usual standard. Hall and Smith were the pick of the forward line, the latter playing a good game, particularly in the second half, while Hall distinguished himself by a strenuous attempt in the second half to avoid defeat by frequent rushes, but it was without avail and the team has to face the chagrin of meeting their first defeat at home. Moore at point was a source of strength to the team, and made some nice lifts, as well as playing a good defence game. He was responsible for at least one of the goals, taking the puck down the ice by a pretty rush and passing to Hall, who sent it into the nets.

Long also checked well at cover point and made some good lifts. He was the only Peterborough player to be ruled off, and he decorated the fence twice for tripping. In the second half McFarlane played rover, and McWilliams was put on the wing, while Hall played centre, and as a result the team played better hockey, but as the outcome showed, not good enough to win.

The Belleville aeplete is a well-balanced team, the forwards being fast and close checkers and good shots, and while the defence is not equal to that of Peterborough they do not have the work to do, the forwards looking well after their checks. Holton, in goal, is not in the same class with Fitzpatrick, but was given little to do last night.

Weller and Hamilton are the pick of the visitors' forwards, the former figuring in three of the six goals.

The teams were: —

BELLEVILLE.
Halton
Townsend
Conlay
Pepper
Weller, Allin, Hamilton.
Smith, McFarlane, Hall,
McWilliams
Long
Moore
Fitzpatrick
PETERBOROUGH.

The game started with a series of end to end rushes in which little advantage was gained by either team, and the first fifteen minutes were characterized by close checking and neither thus could break away sufficiently to score. The style of hockey was poor. McWilliams sent a couple of easy ones at Halton, which he stopped easily. Hall got away for a rush and shot, but Halton took care of it. The puck was in the vicinity of the Belleville goal the greater part of the time, but the locals could not score. The puck then went up the ice and Fitz was busy stopping some good ones; finally Belleville got the first goal on a lift from centre by Pepper. Weller scored the second for the visitors in a nicely placed shot from the wing. Score 2-0.

McFarlane got away for a rush and shot on goal, but Halton got in the way of the puck. Weller scored the third from a scrimmage in front of the goal, making the score 3-0, which called the half.

SECOND HALF.

The second half opened with some lightning rushes, and in a few minutes the fourth goal was scored for Belleville by Weller, after a nice combination rush. Hall and Moore took a pretty run down the ice and the latter scored on a pass from the former. Score 4-1. The locals were now playing much better hockey, and a number of shots were sent in on Halton. McFarlane, after a nice run, shot, but by hard luck the puck struck the goal post. Long was given a rest of one minute for tripping. The nicest play of the night was when Weller and Hamilton made a two man combination rush, and the latter scored, making the figures 5-1.

Pepper scored the last goal in the game for the visitors in a mix-up in front of the goal, making the final score 6-2. Conley went off for two minutes for slashing.

LINDSAY PLAYS HERE TO-NIGHT

Prospects That There will be a Fast Game

The Lindsay team arrived at noon today and claims to be in good condition for the game to-night with the Peterboros. The game, which was to have been played in Port Perry on Wednesday night was postponed, so that to-night's game will be only the second game this week for each team, consequently they both should be in good condition.

The Lindsay Post says that to-night the Lindsay team will reverse the score of Monday night's game, while the general opinion here is that they will do nothing of the kind. However, there is no doubt that the game will be a hard one. The teams representing Peterborough will be the same as in the former game, and play will be called at 8.15. Mr. W. Meta, of Toronto, will referee.

TROUBLES OF MIDLAND TEAM

Nearly all the Players are in Bad Shape.

The Game at Barrie was Pretty Hard on Them.

Special to the Examiner.

Midland, Jan. 26th.—The Collingwood Intermediate team has defaulted to Midland, and this team now has to play off with Barrie, the die game which was unfinished last week. It will be played in Barrie next week, and the Midland team, unfortunately, is but ill prepared to meet the fast Barrie bunch again on their own ice. The last game there used them up pretty badly, and all except about two men on the team are more or less badly used up. Pearce injured his leg recently, and is so much used up that he has had to quit the game temporarily, while Kemp, the fast little centre man who had his back and arm injured in the Barrie game and could not finish the game, is also in poor shape to go into another hard contest. Gould, one of the wings, has a sprained ankle, which is causing him some trouble, while Cunningham, the cover point, injured his knee and will be unable to skate for some time, and Whitcroft, the former Peterborough man, is, perhaps, in the worst shape of any. He was the only forward on the team, who stayed in the game at Barrie to the finish, and got some pretty hard bumps.

The team is pretty well crippled, and the prospects for the team are not as bright as they were some little time ago.

Another game like that at Barrie will pretty nearly put the team out of business.

NOTED VOCALIST TO APPEAR HERE

Herr Wilhelmj Recieves Great Praise in Toronto.

Regarding a renowned vocal teacher who has been engaged as instructor at the Peterborough Conservatory of Music, and who will also sing at an opening recital to be held early in February, the Globe of Saturday said:—

"Herr Wilhelmj, from the Royal Opera of Schwerin, was the principal artist of last night's "Gesangsverein" concert, and through his magnificent rendering of his selection of songs took the audience by storm. His intonation is perfect and he possesses a voice of rare beauty. In performing some specially difficult variations by Hummel he scored a success rarely achieved by an artist, and such was the impression that the name Wilhelmj will long be in the memory of his appreciative audience."

LOCAL STOCK MARKETS

The following is from N. B. Darrell, 327 Water street:—

January 27th.—Prices have had a very substantial advance from the low prices of Wednesday and while we look for a strong opening and for further improvment in the early trading, we are inclined to favour profit-taking on such advance with a view to buying back on a reaction of moderate proportions. Interest is now centreing in the Steel stocks and the forthcoming report will be of a character to inspire confidence in these securities, while the annual report is expected to create decidedly bullish feeling, especially on the pfd. stocks. —Town Topics.

BURNS' 146TH. ANNIVERSARY

Very Enjoyable Affair in Commemoration of "Bobbie" Burns Birthday

At St. Andrews Last Evening—Programme of Merit was Presented.

The one hundred and forty-sixth anniversary of the birth of Robert Burns, Scotland's great lyric poet, was celebrated in most appropriate and effective manner last evening by the choir of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church. Burns was born on the 25th of January, 1759, and that his memory is fondly cherished by Peterborough people, may be presumed from the very large attendance at the concert which had been arranged for the occasion. Scottish song and story featurized the programme, and all were greatly appreciated. Especially pleasing was it to hear Miss Elspeth Macdonald, of Toronto, who as a Scottish reader has become very popular in Peterborough. The choir, under the leadership of Mr. Mark M. Wilson, added to the evening's entertainment by a number of choruses. There were about thirty voices, and the merit of the contributions was recognized by the audience in hearty applause.

Rev. J. G. Potter was chairman, and in a brief address, he extended a welcome to the gathering and said that the programme as arranged warranted him in assuring an enjoyable evening. The opening number was a chorus, "Sweet and Low," by the choir. This beautiful composition gives fine opportunity for vocal blending and toneful expression, and in obtaining this result the singers were very successful. On another occasion, the choir sang effectively the chorus, "Drops of Rain," and, at the close, in "The Men of Harlech," the vocalists seemed to catch the spirit of the words, and their efforts were greatly appreciated by the audience. Not only the members of the choir, but Mr. Wilson, as leader, are to be congratulated upon the very high standard of efficiency which has been reached by them in musicanly accomplishment.

The ever popular "Dame Durden," was sung as a trio by Messrs. Wilson, Laing and Tilley, and in such a manner as to receive well-merit-applause. They were also very heartily received in another number, "Clackety-Clack," and also in "Gondinga," in which Miss Florence Stevens took the alto.

The first appearance of Miss MacDonald was in the reading, "How Foster Voted," a very amusing story told in Scotch dialect and with application bearing particular reference to the recent election in West Peterborough. So popular was the number, and so faithfully were the characters impersonated that an encore was enthusiastically requested, and Miss MacDonald replied with "The Soldier's Song," showing herself to be equally as much at home and impressive in gay as in grave selections. To be Scotch and also correct, one may well say that Miss MacDonald is "a winsome wee thing" in her elocutionary efforts, and she was always very well received. She placed the poet's interpretation upon "A Man's a Man For A' That," and she sang sweetly "Ye Banks and Braes of Bonnie Doon." Much merriment was provoked by the comic sketch, "Them Oxen," and the peculiarities of the perplexing juvenile were well portrayed in the numbers, "Nurse's Day Off," and "Unasked Assurances." Miss MacDonald was frequently encored.

An Irish folk song was selected by Miss Ruth Dawson for a vocal number, which was received with great evidence of appreciation on the part of the audience, and on another occasion her fine voice was heard with pleasure in the Slumber Boat song.

Mr. Gilbert Scott gave the proper spirit to his song, "The Standard on the Braes of Mar," and he was equally successful in "Scots Wha Hae," his strong, ringing voice being happily adapted to these songs.

"The Highlandman's Toast," was a contribution in which Miss Bryce of Keene, did full justice to her ability in Scotch song, and the number proved very acceptable. Her other songs, "Blue Bonnets Over the Border," and "I'm glad My Heart's My Ain," were equally pleasing.

"Larboard Watch," a duet that never grows old, was very well rendered by Mr. Jas. Gerard and Mr. Wilson, and another duet which proved one of the great favourites of the evening was "Gang Awa Jamie" by Miss Bryce and Mr. Wilson. They were encored and sang effectively, "Life's Dream is O'er."

Mrs. Peter Kerr was the accompanyeet of the evening.

At conclusion of the programme Rev. Mr. Potter expressed appreciation of the large attendance, and of the manner in which the numbers arranged by the choir had been received. He invited all those who had taken part to spend a social hour or two with him at the manse.

The National Anthem brought an enjoyable evening to a close.

LOCAL SINGERS AT NORWOOD

Very Enjoyable Concert to a Large Audience Last Night

Cantata by Chorus and Soloists—Three Local Vocalists were well Recieved.

Special to the Examiner.

Norwood, Jan. 28th. — One of the most successful and enjoyable concerts that has been held in Norwood for many years, took place last night in the town hall. Every seat in the hall was occupied, and many were standing, there being numbers present from Hastings, Havelock, Campbellford and Peterborough, besides a large representation of the music-loving people of Norwood. The audience was most attentive, and appreciative, and evidenced their hearty pleasure by the warm applause which followed each number. Both the foreign and local talent was very popularly received, and the programme was from every standpoint, a delightful one.

The first part of the programme consisted of a cantata, "The Singing Leaves," by Mayhew. The choruses were sung by Mrs. Callender's class of 25 mixed voices, while the solo scores were taken by Miss Ina Watson, Hastings, soprano. Mr. Joe Legg, Peterborough, tenor, and Mr. R. Norman Jolliffe, Peterborough, baritone. The singing of the chorus was most creditable. The parts were nicely balanced, the tone good, and the expression well marked. The chorus gave signs of careful training, and to the directress, Mrs. Callendar, is due unstinted praise for the success of her class. The music was tuneful and was rendered very acceptably. The soloists sang their parts most satisfactorily, and the whole affair was very enjoyable. The ladies appeared in Grecian costume, which added an attractiveness to the affair.

The second part of the programme was equally pleasing. Mrs. W. J. Morrow of Peterborough, scored a great success in her piano solos, and was heartily encored on both occassions. Her numbers, "Fantasia Impromptu," (C Minor), by Chopin, and "Movement Perpetual," by Weber, were brilliantly executed. Mrs. Morrow's vocal numbers were sung in excellent voice, and with a marked clearness of enunciation, and nicety of expression. Her numbers were "Rory Darling," and an Italian aria (Puritani opera), Delilul, which was sung by special request. As encore numbers Mrs. Morrow sang "Annie Laurie," and "In May."

Miss Ina Watson of Hastings, a favourite with Norwood audiences, sang very effectively, in a sweet soprano voice, "The Flight of Ages," and responded to a hearty encore.

Mrs. Callender sang "Arditi's "Daisy," in a manner, which was heartily enjoyed, and she received an enthusiastic recall. As an encore she sang "Awake."

Mr. Jos. Legg, the popular tenor, was at once a favourite with the audience, and his solo, "Troubadour," by St. Quentin, was much enjoyed. As an encore Mr. Legg sang "Tick-Tack-Too," with signal succes. Mr. Legg and Mrs. Callender were heard in an effectively rendered duet," Spanish Balero," by Edgar.

Mr. R. N. Jolliffe was warmly received upon his rendition of Adams' spirited song, "The Veteran's Song," and in response to a hearty encore sang, "Because of You." Mr. Jolliffe and Mr. Legg were heard in a duet, "The Battle Eve," by Bonheur, which proved to be one of the most enjoyable numbers of the evening. As an encore the "A. B. C." duet was sung.

The closing number was an unaccompanied chorus, "Good-Night, Gentle Folks," by Thompson, and proved an appropriate conclusion to a splendid programme.

TEMPORARY INSANITY

Wm. McCormack of Havelock Comes to Peterboro' Jail

Strange Action of a Man, at Havelock —Need of House of Refuge.

William McCormack, aged about 35 years, who has been living in Havelock, for the past few weeks, but who hails from Devonshire, England, and who has a wife and child there, has been committed to the Peterborough jail for the present, on a charge of insanity.

McCormack, while seated in the reading room of McNicholl's hotel, Havelock, on Sunday, concentrated his gaze on the coals of the fire, and in a few minutes was fast asleep. His condition was seen by the proprietor, and medical aid was summoned, but nothing could be done to awaken the man. On Monday McCormack came out of the cataleptic state but his conversation and other symptoms speedily convinced the medical authorities that he was insane, and he was accordingly committed to the Peterborough jail, temporarily — Havelock Standard.

This case emphasizes the need of a county House of Refuge, in which cases of this kind could be treated. A jail is not the proper place for the treatment of cases of this kind, and the county should provide a proper place of accommodation of persons afflicted as this man evidently is.

EXPERIENCE OF LAKEFIELD MAN

While Driving From Peterborough Horse Ran Away.

On Monday evening last a young man, accompanied by two young ladies, met with an unpleasant experience while driving home from Peterborough. When near Mr. Cullen's residence a deep pitch-hole was encountered, with the result that the sleigh was upset and the horse ran away, leaving the occupants on the road. A rig was secured from Mr. Cullen and the party reached home none the worse for the mishap. The horse and rig arrived at the livery barn without any damage being done. —Lakefield News.

THE LIBERAL PRECEDENT

The splendid administrative record of the Liberal Government of Ontario which even its bitterest critics did not, because they could not, successfully assail, is one of the most valuable assets of the province. It has not only served its important function in the process of compilation, giving Ontario the best and most progressive government a country try ever had—for even a short period—not to speak of a third of a century, but it has set a standard which public opinion, after it has recovered from the rather hysterical spasm of January 25th, will insist must be pretty closely followed. It is not quite the thing to say that the result of Wednesday was a Conservative victory—it could not have been accomplished but for the help of Liberals. In a sense, if we are fortunate enough to have good and capable government for, say, the next four years, it will only be by the application by the dominant party of administrative principles which the Liberal party has employed for the past thirty years. In a sense, therefore, the country will continue to enjoy the benefit of Liberal Government. And the more successful the Conservative Government is in the discharge of the great trust which represents the adoption of Liberal methods of administration, the more will the people of Ontario realize what they owe to the Liberal party of the province, which has established so magnificent a precedent of good government, that no successor can, with safety, afford to ignore it.

Toronto Saturday Night says: —"The Mail and Empire quite outdoes even its silly self by its wild manifestations of delight over the defeat of the Ross Government. It is evidently not satisfied with the victory, but must jump and dance upon the corpse of the deceased. If one had not seen the Mail during the campaign one might readily come to the conclusion, after reading its editorial page on Thursday morning, that the credit for the Conservative victory rested solely with the party organ. As a matter of fact, the Ross Government was defeated in spite of the beneficial influence which the Mail's silly campaign of hysterical screaming abuse had upon its chances of victory."

PREACHER WAS OVER EIGHTY

Rev. Canon Harding, who Preached at Apsley Recently

News From the North Districts—Apsley Cheese Factory Patron's Met.

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Apsley, January 24th.—We have the latest wrinkle in the line of road improvement and Mr. Geo. Bullied is a very popular man back here now, because he snow-ploughed about two miles of the road and made it first-class for travelling.

A meeting of the patrons of the Apsley cheese factory was held in the town hall on Saturday last and all arrangements were made for next season's work. Mr. John Hales was chosen President in place of Mr. Geo. Bullied who retired, and Mr. Duncan Brown was chosen salesman.

Rev. Canon Harding preached in the English church here on Sunday morning last. The Rev. gentleman is considerably over eighty years of age and it is remarkable to see such vitality in one so old.

Mr. Williamson, pastor of the Methodist Church here was summoned to Picton last week to attend the funeral of his aged father.

Mrs. Tom Lean took a surprise party of the young folks of the village down to Mr. Will Lean's. They found their host and hostess in excellent humour and a most enjoyable time was spent.

Miss Effie Staples and Mrs. Moffatt, sisters of Mrs. Esau Tucker, returned to Peterborough on Tuesday last after a very enjoyable visit with friends here.

Mrs. Kilborn went to Peterborough a few days ago to stay a couple of weeks.

FAITHFUL UNTO DEATH

There are a few of the old guard who hail the new regime with delight. One official remarked that he had waited 32 years for the day when his friends would be back in power. —World.

Among the officials up in the Legislative Buildings those who hail the new regime with delight are probably more outspoken than those who bid farewell to the old regime with regret. There is something truly romantic in the case of those officials who for 32 years have occupied positions under Liberal Governments, but always with a long sorrow gnawing at their hearts, because their own dear old party was out of power. Sometimes they could scarcely conceal their feelings, even in the presence of the cruel strangers who usurped the ancestral halls of the banished family, and they never drew their salaries without thinking of the absent Prince Charlie, and wondering when he would come back from over the waters. To "wait" for thirty-two years, to sit in the evening in the old tower, watching the rim of the distant hill for the loved form of the true lord of the domain, to start up in the night thinking that again is heard his familiar footfall ringing in the great hall, or his imperious rap against the great oak door. — all this meant worry and wear and tear, and we hope Mr. Whitney will be more grateful than Charles II. after the restoration, in remembering the loyal old codgers, who have never slept soundly in office since the bitter day when John Sandfield Macdonald turned away from the gate.

SLATE CZAR TO DIE

Boyevaya Terrorists Try His Majesty and Condemn Him.

DEATH BY THE CIRCLE OF FIVE

Sir Charles Hardinge's Protest Against Russian Proclamation Warning Muscovites That Britain and Japan Were Aiding and Abetting the Strikers Brings An Apology From Count Lamsdorff.

London, Jan. 28.—The most startling and impressive development so far in the Russian situation is the announcement that the Boyevaya, the extensive branch of the Terrorists, has placed the Czar on the list of those condemned to death.

Notwithstanding contrary reports, this is the first time the present Emperor of Russia has been condemned by this organization, which has the gruesome reputation of never having failed to compass the death of a man against whom its edict has been issued.

Its most recent victim was Von Plehve. After the destruction of this Minister the Fighting League, which is its English name, informed the Czar that he was not menaced by the body.

Czar Regularly Tried.

The league, though not accepting the Czar as the "Little Father" in the sense that he was the object of the idolatry of the Russian peasants, considered that he was not such an enemy to humanity as were the Ministers and grand dukes who surrounded him. But when he permitted his people, coming to him with child-like faith that he would protect and relieve them, to be shot down by thousands by his soldiers, his status changed.

He was regularly tried, in accordance with the procedure of the mysterious body, and the vote being against him, he was formally condemned to death. It is even stated that the agent is already selected who is to carry out the verdict of the court of terror.

The Fighting League consists of a hundred men, reputed to be the pick of the extremists of Russia. Every apostle of violence among the Russian radicals cherishes an ambition to be chosen one of this committee. It is the direct successor of the terrorists' organization which was exterminated at the time of the assassination of the present Czar's grandfather.

Under torture a member of the old body confessed and yielded the names of his associates. Those of them who were not executed, or who were within the reach of the Russian authorities, were sent to solitary confinement, and some are still in fortress dungeons expiating that sentence.

A Circle of Five.

The Fighting League organized by the survivors of the old Terrorist body took a lesson from the fate of their fellows, and now no member of the deadly one hundred knows more than five of his associates. These constitute his circle.

On occasions when a meeting is demanded for such a purpose as the present they designate a chief of the five to represent them. He is given the meeting place only a few minutes before the time for the session. The trials are said to be held with every member masked and shrouded, so that even if a traitor should be among the chiefs he could not betray his fellows.

The body is self-perpetuating. When a member dies or is imprisoned, or for any other reason no longer is able to act, a selection is made from among the thousands of sympathizers and he receives his notification of election to this aristocracy of violence.

There are circles in London, Geneva, Zurich, Paris and New York, but where the head centre is located, or who are the chiefs of the order, is known only to themselves. They claim to be conservative, if the word can be applied to such an organization, inasmuch as they are sparing with their condemnation.

BRITAIN'S PROTEST.

Heeded By Russia Which Makes An Apology Through Count Lamsdorff.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 28.—A profound sensation was caused here yesterday when Sir Charles Hardinge, the British Ambassador, went to the Foreign Minister and officially and emphatically protested to Count Lamsdorff against a proclamation posted throughout Moscow on Wednesday.

The proclamation warned the Muscovites that the strikers were aided and abetted by the Japanese and the British Governments; that the disturbances in the Russian dockyards and arsenals were incited by these enemies, and that Great Britain and Japan were spending vast sums to prevent the second Russian Pacific squadron from sailing.

Ambassador Hardinge pointed out that identically the same statements were published Thursday in The Russky Invalid, the organ of the Russian army.

Britain and Russia, hereditary enemies, have just bridged one war chasm with the North Sea inquiry now in session at Paris. Another gulf was widening between them until Russia in effect apologized for the proclamation.

After an investigation Count Lamsdorff gave the British representative full assurances that the Moscow proclamation had no Imperial sanction, and that such an announcement would not be repeated.

The people of St. Petersburg, outside of high official circles anyway, are angered by the proclamation. They regard it as a stupid calumny which might lead to serious trouble with England.

Governor Makes Promises.

Kovno, Russian, Jan. 28.—The Governor, in receiving a deputation of workmen yesterday, promised assistance in improving their relations with their employers. On the Governor's initiative the latter met and drew up a scheme for the amelioration of the workers' position. A proclamation has been posted by the Governor, urging the strikers to resume work and promising all legitimate help towards obtaining a satisfactory settlement of their just demands, at the same time announcing that he would have recourse to the troops in the event of street disorders.

Strikers Accept Promises.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 28.—The strike situation generally is improving. In St. Petersburg there is no longer any doubt that the strike is practically broken. Fourteen establishments, including the Franco-Russian Aboukoff, Baltic, Russo-American Rubber Co., and Ropes American Refinery already have resumed, and an entire starting up of factories seems to be assured for next Monday. A remarkable feature is that the men who are returning to work are not asking conditions of the employers. They have seemingly turned their backs upon political agitators and accepted the Government's promises in the matter of shorter hours and an equitable adjustment of their grievances at their face value.

That the Government purposes to compel settlement upon the Government's terms is plainly evidenced by Finance Minister Kokovsoff's response to a deputation of masters Thursday to whom he announced the Government's decision, after an impartial investigation of both sides of the controversy to carry out the letter and the spirit of the proclamation of Jan. 25. Naturally to the masters this means they will have to foot the bills.

WINTER SEASON AT HALL'S GLEN

Many Interesting Items of News from the Village.

From our Own Correspondent.

Hall's Glen, Jan. 24th. — The construction of the new wharf at McCracken's Landing affords employment for a number of men and teams of this neaighbourhood.

Mr. A. P. Carveth, who spent last Sunday visiting with friends at "Lundy's Lane," called at the home of his brother on his way back.

The blacksmith of our village has been very busy of late. He is working up a good trade in this neighbourhood.

We regret to learn of the intended departure of a prominent young lady of this locality in the near future. We wish her every success.

Mr. W. Carveth, who broke up his camp last week, has been working for the Government ever since.

Some of the farmers are still hauling their oats back to Burleigh. The market has been booming there.

A very quiet wedding took place in this neighbourhood on Wednesday evening, the 11th inst, when Miss E. Zinstine, daughter of Mr. George Zinstine, was united in marriage to J. Anderson, of Otonabee. After the ceremony a sumptuous supper was served, of which all partook heartily. The large number of guests present were hospitably entertained by the host and hostess. The newly wedded couple received many good wishes and congratulations during the evening.

On the evening Thursday, the 19th inst., an interesting debate was given by the members of the debating society in the village hall, upon the subject, "Resolved—That the steamboat has been a greater factor in civilization than the railway." The affirmative was presented by Miss E. Payne, with Miss P. Colestone and Messrs. Crowe and Lynn as her assistants. The negative side was upheld by Mr. A. C. Carveth, with Mr. Payne and Mr. Madill as his assistants. Both sides were ably presented. Mr. G. Crowe, as judge, gave the decision in favour of the negative. The literary society is now a flourishing institution with 50 members, and the meetings are attractive and full of life. The society intends giving a lunch social on Thursday evening, Feb. 2nd, in their hall.

FRAIL LITTLE ONES.

The little ones are frail. Their hold upon life is slight. No symptom that indicates any of the little ailments of childhood should be allowed to pass for a moment without proper attention. The little ailment may soon become a serious one, and then it may be too late to save a precious little life. If Baby's Own Tablets are kept in the house, the danger of serious trouble can be averted and the minor troubles promptly cured. An occasional Tablet to the well child will prevent illness. The tablets are absolutely safe and contain no poisonous soothing stuff—they give children healthy sleep simply because they banish the cause of sleeplessness. Mrs. F. B. Bishop, Lawrencetown, N.S., says:—"I have found Baby's Own Tablets just as you represent them—the very best of medicine for young children." You can get the Tablets at druggists or by mail at 25 cents a box by writing to the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Kills His Crazy Father.

Montreal, Jan. 27.—It has been reported at Esquimalt Point that a young man named Sauvageau has killed his insane father and burned the body. The crime took place at St. Augustine, 250 miles from the Point and Dr. Tremblay, the coroner of the district, is now en route to investigate.

Ladrones Demand Ransoms.

Manila, Jan. 27.—The leaders of the band of Ladrones which recently attacked the town of San Francisco De Malabon and captured the wife and two children of ex-Governor Trias, now demand a ransom for the release of the captives.

D.—The Spinal Cord carries nerve force from the brain to the nerve fibres.
E.—Cauda Equina.
F.—Sciatic Nerve, the derangement of which is known as sciatica and sciatic rheumatism.

As this all-important nerve force is created in the nerve centres of the brain and spinal cord, and conducted along wirelike nerve fibres to the various parts of the body, any derangement of the brain, spinal cord, or nerve fibres may result in paralysis or loss of the power of movement.

Paralysis, then, is the natural result of all neglected nervous diseases.

If you find yourself nervous and irritable, oversensitive to light, sound and motion, addicted to continual movement or tapping of the fingers, twitching of the muscles, sudden startings and jerkings of the limbs during sleep; if you have nervous headaches or dyspepsia, are unable to sleep or rest, feel down-hearted and discouraged, and unfit to fight the battles of life; if your nerves are weak and exhausted, and your blood thin and watery, you have every reason to fear paralysis of at least some part of the body, and consequent suffering and helplessness.

Paralysis can always be prevented and partial paralysis actually cured by the timely use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. The time to begin treatment is when any of the above-mentioned symptoms become apparent. These are indications of a degeneration of the nerve cells, and when nerve force becomes exhausted paralysis is bound to follow.

acts on the system in an entirely different way to ordinary medicines. It is neither a stimulant to whip tired nerves to renewed activity, nor a narcotic, nor opiate, to deaden the nerves. On the contrary, it is a food cure, which forms new, red corpuscles in the blood, and creates new nerve cells. Every day it is bringing back health, strength and vitality to scores and hundreds who have become discouraged through the failure of doctors and other treatments to cure them. Write for symptom blank and further particulars regarding this great food cure. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50. At all dealers, or EDMANSON, BATES & CO., Toronto.

PROVINCE OF ONTARIO'S FOREST WEALTH

Director Southworth Gives the Empire Club Some Interesting Figures.

Mr. T. Southworth, Director of Colonization and Forestry, delivered an interesting address at the Empire Club luncheon at Webb's, Toronto, on Thursday, in which he dealt with the resources of Ontario as one of the units of the Empire, particularly in regard to the possible eventual revenue from the proposed extension of the forest reserves. At the present time these reserves he said, covered about 7,000,000 acres. The suggested extension included the land peculiarly suited for forest growth, and unsuited for general farming. It comprised the Laurentian backbone of the province, forming the water shed of the rivers flowing north and south, and separating the settled agricultural district of southern Ontario from the undeveloped agricultural district north of it. This would bring the permanent forest area of the province to probably 40,000,000 acres. Mr. Southworth estimated that this territory placed under proper scientific management, as it doubtless would be in time, when again brought into a productive position carrying pine forests as it had done before, would represent an annual increment of growth of $30,000,000.

A hearty vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Southworth at the close of his address. Colonel Jas. Mason presided.—Globe.

Something New In----- SARDINES.

The best sardines in the world have been caught recently off the shores of Norway. These have immediately been pronounced by French and other European countries as Par Excellence. The best brand is put up by Stavanger Preserving Co., Norway, under the name of "Crossed Fish" brand. The fish are very small and very tender; they have been slightly smoked before being preserved, which not only adds to their delicacy of flavour, but prevents the indigestive "rising" after eating, so customary with ordinary sardines. The genuine sardine is far above the common herrings sold as sardines, as all connoisseurs well know. To be sure you are getting the best order

MR. ROSS IS TO LEAD

His Present Intention is to Remain in Legislature.

RESIGNATION NEXT WEEK

Little Done At Friday's Cabinet Meeting —Final Action As Regards Resignation Delayed Until the Other Ministers Can Be in Attendance—Another Meeting of the Cabinet On Monday.

Toronto, Jan. 28.—A meeting of the Cabinet, lasting two hours, was held yesterday afternoon, and at its close the information given to the newspapermen had relation to the superannuation of a few teachers and some minor appointments. Those present were the Premier, Hon. Messrs. Harcourt, Dryden, Graham and Charlton, the absentees being Hon. Messrs. MacKay, Latchford, Gibson and Evanturel, who were not in the city. The Premier declined to see the reporters.

Resignation Early Next Week.

It was learned, however, that notification to the Lieutenant-Governor of the resignation of the Government will not be delayed beyond the early part of next week. The question was naturally discussed at the meeting yesterday, but there was a disposition to delay final action until other of the Ministers can be in attendance. All the Ministers are anxious to hand over their departments to their successors at the earliest possible moment, and there is no desire on the part of any of them other than to facilitate the necessary formalities. Another meeting of the Cabinet will be held Monday.

His Honor the Lieut.-Governor, who will soon be calling upon Mr. Whitney to form a Government, said yesterday he had no news for the press:

Mr. Ross to Lead Opposition.

The Globe understands that Mr. Ross has no present intention of withdrawing from public life, and will remain in the Legislature as leader of the Opposition. Those who have been in conversation with him state that Mr. Ross is by no means discouraged by the result of the election, but is looking forward with much interest to his work as leader of the party to the left of Mr. Speaker.

The corrected returns, up to date, are:

Premier's Majority.

Glencoe, Jan. 28.—The official count for West Middlesex gives Ross, Liberal, 2,042; Stewart, Conservative, 1,930; majority for Ross, 113.

Mr. P. D. Ross Declines the Patronage.

Ottawa, Jan. 28.—Mr. P. D Ross, one of the defeated Conservative candidates, has written as follows to the President of the Conservative Association:

"Dear Sir,—In connection with the victory of Mr. Whitney in the Provincial election yesterday I understand that as one of the candidates of the Conservative party in Ottawa I would be entitled to a voice in the disposition of such official matters as may concern the Ontario Government in this city. Had I been elected I would have been prepared to accept that as well as other responsibilities, but under present circumstances I have no desire to influence Provincial patronage here, and so far as I am concerned I hereby request the Conservative Association to assume the responsibility in whatever manner the association prefer."

INDIAN EDUCATION.

Mr. Cockshutt's Testimony Regarding Condition of the Six Nations.

Ottawa, Jan. 28.—Commendation of the Government's Indian policy by Mr. Frank Cockshutt, the Opposition member for Brantford, was one of the events of yesterday's short session of the House. Mr. Cockshutt spoke most encouragingly of the condition of the Six Nation Indians, and looked forward to their being again given the franchise. Some time was spent by members on both sides advocating greater conveniences and comforts for the representatives of the people, who have to spend so much time in Ottawa away from their business. Sir Wilfrid announced that the Northwest bill would probably be ready by the second week in February.

Mr. W. F. Maclean, in reply to a question, was informed by Sir Wilfrid Laurier that as far as he was aware there had been no change of the instructions issued to Earl Grey from those ordinarily given to Governors-General.

Transcontinental Surveys.

Hon. George E. Foster asked whether the Minister of Railways had any information to give the House in reference to the surveys for the transcontinental railway between Quebec and Moncton.

Mr. Emmerson replied that the survey parties would report to the Transcontinental Railway Commission, and that no report had yet been transmitted to the Department by the Commission, who were required to report annually.

Mr. Foster became insistent in his demand for information because of reports he had read, contending that the House was entitled to all the information available. Members ought not to be required to wait for the annual report.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier suggested that Mr. Foster would have to wait, at all events, until there were reports to bring down. The discussion was, he pointed out, premature. In reply to Mr. Haggart the Premier said he assumed probably there had been interim reports made to the commission, but so far as his knowledge went there has been no final report yet sent to the Department.

Federal Standing Committees.

Chairman of the Standing Committees of the House were elected as follows yesterday morning: Public Accounts, C. F. McIsaac; Banking and Commerce, Archie Campbell; Railways and Canals, Hon. Chas. Hyman; Privileges and Elections, H. J. Logan; Miscellaneous Private Bills, L. P. Demers; Standing Orders, George D. Grant; Expiring Laws, J. A. C. Ethier; Agriculture and Colonization, T. Greenway; Debates of the House, H. Gervais.

Only One Out of Three.

Toronto, Jan. 28.—The North Grey and North Norfolk Federal election protests will be dropped. They are in the nature of a saw-off.

The Wentworth protest will be tried in Hamilton, Feb. 1, on a stated case, the point being as to whether ballots initialed by a D.R.O. are invalid.

Dropped Dead On Street.

Sarnia, Jan. 28.—Thomas Donnelly, for many years the proprietor of The Sarnia Post, dropped dead on Military street yesterday morning, after having started out with his wife for a visit to Detroit. Mr. and Mrs. Donnelly were waiting on a corner for a car to take them to the depot. As the car approached, Mr. Donnelly took a step forward, and then fell back dead of heart failure. Mrs. Donnelly was completely prostrated. Friends assisted in removing the body to the family residence.

Mr. Wm. S. Crane, of California, Md., suffered for years from rheumatism and lumbago. He was finally advised to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which he did and it effected a complete cure. This liniment is for sale by all druggists.

Back to Ottawa.

Montreal, Jan. 28.—After a three days' stay in the city the vice-regal party left yesterday afternoon for their home in Ottawa, their special car being attached to the 4 o'clock express on the C.P.R. A large crowd of citizens assembled at Windsor street station to witness the departure. Their Excellencies being heartily cheered as they wended their way with difficulty through the throng to the train. Before leaving the party visited the Bank of Montreal.

Shot By Own Men.

Manila, Jan. 28.—Mrs. O'Neil, widow of Dr. O'Neil, the contract surgeon, killed in the attack by Ladrones in the town of San Francisco de Malabon, on the night of Jan. 24, and who was endeavoring to escape with her husband, confirms a report to the effect that when the surgeon was shot, he exclaimed: "I have been shot by our own men."

Boiler Explodes, Kills 3.

Buffalo, N.Y., Jan. 28.—The boiler of a Lehigh Valley locomotive drawing a freight train exploded at Gratwick last night, and three men were killed. One was injured and may die. George Wood and John Wood, brothers, of Caledonia, who were riding in the engineer's cab, were blown 50 feet, and killed instantly.

TORTURING DISFIGURING

Skin, Scalp and Blood Humours

From Pimples to Scrofula, from Infancy to Age

Speedily Cured by Cuticura when All Else Fails.

The agonizing itching and burning of the skin, as in eczema; the frightful scaling, as in psoriasis; the loss of hair and crusting of the scalp, as in scalled head; the facial disfigurements, as in acne and ringworm; the awful suffering of infants and anxiety of worn-out parents, as in milk crust, tetter and salt-rheum — all demand a remedy of almost superhuman virtues to successfully cope with them. That Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent are such stands proven beyond all doubt. No statement is made regarding them that is not justified by the strongest evidence. Bathe the affected parts with hot water and Cuticura Soap, to cleanse the surface of crusts and scales and soften the thickened cuticle. Dry, without hard rubbing, and apply Cuticura Ointment freely, to allay itching, irritation and inflammation, and soothe and heal, and, lastly, take Cuticura Resolvent, to cool and cleanse the blood. Largest Diamond Ever Found.

Johannesburg, Jan. 28.—The largest diamond ever discovered has been found near Pretoria. The stone weighs 3,032 carats, and is said to be a pure white diamond of good quality. It is locally valued at $3,500,000 to $4,000,000. The famous Kohinoor, which is valued at $600,000, weighs 123 carats, though it is said to have weighed 900 before it was cut. There is tremendous excitement here and at Pretoria as a result of the discovery.

Ryan Gets Five Years.

Toronto, Jan. 28.—"You were a trusted servant of the public and betrayed that trust. It was not the mere taking of the money but the impairment in the public mind of confidence in the institutions of the country." So said Chief Justice Falconbridge yesterday in sentencing James Ryan, a postman, for theft of money letters, to five years in the Penitentiary, dating from Nov. 8, last.

Pushing Real Estate Firm.

The old established real estate agency of Messrs. Lindsay & Might have been renovating and refitting their premises, next the arcade, with greatly improved results. Their own offices, as well as the three offices of the four of the East Gold Mining Company, have undergone a number of improvements, including repapering, heating with hot air, water privileges and other sanitary advantages. The services of Mr. Coleman Blewett, has also been secured to assist in looking after the outside work, who is prepared to drive to any desired locality on the interests of clients of the firm. Mr. Might is the oldest real estate dealer in Peterborough and it is gratifying to learn that already this month he has done business aggregating over $15,000, although January is said to be the slowest month of the year for real estate transactions. Look for their new list of offerings in Monday's Examiner.

A LECTURE ON "JEAN VALJIAN"

Given by Mr. R. M. Dennistoun at St. Luke's Church

A large audience was present last night to enjoy a lecture given under the auspices of the Men's Guild of St. Luke's. Mr. W. J. Kelly, the president, was in the chair, and made a good chairman.

The first number was a vocal solo by Miss K. Wilson, which was well received by the audience. The chairman then called upon the lecturer, Mr. R. M. Dennistoun, to proceed with his lecture.

Mr. Dennistoun's subject was "Jean Valjean," the hero of Victor Hugo's book, "Les Miserables." The lecture was given in a most pleasing style and held the rapt attention of the audience for over an hour.

Miss K. Wilson favoured the audience with another vocal solo. Rev. Mr. Langfeldt moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Dennistoun, which was seconded by Mr. J. J. Turner, jr., and heartily approved of by the audience.

The next open meeting will be held on Monday, February 13th, with a lecture on "Macbeth," by Mr. Jeffers. After singing the National Anthem, the meeting was brought to a close. Mr. J. L. Armstrong acted as accompanist.

SUBSCRIPTION LIST FOR DANTE LECTURES

Will be Opened in the Course of a Few Days.

In the course of a few days a subscription list for the course of lectures to be given here by Prof. Clarke on "Dante," during May, will be opened, and will be circulated in town. The object of going around with this subscription list is to ascertain to what extent the community is interested in this series of lectures. Since the undertaking of one, the latter taking 75 per cent. one, Prof. Clarke taking 75 per cent of the gross receipts, it is necessary to find out the extent to which interest in the course of lectures is being aroused in the community.

Should there be any subscribers who, after they have signed for tickets, afterwards wish to refrain from taking them, they will be at liberty to do so. The play will be opened about May 1st. No doubt there are a great many in town who will wish to hear these lectures on the great Italian poet, by one of the greatest scholars in the British Empire.

Stomach and Liver Troubles

Mr. Alex. M. Finn, Inkerman, N. B., writes: "I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for derangements of the liver and kidneys and stomach troubles, and can certify that they did me a great deal of good. I can heartily recommend them to anyone suffering as I did."

I have disposed of lease of my store and am going out of the grocery business. Big bargains in groceries will be given, as entire stock must be sold.—GEO. CARTON.

NEW PARK TO SUPPLY VAUDEVILLE SHOW

Park to be Opened at South End of Town During Coming Summer.

Vaudeville Performance and Other Attractions Every Evening.

Mr. J. H. Ryan's New Undertaking Which Should Meet Popular Favour.

An announcement which will undoubtedly be received with general favour, more especially by the more youthful portion of the citizens of the town, is the fact that Peterborough is to be furnished with a means to supply good wholesome amusement to its citizens during the evenings of the summer months. Our lack of an opera house suitable for theatrical attractions of any kind, has made it impossible for companies to perform here as in other towns of smaller size, and consequently the local public has had to go out of town to find the enjoyment which is provided by theatrical companies, and the like.

In view of this fact, arrangements have been made whereby a park will be opened up in the southern portion of the town, and a vaudeville performance, such as is given at Hanlan's Point, and at Munroe Park, in Toronto, will be given.

Prof. J. H. Ryan, who is at present at the City Hotel, has purchased one and a quarter acres of land, just below the street railway rink, or near the terminus of the car tracks, and early in the spring the lot will be fenced in and fitted up for a park. The natural conditions of the lot are favourable to this, and an attractive park can easily be fitted up. A boat house will be erected and boats will be rented to those desiring a moonlight sail on the river. The best available vaudeville companies will be secured and there will be a change of company every week. Mr. Ryan intends to open parks in other towns and by thus forming a circuit can secure first class companies. There will also be the popular "merry-go-round," and other features of a similar nature, to add to the interest and attractiveness of the park.

Everything will be fitted up for the convenience of the public, who will find the park a very enjoyable spot in which to spend the warm summer evenings.

The park will be free to the public in the afternoon, and in the evenings when the performance is in progress, there will be an admission fee of 10 cents.

Mr. Ryan has made an agreement with the street railway in connection with the undertaking, which is certain to receive public support and favour.

Mr. Ryan has had an extensive experience in undertakings of this nature, and has always met with success. He has travelled in the United States and in some Canadian cities exhibiting freaks of mankind, and in connection with vaudeville shows. He has on several occasions exhibited his curiosities at the Toronto Exhibition with much success, and he will have them here in connection with the park.

It is expected that the park will be opened on May 24th, when a balloon ascension will take place.

There is no doubt that the undertaking will be a success and the people of Peterborough will be pleased to take advantage of the opportunity which will be afforded them in the summer of spending the evenings in the cool park, and enjoying the popular style of entertainment which will be provided.

LINDSAY MET A DECISIVE DEFEAT

Trimmed by Locals Last Night —The Score 11-0.

A Game in Which the Visitors Were Entirely Outclassed—Some Features.

Another win for Peterborough, and this time a shut out! Last night for the third time this season the local septette defeated the Lindsay aggregation of hockeyists, but this last defeat was the most complete of the series, the score reading like this—Lindsay 0, Peterborough 11, and it might easily have been more had the locals been pushed, which they were not, at any stage of the game, and there was never any doubt as to the result. One of the best crowds of the season saw the game, which afforded the spectators plenty of amusement, and gave the rooters plenty to cheer for

The style of hockey was not equal to that of the game in Lindsay, when both teams put up a much better game than that of last night, but the main thing is that the homesters won and won easily, and the great majority of those who saw the game were satisfied with the realization of that fact, particularly when it meant that by winning the game the team has placed a lien on the District Championship, and taken the first step towards getting into the semi-finals, and the dear only knows how much farther, some say, the championship.

There is no disputing the fact that it will take better hockey than that displayed by either team last night to reach that goal, but it is a fact which experience this season has proven that the better the team opposing the local aggregation plays, the better will be the style of game put up by them, and a comparison of the game last night with that in Lindsay on Monday is evidence of the truth of this assertion. There were patches of some pretty nice hockey last night, both in combination work and individual plays, but of the former there was not enough, and it was principally by the latter that the game was one.

It was a comparatively clean contest, and while a number of the players were ruled off, none were penalized for more than one minute, and for only trivial offences, tripping being the most serious.

The referee, W. W. Muir, of Toronto, was very strict with the players, watching the off sides closely, and in fact caused some little dissatisfaction by calling off sides, when there seemed to be little or no occasion for it. On the whole, however, he gave satisfaction.

The Lindsay aggregation presented a different line-up to that of the previous game, Callaghan and Coyle, substituting Pringle and Duffus, but little improvement was noticed. In the second half there was a shake up in the team, only two players, the goal-keeper and point playing the positions that they did during the first period, but while this change may have had the effect of preventing as many goals being scored against them as would otherwise been the case, it was useless as a scoring expediency, for they could not locate the nets. Callaghan, the man famous in Lindsay for his deadly shot, tried to get in his work, but the attempt proved abortive.

The half time score was 7—0 and four were added during the second period.

There was little team play by either seven, but occasionally the home forwards would get a nice combination rush in, and in that case there was always danger in the vicinity of the Lindsay net.

Wasson distinguished himself last night by his splendid work in the nets, stopping a number of fine shots, and his ability to take care of Irving's dangerous lifts were particularly pleasing. The latter made a number of splendid lifts on goal, and in his ability to lift lies his chief value to the team. He is slow, but holds the puck well.

The home team's defence was all that could be desired. Glover took good care of everything that came his way, and figured in several nice rushes. At cover point, Crowley played his usual efficient game, and also took frequent excursions into the opponents' territory. Of the forwards Cavanah and Morgan were the pick, the former's shooting being the feature, while Morgan figured in a majority of the goals scored, playing his position splendidly. Parnell scored one of the goals, after a nice rush, and during the game gave his check plenty to do. Graham was always on the puck, and followed back well. He was instrumental in scoring several of the goals.

For the losers, McGrath in goal, was given plenty to do, and no fault can be found with his work. He stopped some shots which looked pretty good for scores. Beilley at point, checked well, and frequently took the puck up the ice for a score, but generally lost the puck before he passed centre.

The forwards are fairly fast, but they lack the ability to play combination, and although they occasionally got going they could not get in close enough to be dangerous. There is no fault to be found with their playing, save this fact, which after all is not their fault, it's their misfortune — they were outclassed by a better team.

The line up was:

PETERBOROUGH.

Wasson.
Glover.
Crowley.
Cavanah.
Parnell. Morgan. Graham.
Coyle. Parkin. Taylor.
Callaghan.
Irving.
Roilley.
McGrath.

LINDSAY.

Referee, W. W. Muir, Toronto; time keepers, J. T. McCabe, G. H. O'Neil, penalty time-keeper, J. S. Knapman; goal umpires, Eugene Hurtubise and Leggett.

HOW IT HAPPENED.

The game started off in good style with both teams on the alert; Callaghan got a shot on goal, but it went wide. Taylor missed an easy chance to score, and Parnell got away for a pretty rush, but no score resulted. Parkin was the first to go off for tripping. After a nice rush, Morgan shot on a pass from Parnell, the puck locating in the net, but it was called off-side, and the first goal was scored after the face-off, on a long shot from Cavanah, who took the pass from Morgan. Score, 1—0.

The second was scored in a few seconds from a face-off in front of the goal, Morgan sending in the shot. That made it 2—0.

Morgan rested one minute, tripping being the cause. Parkin made a nice rush but fell down on an easy chance to score. Irving then got in some pretty lifts right on goal, but Wasson took good care of them. Parnell went off for one minute. Cavanah and Morgan made a nice rush and the former sent a hot one on to McGrath, which he stopped. Taylor and Callaghan figured in a dangerous looking rush, but it was a false alarm, and a minute later Cavanah, Morgan and Graham went down for a score, Cavanah putting it in the proper place. The figures were then 3—0.

The next was scored in half a minute by Cavanah, who shot from centre; Callaghan and Cavanah were off for a minute. After a nice piece of play in which the puck travelled the whole length of the ice, Morgan scored on a neat pass from Graham. Score, 5—0.

The sixth was also scored in the same way, after a nice four man combination rush. The last goal in this half was the result of a fine dodging run by Graham, who passed to Morgan in front of the goal, and the umpire's hand went up. Score at half time, 7—0.

There was a general change in the visiting team in the second half, Irving coming up to rover, and Coyle dropping back to cover, and Callaghan took his place on the wing, while Taylor and Parkin exchanged places. No scoring was done in the second half for some minutes, and the play was almost even but gradually the superiority of the home team asserted itself, and after some nice team work Graham scored on a pass from Morgan, and the latter repeated the trick on a pass from Cavanah in a few minutes. The tenth was secured by Parnell, who took a nicely placed pass from Graham.

The teams now played with six men each. Parkin broke his skate, and Graham went off to even up.

Just before time was called, Cavanah notched the last goal after a nice dodging run through the defence, which made the score 11—0, and ended the game.

The visiting team was given a supper at McCallum's restaurant after the game.

TROUBLES OF A SLEIGH-LOAD

Took Seven Hours to Drive 10 Miles

The Recent Storm and its Effect on Things Generally.

Few persons who live in town, and who have no occasion to go out into the country, have any idea of the effect in the country districts of the recent storms, and this lack of knowledge has in some cases led to unpleasant experiences. With a little breeze blowing down the streets in town, we imagine that the weather is not half bad, but it should be remembered that a little windstorm in town is a blizzard in the country.

The country roads have been steadily growing worse and worse, and to-day, in some cases, they are completely blocked, and it is said that one can drive over fences and not know it.

During this week the railways have experienced the greatest difficulty of any period this winter, in operating their lines, and in some instances they were hours late. It is a peculiar fact, however, that apparently the worst place for storms on the whole line of the C. P. R. from Toronto to Montreal, is that stretch between Pontypool and Myrtle, and in stormy weather trains nearly always come to grief at this point.

For instance, a few nights ago, the C. P. R. express, due here at 11.25 a.m., left Toronto one hour late, and it should have reached here at 1.25, but she did not arrive until 5 o'clock, and the greatest difficulty was experienced around Myrtle and Pontypool.

The next night the engine on the local, which was an hour late, had the headlight smashed, and other damage done, in battling with the hard-packed snow.

A number of Peterborough people met with an experience, which, to say the least, was not pleasant.

A few nights ago a sleigh load of young people started out to spend the evening at a house about ten miles in the country. They left here at 5.30, and did not arrive at their destination until after midnight, and, of course, had to stay there all night. They started for home at six o'clock the next morning, and arrived in town at noon, a number of them with frozen ears and noses, and all thoroughly chilled from their long exposure to the cold. The parents of the young people were naturally much disturbed at their non-arrival home, as they were expected the same night, but they turned up at noon as stated, none the worse, except as stated above.

Other parties started out the same night for a drive into the country, but when they had gone a few miles they wisely decided to turn back.

Last night's storm was severe, and the railways again experienced considerable difficulty in operating their trains on time, the fine snow drifting on to the track.

TORONTO SAVINGS AND LOAN

Yesterday the twentieth annual meeting of the shareholders of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company was held at the head office of the Company, 437 George street, Peterborough. The reports presented revealed a prosperous year's operations and a generally flourishing condition of the affairs of the Company. The report of the directors showed a very gratifying increase of the earnings of the Company, the gross earnings being this year, $152,600.12. After the payment of obligations and all the expenses of management there remains a net profit balance of $93,487.89. Adding to this the balance forwarded from last year makes a total for distribution of $114,628.69. This permitted the payment of $60,000 in dividends at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum, of the addition of $30,000 to the reserve fund, which brings that fund up to $510,000, equal to 50 per cent. of the paid up capital stock, and of the increase of the credit side of the profit and loss account, by $24,628.29. Payments maturing during the year have been very satisfactory and the other obligations to the Company have been well met. Altogether the report shows a prosperous and promising condition of the Company's affairs. Reference was made to the death of one of the Vice-Presidents of the Company, Mr. Aaron Cox. The report was adopted and the officers for the coming year were elected as follows:—President, Hon. Geo. A. Cox; Vice-Presidents, Mr. Richard Hall; Directors, Messrs. Peter Hamilton, H. J. LeFevre, H. C. Cox, A. L. Davis, D. W. Dumble, Jas. Stevenson and W. G. Morrow.

Beginning with Monday next The Daily Examiner will be temporarily reduced in size. The reason for this is that a new Cox Duplex Angle Bar Newspaper Press, which is now at the railway station, will be installed and while it is being set up a smaller press than the one being replaced will be used hence the necessity of reducing the size of The Daily Examiner.

The new press is rendered absolutely necessary by the large increase in the circulation of The Daily Examiner and the consequent necessity of more rapid printing facilities The fine, new, modern press to be installed next week will print our daily edition in about one-quarter the time required by the old press. The Cox Duplex has a capacity of 6,000 8-page papers—printed, cut, pasted and folded—in an hour.

As soon as the new press is in operation the size of the paper will be a seven column, eight page publication.

THE PRICE OF ALE SOARS WITH SUGAR

Local Dealers Advance the Price of Bottled Ale.

The rise in the price of bread is bad, the jump in sugar bad also — but both of these pale into insignificance in comparison with the advance in price of pale ale. The brewers of beer have advanced their prices and in consequence the local dealers are compelled to follow suit. As a further consequence the consumers of bottled ale, will have to pay a higher price, which will perhaps make the consumption a little more pleasant, for in this world we are apt to value things according to the trouble it takes to get them. In our advertising columns is a notice of an advance in the price of bottled ale, by our chief dealers.

Thus do the necessities of life recede from popular access by going up beyond the reach of short purses. First bread, then eggs, then sugar, then beer. It will be tobacco next. We can do without bread by taking to "Quaker Oats." Sugar is not an absolute necessity. To get eggs we can live in Lindsay—eggs seem to be cheap there, but to think of necessities like beer and tobacco getting out of reach is sad indeed.

The Young Wife and the Honest Grocer.

A young wife decided to go to housekeeping and do her own marketing.

"Now I want to save all the money I can," she told the grocer.

"I am going to buy just as economically as I can, and I am going to do my own cooking and bake my own bread."

She saw some eggs.

"How much are eggs?"

"Well, we have them at various prices. The best are thirty cents a dozen."

"My, how expensive! Haven't you some for twenty?"

"Yes m'am, but I can't recommend them.

"But we are trying to save money."

"True, but you can't afford to save money on eggs, butter and flour."

"Those are three things you want good and you can't have them too good.

You can save in lots of ways but don't do it on the necessities."

"What is your best flour?"

"Royal Household."

"How much does it cost?"

He told her.

"Have you cheaper flour."

"Yes, cheaper in price but really not as cheap in the end. You see in Royal Household Flour you get the largest amount of flour value for your money."

"What do you mean by 'flour value'?"

"The largest amount of wheat nutriment—of pure flour.

"The cheaper the flour the less nutriment it has in it and the more bran.

"The bran is in all flour till its taken out.

"It's all taken out of Royal Household Flour, and that means the best machinery and the best milling.

"And another thing, madam, perhaps you haven't heard of the new process used in making Royal Household Flour.

It is purified by Electricity and that seems to make all the difference in the world in flour.

"Everybody wants "Royal Household" now—they seem to think it is healthier, and I guess it is."

Suddenly she looked suspicious at the earnestness of his argument.

"Don't you make more money on Royal Household Flour?

"No m'am—not as much as we make on cheaper priced flour."

"Then why do you recommend it?"

"Because when a customer once tries 'Royal Household' our trouble is all over. It sells itself after that and we never have any complaints. If you send to The Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., Limited, Montreal, they will send you the Royal Household Recipes.

"Well; send me a barrel of 'Royal Household' then; and I'll have some of those 30c. eggs too."

THE JAPS DEFEATED

Russians Inflict First Disaster of the War Upon Them.

THE CAPTURE OF SANDEPAS

Oyama's Troops Crossed Hun River and Attacked, But Were Driven Back By the Cavalry of Gen. Kuropatkin, Which Followed Up Its Advantage and Seized Several Villages and Prisoners.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 28.—The news of Gen. Kuropatkin's successful repulse of the Japanese advance comes most opportunely. The belief exists here that Field Marshal Oyama ought to take advantage of any depression prevailing in the Russian ranks, as the result of the news from St. Petersburg, to launch an attack against Gen. Kuropatkin's right; but the Russian commander-in-chief seems to have nicely turned the tables, inflicting considerable loss upon the Japanese on Thursday and taking several positions westward along the plain of the Hun River.

Evidently Gen. Kuropatkin is following up his victory, the latest despatches to the Associated Press from the front dated here on the evening of Jan. 27 indicating that there is a battle in progress extending along the centre and becoming more and more serious. However, it seems to be confined to artillery. If the fighting develops into a general engagement, military men here believe that it must reach out to the flanks, their opinion being that a frontal attack by either side under the present circumstances is impossible.

Kuropatkin Takes Sandepas.

Gen. Kuropatkin reports that Russian troops at 7 p.m. on Jan. 26, after a desperate fight, occupied the Village of Sandepas, which had been strongly fortified by the Japanese.

Gen. Kuropatkin, under date of Jan. 25, telegraphed as follows to Emperor Nicholas:

"The advance has commenced of our right flank against the enemy. We have occupied Khailstosa and Kheigoutaya."

Gen. Kuropatkin adds: No details have been received of the losses at Khailatosa and Kheigoutaya, which are seven versts southwest of Sandepas. We occupied Khailatosa without firing, the Japanese being bayonetted. Kheigoutaya was bravely defended, but we finally occupied it at 10 o'clock at night. Our cavalry pursued two regiments of Japanese Dragoons, which fled southeastward. On our left flank a detachment repulsed the Japanese and occupied a defile between Khandiensan and Expansan. Another detachment sent against the enemy's flank near Hindhecheng, forced the Japanese to retire and captured 200 cattle."

Supplementing the foregoing, General Kuropatkin says: "From later reports it appears that in capturing these positions we made prisoners of 100 Japanese. We also occupied the Village of Wheltaitse, on the Hun River, losing fifty men.

"On Jan. 26 our troops continued the offensive against Sandepas. The Japanese attacked our position near the village from the south and southeast, but were repulsed. Our cavalry participated, manoeuvring against the left flank and attacked the Japanese in the rear. Our force then attacked Sandepas and at 7 p.m., after a desperate fight, with the assistance of sappers, we surmounted the strong entrenchments and occupied the Japanese village. The same day our troops occupied the enemy's entrenchments at Shakhe and repulsed the Japanese attempts to retake them."

Japs Grow Active.

Russian Headquarters, Huan Mountain, Manchuria, Jan. 26.—After three months of quietude, the Japanese have resumed activity, attempting to force back the Russian right wing. A stubborn fight began Jan. 25 and is continuing to-day, Jan. 26, which may be a curtain raiser for the spring campaign. According to reports, the Japanese attack was repulsed and a Russian counter-attack was so energetically pressed that a village within the lower Japanese lines of strategical importance was taken. It is rumored that several Japanese guns were taken. There was no fighting at the centre or on the flanks. A bitterly cold wind is blowing, snow is falling and heavy frost prevails.

Killed By a Train.

Shakespeare, Jan. 28.—A man named G. Auerbrigg was killed while crossing the Grand Trunk Railway two and a half miles east of this place. His horse and cutter were all torn to pieces. Auerbrigg was about 60 years of age, and unmarried.

CATCHING DESERTERS.

How These From the British Army and Navy Are Caught.

Large numbers of men who desert from His Majesty's navy and army are clever enough to escape detection, but the majority enjoy very few days' freedom, owing to the cuteness of the police, who, as a body, seem to have a natural aptitude for arresting deserters.

As soon as a company sergeant in the army discovers that a soldier under him has broken leave, the fact is reported to the adjutant, and in the course of a very few hours the man is entered as a defaulter. A summary is taken of his kit, and all the missing articles are listed as "lost by neglect."

The military police are next given information concerning the missing soldier, and after so many days' absence he is classed as a deserter, printed descriptions being circulated among the constabulary forces throughout the country, and inserted in the police organs.

Policemen have the credit of remarkable smartness in arresting deserters, but as a matter of fact, their cuteness in this direction does not equal their cleverness in making friends in the right quarter, among a class that can give valuable information, and are not above "peaching on a pal," as they term it.

There is, in one of Britain's large garrison towns a detective who has arrested over fifty deserters in recent years, and has made quite a good thing of the rewards which are given by the authorities to those who effect arrests.

That officer of the law has several touts who frequent public houses and low lodging-houses, and learn from a man's own lips that he is a deserter. They take an early opportunity to warn the detective, for the sake of a shilling or so which he hands them for their trouble, and within a very few minutes the deserter is under arrest.

Constables adopt various measures to find out whether a man whom they suspect as a deserter is the individual required.

The practice mostly put in use is to walk quietly behind the suspected person, and suddenly call him to "Attention!" It frequently happens that the man responds in a soldier-like manner, and so gives himself away.

In naval ports there are special policemen engaged solely to search for and arrest deserters from the navy.

The story related by Mr. N. Ford, the well known conveyancer of St. Mary's, Ont., is but one of the thousands of tributes that are being paid to Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets. This is what he says: "For three years I have had a pain in my right side and back. I laid it to the liver and kidneys. I tried a good many medicines without relief, but finally got a bottle of Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets, and to my intense gratification they relieved both pains easily and quickly, and there has been no return of the symptoms since using them."

RURAL MAIL DELIVERY.

Conditions Do Not Warrant Its Establishment in the Dominion.

Ottawa, Jan. 27.—The attendance of members yesterday was considerably augmented in comparison with that of the earlier part of the week, a number of Ontario representatives having returned from the campaign. Rapid progress was made. Practically all the remaining votes for the postoffice were disposed of, and some items for Indian affairs were also voted. Incidentally Sir William Mulock expressed the opinion that conditions do not warrant the establishment of a rural mail delivery in Canada at present.

He also, in reply to a complaint by Mr. Ames of Montreal, explained the prompt and vigorous measures taken by his department in connection with the improper and surreptitious use of the electrical stamping machines at the Montreal postoffice by an employe of the Public Works Department, who stamped a number of envelopes for a friend in order to give them the appearance of having passed through the mails. Mr. Ames charged that the object in view in stamping the envelopes by the official in question was to use them for purposes of the identification of "bogus" voters when challenged at the polls.

Replying to Mr. Sloan, the member for Comox-Atlin, Sir Wilfrid Laurier stated that the Government has no information that the Imperial Government intends to abandon Esquimalt as a naval station.

Hon. Mr. Fitzpatrick, replying to Mr. Ralph Smith of Nanaimo, stated that the Dominion Government has disallowed the bill imposing an educational test on Japanese emtering the Dominion, passed by the British Columbia Legislature at its last session, because it was ultra vires or interlered with the Dominion policy.

Among the petitions presented yesterday was one by Mr. Ralph Smith from the municipal council of the city of Nanaimo, asking for legislation from Parliament to prevent telephone companies from using their streets without the consent of the city.

Struck By Freight Engine.

Thamesville, Jan. 27.—James Kennedy of Hamilton, foreman of the Grand Trunk carpenter and bridge gang, while working at Decow's bridge yesterday, three miles west of Thamesville, was instantly killed. While giving an eastbound freight a signal to come ahead he turned and slipped between the rails and was struck. Deceased was a widower and leaves three small children.

Bought Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and Sent it to Friends.

Mr. F. W. J. Fletcher, a druggist in Victoria, Australia, says: "A customer of mine, was so pleased with Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which she had used for her children when suffering from colds and croup, that during a fortnight's time she obtained at my shop, nine bottles, which she sent to her friends in different parts of the state, telling how much good it had done and advising them to give it a trial." For sale by all druggists.

Burned to Death.

Dominion City, Man., Jan. 27.—During a violent storm Wednesday night the shanty of William Hosick, who was "batching" near Indian reservation, on the rapids of the Rosseau River, was burned to the ground, and a search revealed his body charred beyond recognition. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Train Falls 50 Feet Into River.

Doylestown, Pa., Jan. 27.—Four men were instantly killed yesterday by an accident at Rurham furnace. The men were operating a cinder train, which ran into a snowdrift, jumped the tracks and went over an embankment 50 feet high, into the Delaware River.

PATRIOTIC EDUCATION

HON. DR. MONTAGUE MAKES STRONG PLEA FOR STURDY CANADIANISM.

Canadian Clubs Foster Strong Home Sentiment—The Example of Japan—Our Native-Born Citizens—Stirring Episodes in Our History—Chair of Canadian History in the Chief University Strongly Advocated.

St. Catharine's Canadian Club recently listened to an address by Hon. Dr. Montague on the study of Canadian History. In part the doctor said that what Canada has wanted through all its history is a strong Canadian sentiment, and we cannot have Canadian clubs throughout the country without maintaining and sustaining that sentiment. Referring to the example of Japan, he said, her success to-day was due to her systematic teaching of patriotism in every department of her educational system. Canada has sadly lacked in this respect; the patriotic sentiment has not been sufficiently developed in this country. Happily this is passing away. Canadians were beginning to pay more attention to their country. Patriotism is growing in Canada. He liked the spirit that influenced that old patriot to say "My country may she always be right, but my country right or wrong."

Of the Canadian population 87 per cent. are native born. That was a marvelous compliment to our national development, showing that the development of Canada has been practically accomplished by Canadians themselves. Providence was wise in allowing this for there are no persons like those to the manor born who can so well lay the foundation of a country. In the great Northwest there are three Canadian born citizens to one foreigner to-day, which is a matter of congratulation, as it ensures the future of our great heritage. The speaker said he would like to see established either by the Government or by private subscription a chair for the study of Canadian history in our chief university. This he thought was necessary if patriotism was to be fostered, and made to grow in Canada.

Some say there is little of interest in the history of Canada, but he wished to argue against that view. Was there not something stirring in the story of the sturdy pioneers who came here and hewed out homes in the wild country? Was there no interest in the history of the United Empire Loyalists who left their homes across the line and came to Canada because their loyalty to Britain would not let them remain under a foreign flag? Then there was the story of Lasalle and his voyagers who forged their way westward, and the story of Canadian boys who fought and died at Queenstown Heights or who gave up their lives in South Africa. Was there nothing in the story of our commercial and political development, which would prove an interesting study to the boys and girls who hold the destiny of this grand Dominion in their hands? "Surely," remarked the speaker, "it would be a source of interest and wonder to our boys and girls to learn of the wonderful development of their country. Yet if you visit our public school to-day you will find that very little is being done to instil pride of country and pride of possession into the minds of our boys and girls."

Dr. Montague spoke of the prejudice which exists in England and Scotland against Canada, and he said he was of the opinion that this prejudice would never be dissolved until we thoroughly informed the old country people regarding our country's wonderful possibilities. He believes in Canada himself and was proud that he was a Canadian.

"Sir Wilfrid Laurier was right," said he, "when he declared that last century was the century of the United States, but that this century was the century of Canadianism. The agitation for reciprocity with Canada is growing across the line. They are beginning to find out ever there the magnitude of the Canadian market. Why an apostle of reciprocity was sent over to Toronto from across the line to impress upon Canadians the importance of commercial reciprocity between Canada and the United States. "And I have this to say with every emphasis, that no party in Canada should consider any policy that is not thoroughly and absolutely Canadian, or that is dependent on any other nation under the sun. It is our mission to perpetuate for ever on the American continent the British institutions which we love, and it is just as well to let our American cousins know this, so that they will make no mistake about it."

Dr. Montague then spoke of the similarity between Canada and Australia. In the first place they are British, secondly they are in confederation, thirdly they are English speaking, and fourthly they are in their early development as we are. In some ways Australia is not so British as Canada, yet in other ways she is more so than we are. Yet she has not had to suffer the loss of territory as has Canada. The Australian confederation is called not a Dominion but a Commonwealth, and he did not like the reason. It was called such because in Australia it was believed that we in Canada were not so free as the people of the United States. Australia got confederation too early. In Canada confederation came as the result of a deadlock, which, being broken by compromise, resulted in a united whole. In Australia confederation was due to agitation. As an evidence of how forced must have been their confederation, as the capital of the country they had named a place with one saw mill, one hotel and one house. He could not remember the name of it.

So far as her constitution is concerned, Dr. Montague was afraid that Australia would have to recast it. Canada, on the other hand, looking back over the last thirty-seven years, if she had to do it over again would not change by scarcely a line the splendid constitution constructed by the leaders of both the political parties. Dr. Montague said that the Australians speak music hall English, the people of Sydney, he was told, walk with short steps, which may be significant in view of the fact that Australia was once a penal colony." They are English. They have their difficulties, said the speaker. "They have difficulties yet they have no French, and right here I may say I believe Canada is the better for having its French, as England is better for its mixed race of Danes, Saxons and Normans. Australia has a race question. The cry there now is for a whiter Australia. The Solomon Islanders are coming in in such numbers as to seriously influence the labor market. He believed that the country has a limit of population. Ten millions is the limit in his opinion, whereas 100,000,000 of population is not a limit for Canada. If Canada has not 15,000,000 or 20,000,000 people within the next twenty years he would be very much disappointed.

The lack of Australia is the home fireside, because there are no long winter evenings as we have in Canada, where our boys and girls derive the advantage of home influence. There the children go to the parks every evening the year round. The development of the country will naturally be limited. The question of water supply is a very serious one in Australia. Cities have to bring their water a distance of over 300 miles. The animals of Australia are different from the Canadian. He would tell what Max O'Rell said of Australia. "Their birds are without song, their flowers without odor and their women without virtue." He would not say the last himself, as he believed differently, but he could attest to the others. In many other particulars was Australia the inferior of this Dominion.

HIS FISCAL POLICY.

Premier Balfour Denies Charges of Opponents and Makes Announcements.

London, Jan. 27.—(C. A. P.)—Speaking to his constituents in Manchester, Premier Balfour denied the assertion made by his opponents that he had been vague regarding the fiscal question in his utterances. Mr. Morley had offered a reward to anybody who could state his fiscal policy on a sheet of note paper. He would do it on a half sheet. Holding up a sheet of note paper he read from it:

"I desire such an alteration in our fiscal system as will give us freedom of action, which is impossible while we hold ourselves bound by the maxim that no taxation should be imposed except for revenue purposes. I desire this freedom in the main for three reasons—it will strengthen our hands in negotiations by which we may hope to lower foreign tariffs; it may enable us to protect the fiscal independence of the colonies, which desire to give us preferential treatment; it may be useful where we wish to check the importation of those foreign goods which because they are bounty fed or tariff protected abroad are sold below cost price here.

"Secondly, I desire that closer commercial union with the colonies which has received so much colonial support. I think it might produce great and growing commercial advantages both to the colonies and the mother country by promoting freer trade between them. Such a commercial union is beset with many difficulties, but those can best be dealt with by a colonial conference, provided its objects are permitted to be discussed unhampered by limiting instructions. I recommend that the subject shall be referred to a conference on these terms.

Colonies and Preference.

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, M. P. (Liberal leader), addressing his constituents at Queensferry, said he believed the colonies would be unwilling to give us any preference that would affect their advantage over us. The colonies were bound to us by ties of blood, long association and common interest. Mr. Chamberlain's theory tended ultimately to imperil the unity of the Empire.

Do Not Suppress a Cough.

When you have a cough do not try to suppress it, but remove the cause. The cough is only a symptom of some disease, and the disease is what you should cure, then the cough will stop of itself. The most common cause of coughing is a cold. Anodynes will promptly suppress the cough, and preparations containing chloroform opium, etc., are used for that purpose, but they do not cure the cold. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy on the other hand does not suppress the cough, but relieves it by removing from the throat and lungs the mucus which obstructed the breathing and allaying the irritation and tickling in the throat. It also opens the secretions and effectually and permanently cures the cold as well as the cough. For sale by all druggists.

Pronunciation of English Names.

The London Chronicle gives the pronunciation of a number of names of places in England where "phonetic laziness" has made the spoken name of the town far different from the written name. The eccentricities of pronunciation are as great as those involved in calling the family names of Cholmondeley Chumley and Colquhoun Cohoon. According to The Chronicle, these are the local pronunciations: Rhudbaxton, is Ribson; Woodmancote, is Udlenmuckat; Sawbridgeworth, is Sapser; Churchdown, is Chosen; Sandiacre, is Senjiker; Chaddenwyche, is Charnage; Happishburgh, is Hazeborn; Salt Fleetby, is Sollaby, Almondesbury is Amesbury, and Congresbury, is Commesbury. Of places better known Ulverstone, is Oost'n and Hurstmonceaux, is Horsemounces.

An Anecdote of Kitchener.

One who served with Lord Kitchener in Egypt tells the following anecdote of him in The Liverpool Daily Post: "During the progress of some construction work in upper Egypt the young subaltern in charge had the misfortune to lose some native workmen through the accidental explosion of some cases of dynamite. He telegraphed to Lord Kitchener, then Sirdar, 'Regret to report killing of ten laborers by dynamite accident.' In a few hours came this laconic despatch: 'Do you need any more dynamite?'"

No joy or pleasure on this earth quite equals that which comes into the home when baby arrives. Who can describe the happiness of man and woman, joined in wedlock, as they look upon the fragile, delicate mite that is blood of their blood and flesh of their flesh? And who can depict the hopelessness and dejection that hover about the home where the wife is incapable of becoming a mother? Barrenness proceeds from some derangement of the distinctly feminine organs. Many of the common ailments known as "female troubles" cause it. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription overcomes barrenness by stamping out diseases of women, and by healing and curing ulceration. It tones up the system, stops drains, and restores strength. During gestation it modifies morning sickness, gives elasticity to the overstrained parts concerned, makes the hour of baby's coming short and almost painless, and gives wonderful recuperative power to the patient. By making the mother strong and cheerful, it makes the little one healthy, vigorous and good natured. Insist upon the medicine dealer giving you Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription when you ask for it. Substitutes are often dangerous.

Mrs. James W. Blacker, of 629 Catherine St., Syracuse, N. Y., writes: "Your medicines have done wonders for me. For years my health was very poor; I had four miscarriages, but since using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Favorite Prescription' I have much better health, and now I have a fine healthy baby."

For 21 one-cent stamps to cover cost of mailing only, you can get a free copy of that celebrated doctor book, the Common Sense Medical Adviser, 1008 pages, illustrated. Cloth-bound, 50 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

It is better than electricity, because it does not scar or produce a new growth. Better than X-ray, because it does not burn, scar or paralyze the tissues under the skin. Better than depilatories, because it is not poisonous; therefore, it will not cause blood poisoning, or produce eczema, which is so common with depilatories, and does not break off the hair, thereby increasing its growth.

Electrolysis, X-ray or depilatories are offered you on the bare word of the operators and manufacturers. De MIRACLE is not. It is the only method which is indorsed by physicians, surgeons, dermatologists, medical journals and prominent magazines.

THE NEW MEMBER.

Seventy-four of the Eighty-three, One-Third of the House of Commons, Are Strangers in Ottawa.

H. F. G., in The Toronto Star, writes under date of Jan. 13, from Ottawa: The New Member is here—eighty-three of him, more than one-third of the House. Of the eighty-three, seventy-four are entire strangers to these parts, and nine are what you might call "hold-overs" from 1896 or 1900. Mr. Foster and Mr. Peter White are typical examples of the hold-over. Still, seventy-four new faces make quite a change in the political landscape, enough, at any rate, to write a strong moral on the mutability of earthly things. It was, doubtless, after attending the first session of a new Parliament that Omar Khayyam penned the lines:

We are no other than a moving row
Of magic shadow-shapes that come and go.

But politics leave no room for regret. One sigh for the vanished hand and the voice that will vex Hansard no more, one pang for Jones, or Brown, or Robinson, M.P., who was struck by lightning Nov 3, and it's time to catch up with the procession. Let the dead past bury its dead, but the Present belongs to the New Member. It isn't right to spoil his fun by too much sadness. The New Member is mostly a good fellow, and will make as good a friend as the man whose place he took. More than that, he is anxious to become acquainted, and it won't take more than one introduction to get thick with him. The best he asks is to be admitted to regular standing in the House of Commons Society of Good Fellows with as little ceremony as possible.

If the New Member offers a pleasing study in detail, he is just as interesting in bulk. Whether he comes from East or West, has a blue nose or a red one, is a Liberal or a Conservative, foregathers in No. 16 or No. 6, there are signs and tokens which write him down a New Member wherever he comes under the scrutiny of the curious. Outside all his local ear-marks, the New Member may be known for the next two weeks by his busy ingenuousness. It's information he's requesting. All sorts of people stray into No. 16, but it can be only the New Member who is forever asking "Who's that?" He has the right to know what company he's keeping.

The New Member is just now engaged in discovering the Parliament Buildings. He has a kink in his neck from looking at the objects of art, the statues, the stained glass windows, the portraits of Parliamentary worthies, the gargoyles and crockets, the clock in the tower, and the carvings in wood and stone. He is very much impressed by the library, admires Queen Victoria in white marble, and feels quite wise in the presence of so many books. As a rule, the New Member will not use the library very much. He will not bury himself in its studious alcoves, nor will he ask Mr. Griffin to advise him in a course of reading. But he likes to think that the books are there, and that by simply reading them he can be just as learned as the next man, and get off speeches that will not lack a proper spice of historical allusion. He can do this if he likes; but, having a lot of letters to answer and being much occupied in keeping his constituency warm, he will probably compromise by borrowing a few novels and not bringing them back. Mr. Griffin is rather glad to get rid of the novels, because they take up shelf space that might be better employed. Still he cannot help being alarmed at the growing taste for light reading among the Legislators. And the New Member is not the only sinner. Sir Richard Cartwright is now reading the Henty books for the third time.

The New Member is somewhat stunned by the crimson splendor of the Senate. He doesn't linger very long on that side of the House. Just long enough, perhaps, to find the shortest cut to the corner-stone, and the places of refreshment thereto contiguous. But he does feel at home at No. 16 and No. 6, on the Commons side, and in the smoking-room, where Jean Baptiste Morin plays checkers all day long. The New Member is very fond of writing at his desk when the House is not sitting. For a month or two he will have to pinch himself to realize that this seat is all his own, and that all this deference from pages and ushers and messengers is quite natural. He will send a messenger to his lodgings for his overshoes just to be sure that he isn't mistaken in his privileges. It may be mentioned that the New Member is a thrifty soul, and that he generally applies for his mileage as soon as he gets here.

The New Member is accompanied by his wife, the partner of his joys and the sharer of his greatness. She sits in papa's seat to see how it feels, and for the first time realizes what a wonderful man she has married. She partakes of the customary festivities that falls to a member's lot, and finally leaves Ottawa with the idea that she has had a social triumph. The glory of her achievements gains something in the telling when she returns home, and looks back at them from a distance.

The New Member is usually in tow of an old member, who is showing him the sights. An old member is anyone who can date back to 1903. Veterans like Dr. Sproule and George Taylor are rather bored by their surroundings. They have a nil admirari attitude which is hard to counterfeit. But the old member who acts as guide, philosopher and friend to the new man isn't always as old as he would like to appear. He is knowing enough, but he hasn't the ease that comes of long usage. As a matter of fact he was probably a New Member himself not more than four years ago, and life in the House of Commons can still give him some new thrills.

A True Nobleman.

The late Lord Rowton was a notable Englishman who devoted mind and money to the practical service of humanity. He will be best remembered for the establishment of several houses in various parts of London where the existence of hundreds has been softened and brightened.

One of the most charming characteristics of Lord Rowton was his devotion to children, which was not less than the remarkable devotion of children to him. One who knew him well says that he was the life and soul of any gathering of small people, and always the centre of their fun and happiness in their every-day play. And this applied to the children of the slums as well as to those of his own social rank, for like all genuinely charitable souls, Lord Rowton was democratic.

Another beautiful characteristic—or it may be considered an extension of the same one—was Lord Rowton's interest in the welfare of workingmen, hundreds of whom frequented his houses. It was his habit to go in and sit down quietly like one of them, play a friendly game of draughts, or chat in front of the fire.

He was adverse to all adulation and praise, and the men knew it. Outsiders were less discriminating, and to all who gushed over his charity he gave the same emphatic reply:

"This is not sentimental charity, but one placed upon a sound business basis. These are paying institutions."

Notwithstanding such disclaimer, Lord Rowton put considerable sentiment into dry details. He once asked a friend to inspect one of the houses and report the result to him. So his friend went to the house in the ordinary way with the other men. Shortly after he told Lord Rowton that he had been to the house.

"Well, what is the out?"

"The pillows are rather too well stuffed," was the reply, "and consequently too hard to the heads of the old men."

Lord Rowton said nothing, but the same day he issued orders for the removal of more than eight hundred pillows, and substituted as many of a softer quality.

FALLS OF BURLEIGH

Falls of Burleigh, Falls of Burleigh,
Where the foaming waters bound,
O'er a winding granite stairway
With deep harmony of sound,
Like prophetic voices chanting
Paeans infinitely clear,
Ever some great truth revealing,
To the comprehending ear.

Soothing strains steal through the senses
Gazing on thy ceaseless flow,
Languor, sorrow, pain, unheeded,
Vanish in the deep below.
Life becomes a dream untroubled,
Like the fluted, restless lake,
Calmed to still and tranquil motion
In thy current's placid wake.

Falls of Burleigh, time and distance
Cannot still thy wondrous song,
Neither dim the perfect vision
Of thy waters hurled along,
Faintly floating like an echo
Wafted from a spirit shore
Steals the chant my soul intoneth,
Evermore and evermore.

THE BEGINNING OF THE TROUBLE

Is the Time to Stop it—And the Means of Stopping it are Provided by Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Have your meals become of interest to you simply because of the trouble they bring? Is your appetite gone? Do you get up in the morning with a dark brown taste in your mouth? Is your head muddled and sort of half aching? Is your day's work a burden? Do trifles worry you?

If you have any of these symptoms it is time to pay attention to your stomach. It has been overworked and needs help. Attend to it at once or you will drift into indigestion and from that to Dyspepsia. Help your stomach with Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. They never fail to tone up the stomach and bring it back to a healthy condition.

Marie Ann Bujold, of Marie Uap, Bonaventure Co., Que., says: "For two years my life was a burden. I could not take the simplest food without having a pain across my stomach. One box of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets cured me and I have had no return of the trouble."

PRETTY WEDDING IN HAVELOCK

Miss Carrie Barlow Becomes Bride of Mr. S. Cross.

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Havelock, Jan. 27.—A very pretty weddihng was celebrated in the English church here at noon on Wednesday, January 25th, when Miss Carrie Barlow, youngest daughter of Mr. Isaac Barlow, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Samuel Cross, brakeman on the C.P.R., with headquarters here. The Rev. W. R. Tandy, M.A., officiated, the ceremony being performed under a bell which was made by the Misses Bryans for the occasion, of roses and ferns. The bride was charmingly dressed in cream Bedford cord over white silk and all over lace, bridal veil and orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and ferns, and was given away by her father. The bridesmaid, Miss Minnie Garrison, of Belleville, was dressed in cream serge, trimmed with chiffon and point d'esprit, picture hat of white ermine and violets, and carried a bouquet of pink carnations and ferns. The bride's travelling dress was green basket cloth with large pattern hat of black velvet with ostrich plume. Miss Beatrice Williams made a very charming flower girl and was dressed in cream with fancy collar and satin sash, carrying a basket of ferns and carnations. The groom was supported by Mr. John Barlow, brother of the bride. A number of very valuable and costly presents was given. None but the immediate friends and relatives of the family were present. The happy couple left amid a perfect avalanche of rice and good wishes on the 4.30 p.m. train for Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo and other interesting points along the way. Among the out-of-town guests was Mr. Wm. Barlow, brother of the bride, of Toronto.

TORONTO SAVINGS AND LOAN CO.

Proceedings of The Twentieth Annual General Meeting of the Shareholders.

The Twentieth Annual General Meeting of the Shareholders of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company, was held at the head office of the Company, No. 437 George street, Peterborough, on Friday, the 27th day of January, 1905, at two o'clock p. m.

The President, Hon. Geo. A. Cox, having taken the chair, the Manager Mr. W. G. Morrow, was requested to act as Secretary to the meeting.

After reading the notice convening the meeting, the Secretary read the Twentieth Annual Report and the accompanying Financial Statement.

DIRECTORS' REPORT.

The Directors submit herewith their Twentieth Annual Report, showing the result of the business for the past year, accompanied by the balance sheet, to the 31st of December, 1904.

The gross earnings for the year amounted to $152,600.12, and after the payment of interest on deposits and debentures, expenses in connection with money borrowed or loaned, and all expenses of management, there remained a net profit of $93,487.89. To this amount has been added $21,140.80, the balance carried forward from last year, which makes a total sum for distribution of $114,628.69. This amount has been disposed of in the following manner:

(1) By payment of four quarterly dividends of 1 1-2 per cent. each, equal to 6 per cent. for the year, and amounting to $60,000.00.

(2) By addition to the Reserve Fund, $30,000.00.

(3) By amount carried forward to Profit and Loss Account, $24,628.69.

The above addition to the Reserve Fund increases that account to $510,000.00.

All payments maturing during the year on the Company's investments have been most satisfactorily met, and the rentals from the property owned by the Company have also been promptly paid.

The books, accounts and securities of the Company have been carefully examined by the Auditors, and their report is appended to the Financial Statement.

At the close of the year just passed, we were called upon to mourn the loss of one of the Vice-Presidents of the Company, in the person of Mr. Aaron A. Cox, who, up to the time of his decease, took an active part in its affairs, having attended a meeting of the Directors the day previous to his death.

Messrs. Finlayson, Auld and Mackechnie still continue to act as the Company's representatives in Great Britain.

The officers and staff of the Company have performed their respective duties in a highly creditable manner.

HOLD FEWER EXHIBITIONS

Proposal to Reduce Number of Fall Fairs

Belief That a Smaller Number of Fairs and Larger Prize Money Would be an Improvement.

The leading agricultural societies of the province are evincing considerable interest in the suggestion that has been made by Mr. H. B. Cowan, Provincial Superintendent of Agricultural Societies, that the number of exhibitions held annually in Ontario should be materially reduced and that agricultural societies should receive their grants in proportion to the amounts they expend for agricultural purposes. Such a change would do away with all distinction between the township and district societies.

The Ontario Fruit Growers' Association has passed a resolution approving of these suggestions and and expressing the belief that such a change would result in larger sums of money being expended for agricultural purposes. The Executive of the Dominion Shorthorn Breeders' Association, at its annual meeting in Toronto on January 16th, also passed a resolution approving of these suggestions and stating its opinion that fewer exhibitions would result in larger attendances, better prizes and better exhibits, as well as a reduction in the undesirable features now so prevalent at many exhibitions.

IMMIGRATION WILL BE HEAVY

The Present Prospects are First Class.

It was a pleasure to look upon the 120 immigrants who arrived in Toronto yesterday morning from Halifax, where they were landed on Tuesday by the steamship Sicilian and steamship Lake Erie. With but a dozen exceptions, they were bright ambitious men and women, who looking for employment and homes in this country. The party included half a dozen exceptionally well-dressed women, accompanied by promising little children. The immigration office placed a number of the men in farming positions yesterday.

"They are the finest type of men and women with which we have had to deal in recent years," said Mr. H. M. Pereas, the immigration agent at the Union Depot. "Everything at present points to a record-breaking emigration to Ontario this year," he added. "The movement, starting this early in the year, strengthens this belief."

SOME EXCUSES OF CHURCH PEOPLE

For Their Non-attendance on the Church Services

A Sermon by Rev. E. A. Langfeldt on "Idle Excuses".

"Idle Excuses" was the subject of a practical and outspoken sermon last night at St. Luke's, preached by the Rector, to a large congregation in which a great numbers of young men were noticed. The text was from St. Luke, xiv; 18:—"And they all with one consent began to make excuse."

Mr. Langfeldt said that "Idle Excuses" is the oldest, as it is the commonest of sins. It began with Adam in Paradise, and ever since that time men have, more or less, continued with one consent to make excuse. When a man do wrong, instead of confessing his sin to God, he will take the devil's bribe, and allow him to put an idle excuse in his mouth. Mr. Langfeldt proposed to look some of these excuses fairly in the face. He was sure that his hearers had made them over and over again.

Some excuses for putting off repentance. One of the strongest weapons the devil has is to persuade a man to put off repenting. On the other hand, God says, "Now is the accepted time, now is the day of salvation." If a drunkard were to say that after another week of excess he would reform, or if a thief were to promise that after another robbery he would become honest, no one would believe in their repentance. Likewise with those who put off repentance from day to day; it is not real.

Another excuse for delaying repentance is "I am no worse than others." It would be a foolish thing for a drunkard to say that he was not worse than others, because there are many drunkards around us. Because your neighbour swears, or steals, or lies, that is no excuse for you to do the same.

Another excuse is: "It is so hard to repent." But it is still harder to die in our sins, and to receive the wages of sin which is death. It is hard to give up a bad habit but it is harder still to be ruined by it. If a man is in earnest about repentance God will help him. He will take the sinner under His guiding care and raise him up to a new life. But if a man is determined to do wrong, God will not help him against His own will.

Another class of excuses which people make for staying away from church, the Rector dealt with, "Church going will save no one." That is quite true. Those who attend church merely from habit, and are glad when the service is over, those who behave irreverently, whispering and laughing in the very presence of God, those people get no good, they had better stay away. Attendance at Church is a "means" of grace, not grace itself. If rightly used, it is a means of placing us in the way of salvation and of keeping us there.

Another self-excuser says, "Church going is a mere form and show, pure religion is not outside, but inside." That is true. But surely we must show outside what we feel inside. Supposing a friend made you a present, or your employer showed you a special mark of his good will by promoting you, would you leave him to imagine that your gratitude is inside, or would you not rather go and show him and let him know what is inside you of gratitude.

Another excuse,—"I can say my prayers quietly at home." The speaker doubted that such excusers would ever pray at home. All he knew of devout and consistent Christians were only too glad to go to church.

"Sunday is a day of rest, I work hard all the week, I like to rest on Sunday." Yes, God provides this rest for His people. But sloth and self-indulgence are not rest. The man who lies in bed half of the Sunday and gets up only to eat and drink, is simply dishonouring God and himself. The true meaning of all these idle excuses is just this: "People love themselves better than God." No converted man or woman would ever use such excuses.

"Sunday was so wet and stormy, I could not come to church." But Saturday is often just as wet and stormy, and yet people will go out, and buy food for the body, that body that will soon be in the grave, and the soul, which lives forever, was starved because it rained. It is so strange that to some people the rain is so much wetter on Sunday than on Monday. Again, "I live such a long way from church." This is a disadvantage. But this distance never keeps people away from town, or from their shopping or work. Another excuse is, "I was not well on Sunday." It is a curious fact that more people are unwell on Sunday than on any other day of the week. They are quite able to do business on Saturday, and are quite fresh for business on Mondays, but are poorly on Sunday. The disease is one of the will rather than the body. There is no will to come to church, and, consequently, there is no way. Another excuse, "I am not going to church any more, because the Rector does not call on me as often as he ought." But what has that to do with a man's personal relationship to his God? Are people only worshipping God as long as their minister pleases them? Yet, with a large number of people that is what church going amounts to—not the worship of God, and the giving of thanks to God for all His goodness.

Another excuse, which is as common, as it is foolish, "I don't go to church, but my wife does." So much the better for the wife; so much the worse for the husband. You cannot do your duty to God by deputy. There is an old legend of a man who never attended church, but whose wife did regularly. Both died. At the gate of Paradise the woman went in, but the man was refused admittance, on this argument, "Your wife worshipped God for both of you, and she is in Paradise for both of you. You cannot enter in.'

The Rector closed his sermon with an earnest appeal to think on these things, and to learn from these lessons. Miss Kathleen Wilson sang an offertory solo, "Abide with me."

A BRIDEGROOM CALLED AWAY

Husband of a Former Peterborough Lady Dies Suddenly.

Mr. A. C. Baker, who Married Miss Ruby Smith Died of Typhoid Fever.

The Examiner a short time ago recorded the wedding of Miss Ruby S. Smith, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Smith, formerly of Peterborough, where Mr. Smith was employed in the Auburn Woollen Mills, to Mr. Alfred C. Baker, and to-day it has to chronicle the death of the bridegroom.

A Lawrence, N. Y., exchange tells of his death in the following terms:

Alfred C. Baker died at his home in Schagticoke, N. Y., Wednesday, aged 24 years. Typhoid fever was the cause of death.

Mr. Baker's death was the source of grief among his many friends in Lawrence. He was married on Dec. 27, to Ruby S. Smith, of this city. The wedding ceremony was performed at the bride's home, 110 Bailey street by Rev. J. P. West. The happy young couple started on their honeymoon, followed by a shower of congratulations and two days later the bridegroom was stricken with the disease which caused his death.

Deceased was principal of a grammar school in Poughkeepsie, N.Y., and was organist and choir director in one of the churches in that city.

Mrs. Baker, the bereaved wife, is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Smith of 110 Bailey street. Mr. Smith is an overseer in the Washington mills. Mr. and Mrs. Smith and their other daughter, Miss Lillian Smith, have gone to Schagticoke to attend the funeral.

AN ESSAY ON BOOKS AS FRIENDS

At the Fortnightly Meeting of the T. A. S. Ladies' Literary.

A Most Successful Meeting—A Good Musical Programme.

The Ladies' Literary Association of St. Peter's T.A.S., held its fortnightly meeting on Friday evening, when an able and highly interesting essay on "Books as Friends," was read in a pleasing manner by Miss E. M. Powers.

The essayist introduced her subject by dwelling on how to read books, to get the value of the thought, the beauty of the thought, and the manner in which the author has brought out its value, or beauty, or both.

Miss Powers, in beautiful language, describes books as companions, that the class of books a person reads is an index of his character, and, likewise, the reading of good books assists a person to persevere in righteousness.

The writer refreshed her essay with beautiful quotations, which would inspire her readers to desire to know the great men of the past who rule us from their urns. She laid special stress on books being well kept in a library, and in choice language described Charles Lamb's love for his books.

Miss Powers treated her subject in a masterly way, and by her aptness of language and effective selection of detail, shows that she possesses literary charm and force.

Miss Coleman presided at the meeting, and the following programme added to the evening's entertainment:—

Instrumental solo... ... ...Miss LeGros
Recitation... ... ...Miss Kennealley
Vocal solo... ... ...Master C. A. LeGros
Instrumental solo...Miss V. Donoghue

The next meeting will be held on February 10th, Miss H. M. Cahill, will read a paper on Joan of Arc.

WINTER WALK OF 120 MILES

Is What a Scotchman Took Last Week

A Destitute Man Walked Entire Distance From Bracebridge to Toronto.

To walk in this weather from Bracebridge to Toronto a distance of some 120 miles, is a feat of which few men can boast, and yet James McConnell, an old Scotchman, trod that weary way in six days. He told his story at the Toronto City Hall on Saturday morning.

"I came out from Scotland not long ago, and tried to get work here in the city, I went to an employment agency, and the man there told me I could get a job in the tannery at Bracebridge. I gave the last dollar I had, and he got me a pass to Bracebridge. When I got up there and asked the manager of the tannery for work, he said: 'Oh, it's not old men like you we wanted, it's young fellows. We can't give you any work here.' I asked him if he couldn't let me do some little chores about the place, just to earn enough money to bring me back to Toronto, but he refused. Then I started to walk back. Oh, it was cold, and I had to sleep in farmers' barns, with only this old coat for a covering.'

Here he opened out a ragged old brown coat, incapable of affording much warmth to his old body. "It was hard walking, but I got through all right. Yesterday I came down from Newmarket."

"My wife died five years ago," said the old man, as he turned away, "and since then I've had hard luck. Nobody will give me work. I have a son in Rochester, a printer, and it's tough for me to be like this in my old age."

POLICE COURT NOTES.

Harold Pamphilon Charged with Theft —Wanted on Other Charges.

At the police court this morning, Harold Pamphilon was charged with obtaining money under false pretences from Wm. Cornell of town. It seems that the defendant drove to town on Sunday, Jan. 22nd, from Lindsay, in company with a boy, and left the horse at Cornell's livery. Upon leaving he said he was short of money and borrowed $1 from Mr. Cornell, stating that he had money in Lindsay. He did not return to settle and was arrested yesterday by Constable McGinty in Cavanville.

The prisoner is wanted in Orillia, upon a charge of swindling. His home is in Toronto, and he has been travelling under the name of Redmond, as an insurance agent. He is about 21 years of age. He was in the hands of the local police last week but was allowed to go as he protested his innocence, and because the description given of him as received by the local police, did not exactly tally with his appearance.

R. E. Wood for the Crown, and D. O'Connell for the defence, were the solicitors. The case was remanded until Feb. 2nd.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Constituencies are already beginning to urge the claims of their representatives in Cabinet positions.

Toronto is bound to collect pay for voting Conservative. The News is already demanding that the Provincial Government adopt a policy of paying for local improvements in the city.

The result of the recent elections is by many denominated a landslide, but there are exceptions. In North Gray, Hon. A. G. McKay's constituency, a Liberal majority of 5 was increased to 278.

Mr. Alex. McKinley, a resident of Chatham Township was one who didn't think it "time for a change." At the age of 80 he polles a Liberal vote and helped to elect his candidate. He has voted at every parliamentary election since 1840.

Reports say that a diamond worth four million dollars has been found in South Africa. If the diamond of pure water — Mr. Whitney—unearthed four millions, we should have enough to run the province—under Liberal management—a year without breaking upon the nearly four millions Hon. Mr. Ross has stowed away in the provincial stocking. We shall see.

Last year was a good year for good Governments. This is a bad one for good Governments. The "time for a change" cry has bowled out the Liberal Government of Australia which has been in power since 1867, four years longer than the Liberal Government of Ontario.

Mr. Whitney boasts that he is in power by the assistance of Liberals. If that is so his position is only rendered the more difficult. For thirty-three years Liberals have been accustomed to strong, honest administration and Mr. Whitney will have to give the same if he retains the favour of Liberals. Something he will find it a little difficult to do considering the influence of some of the elements that enter into his following.

EXPERT JUDGES AT FALL FAIRS

Superintendent Cowan of the Fall Fairs Department, said Friday that the movement for the employment of expert judges had gained greatly in strength during the past year. In 1903, there were 118 fairs which used experts; last year this number had increased to 152. The number sent out was as follows: Horse judges, 23; beef, cattle and sheep judges, 19; dairy cattle and swine judges, 20; poultry judges, 20; judges of dairy products, 3; lady demonstrators, 6; a total of 90.

SUCCESSFUL TEA MEETING AT CHEMONG

Financial Results Were Satisfactory—Good Programme was Given.

The tea meeting held recently in Chemong, was a pronounced success, even the bad roads failing to prevent a large number from attending. The speakers at the entertainment after tea had been served, were given a good hearing, and the financial results were most satisfactory, the receipts being $36.80 for the first night, and the second night at the social, $25.13.

ALL SAINTS' ANNIVERSARY

Third Annual Celebration of its Elevation Yesterday

Sermon by Rev. C. H. Marsh, of Lindsay—Good Progress During Past Three Years.

Yesterday in All Saint's Church, Sherbrooke street, the third anniversary of the elevation of the parish was celebrated, and special services in commemoration of the event were held. To-night, the anniversary services will be continued, when in the Sunday School room of the Church, an illustrated lecture will be given by Rev. Canon Dixon, of Toronto, Diocesan Mission Secretary, on "The Passion of Christ."

During the three years in which the Church has been working it has been most successful, and the congregation has grown to such an extent that it has been deemed necessary to provide a larger place of worship, and, as has already been intimated in these columns, steps have been taken to secure the site for the erection of a larger church, and it will, no doubt be only a matter of a short time before this will be accomplished.

The anniversary services yesterday were well attended, and two excellent sermons were delivered by Rev. C. H. Marsh, of Lindsay.

At the morning service, the reverend gentleman's theme was "The Call to Service," and the story upon which his sermon was based was that of the call of Matthew, the publican, by Christ, as recorded in Matthew, 9; 9, "A man, named Matthew." The speaker in a few words recalled to the minds the story of the call, to which Matthew responded, leaving what was to him a most lucrative position, though it was one which called down upon him the dire hatred and enmity of the Jews, for the position of tax collector or publican was one which was most unpopular with the great body of Jews.

The first fact which the speaker called the attention of his hearers to was that Matthew was a publican, and as such, Christ, if he had followed out the custom of his fellow Jews would have despised him. He pointed out that though Matthew was a publican he was a man who evidently was of a Holy family, and he pictured the shame of the members of that family as they would think that one of their number was a publican.

The speaker recalled the incidents of the call which formed the subject of his sermon, and said that as soon as Christ said to him, "follow Me," Matthew straightway left his place where he was engaged in making money for himself quickly and followed Christ. Making a personal application the reverend speaker asked those present if they had heard the call, and if so, if they had responded to it as readily as did Matthew.

Christ calls not only ministers to to follow Him, but He calls busy men of the world, and while sometimes He calls these to leave their business, in the great majority of cases He calls them to serve Him in their business.

The second point of interest in this narrative is the fact that Matthew prepared a great feast in his house, at which Christ was the chief guest. No doubt, said the speaker, his first desire in preparing this feast, was to honour the one to whose call to service he had responded, but he also had the desire to let others come into contact with Him, in the hope that they, too, might hear the same call that he did, and heed it.

The speaker pictured graphically the scene at that feast, how the great centre of attraction would be Jesus, and how the thoughts of things which were foreign to such an occasion, would be banished from the minds of those present, and there would be a great expectancy.

They would be curious to know who this great Rabbi was who one day was entertained at the home of a Scribe or Rabbi, and who, the next, would dine at the home of a publican, who was despised by the heads of the church.

No doubt, said the speaker, there will be many feasts and banquets in Peterborough this winter, but to how many of them will there be invited the young men and women who are strangers to the place, and by asking whom service would be rendered to Christ?

The third feature of this story was that the scribes criticized the action of Christ in thus accepting the hospitality of a publican, and it may be set down as a truism that as soon as anybody starts to do work for Christ they will be criticised, but this fact should not prevent the service being rendered.

One would have thought that the scribes and Pharisees would have been glad to have seen Matthew coming back to the service of the church, but it seems that such was not the case.

The speaker laid emphasis on the practical side of Christianity, and gave many examples of how men had emulated the work of Christ in this respect, by visiting the sick and helping the poor for Christ's sake.

On the occasion of the third anniversary of All Saints' church, the speaker said he had watched the growth of the church with great pleasure, from the time that the work was first started in the Sunday school. Rev. Mr. Marsh gave the members some advice as to the most effective way of making the church prosper, which was by the members of the congregation co-operating with the Rector, who, he said, could only begin to do the work in reaching all those within the sphere of influence. He said every church member, and not merely the Rector, should be a worker.

At the conclusion of the sermon, the choir rendered the anthem, "What shall I render unto the Lord?" very effectively, Miss Mary Rush taking the solo in excellent voice and with good effect. The evening anthem was "Send out the Light," and the subject of the sermon was "Individual Effort."

HAD TO HIDE IT

A mother wrote us recently that she had to keep Scott's Emulsion under lock and key—her children used to drink it whenever her back was turned. Strange that children should like something that is so good for them. It's usually the other way. Scott's Emulsion makes children comfortable, makes them fat and rosy-cheeked. Perhaps that's why they like it so much—they know it makes them feel good.

ENTERTAINMENT WAS A SUCCESS

Central Smith Dairy Company in Flourishing Condition

Splendid Programme in Temperance Hall Thursday Night—Mr. N. G. Somerville's Address.

The annual entertainment of the Central Smith Dairy Co., was held in the Temperance Hall on Thursday and was a grand success, the hall being filled to its utmost capacity. Mr. T. D. Young President, took the chair in the absence of Mr. D. Derbyshire, M.P., who was unable to attend.

Mr. Young's address was very encouraging to the Patrons and pointed out to them the necessity of working together and keep up the good name of their factory, which was now among the leading factories on the Board.

MR. SOMERVILLE'S ADDRESS.

Mr. N. G. Somerville, of Brockville, gave an interesting address. The speaker said he was greatly delighted to see such a large gathering of men, women and children present. I wish to convey to you, said Mr. Somerville, Mr. Derbyshire's regret at not being able to be with you, and he wished me to say to you to go right on doing the good work they had been doing.

Our Dairy business was too great to think lightly of as we as Canadians, exported in 1904 $41,000,000 worth of dairy produce. I do not propose to come before you as a practical farmer, as I am not, but I am a farmer's son, and I am proud of it, as everyone who is raised on a farm should be, as it is the best occupation under the heavens to-day. If you will note the change in the farmer who has a family of boys now to a few years ago. The brightest boys are now kept on the farm and the dullest ones sent to college to make doctors or lawyers out of them.

A successful farmer must be intelligent in order to have the best results and try and do better each year and improve each year from his own experience. We, in Brockville, as Mr. Young has referred to, have been lying on our oars and have not made the progress this year that the Belleville and Peterborough sections have done, but I can assure you that in 1905 we are going to make the finest cheese in Canada.

You know that in all section there are some cheese made, which are not the finest and these cheese hurt our reputation as Canadian cheese, one man or factory cannot build up a nation. It is only by standing together and co-operating that we can accomplish this end, that we so much desire.

Now get a good herd of cattle of any breed you choose as there is good and bad in all breeds. See that the teats, body and udder are well brushed before commencing the operation of milking. Milk with clean, dry hands, strain immediately and remove to a pure atmosphere, cool down to a temperature of sixty degrees, stir while cooling and cover perfectly air tight if you will. This method will enable your cheesemaker to get the best quality of cheese as well as a better yield and if you are paying by the Babcock test, as I am told you are, you will find profitable. An improvement was made by Mr. Publow this last season by selecting the best milk coming to a factory and selecting the off-flavoured and gassy milk and placing them in a vat separately. In the case of the good milk it took 10 1-4 lbs to make a lb. of cheese and in the other case it took 14 1-4 lbs., a gain of 4 lbs. Does this not mean dollars and cents to you?

I am pleased to see so many covered stands in this section. See that your cows have plenty of good water and deliver your milk in good cool condition. Call in and see that your cheesemaker is doing his duty and keeping everything neat and clean. In closing I would like to call your attention to the mater of cool curing. By these charts one cheese cured at a temperature of from sixty to eighty degrees shrunk three pounds and one ounce. The other at a temperature of 56 degrees shrunk one pound one ounce, a saving of two pounds. This on your factory's output for the season would amount to a great deal. In 1903 at the four government cool curing rooms we were able to save in shrinkage alone on 2,070,896 lbs. of cheese, 21,405 lbs. worth $3,139.44. In 1904, on 2,733,376 lbs. 46,022 lbs., worth $4,812.63 and the quality worth 1-4 of a cent per lb. more.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Somerville and the boys of the Ontario Bank.

Something New In----- SARDINES.

The best sardines in the world have been caught recently off the shores of Norway. These have immediately been pronounced by French and other European countries as Par Excellence. The best brand is put up by Stavanger Preserving Co., Norway, under the name of "Crossed Fish" brand. The fish are very small and very tender; they have been slightly smoked before being preserved, which not only adds to their delicacy of flavor, but prevents "fish-taste after eating," so customary with ordinary sardines. The genuine sardine is far above the common herrings sold as sardines, as all connoisseurs well know. To be sure you are getting the best order

FIGHTING FOR THREE DAYS

Kuropatkin's Reported Victory Dissolves Into Thin Air Before the Irresistible Troops of the Japanese General—Oyama Captures 500 Russian Officers and Men—Gen Mistchenko Wounded in Foot.

Tokio, Jan. 30.—Telegraphic advices received here yesterday from the Japanese Manchurian headquarters, dated the 29th, says:

"Our detachment occupied Liutiako yesterday (Saturday), and was twice counter-attacked by a superior force of the enemy last night. We entirely repulsed the enemy.

"Our other detachment at dawn today (Sunday) attacked the enemy in the neighborhood of Feitsaihotzu, about two miles north of Heikoutai and occupied the position. The enemy fiercely counter-attacked our force, which assailed Heikoutai last night, but was repulsed entirely. To-day our force occupied the neighborhood of Heikoutai.

"The enemy in the direction of Liutiako and Heikoutai has entirely retreated to the right of the Hun River. Our force is now pursuing them.

"In the direction of Chenchiephao and Likajentan, the enemy made several attacks last night, but were repulsed. The enemy attacking these points belonged to the eighth and tenth corps.

"In the direction of Heikoutai the enemy is composed of the first and mixed corps of infantry, together with a cavalry division under Gen. Mistchenko.

"We captured 500 officers and men.

"The casualties on both sides are under investigation.

"The Russians are massing about 65,000 troops on the Japanese left, and bombarding the left flank and centre. Small forces of Russians are attacking all along the line.

Fight and Centre.

Manchurian headquarters of the Japanese army report that on Saturday the Russians occasionally bombarded the right and centre armies, following up the bombardment with attacks, which the Japanese immediately repulsed. In the direction of the left wing a Japanese detachment were victors at Chenchiephao and occupied Liutiako and Livchiawopeng on Saturday, the Russians retreating north and west.

The Japanese occupied with infantry positions southeast of Heikoutai on Saturday and are now assaulting the main position. Another detachment dislodged a regiment of infantry, a brigade of cavalry and twelve guns occupying Haerphao five miles south of Heikoutai.

The Russian strength opposing the Japanese left flank is roughly estimated at eight corps, consisting of fourteenth and fifteenth infantry division of the tenth corps, part of the sixty-first infantry division, part of the first Siberian corps and the first and ninth brigades of rifles.

Battle of Jan. 25.

Szefangtai, 60 versts, southwest of Mukden, Jan. 28.—Via Pekin, Jan. 29.—A battle commenced at daylight Jan. 25, the right flank reinforced by troops from the east began a movement against the Japanese left. One corps, leaving Szefangtai at midnight, Jan. 24, marched about seven miles southwest and at daylight attacked.

The infantry, backed up by artillery, drove the Japanese from two villages at midday after a sharp fight and continued to make progress, the rest of the right flank becoming engaged. The Russian artillery fire was heavy, but the Japanese remained almost silent. The captured villages presented a war-like picture with Japanese and Russian dead lying side by side in the streets.

The Russian infantry kept under the cover of the walls and houses to protect themselves from the Japanese fire from adjoining villages.

The country is flat and thickly populated, and the villages are large and rich in foodstuffs.

It is snowing and bitterly cold, and the troops eagerly seek the protection of the villages, which in this district have escaped destruction.

On Jan. 26 there was a heavy fire along the right front and an advance was made. The wind at the Russians back drove the snow in the faces of the Japanese, and was very difficult to see any distance. One Siberian rifle regiment suffered somewhat heavy loss.

Jan. 27.—The fighting continued on the right flank, but it does not seem to be developing along the centre or eastern flank. Probably the cold weather prevents a further continuance of the battle.

There is more artillery on both sides than in any former battle of history.

Russians Admit Defeat.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 30.—Lt.-Gen. Sakharoff has telegraphed the following report to the general staff, under date of Jan. 28:

"On Jan. 26 the enemy began to concentrate in considerable force near Sandepas, intending to take the offensive against the villages of Sumapu and Paotsao, south of Sandepas, which were occupied by the enemy. During the whole of Jan. 27 an obstinate fight was going on here and after midnight we took Sumapu.

"On Jan. 26 another column, advancing upon Sandepas, occupied in the evening a great part of that fortified village: but, coming upon a strong redoubt with a triple row of artificial obstacles, which had been scarcely damaged by our fire, and which was armed with field artillery and quick-firers, and seeing the impossibility of carrying the redoubt without a preliminary bombardment, our troops left Sandepas, which had been set on fire, it being impossible to remain there without risking defeat.

"On Jan. 27 and 28 Sandepas and its redoubt were heavily bombarded, while our extreme column engaged near Samapu and Paotsao. Details have not been received

"On Jan. 26 and 27 our cavalry, operating six miles south of Sandepas, attacked and defeated a Japanese company and took 100 prisoners. Altogether the Japanese must have suffered considerable losses."

Cannonading in a Storm.

Mukden, Jan. 28.—(Via Tientsin)—The most important cannonade since the first battle on the Shakhe River was maintained all yesterday in a continuous storm against the Japanese left, which Field Marsgal Oyama has been reinforcing with troops from Port Arthur since General Mistchenko's raid. The attack was centred about seven miles west of Shakhe station, and it resulted in the Japanese withdrawing from Holantai and Funchuang Chitatsza, which the Russians have occupied. The cannonading and snowstorm continue undiminished to-day. It is considerably colder.

The cannonading indicates that an extended contest is progressing. To-day's reports indicate that the Japanese are continuing to fall back, while the Russian cavalry have, it is understood, advanced their lines 10 miles. The Japanese flew a large kite into the Russian lines. The kite was covered with photographs showing the treatment of Russian prisoners in Japan. It was evidently intended to attract the Russian soldiers. On Jan. 27 there was a heavy cannonading on the right flank. It subsided entirely shortly after noon and quiet now continues throughout the centre and right.

Mistchenko Hit in the Leg.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 30.—A telegram from Huan Mountain states that General Mistchenko has been wounded in the leg.

Three Steamers Carry 2,000 Refugees.

Che Foo, Jan. 30.—Three steamers carrying 2,000 Russian refugees left here yesterday for Odessa. Two junks, the vanguard of 25, which left Port Arthur, Jan. 27, arrived there yesterday. The coldest weather of the season was experienced during the trip, and a majority of the women and children aboard were nearly frozen.

WEST HURON.

Conservative Returned Through Deputy's Error—A Re-Count in Kingston—Liberal in Port Arthur and Rainy River.

Goderich, Jan. 30.—The official count of the ballots cast at the recent election took place Saturday before Returning Officer Sheriff Reynolds. Upon examining the poll books it was found that in one polling subdivision, No. 7, Hullett, the Deputy Returning Officer had omitted to fill in the proper form in the poll book, which is the returning officer's only guide as to the number of ballots cast for each candidate, with the result that Mr. Dudley Holmes, the Conservative candidate, was declared elected by a majority of fifteen. The ballots cast in this division can only be examined on a recount, which will take place immediately, and as Mr. Cameron, the Liberal candidate, has a majority there of twenty, the final majority will be found to be five, unless otherwise reduced or increased on the proceedings before the County Judge.

Re-Count in Kingston.

Kingston, Jan. 30.—Official returns of the local election increased the majority of Mr. Pense, Liberal, by one. The figures are: Pense, 2,230; McIntyre, 2,213. To-day the Conservatives will file an application for a re-count. They do not expect to gain much by it, and announce that the election will be protested. If a protest is entered the Liberals intend taking criminal proceedings against several leading Conservatives for various misdeeds, including forgery of checks bearing Mr. Pense's name.

Port Arthur and Rainy River.

Winnipeg, Jan. 30.—The latest report from Port Arthur and Rainy River is that Kennedy, Liberal, has 31 majority, with St. Ignace Island and Silver Mountain to hear from. It is very difficult to get detailed returns.

THIBET TROUBLE AT HOME.

Younghusband and the British Government Cause Friction.

London, Jan. 30.—A voluminous blue book, issued on Thibetan affairs, has unusual interest as revealing strong friction between the Government and Col. Younghusband, concerning indemnity which Younghusband fixed at $3,750,000, payable in 75 annual instalments, which would have resulted in British occupation of the Chumbi Valley for 75 years.

Mr. Brodrick, Secretary of State for India, on Sept. 18, telegraphed suggesting a reduction to $1,125,000. Col. Younghusband's response to this and other Government protests strongly deprecated alteration in this treaty as tending to defeat the object of the mission.

Finally, a lengthy correspondance between Secretary Brodrick and Lord Curzon of Keddleston, the Viceroy of India, ended in the Government accepting the situation as regards the $3,750,000 indemnity, but refusing to permit of the occupation of the Chumbi Valley beyond three years and protesting that Col. Younghusband had framed the convention in defiance of expressed instructions.

Fire Causes $500,000 Loss.

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 30.—The fire which started Saturday night in the wholesale district of this city burned half a block and was one of the most destructive in the history of Omaha. A conservative estimate places the total loss at about half a million dollars.

Cardinal Satolli Ill.

Rome, Jan. 27.—The illness of Cardinal Satolli has taken a serious turn, and it is feared pneumonia will ensue. The Cardinal's temperature is 103.

We Offer $1,000

For a Disease Germ That Liquozone Can't Kill.

On every bottle of Liquozone we offer $1,000 for a disease germ that it cannot kill. We do this to assure you that Liquozone does kill germs.

And it is the only way known to kill germs in the body without killing the tissues, too. Any drug that kills germs is a poison, and it cannot be taken internally. Medicine is almost helpless in any germ disease. It is this fact which gives Liquozone its worth to humanity; a worth so great that, after testing the product for two years, through physicians and hospitals, we paid $100,000 for the American rights. And we have spent over one million dollars, in one year, to buy the first bottle and give it free to each sick one who would try it.

Acts Like Oxygen.

Liquozone is not made by compounding drugs, nor is there any alcohol in it. Its virtues are derived solely from gas—largely oxygen gas—by a process requiring immense apparatus and 14 days' time. This process has, for more than 20 years, been the constant subject of scientific and chemical research.

The result is a liquid that does what oxygen does. It is a nerve food and blood food—the most helpful thing in the world to you. Its effects are exhilarating, vitalizing, purifying. Yet it is an absolutely certain germicide. The reason is that germs are vegetables; and Liquozone—like an excess of oxygen—is deadly to vegetal matter.

Liquozone goes into the stomach, into the bowels and into the blood, to go wherever the blood goes. No germ can escape it and none can resist it. The results are inevitable, for a germ disease must end when the germs are killed. Then Liquozone, acting as a wonderful tonic, quickly restores a condition of perfect health. Diseases which have resisted medicine for years yield at once to Liquozone, and it cures diseases which medicine never cures. Half the people you meet—wherever you are—can tell you of cures that were made by it.

Germ Diseases.

These are the known germ diseases. All that medicine can do for these troubles is to help Nature overcome the germs, and such results are indirect and uncertain. Liquozone attacks the germs, wherever they are. And when the germs which cause a disease are destroyed, the disease must end, and forever. That is inevitable.

Asthma, Abscess—Anæmia, Bronchitis, Blood Poison, Bright's Disease, Bowel Troubles, Coughs—Colds, Consumption, Colic—Croup, Constipation, Catarrh—Cancer, Dysentery—Diarrhœa, Deadruff—Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Hay Fever—Influenza, Kidney Diseases, La Grippe, Leucorrhœa, Liver Troubles, Malaria—Neuralgia, Many Heart Troubles, Piles—Pneumonia, Pleurisy—Quinsy, Rheumatism, Scrofula—Syphilis, Skin Diseases, Stomach Troubles, Throat Troubles, Tuberculosis, Tumors—Ulcers, Tapeworm, Womb's Diseases

Gonorrhœa—Gleet

All diseases that begin with fever—all inflammation—all catarrh—all contagious diseases—all the results of impure or poisoned blood.

In chronic debility Liquozone acts as a vitalizer, accomplishing what no drugs can do.

50c. Bottle Free.

If you need Liquozone, and have never tried it, please send us this coupon. We will then mail you an order on a local druggist for a full-size bottle, and we will pay the druggist ourselves for it. This is our free gift, made to convince you; to show you what Liquozone is, and what it can do. In justice to yourself, please, accept it to-day, for it places you under no obligation whatever.

Liquozone costs 50c. and $1.

The Meister Singers.

So many requests were made for a return engagement of this famous quartette, after their appearance here in December last, that arrangements have been made for a second concert here on Tuesday, Feb. 7th. The Examiner of the 13th of December had the following to say: "A more thoroughly delighted audience never issued forth from the opera house, than that of last evening, after having listened to an exquisite programme by the Meister Glee Singers. It would be superfluous to comment at any length upon the singing of the quartette.....Such exquisite harmony has never before been heard from male voices; the ensemble work was beautiful; the perfect modulation; the exquisite blending of the parts; the careful phrasing and shading; the distinct articulation combining to produce an effect which was irresistible. The singing was beyond criticism." Tickets at Ormond & Walsh's, Sanderson's, The Examiner office and Walter Stocker. 1d

CRESSMAN'S OPEN NEW DEPARTMENT

Carpets and Housefurnishings will be Added to List of Goods Sold

A Bright Well Lighted Room in Which the Goods Will be Displayed—Now Ready for Business.

Mr. A. W. Cressman, with his usual progressiveness, has decided to add another department to his already large store, as has already been intimated in these columns, and today a representative of the Examiner visited the store mentioned and took a trip on the electric elevator to the third story, the future home of the carpets and housefurnishing department of the store, which is now practically ready for business. The entire width of the store will be utilized for this department, and the show rooms will be 50 by 48 feet. An arch has been made between the two sections of the store, and in the southern portion, which will be used for carpets and floor coverings a new hardwood floor has been laid, while in the northern portion a carpet will be laid, and this part will be used for curtains, window shades, drapes, etc.

Mr. Titterson, as has already been stated, has been engaged to take charge of the department, and is ready now to serve the wants of the customers.

A very large stock of goods will be carried and a considerable quantity of this stock was purchased by Mr. Cressman when he was in England last fall.

The show rooms are large and well lighted, and are very conveniently arranged. The contract for the carpentry work was let to Mr. W. J. Johnston, who has performed the work in a creditable manner, while the painting and paper-hanging were done by Mr. Ralph Carton.

The firm's customers may depend on being given as good service in the new department, as they have been given in the other departments of the store in the past.

Better Bag One.

PENNY READINGS' SUCCESSFUL START

Last Night in the Y. M. C. A.—A Good Programme.

The first of a series of Penny Readings entertainments held in the Y.M.C.A. Hall on Friday evening was voted a great success both in point of attendance and excellence of programme.

Mr. R. E. Harding, President of the Strangers' Fellowship Club, occupied the chair and in introducing the programme referred to what the club was doing.

The instrumental by Messrs. McCoy and Beach, the latter playing the drum, was loudly encored, the numbers being "Burning of Rome," and "Warming Up in Dixie."

Little Miss Helen Rush made a great hit in her song and was recalled. Clever piano instrumentals were executed by Herb Johnston and Gladys Seward. The latter is a little musical wonder.

Master Herb Mowat is always popular and excelled Friday night in the two selections he sung.

Hallie Hill a very young boy, made his first bow to an audience and was well received.

Fred Hall brought down the house with his whistling solo, to which Miss Florence Hall played the accompaniment. The other accompanists were Miss Rush and Mrs. Mowat.

Mr. Dormer presented some comic lantern views which were introduced with some very witty remarks.

The shadowgraphs were amusing and well given.

A prominent feature was the debate between the Boys and Intermediates. Championed by Ed. Mann and Max Dobbin on the one side and John Evans and Fred Hall. Result was declared a draw.

The evening concluded with God Save the King.

The sudden tidings of the death of Mrs. George A. Cox grieved and shocked her large circle of friends. Since Hon. G. W. Ross was similarly bereaved, no such conviction of the calamity of such a loss to a husband has fallen upon the minds of sorrowing friends. Two noble souls were Mrs. Ross and Mrs. Cox, whom the world can ill spare.—Toronto Saturday Night.

MRS. TURNER'S FATHER DEAD

Expired Suddenly in Vancouver on on Saturday.

Mrs. M. A. Turner, received word yesterday of the sudden death in Vancouver on Saturday night, of her father, Mr. S. D. Bingham, at the residence of his son, Mr. Frank Bingham, with whom he had been visiting for the past six months.

The deceased's home was in Campbellford, where he had lived for about two years, going there from Galt, which was his home for years. Last summer he was not feeling well and went to British Columbia for a visit with his son Frank. Death was the result of a stroke, which suddenly took him off. The late Mr. Bingham was 68 years of age, and leaves a wife and two daughters and one son. Mrs. Bingham is at present in town visiting her daughter, Mrs. Turner, and the other daughter, Miss Helen, lives in Toronto. Frank, of Vancouver, is the only son.

The funeral will take place tomorrow at Vancouver.

A VERY PRETTY HOME WEDDING

Miss Gertrude May Blewett Married to Mr. Geo. G. Henderson.

An interesting event took place at the residence of Mr. M. Blewitt, of Smith Township, on Wednesday, Jan. 25th, when his youngest daughter, Gertrude May, was united in marriage to Mr. George G. Hendren, of Lakefield, in the presence of about 50 friends of the contracting parties. The wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. L. McKinnon, of Gilmour Memorial Church at 6.30 p.m. in the pretty drawing room of the country home of the bride. The wedding party entered the drawing room as the wedding march was played by Miss Alice Hunter, niece of the groom.

The bride and groom were unattended except for the flower girl, little Miss Gertrude G. Middleton, niece of the bride, who performed the duties of that position with great credit, and won many golden opinions. She is only two years and nine months old.

The bride was dressed in a cream silk dress, trimmed with chiffon and sequins, while the flower girl also wore a cream silk dress and carried a basket of flowers.

The bride wore the conventional veil and orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of bridal roses. She was the recipient of a large number of handsome presents among which was a China tea set, the gift of her uncle, Mr. Geo. Roseborough.

After a dainty dejeuner the young couple left for their new home in Lakefield.

Death of George Blackburn at Nicholls Hospital Yesterday.

At the Nicholls Hospital yesterday morning the death occurred of Geo. Blackburn, in his 60th year. The deceased had been a resident of the town for about four years, and was employed in the C.G.E. Works. He had been living with Mr. Geo. Scott, 164 Aylmer street. The late Mr. Blackburn had been in poor health for some time but was not taken seriously ill until last week. He has no relatives in this country, but has a sister living in Bermuda.

The funeral took place from the hospital this afternoon to the Little Lake cemetery.

Y. M. C. A.

The subjects for yesterday's Gospel service at the Y.W.C.A., were dealt with in an interesting and practical manner by Miss M. J. Barnard, who spoke on "Sabbath Keeping," and by Miss Louise Best whose subject was "Sabbath Breaking." The duet rendered by the Misses Chasty was much enjoyed by those present. It has been decided to have Mrs. Roberts' Bible Class meet hereafter at eight o'clock on Thursday evenings instead of on Friday.

Beginning Tuesday, Feb. 7th, at seven p.m., Miss A. Williamson will resume the Raffia Class work, which was discontinued at the holiday season.

LOCAL STOCK MARKETS

The following is from N. B. Darrell, 357 Water street:—

Toronto, Jan. 30th. — Paris settlement begins to-day. No confirmation of peace rumours. Reported Northwest will be purchased by U.P. and N.Y.C. for $300 per share in 3 1-2 per cent. bonds. U. P. earnings approximately 13 per cent. on common stock and convertible bonds. Harriman wins the Northern Securities case.

The foreign news is more assuring and sentiment on the whole is more favourable to a better market. We continue bullish, but the market is not broad enough to continue upward without reactions of more or less importance.

HON. MR. ROSS' PLACE.

At the present juncture, or, perhaps, more correctly speaking, crisis in the affairs of the province, the place for ex-Premier Ross is at the head of the Opposition in the Legislature. Mr. Whitney is coming into power with only an academic, or theoretical, knowledge of the art of government, which, no matter how good his intentions, is apt to be attended wtih mistakes. Under the circumstances, the proper place for Hon. Mr. Ross is at the head of the Opposition, which, though numerically small, is large in experience and ability. Mr. Ross at the head of the Opposition, is able to do splendid service to the province. He knows how things should be done; he has done things, and done them well — so well, that his opponents have not ventured to criticize his administrative record. As leader of the Opposition, with an able and alert following, he can still demand that his policy of progress and provincial development shall continue to be carried out, as the best interests of the province demand. No man is better qualified than Hon. Mr. Ross to keep the Government up to the mark, and to insist that many of the vague charges made against the late Government, be substantiated, or dropped. It has been stated that there has been wrong-doing in some of the departments. Which and wherein? Let an examination be made. A demand is made that the public accounts be audited. Let it be done. Let the Government introduce its legislation so that we may see what it is, and let a vigilant Opposition hold the Government sharply to its responsibility. Hon. Mr. Ross eloquence, his keenness of criticism, his knowledge of things, are necessary to assist in the good government of the Province. It would not be wise in the interests of the Liberal party or of the province that the legislature should be deprived of his leadership of the Opposition. It would not be in the interests of the Conservative Government itself that Mr. Ross' influence, even if exerted from the Opposition benches, should not be exercised in the interests of the good government of the Province. The more closely on general lines the Opposition adopts and applies Hon. Mr. Ross' wide-awake policy the more strongly they will commend themselves to the good will of the people.

AN ACT OF CHARITY

Indirectly Led to the Death of Civil Engineer R. H. Barrett.

FELL OUT OF ATTIC WINDOW

Stayed At a Cheap Lodging House On York Street, Toronto, Into Which He Had Taken Five Friendless Polanders Who Were Turned Out of Waiting Room At Union Station.

Toronto, Jan. 30.—Under circumstances that are at least strange at 5.30 yesterday morning Russell H. Barrett, a young civil engineer, and recent S.P.S. graduate from Amherstburg, either fell or threw himself from the third storey window at 123 York street, receiving injuries from which he died in the Emergency Hospital two hours later. At first it was thought he might have been the victim of foul play, but investigation by the police and press tends to discount that theory, though by no means accounting for the fatality. Barrett was on his way to Windsor from Pembroke and reached the city on Saturday evening.

Befriended the Friendless.

Evidently he missed connections and to his desire to do a charitable act for five strange Polanders can probably be traced his death. He was at the station at midnight when a party of five Polanders, who had bought tickets for Buffalo, were turned out of the waiting room. They were friendless and unable to speak English. Barrett, from his survey work in the backwoods, evidently sympathized with the men and inquired of the station policeman where lodging for the night could be found and he was directed to Jos. Kazel's on York street.

Mrs. Kazel says they arrived shortly after midnight. Barrett asked for accommodation for his protegee, who were left standing outside, and arranged that they be given beds for $1. He beckoned them in and was about to leave when the lateness of the hour evidently struck him. The reception room at Kazel's is not inviting, and as Barrett has been used to roughing it he asked if he could get a double bed. Mrs. Kazel said it could be arranged, and he paid a quarter and was shown upstairs.

The Fall to Death.

The room assigned to him was in the attic. It contained a bed and a cot. The bed was stretched crossways at the front part, close to the wall and window. The cot was stretched along the south wall and with a table and chair almost filled the room. The cot was already occupied by Fred Hetherington, who, it seems, is also a civil engineer in hard luck, and who comes from Montreal. Hetherington says Barrett complained of feeling restless and unwell when he awoke at 4 o'clock. Hetherington fell asleep again and was awakened by the crash of breaking glass, and just saw Barrett's legs as he disappeared through the window.

His Skull Fractured.

P. C. Martin and Hackman McCarron, who were on York street nearby, heard a crash and saw something falling. At first they thought it was a rush of snow from the roof. Instead it was the unfortunate Barrett. He was removed to the Emergency Hospital, where he died two hours afterwards.

At the Emergency the medical examination showed that deceased had received a bad wound on the back of the head on the left side, which probably fractured the skull. There was also a discolored swelling over the left eye. This, however, could have been caused by the blow in the back of the head. There were also a couple of abrasions on the knees, which it is thought were occasioned by striking on the wires when falling.

Relatives At a Loss.

His father, M. Barrett, who is customs collector at Amherstburg, accompanied by John A. Auld, M.P.P. for South Essex, and J. H. Rodd, Amherstburg, County Crown Attorney, and uncle of deceased, arrived in the city last night, but could throw no light on the affair.

Russell Barrett was 26 years of age. Two years ago he graduated from the Toronto School of Practical Science and was subsequently in the employ of Morrison Bros., engineers and surveyors, Pembroke. Last summer he received a Government appointment as first assistant, section 4, Georgian Bay and Ottawa River survey. He was in Prembroke on Thursday last. The victim was thoroughly steady and of temperate habits, and an unfortunate accident is the only explanation. The young man's father is very willing that an inquest be held, and Coroner Aikins will open an inquiry at Millar's at 4 p.m. to-day. The body will be taken to Amherstburg to-night.

Ten Salesman Takes Life.

Toronto, Jan. 30.—The suicide who was found by P. C. Tinsley in High Park with a bullet hole in the roof of his mouth on Saturday has been identified as Sydney Parton, a tea salesman, who came out from England about fourteen months ago. Parton had no friends in this country. He boarded on Dovercourt road and got his mail at 507 Yonge street. He has a wife and other relatives in England, but their address is not known yet.

Parton traveled through the country with a horse and rig selling tea. Recently he got into financial difficulties and his horses were taken from him. He wrote to his brother in England for money and received a letter about two weeks ago, in which his brother said he could not give him further assistance. Deceased was over 50 years of age and had seen better days.

Struck By a Trolley Car.

Hamilton, Jan. 30. — Saturday night about 9 o'clock John F. Armour Dundas, a civil engineer was run into by a street car near the corner of Charles and King streets. He was crossing from the north side of King street and was struck by the corner of the car vestibule and thrown under the car. The wheels passed over his foot and crushed it so badly that it had to be taken off at the City Hospital. He was reported to be doing well last evening. At one time he was the town engineer, Dundas, but of late has been engaged on the Grand Trunk Pacific, and had lately returned from Montreal.

Lived Only a Short Time.

Napanee, Jan. 30.—Alex. Breckenridge, a farmer, living three miles from town, was killed Saturday afternoon when returning home, by his team running away and striking the Grand Trunk large stone bridge. Breckenridge was pitched against the stone abutment and had his head badly crushed. He only lived a short time.

Toboggan Hits Tree—Girl Dying.

Toronto, Jan. 30.—While a party of young people were coasting on the hill near the Isolation Hospital late Saturday evening, one of the sleighs ran into a tree on the hill and upset, injuring 14-year-old Annie Waring so seriously that there is little hope of her recovery.

The girl was thrown against the tree, and when picked up she was unconscious. She was quickly removed to the General Hospital, where an examination proved that she was suffering from concussion of the brain. There were also several bruises on her body.

The girl has not regained consciousness since the accident, and her case is considered very serious. She lives at 131 Sackville street and is employed at the Christie-Brown Biscuit Factory.

Three Children Burned.

New York, Jan. 30.—James Saxon, 5 years old; Margaret Saxon, 8 years old, and John Saxon, 1 year and three months old, were burned to death in a fire in an apartment house in Westchester avenue Saturday night. They were the children of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Saxon.

Met Awful Deaths.

New York, Jan. 30.—Shut in the steam room of a Russian bath house in Hester street, Abraham Pasternak and Peter Roos, tailors, living in Norfolk street, were scalded to death yesterday before their plight was realized by the attendants. Evidence that both had made frenzied efforts to attract attention was afforded by cuts and bruises on the bodies and by blood-stained scratches in the plaster of the wall.

With All On Board.

New York, Jan. 30.—The wreck of the steam lighter Clarence, which disappeared during the storm of Wednesday, was found Saturday, lying sunk in the ship channel off the Brooklyn shore with part of a mast showing above water. The crew of seven men are believed to be in the wreck.

RUSHING THE BILLS.

C.N.R. to Amount of $3,000,000 Guaranteed By Manitoba Assembly.

Winnipeg, Jan. 30.—The Manitoba Legislature probably established a record for quick despatch of important business Saturday, when the Government's measure to guarantee C.N.R. bonds for 189 miles of new road within the province at $10,000 per mile, was put through all readings, while another bill to guarantee bonds to the extent of a million on the new C.N.R. terminals at Winnipeg, passed its first and second readings and the committee stage.

Premier Roblin said this expedition was rendered necessary to permit of prorogation on Tuesday next, and the measures did not require extended discussion, as their principle was the same as in the previous C N. R. legislation, namely, that the Government guarantee bonds in exchange for mortgages on branch lines and the practical control of rates.

Hon. C. J. Mickle, leader of the Opposition, protested against the scandalous manner in which the Government rushed through measures involving a capital sum of nearly $8,000,000, and declared that the Government was going back on its declared policy of public ownership, in that it did not contract for and operate the terminals itself.

Bound to Come.

London, Jan. 30.—(C.A.P.)—John Dillon, M.P. (Irish Nationalist), speaking at Thurles, Ireland, said he would vote against the opening of British ports to Canadian cattle, but he feared it would come about since Mr. Chamberlain and the Unionist party had declared in favor of it, and it had the support of the Radicals also.

Expansion Is Costly.

Washington, Jan. 30.—The United States Naval Appropriation Bill was reported Saturday by Chairman Foss of the House Committee on Naval Affairs. The bill carries an appropriation of $100,070,079, while the estimates aggregated $119,699,638. The appropriation last year was $2,564,939 less.

Ran Into Snowbank.

Tweed, Jan. 28.—The Bay of Quinte snow plow and two engines ran into a snow bank about five miles from Tweed Thursday night. Both engines left the track. The snow plow is badly broken up, consequently traffic was delayed for some hours. The snowstorm is still raging in this vicinity. The mail clerk was the only one hurt in the collision.

A Discordant Note.

"I got quite a surprise on the street yesterday," said a citizen to a Toronto exchange the other morning. "I was walking along Bloor street near Spadina when I saw two old ladies coming towards me, picking their steps very carefully and earnestly talking. They were richly dressed, cosy old ladies, with beautiful grey hair. As I met them one had just concluded some narrative to the other and said:

"'Now, wouldn't that jar you!'

"Whether it would jar the other old lady or not I do not know, but it certainly jarred me to hear this slang expression coming from such a quarter."

OUR WINTERS.

World-Famous Rancher Illustrates How the Weather Is Moderating.

It is well known to every citizen that Edward Hanlan, former champion oarsman of the world, is an interesting and sparkling conversationalist, but perhaps not many are aware that Mr. Hanlan is in some sort a landmark of Toronto. He remembers incidents that should not escape the future annalist of the city, says The News. Hanlan is a firm believer in the theory that the climate of Ontario is moderating. He gave his reasons for so thinking the other day, when describing old times on the Island. "You know," said Hanlan to a knot of friends, "when I was a boy we lived on the Island, winter and summer. There were few houses there then, and it was a gigantic play-ground for us boys. But the winters were pretty tough. The north wind used to come shrieking down so fiercely that tons of sand were whipped clean across the sandbar. And the snowstorms were worse than anything that ever happens now. Our house was well built and weather proof, but many a morning I have wakened to find that the fine, dry snow had fought its way into the room and had covered bed and floor to the depth of a couple of feet."

Several of the auditors propped themselves against the wall.

"It may sound improbable, but it's a fact, nevertheless," went on the World's Famous. "Most of those mornings it was almost impossible to get out of the room, the snow was so deep. We had to plough through two feet of it between the bed and the the door. When it was deeper than that we had to shovel a path, and cold work it was."

"Shovel a path?" enquired one of the dazed hearers.

"Certainly; in those days we always took the snowshovels to bed with us. Last thing at night Dad or the Mother would call up to us: 'Boys, got your shovels in bed with you?' And if we hadn't we'd have to climb out and get 'em. Boys were brought up right in those days."

It took several minutes and other things to revive the audience.

The Beaver Are Increasing.

Mr. T. Southworth, Director of Colonization and Forestry, who has returned from a visit to Algonquin Park in the Nipissing district, reports that all kind of game there are rapidly increasing. This is particularly true of beaver, which have lately caused much annoyance to railway and lumbermen by building dams in culverts and runways, resulting in damaging divergence of streams. A number of these dams have had to be destroyed.

Red deer are also plentiful, the rangers encountering as many as 25 to 30 of them in a day's tramp. While Superintendent Bartlett was not able to say so from personal observation, he stated that several rangers had reported seeing young capercallzie, a European game bird, which was first introduced into the park about eighteen months ago, and it is now hoped that the capercallzie will thrive in Ontario.

There were no bad fires in the park during the summer and fall. The superintendent has already received many inquiries from Americans asking for information as to facilities for making canoe trips through the park next season.

The Shortest London Street.

Our correspondent's idea that James street, Adelphi, is the shortest street in London is challenged by several writers.

H. King, T. Chandler, H. C., and J. Jones name John street, Pall Mall, which has only one house.

E. W. says Short street, King David land, Shadwell, has only one residence.

T. T. says there is only one address in Brief street, Camberwell.

His Doesn't Count.

Henpeck—Well, whenever my wife and I pull off an election like that she always wins by one vote.

RIOTING AT WARSAW

Russian Soldiers Attack British Consul and Vice-Consul.

BESLITOVSKY IS BURNING

Amuck Among the People Has Drunken, Swashbuckling Hussars—Rioters Loot the Stores—A State of Terror—Father Gopon Said to Have Escaped to Stockholm—Arrests Continue to Be Made.

London, Jan. 30.—The correspondent at Warsaw of The Daily Mail telegraphs as follows: "A group of Hussars ran down the British Vice-Consul Mucukain Saturday night in Marshal Kovski street. Two Hussars rushed at him with their swords, inflicting severe cuts across his face and lower lip. Dripping with blood Mucukain was conveyed to the hospital, where he is now doing well. British Consul-General Murray had a narrow escape from being similarly run down in Wiersebova street. It appears that the incidents were due to a company of Hussars getting drunk and running amuck.

What Will the Night Bring?

The same correspondent describes Warsaw as being in a state of complete anarchy. "Many have been killed or wounded in charges by the troops and the recklessness of swashbuckling Hussars," he says "The only conveyances moving in Warsaw to-day have been military supply cars, ambulance wagons and turnbrils for the dead. The attempted rising of the workmen has failed and the great demonstration unions for to-day has been postponed. After some fighting the wrecked and distraught city pauses to see what night will bring."

Saved By Sacred Ikons.

Describing the pillages of stores, the correspondent says: "Many put chalk crosses on their doors or lighted ikons in their windows, and thus secured their safety. The rioters paused before the sacred emblems. The hoarse murmurs of the mob drowned the church bells. In several cases soldiers fired on looting mobs, and in one case in a working class suburb, they fired a cannon shot, hoping to disperse the crowd. Intermittent firing was proceeding there all day. Hundreds of shops were wrecked and several stores were burned. Probably a few score were killed. The ambulances were busy all day. There were alarming rumors from the country districts. It is rumored that the town of Bestlitovsky is burning."

The Daily Mail's St. Petersburg correspondent reports that Sir Charles Hardinge, the British Ambassador, has asked the Russian Government to make inquiry into the outrages on the British Consul-General and Vice-Consul-General at Warsaw.

Russia's Evil Genius.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 30.—Evidence is accumulating that Emperor Nicholas throughout the present crisis has acted largely upon the advice of Grand Duke Sergius, who is the most reactionary member of the Imperial family, the head of what is denominated the war party, and whom the Liberals stigmatize as Russia's evil genius.

With the first appearance of Father Gopon in the movement, Sergius urged the necessity of putting down the demonstrations in the most energetic manner. Since Sunday last his hand is considered to have been visible to the appointment of General Trepoff to the governor-generalship of St. Petersburg, with the exceptional powers conferred upon him.

Where His Head Is Shown.

Sergius is known to be responsible for the charges placarded by Deputy Chief of Police Roudneff of Moscow, which is causing Foreign Minister Lamsdorff embarrassment, and now it is believed he is about to prevail in the matter of naming as Prince Mirsky's successor in the ministry of the interior, M. Bouligan, formerly Governor-General of Moscow, who, like his patron, is an extreme reactionary.

Sergius more than M. Witte is responsible for the elimination from the Imperial manifesto of Minister Mirsky's plan for an elected Zemstoviat's Council of the Empire. Against Sergius' influence the ministers at present are apparently powerless. He remains in the little palace inside the strong ramparts of Kremlin fortress in Moscow, from whence he despatches daily a courier to Tsarskoe Selo.

Arrests Continue to Be Made.

Arrests continue. Among those seized last night and conveyed to St. Peter's and St. Paul's fortress were Yakonbovich, the poet, who served a term of exile in 1886 for connection with the revolutionaries; Madame Pimenoff, an aged writer, and her daughter. Father Gopon, it has now been definitely established, escaped through Finland and was conveyed across the gulf to Sweden by sympathetic Finns. At present he is supposed to be in Stockholm. A story has been started, and which is attributed to the police, that Gopon is a Jew.

Czar Must Yield Demands.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 30.—A marshal of the nobility from one of the central provinces has expressed the opinion to the Associated Press that the Government could not extricate itself from the present situation without very substantial concessions. He believed that within three months, in the face of thickening troubles, it would be obliged to create a zemsky haber.

The situation in Poland is increasingly threatening, especially in Warsaw and Lodz. In the latter place, it is reported, 100,000 men are out on strike. There are prospects of extension of the strike in Odessa, and other manufacturing cities of Southern Russia, where the workmen are better organized and more serious.

A CLEAN MAN.

Outside cleanliness is less than half the battle. A man may scrub himself a dozen times a day, and still be unclean. Good health means cleanliness not only outside, but inside. It means a clean stomach, clean bowels, clean blood, a clean liver, and new, clean, healthy tissues and fibers in every organ of the body. The man who is clean in this way will look it and act it. He will work with energy and think clean, clear, healthy thoughts.

He will never be troubled with liver, lung, stomach or blood disorders. Dyspepsia and indigestion originate in unclean stomachs. Blood diseases are found where there is unclean blood.

Consumption and bronchitis mean unclean lungs. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery prevents these diseases. It makes a man's insides clean and healthy. It cleans the digestive organs, makes pure, clean blood, and clean, healthy flesh. It doesn't make the flabby fat of corpulency, but the firm flesh of health. It restores tone to the nervous system, and cures nervous exhaustion and prostration. It contains no alcohol to inebriate or create craving for injurious stimulants.

Mr. John L. Conghenour, of Glen Savage, Somerset Co., Pa., writes: "My appetite was unusually poor, and I was as weak and nervous as though I had been starved for months. My heart kept throbbing continually and I was short of breath. Finally I wrote to you for advice and you informed me that I had indigestion and a torpid liver. I did not think your diagnosis was right, but I ordered six bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery' from you and began its use. After using three bottles I began to improve slowly and soon went to work, and I have been working ever since."

Constipation is the most unclean uncleanliness. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure it. They never gripe.

SPECKS BEFORE THE EYES.

Seeing Things In The Day Time.

There are Thousands of Persons Afflicted This Way. Ninety-Nine Times Out of One Hundred it is Caused by Either the Liver, Stomach, Bowels or Digestive Organs.

In no part of the body are the effects of constipation more quickly noticed than in the condition of the eyes. They quickly respond to the poisonous elements which are absorbed into the blood in chronic cases of liver torpidity and sluggish bowel action. When you see a yellowish tinge in the whites of the eyes it shows quickly the biliousness which pervades the whole system; but it is the specks and flitting objects in the vision itself that are even more quickly apparent. Thousands of people see things in the daytime; their vision is blurred, spots come between them and other objects which seem quite intangible, almost imaginary, and as they turn their heads they vanish as with a flash. Such conditions can always be traced to a torpid liver and a congested condition of the bowels, yet can always be cured by the well-advised use of Smith's Pineapple and Butternut Pills, which cure constipation as if by magic. They regulate the functions of the liver, cleanse the poisons from the blood, remove the bilious elements from the circulation and strengthen the nerves. If your eyes are clouded without an appreciable cause, if you have specks and floating objects before your vision, use Smith's Pineapple and Butternut Pills and get the poisonous elements out of your blood. Remember they always cure sick headache, constipation and biliousness in one night. 25 cents, all dealers.

PITH AND POINT.

Don't run to the doctor too often.

The average mistake will give you less trouble if you come right out and admit it.

Some people waste a lot of the present in thinking what they would do if they could live their lives over.

Good luck and merit always travel together in one team and bad luck and worthlessness always in another.

When mother goes to visit her daughter she takes no party dresses, but you bet she takes her kitchen aprons.

If a woman's voice is sweet depends largely upon whether she is calling us to dinner or to get out of bed in the morning.

When a woman reads of a horse "champing restively on its bit" she doesn't know exactly what it means, but she feels that she often does it.

The Governor's Wife.

"Two men in Buffalo," says a state official, "recently had a heated argument over the question whether the wife of a governor of a state had an official title. One man contended that she should be addressed as 'Mrs. Governor So-and-so,' while the other stoutly insisted that she was simply 'Mrs. Blank, wife of Governor Blank.' Finally they agreed to submit the question to the first man they should meet. He proved to be an Irishman. The case was put before him, and he was asked for a decision.

"'Neither of yes is right,' said the Irishman after a moment's reflection. 'The wife of a governor is a governess.'"

Deaf as an Adder.

The expression "deaf as an adder" is from the Psalms of David, where it appears in the following form: "Their poison is like the poison of serpents. They are like the deaf adder that stoppeth her ear, which will not harken to the voice of charmers, charming ever so wisely." East Indian travelers tell us that there is a widely prevailing superstition in the east to the effect that both the viper and the asp stop their ears when the charmer is uttering his incantations or playing his music by turning one ear to the ground and twisting the point of the tail into the other.

A GREAT CONTEST FOR TO-NIGHT

Port Hope and Peterborough Juniors Will Meet Here.

To-night the second home junior game for the Peterborough team will be played, when the Port Hope team will meet the local seven in what should be a fast game. When the game was played in Port Hope the score was 1—0, and Dr. W. G. Wood, of Toronto, who refereed the game, stated that it was the fastest junior game he had ever seen. Dr. Wood is a man who knows hockey, when he sees it, and when he said the game was a fast one, his opinion should have some weight.

The line up of the local team will be changed somewhat from that of the former game. Joe Gilman, the fast wing man of the Karnots, will take McWilliams' place. The latter is considerably used up as a result of the last game.

The locals will line-up as follows:—
Goal—Fitzpatrick.
Point—Moore.
Cover point—Long.
Rover—McFarlane.
Centre—Hall.
Left wing—Gilman.
Right wing—Smith.

DRAUGHTING ROOM WON THE GAME

Defeated Staff of the C. G. E. Office on Saturday Night.

On Saturday night between six and seven o'clock on eof the fastest games of hockey was played on the Brock street rink between the Office and Drawing Room of the Canadian General Electric Co. Owing to the office not having their regular team on hand they were snowed under by 4 goals to nil. Glover was the star for the losers, while Rush was the whole game for the winners. The office had a good many supporters on hand and many a time the puck was shot on the opposite goal but owing to Jimmie Hyde's stops and lifts they failed to score. E. Tovey in goal for the first half for the office team stopped a few warm ones and Anglesye, who never played goal before, was a winner. He only allowed three goals to slip through and played a very good part behind the flags. The score at half time was 1-0, and at full time 4-0. The line-up was as follows:—

Draughting Room.		Office.
Allen	Goal.	Tovey
Hyde	Point.	oels
Lloyd	Cover Point.	Anglesye
Latimer	Right Wing.	Shirley
Rush	Centre.	Glover
Turner	Right Wing.	McCaughey
Cranfield	Left Wing.	Haskill

Great credit must be given McCaughey who played a very effective game. Mack shot several times on the goal but failed to score. The return game will be played in the near future when the tables will probably be turned on the Draughting Room.—Com.

LINDSAY LOST TO BETTER TEAM

What the Post has to Say of the Game on Friday.

The Lindsay Post in reporting the game here on Friday in which the Lindsay team was defeated by 11—0, says:

Lindsay went down to Peterborough last evening and allowed the Porridge Factory boys to trim 'em up handsome. Probably the zero weather affected our boys, as the score at half time was 7 to zero, and at full time 11 to zero. Deserved it, too, by gum! And now Peterborough will be dreaming of intermediate championship.

Peterborough's strong hold last evening was in having a cracker-jack of a goalkeeper, in Ernie Wasson. He stopped shot after shot, some of which looked like impossibles. Irving lifted about ten shots into the goal, but he was in the way of them all. Lindsay boys worked hard and made numerous jabs at the nets, but that was all, they didn't get in. Peterborough has a strong team which will prove a serious obstacle to every visiting team this winter. The victory is theirs because they played a better game. Cavanah and Crowley figured frequently on the rush and shoot line.

For Lindsay, Taylor and Callaghan were the stars, playing a hard game. They rushed well and checked good. Koyl was not up to the standard, but will be a fast one. Parkins was in the game, but had a hard man to check. Our defence was good at relieving, and made a number of good lifts. The trouble with the seniors is that when the puck goes towards their goal, our forwards don't get back fast enough to help the defence in clearing the goal.

The Lindsay players report the best of treatment at the hands of the Peterborough club—as one of the players expressed himself, "We were used white!". The oyster supper was greatly enjoyed and put the boys in good spirits. It is the general impression that the Peterborough players did not play their usual game here on Jan. 9th, when the home boys won. However, if Peterborough wins this district we wish them success in their aspirations for the intermediate championship.

DISCARD OVERCOATS AT HOCKEY GAMES

Those who have been used to attending hockey games in Canada and half freezing will read with a certain amount of envy of the comfort with which hockey may be witnessed in Pittsburg. A correspondent says:—

There is a great deal of comfort in going to a match here, as you do not have to get all wrapped up in furs and carry a load of rugs along with you to keep from freezing. The first match I attended here I was for hunting up heavy underclothes, and was trying to locate an old fur cap that I had brought with me, but was laughed at and told they were not needed. I was skeptical, because I couldn't see how you could have ice and hockey without having cold, but it was no ice; the ice is artificial, made right on the spot, and making all the time, and they do not care whether the weather is warm or cold; the ice surface is always the same. The rink is steam heated. Now, just think of the comfort of going to a hockey game in a rink like that, taking off your overcoat and checking it and sitting through the game with as much comfort as though you were sitting by your own fireside. It looks more like a theater than a rink, and the lady portion of the audience—and it is always a large one—helps out the illusion. And with it all the ice is as hard as though the thermometer were 20 below and reaching for the bottom.

ANOTHER VICTORY FOR B.A.C. HOCKEYISTS

Eko Camp Defeated in a Swift Game on Saturday Night.

There are in existence at the present time two great hockey teams—the Ottawa Stanley Cup team, champions of the world and the B. A. C. team, which has yet to be defeated.

The B. A. C. team on Saturday night scored one of the greatest victories in its existence—which means considerable—by defeating the Eko Camp team. It was a hard fought and well earned triumph for the "bachelors" the score, when the ice had been cleared being like this,—B. A. C., 3; Eko Camp, 2. Yes, it was close, but a garrison finish on the part of the winners made things decisive and the hundred (?) or so supporters of the winning team who remained in the rink until Sunday morning could be seen approaching, went wild with delight over the finish.

The game was quite brilliant and gory and when it was time to go to church yesterday morning some of the players had loving reminiscences of what occurred on the previous night.

Eko camp started off lively and scored two goals in the first half, while the B. A. C. septette was getting accustomed to the surroundings. And so at half time the score was 2-0 in favour of the Eko boys. It was do or die in the second period and the B. A. C.s did and by some wonderful hockey notched three goals and won out.

Hutchinson in the nets for the winners was really remarkable and he stopped everything at all stoopable. Moore at point was a veritable brick wall and the way he broke up rushes would gladden the heart of an Egyptian mummy. Wood at cover point put up a star game his lifting being of senior calibre. In fact the defence was largely responsible for the team's glowing victory. Ernie Best's discoloured optic had no effect on his playing and he carried many happy thoughts into effect. George Robertson at left wing, played a horse of a game and figured in the scoring. Ross Dobbin was there with the goods at right wing and worked like a beaver. R. N. Jolliffe figured at rover with effect.

Eko Camp presented a formidable lineup. Martin, in goal, played splendidly and stopped innumerable hot ones. Harry Morgan at point, of course, starred and kept the B. A. C. defence busy stopping his rushes. Glover at cover point, was also dangerous, while Jack Comstock played a splendid game at rover and made many rushes. Watt, Waram and Caniff were speedy. It was truly a great game and this is how the teams looked at the start:—
